One-shot Trade Aid

Japan to Pay Billion For Goods from U.S.

HONOLULU (AP) — President Nixon and Premier Kakuei Tanaka of Japan wind up their meeting today, reaching accord on a one-shot Japanese effort to ease the plight of the United States dollar.

The agreement, to be spelled out in a joint communique, envisages Japanese orders for more than $1 billion of U.S. goods, with the bulk to be paid for in advance.

U.S. officials had hoped to leave Honolulu with an agreement on longer-range solutions to a deficit in U.S. trade dealing with Japan. Such matters, however, are being left largely to future negotiations.

Nixon and Tanaka were said to have spent a third of their time in private talks Thursday discussing trade matters. Sitting in on their initial discussion were Henry A. Kissinger, the president's foreign policy adviser, and Nobuhiko Ushiba, Japan's ambassador to the U.S.

While they met at the Kuilima hotel on Oahu's north shore, U.S. State Secretary William P. Rogers and Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira of Japan presided at a companion conference of other officials from the two countries. They were joined for an hour by Nixon and Tanaka.

After a final meeting and issuance of the communique, Nixon flies back to his San Clemente, Calif., home Friday night.

Trade was the key topic in view of pressure on the U.S. dollar resulting from Japan's currently estimated $3.8-billion surplus in commercial dealings with the United States.

However, Nixon and Tanaka also spent time talking about developing ties between their two countries and mainland China. Tanaka is expected to visit Peking in about a month.

U.S. officials had been anxious for assurances that any move toward diplomatic relations between Tokyo and Peking would not weaken the American-Japanese mutual security treaty.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, said after the initial session that the Americans were confident Japan would do nothing to affect the treaty adversely.

Davis Has Luncheon With British Minister

LONDON (CP) — Despite a reported cold and laryngitis, Ontario Premier William Davis drove off into the English countryside today for a luncheon meeting with Environment Minister Peter Walker.

Information said Walker invited Davis to visit his Worcestershire farm, about 120 miles northwest of London.

Davis and his party were in vited to remain there for lunch, probably returning to London later in the day.

The premier continued with his engagements, mixing sightseeing with business discussions, it appeared his likely that he would cut off his visit before his scheduled Sunday departure.

One of the first moves by the premier's aides, after Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough announced his resignation in Toronto Thursday, was to attempt to secure an earlier flight home. But they said they found there were insufficient seats available for the party Saturday and it appeared the group might leave Sunday, though only on the earlier flight than previously planned.

U.S. Government Unlikely to Aid Stranded Tourists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two United States government agencies predict many more Americans who have taken charter tourist U.S. flights to Europe this year will find themselves without a ticket home.

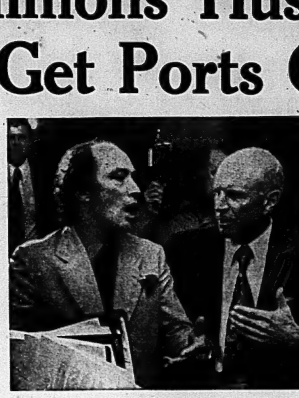
But the state department says it's not at all sympathetic with demands that it bail the stranded travellers out by giving them free rides.

One group of 122 U.S. tourists finally flew home from London Thursday—their way paid by British businesses—after three nights camping in a Gatwick Airport lounge and countless exchanges with the U.S. embassy.

They were stranded because the charter company handling their flight—Daedalus Travel Inc.—announced it was "suspending operations."

State department spokesman Charles Bray said the U.S. embassy in London did what it could, including offering loans to those who might claim they were destitute, but drew the line against demands for a free ride home at U.S. taxpayers' expense.

PCs Favor Labor Board



OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield nailed a plank to his party's election platform Thursday when speaking in the Commons on legislation to re-open the British Columbia ports.

He said if his party forms the next federal government he will take urgent steps to set up a "public interest disputes commission" to deal with such things as the port closure.

"I do not say that this is a magic wand," he said, "but I can see that in this situation, for example, such a commission could have played an active, constructive role in participating these difficulties and in trying to resolve them long before the difficulties which resulted in a work stoppage came to a head."

He said the commission would consist of men and women with wide experience in the field "who know the problems and who are independent in their thinking."

The recommendations of such a body would have a degree of moral force that would make anybody, employer, union or government, think twice before ignoring them."

Cure Bad As Car Fumes

NEW YORK (AP) — Anti-pollution equipment being considered by the automobile industry may itself be hazardous to humans says Dr. William D. Balgord, senior research scientist for the state's department of environmental conservation. He is concerned about metals being considered for a device called a catalytic converter. The converter would be designed to burn up the hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide that are not burned up during the combustion process.

Crayfish Stay Slim

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Biology researchers at Trent University here have isolated a hormone in crayfish that they believe might provide information leading to the control of obesity and some heart diseases.

Dr. David Carlisle said the researchers discovered a fat-controlling hormone in the crayfish while carrying out a study of pesticide deposits in marine life.

CAIRO (Reuter) — President Anwar Sadat will visit the United Nations in New York towards the end of the year, diplomatic sources said today.

New System Detects Oil Spills

AZUSA, Calif. (AP) — The United States Coast Guard is developing a system with several airborne eyes for spotting oil spills at sea—and pinning the blame on the ships that cause them.

The device will map the location and size of spills in all kinds of weather, in daylight and darkness.

It also will make a film record of any oil and ship for evidence in prosecuting violators of international oil spill agreements.

By 1975 the coast guard plans to have the equipment installed in airplanes which will patrol the country's shores, scanning a 50-mile (80-kilometre) strip of ocean, spokesmen say.

Although accidental spills, such as those resulting from collisions are a big pollution problem, the coast guard says "operational spills" are probably more serious in total effect. Many of these result from ships pumping bilges or cleaning oil tanks in coastal waters without reporting it.

Voting Date Real Issue

By DAVE THOMAS

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament and the people will know by sometime this evening whether there will be a federal election Oct. 30, prime date for a fall vote.

It all depends on two things: whether the Commons and the Senate have approved emergency legislation sending striking British Columbia dockers back to work and, primarily, whether Prime Minister Trudeau has confidence in the mood of the country.

The Commons dealt quickly Thursday with the first stages of debate on the back-to-work bill and was expected to pass it on to the Senate this afternoon, probably for speedy approval followed by the royal assent that would make it law.

The bill would start the 2,300 striking longshoremen in B.C. ports loading grain that has been piling up since Aug. 7, angering both Asian buyers and Prairie farmers.

Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hamel has said that today is the latest practicable time he could organize an Oct. 30 vote and, because of weather conditions and impending winter unemployment, a later election

IRA Under Pressure To Call off Bombings

From REUTER-AP

BELFAST (CP) — The militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army was under mounting pressure today to call off the bombing campaign that has caused dozens of deaths across Northern Ireland.

As leaders of the Northern Ireland Civil Rights Association prepared to travel to Dublin to intercede with Provisional Chiefs, the Official wing of the IRA joined in criticism of the militants.

But most observers doubted that the Provisionals, who are believed to have held on to much of their support to Roman Catholic areas of the north despite the bomb deaths, would pay any heed to pleas for a bombing moratorium.

Only three days ago the Provisional command in Dublin issued a warning that their organization will continue the struggle to drive Britain out of the north "relentlessly and ruthlessly."

The official IRA, in a statement issued Thursday night in Ulster's second city of Londonderry, described the bombings as "limited, selective and effective" and denied that the Provisionals have any mandate from people for their tactics.

"When ever did they consult the people on their views of the bombing of shops, hotels, garages and restaurants?" the statement asked. "And especially, when did they ever seek the workers of the various factories whom they blasted out of work continuously?"

The Marxist-leaning Officials, still observing a three-month-old truce in operations against the British Army here, have criticized the bombings by the Provisionals, a more traditionally nationalistic grouping, over tactics in the republican struggle.

The Londonderry statement was issued only a few hours after the civil rights association, a body which has strong support among Catholics, said most people in Ulster feel "revulsion" at the Provisionals' "murderous activity."

Suit Filed Against Fly-in Fishing Camp

The Moira River Conservation Authority will seek a court injunction to restrain a Peterborough area resort operator from trespassing on authority property at Lingham Lake, 20 miles north of Madoc.

The court action is against Kenneth Pyatt, who Authority officials claim has camps on Lingham Lake to which he flies fishing parties.

The statement of claim has been issued and Mr. Wyatt has been served with the writ but the case is not expected to be heard before the fall. City barrister Robert Temple is acting for the Moira River Authority.

Lingham Lake is a man-made body of water formed by the construction of a dam on Black River, which is under the control of the authority.

Mr. Wyatt has digflined to comply with Authority requests to vacate the Lingham Lake property and last fall padlocks were ordered placed on camp doors.

But, an authority spokesman said Mr. Wyatt's fishing camps at Lingham Lake were found to be again in use this summer.

Chamber Supports Area Campground

Coping with the burgeoning ranks of tent and trailer tourists in the area has long been recognized as a priority by those responsible for tourist promotion locally, says Chamber of Commerce manager Don Sutton.

Despite committees and studies there is still no properly serviced campground in the immediate Belleville area.

However, the Chamber manager, in an interview yesterday said plans are now afoot for the building of camping park outside Belleville city limits in one of the adjacent townships. The park will be built by private interests.

He declined to give further details of the project at this time.

Sutton did indicate that the Belleville Chamber of Commerce would be involved both in seeing the development realized and in promoting it once it is in operation.

He said the chamber has received about 200 inquiries this summer from campers and trailer owners seeking suitable accommodation near the city.

Fire Guts Dress Shop

PICTON (Staff) — Fire last night gutted Fraser's Grey Room, a high fashion Picton dress shop, owned by George Fraser.

Cause of the fire, which apparently started in the basement room, is unknown. Smoke was detected in the windows of the shop shortly after 11 p.m. by patrolling Picton police constables Guy Brown and Harry Sisty.

An alarm was turned in and Picton firefighters battled smoke and flames until 1 a.m. today.

A spokesman for the fire department said there were few flames but the store was filled completely with smoke, and all merchandise was damaged extensively. No one was in the building at the time of the fire.

The two - story business block is owned by Thomas Carruthers of Belleville. An upper office is occupied by the Prince Edward county bureau of The Intelligencer. The Picton fire department today was unable to release an estimate of the damages. George Fraser, owner of the Grey Room is a long time Picton clothing retailer. His father, the late Frith Fraser operated one of Picton's first department stores.

Puppets for Storytime Created by Children

Making funny faces can be a serious business for some youngsters.

Like the seven young members of the children's branch of the Belleville Public Library, for instance.

For the past month they've been making these puppets with the funny faces that are leading actors in the traditional Punch and Judy shows.

The results of their labors will be seen by their fellow members when the branch renews its weekly storytime series each Saturday morning starting Sept. 9.

Such shows also are part of the series' yearly delay, although in other years the productions have been the work of library staff.

This year, however, says children's librarian Jean Smith, it was decided to let the youngsters create the puppets — with highly satisfactory results as far as she's concerned.

The storytime sessions have been a regular feature at the library for the past six years and the members themselves are urged to participate. Its objectives include encouraging youngsters to express themselves and increase their interest in books.

TRENTON — The skies above the Canadian Forces Base here were thick with aircraft activity yesterday . . . the type of activity usually reserved for Air Force Day or special events of that nature.

Fighters and bombers performed intricate and sometimes spectacular manoeuvres. Helicopters hovered within yards of the Bay of Quinte, and parachutists dropped from the skies, carrying colored smoke canisters, several of the men waving Canadian and Ontario flags.

Unfortunately, for most residents of the area, the direct rehearsal performances by Canadian International Air Show participants, went unnoticed. The public wasn't invited, and only a few hundred were able to watch from a distance at vantage points on the air base.

Each year the Canadian Armed Forces practice the program which they will present to thousands of visitors at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

There was no change in the forces' requirements for a rehearsal yesterday, and members of the local press and radio, as well as those flown in from Toronto and Hamilton, were out in force to see the show from Base Island.

For several days before this dress rehearsal, motorists travelling along Highway 2, have been observing the arrival of additional aircraft from several Canadian bases as well as a contingent of Royal Air Force planes.

With the rehearsal air show scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m., invited guests and members of the news media were given a chance to view several of the aircraft and crews who would be taking part in the show at the base between Sept. 1 and 4.

The 11 types of aircraft performing over Quinte skies included CF-5s, CF-101s, CF-104s, Hercules, the soon to be retired. Argus, Tutor trainers, Trackers, Snowbirds, plus Huey, Labrador and Sea King helicopters.

Several of these, manned by personnel from almost every part of Canada, were on display before the show.

Although two Harrier aircraft will perform at the CNE, they were not at CFB Trenton for rehearsals. In fact, while the British Vulcan bomber, Nimrod anti - submarine and paired plane, Belfast freighter and Victor tanker were on view, they did not perform yesterday.

Flypasts, smoke - trailed loops and aerial rolls were performed by the various pilots. Helicopters flew overhead in formation, hovering above the bay for minutes, and then disappeared over the horizon.

The Canadian forces will form only a part of the giant air fair in Toronto this week-end. Not only will British airmen perform, but the United States air force and army will be on hand, as will flyers of more antique and vintage craft.

German Fokker will meet English Spitfire; and Fairy Firefly, Japanese Zero, P-38 Lightning, Sopwith Pup, Ford Trimotor and Boeing 247 (only one of 200 300 manufactured still flying) plus a host of others, will perform in a variety of styles.

There will be water bombing by the department of natural resources, rescue operations by Canadian Forces, stunt flying and wing walkers, sport parachuting and for the first time since manufacturer's display, the U.S. Air Force will bring their F-111 fighter into public view.

Election Date Big Issue

tion this year is unlikely. Some speculation has been that Mr. Trudeau might go as late as Nov. 6.

Opposition parties, eager to move their already warm election machines into high gear reluctantly welcomed the bill in the Commons.

Hastily summoned from their summer recess for the emergency sitting, they accepted the action as necessary in the interests of the western economy but did not miss the chance to hit the government on grounds of political opportunism.

"There are bound to be questions which will arise as a result of these events and there is ... confusion and uncertainty about the competence of the government in respect of the whole affair," said Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

"There is one thing that is crystal clear and that is the undiluted and indisputable political motivation displayed by the government in its handling of this dispute."

New Democrat Leader David Lewis, who with the rest of his party wore a red carnation in celebration of the NDP victory in Wednesday's British Columbia provincial election, echoed this feeling.

"I am certain that the voters of Canada will recognize that the timing of this particular piece of legislation was entirely political, and has much more to do with the possibility of the coming federal election than it had with the welfare of Canada."

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, whose party has been pounding ecstasy attested to a healthy recovery from recent surgery, challenged the government for acting quickly to end the B.C. strike last week but in spring, it waited two months before similar action to end a dock strike in Quebec ports.

"That's why people are asking if the government has certain political attitude for westerners and another politics, another attitude, for people of the East or the people of Quebec," he said.

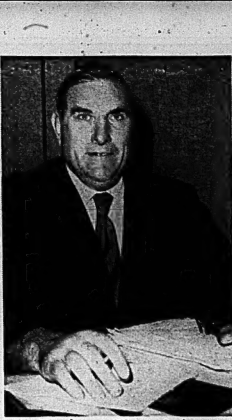
The legislation would force the dockers to return to work a day after it is passed and keep them there until the end of the year, under conditions of the old contract which expired at midnight ago.

The two sides—the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the B.C. Maritime Employer's Association—are to continue negotiating, with the help of a government-appointed mediator if necessary.

An ILWU spokesman said Thursday his man will obey the back-to-work bill.

"An amendment, proposed by the NDP and accepted by the government, guarantees the longshoremen a settlement retroactive to Aug. 1, when their contract expired.

The bill also would head off any possible strike this year by 500 grain handlers on the B.C. docks. Their contract expired last November and there is a threat that they could walk out if the grain companies reject an already-submitted conciliation report.



If they did vote to strike, their negotiations would be subject to the same conditions as those between the longshoremen and the shipping companies. Again, there would be guarantee of a settlement retroactive to the expiry date of the contract.

Parliament Parliament passed repeat legislation, both the longshoremen and the grain handlers would go back to strike Jan. 1.

Labor Minister Martin O'Connell said he learned during a weekend trip to B.C. that an early settlement of the longshoremen's strike was virtually impossible, with the parties far apart on basic issues. He said the bill would stem from the party without interfering with the collective bargaining process.

The Bill he said taking away the legal right to strike was the best intervention with the bargaining process and gave the employer a great advantage over the workers since the employer suffered no financial loss. That was the reason for his proposal that retroactive settlements be guaranteed in the legislation itself, giving the unions something win which to bargain.

Under the terms of the retroactive settlement the union could bargain away all or part of retroactive settlement in return

Law Governing Land Drainage Said Outdated

TORONTO (Special) — Preliminary studies by the provincial select committee on land drainage show major changes are needed in legislation says Lorne Henderson, chairman.

Mr. Henderson wants to end application delays of up to three years, the loop-holes which permit municipal councils to shelve jobs and prepare guidelines on procedures, and find a solution to the question of costs following court cases.

He told the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer he considers four months as the maximum time required to process an application.

The Lambton county beef farmer said he was "shocked" to learn municipal councils can halt applications for municipal drainage programs if "they don't want to become involved".

Mr. Henderson said during the special interview at his Queen's Park office he wants a guideline to outline procedures in a step-by-step basis when dealing with the acts. Further study of beyond clots after a court award case is also required, he said.

The Municipal Drainage Act is used when neighboring farmers want a master system to serve their area. An individual farmer links his field through a tile system which drains into the master waterway.

Costs under the Municipal Drainage Act are apportioned by the value of acreage and charged through taxes. Farmers are able to assume 75 per cent of the costs of laying tile under their fields through a final term, the system which The loan, offered by the Tile Drainage Act, has a 4½ per cent interest rate for 10 years.

The existing legislation results from a 1948 committee study that developed into the drainage acts in 1962.

Mr. Henderson equates greater use of drainage with increased profits.

The provincial member since 1963 says fully drained land will double the production of marginal land regardless of the type of farming.

In the future, Ontario will require more farm products to meet the demands of an increasing population. Ways must be found to make the best use of available land, he said.

To drain the field four-inch diameter tiles of clay, cement or plastic are placed in rows 40- to 80-feet apart.

A dry field, said Mr. Henderson, warms up five times faster than a wet field. During the drying process the soil particles "shrink" and gaps are left. It is through the gaps that the soil particles that air containing oxygen and nitrogen finds its way to the roots of the future plants.

As a result of dry soil, freezing is delayed. The delay in freezing combined with the early warming of the soil through proper drainage gives the farmer an extra 10 days to two weeks during the growing season.

The extra time is important with corn growers who require 90 to 110 days. The additional time resulting from drainage can mean the difference in many dollars in profit.

To explain the financial side of drainage, Mr. Henderson uses a one-acre field where a farmer plants corn. The farmer can expect 90 to 100 bushels of corn from the acre without drainage. Proper drainage will increase the yield to between 100 and 150 acres.

In each case the cost of planting the acre of corn remains the same — about $35 for field operations, seed, fertilizer and harvesting. The returns based on $1 per bushel will vary between $5 and $115.

Mr. Henderson said he is receiving 25 to 30 letters a day from Ontario farmers making suggestions or seeking an opportunity to appear before the committee.

Last week the committee met with municipal councils and farmers in the Kingston area. This week the committee plans a trip to Eastern Ontario with visits to Carleton, Smiths Falls, Prescott and Cornwall. Future meetings are planned in northeastern and northwestern Ontario and throughout southern Ontario.

During July the committee studied tile testing at the University of Guelph and at Saginaw, Michigan. The committee also studied the use in Lambton and Kent counties, where pumps and dikes are used because of the low water table.

Mr. Henderson says the committee expects to submit a minor report to the legislature in November. A major report with recommendations which he hopes will form the basis of new legislation is expected in about a year. Another 12 months to prepare and implement the changes will follow, he said.

Members of the committee, headed by Mr. Henderson, are Frederick A. Burr (ND, Sandwich-Riverside), Robert Eaton (PC, Middlesex South), Donald Ewan (PC, Wentworth North), Arthur Ferrier (ND, Cochrane South), Maurice Hamilton (PC, Renfrew North), R. K. McNeil (PC, Elgin), William Nuttall (PC, Bellwoods), Donald Patterson (L, Essex South), John P. Spence (L, Kent), and Douglas Wiseman (PC, Lanark).

Fertilizers Defended

Among claims by many environmentalists that the use of commercial fertilizers by farmers contribute to pollution, the other side of the coin is presented by Ken Wright, publicity chairman for the Prince Edward County Milk Committee.

Mr. Wright, in his publicity column, says that contrary to the claim of some environmentalist, fertilizers are actually helping to preserve the environment in several ways.

He points out that commercial fertilizers have stopped and even reversed the decline in fertility of soils, whereas manure and legumes may only slow the rate of decline.

Also fertilizers have reduced sediment runoff, the only vehicle of phosphorous transportation to streams, by allowing farmers to turn marginal land into grass.

Bulkmore important fertilizers have enabled man to produce more food on fewer acres. An example of this is that in Illinois, without fertilizers, farmers would have to cultivate three times the present corn acreage merely to maintain the present corn yield.

By increasing production, fertilizers have insured the feed and food needed to supply at least 25 per cent of the population, without it many people would starve.

Weekend Looks Good

Rainfall for two of the three prime warm weather months of the year was inches inches more than normal in the Belleville-Trenton area.

In all, a total of 10.56 inches of rain fell from June to the end of August, compared to an average of 7.40 inches for the period, the weather office at Canadian Forces Base Trenton reported today.

Total rainfall by months, with the averages in brackets June 5.28 (3.50), July 1.84 (2.57), August, 3.44 (2.54).

A fair-weather pattern is being predicted for the upcoming Labor Day weekend.

The outlook Saturday through Monday is for partly cloudy skies, the chance of an odd shower and warm temperatures with highs well up in the 70s and lows in the 50s.

Sewer Slows Park

Installation of the north end Fahey Street storm sewer has delayed development work on the park in the Riverbank West Riverbank area but the work is still scheduled to go ahead this year.

This was confirmed today by Parks Board Chairman Alderman Paul Russell who said equipment was expected to be moved in some time after Labor Day to commence work on the proposed swimming beach, parking area and roadway.

"We've been held up for two reasons — installation of the storm sewer and by wet weather," said Alderman Russell.

Development work on the new park area across from the Canadian Road Riverside Park has been delayed because the sewer installation across the south end of the property near Lazier's flam blocked access.

The sewer work in this area I an now been completed and excess rock and fill levelled.

This will now allow the roadway to the park area to be developed.

Parks personnel have been engaged in site development and landscaping at the new parks board service centre on the hill at the north end of North Park Street.

Earlier this year, construction of a change house and canteen facility to serve the west riverbank area was completed but because park and swimming beach area could not be developed as anticipated the facility has not seen use this summer.

Because of high water conditions in the Moira River, seasonal dam at Riverside Park could not be installed this year.

Two Escapers Recaptured

WARKWORTH (Staff) — A spokesman for the Warkworth Medium Security Institute this morning informed The Intelligencer two of the remaining three escapees from the prison, have been captured by micropolitan Toronto police.

No details of the recapture are available, but Cyril Dennic Huard; 21, of Toronto, and Frederick Joseph Koch, 24, also of Toronto, will be returned to Warkworth shortly.

Huard had been serving 30 years for robbery and attempted robbery, Koch, six years for robbery and possession of narcotics.

Last Saturday, five prisoners scaled the 14-foot fence which surrounds the medium security prison. Two were recaptured Sunday by Brigdon detachment, OPP.

A fire in an abandoned ice house at the foot of Church St. was quickly extinguished by Belleville firemen Thursday.

Damage to the partially demolished building was minimal. Cause of the fire in unknown.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane said he will try to have the unsured building removed. Children playing inside could injure themselves, he said.

Bennett Defeated

A turning point has been reached in British Columbia with the defeat of the Social Credit government of Premier Bennett.

It is clear the voters of the western province sensed the need for a change and the choice of an NDP government is in line with the majority feeling of Canadians in other areas of the West, notably Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

We shall have to wait and see what path the administration of David Barrett will take in British Columbia to be able to judge both its performance and policies. But Mr. Barrett himself has won praise for his conduct of the election and he sounds like a responsible sort of person.

The new premier is talking about bringing in legislation to limit election expenses and of maintaining links with neighboring American administrations in the fight against pollution.

Neither Manitoba nor Saskatchewan seem to have been subjected to any out-and-out attempt to pursue a purely socialist line and if Mr. Barrett takes a similarly pragmatic and common sense approach to the problems of the province and to relations with Ottawa all will be well.

Mr. Bennett meanwhile has gone the way of Joey Smallwood in Newfoundland. Both were institutions, political legends in their own time. As it has turned out, both had to go, victims as much of our times as of public whim. Only the political color of their opponents was different — the Conservatives taking Newfoundland, the NDP British Columbia. It will be interesting moreover to see if an NDP government is any more effective in handling the kind of strike situation that currently is paralysing the port of Vancouver and threatening our grain and other exports.

McKeough Resigns

The resignation of Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough is the most dramatic chapter as yet in the murky story of conflict of interest.

Mr. McKeough is one of Premier Davis' bright young men and he will be missed in the sense that he has been a strong and effective administrator. But in resigning he has done the only thing possible since it was revealed his department approved a Chatham subdivision in which he held a financial interest while he was Municipal Affairs Minister in 1968.

The question remains though, if Mr. McKeough has seen fit to resign why then should Attorney General Dalton Bales (whose land investments in the Pickering area — like of a new international airport — were revealed recently) escape a similar fate? Mr. Bales, with the moral support of Premier Davis, decided to stay in his post.

Mr. McKeough at least has given a lead. Anyone in government at whatever level — and the "conflict" issue has been well ventilated locally — who finds himself in a similar predicament over land ownership or whatever, while holding public office, will necessarily find his position even more precarious.

Their Own Enemies

IRA guerrillas, starved for gelignite, increasingly are victims of their own nefarious pursuits these days. They have been reduced to using more volatile substances, hence the higher casualty rate among their own ranks.

We doubt if there is any sympathy for these people, for they have long since shown proof of their own complete disregard for the rights and safety of their fellow man. Perhaps their ultimate act of contempt for civilized behavior was the extension of terrorist activity to Downpatrick where St. Patrick himself is reputed to be buried — in the grounds of the Church of Ireland (Anglican) cathedral. But there too those responsible received—their come-uppance — two men trying to place a bomb at the racetrack were blown apart.

Until such acts can be stamped out completely — and even that seems a remote possibility — Ireland and its northern region in particular will remain a scene of stupefying tragedy.

Industrial Unrest in Canada

Profit-Sharing One Answer But Many Firms Have It

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Strikes and the threat of strikes continue to be a sad commentary on the failure of labor and management to devise better methods of handling employer-employee disputes. In recent years, the frequency of unions to resort to the ultimate strike weapon so frequently and so quickly has brought a great deal of hardship and chaos to the industrial scene in this country.

For years we have heard people deplore the use of strikes and declare they are outmoded as a weapon in labor-management warfare. So far, none has devised another method—acceptable to both sides—yet the tolling these difficulties. One solution that has not had the attention it deserves was given an airing in the Commons not long before the summer recess. Using one of their opportunities to advance a proposition during an allotted opposition day, the Social Credit party moved:

"That this House deplores the fact that the government has not adopted the legislative measures for involving workers in Canadian firms through profit sharing and stock purchase programs as a means of promoting social stability, reinforcing our country's economy and ensuring greater co-operation between capital and labor."

The motion was debated for a full day and produced some interesting arguments on the role of profit sharing plans as at least labor-management battle. Such plans are not new. They have been operating with a great deal of success in some Canadian businesses for many years. In some countries they are more widespread. In France, for example, the state makes it legally compulsory for all companies employing more than 100 workers.

In Canada there are several examples of successful plans. One of the most notable is that of Dominion Foundries and Steel in Hamilton. While the United Steelworkers Union has all the other major steel companies employees in its fold, the Dofasco workers are not unionized. The company pays its employees on a par with the other steel makers and, in addition, operates a highly successful profit sharing plan so the employees reap benefit from their contribution to the company's success. The result is not only happier, more prosperous employees, but the company has not been faced with the strikes and threats of strikes that have marked the history of the steel industry in Canada.

Some other well-known companies which operate similar plans are Canada Packers, Simpsons, Simpsons-Sears, Shell Canada, Imperial Oil, Procter and Gamble, Warner Lambert and others. Bell Canada has operated a stock purchase plan for its employees for many years.

There was a time when profit sharing was considered an incidental benefit or a paternalistic measure on the part of the employers. As it becomes more accepted and more sophisticated it brings the hope that closer cooperation between employer and employee would be the order of the day, obsolete antagonism and conflict. As one employer phrases it, profit sharing holds the promise of producing a new motivation in industry at a time when the computer has created confusion. Profit sharing is not a panacea and the end-all solution to labor problems. It does not solve the problem of security of employment which is more and more significant as automation reduces the demand for human labor and skills. There is some criticism that such plans tend to tie workers to one job for their lifetime and reduce the mobility of labor. And profit sharing cannot be applied to public services as governments are not in the business of making a profit.

But there is a great deal of scope for profit sharing in the private sector. In the years to come it might become the fundamental form of remuneration, meeting the social and economic needs of the new society and providing workers, even those in dull and repetitive jobs, with an incentive to be as efficient and productive as possible.

Maritime Provinces Want More Powers

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

Centralization has been a key underlying issue in Canada practically ever since confederation.

There always has been an extreme outcry every so often how much power the federal government should have in governing the country.

Ottawa always has dominated and the question has been whether this is in the best public interest or whether there would be more efficient government and better growth if the provinces had more authority.

Indications now are that in the next year or so, there will be a major confrontation on this issue, probably the most extreme and most decisive ever.

The most significant development at the Halifax premiers' conference was that the Maritime provinces agreed to side with the other provinces in proposing that Ottawa relinquish some of its powers.

This is a dramatic turn about by the Maritimers. They have never been pro-decentralists.

And it means that for the first time the provinces are lining up federal government with a united front on the question.

This will be a critical confrontation and in the end result possibly may result in more substantial change than the issue itself is being asked. That comes out of "show downs" between governments in our system keyed to compromise.

Eventually it could even result in a more rational ordering of responsibility in fields such as education, health and welfare where both levels of government are now involved and where there is resulting inefficiency.

Not conceivable, however, is a situation where the federal government will be the dominant power.

This is because there must be for the country's economic health, aside from any sociological factors, a minimum standard of living across the nation.

This is so because we are extremely interdependent nations. The "have" provinces get much of their prosperity from selling to the "have-nots." And if the have-nots don't have enough money to buy, the economy at large, that of the haves as well as the have-nots, can go down.

There has always not to be assistance of Ottawa to maintain a redistribution of wealth — to the have-nots to maintain this minimum standard and at most certainly there always will have to be. The Maritimers on their present resources couldn't achieve the standard on their own. And even if they should become resource rich, as they might, it seems, with all, some section of the country or other probably will always need "aid from down."

And to carry out this economic rationalization program there must always be a federal government in some dominant position.

The provinces couldn't handle it between themselves.

If for no other reason than that it would tend to make nations of the have-nots provinces and this would be intolerable in Canadian dignity.

The First Annual Playgrounds Sport and Field Day under the supervision of the Belleville Recreation Committee was a huge success. Nixon Seeks 'New Majority'

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Many who witnessed the ritualistic Republican nominating convention in Miami Beach last week came away with the distinct impression that President Richard Nixon now stands somewhat to the left of the party he leads.

If this assessment is correct, it's a happy place to be in the context of this election year.

Nixon seems convinced that the middle-road is the political territory of the vast majority of Americans, and the shift to the left by the Democratic party has given him the opportunity to move in.

As he made clear in his speech accepting his party's presidential nomination, he has his sights on a "new American majority" of Republicans, the young voting for the first time since the voting age was reduced to 18 and disenchanted Democrats "driven" from their political home by "radicals" who have seized the party leadership.

So convincing was this re-occurring theme during the convention that Republican conservatives who might have looked askance at some of the more moderate planks of the platform held their fire. Confident as they are that they have a winning team in Nixon and vice-president Spiro Agnew, they resisted the temptation to rock the boat by fighting the traditional battles of conservative causes.

And Nixon apparently can afford the hungry if being Canadian about their feelings. As one party worker put it: "Where else can they go?"

But despite the highly contagious feeling of well-being within the Republican ranks, a number of party leaders warned against over-confidence, suggesting that party loyalties die hard and that many angry Democrats who voted as they did because their party may cool down by the time the November election roll around.

And is the calm after the Republican convention storm of political observers reassessing the lot of Democratic presidential hopeful George McGovern.

McGovern tend to agree with the View that Nixon has put reports of his demise may be premature.

After stumbling badly over the matter of a vice-presidential running mate, and given evidence he is willing to moderate and moderate his ideas on increased welfare handouts and decreased defence spending, McGovern now appears to be back on the track again.

His meetings last week with former president Lyndon Johnson, with whom he has differed bitterly over Vietnam war policy, Democratic Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago, whose delegation was ousted from the convention floor, appeared, could have been a disaster. But the meetings were generally favorable, probably helping to soothe McGovern's tousled relations with many rank-and-file Democrats of the middle-aged, middle-road category.

And campaign managers report a sudden upsurge in campaign contributions, much of it coming in small mailed donations. Reporters travelling with McGovern also report that staff morale has shown a marked improvement.

Although the Republicans have made much of recruiting frustrated Democrats, the converts they have paraded figure so far have not included party luminaries.

Still, the fact remains that one poll after another give Nixon a healthy lead over McGovern. There is no doubt that McGovern's liberal views on busing, welfare and abortion are tempting perhaps millions of Southern conservatives, blue-collar workers and Roman Catholics to bolt the party.

But another fact also remains. The Democratic party is the majority party, and Nixon won in 1968 by a hair over Democratic Hubert Humphrey, getting only 43 per cent of the vote in a three-way race.

Cats In Doghouse

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing concerning the present and always present situation of cats. They are nothing but a nuisance.

They are the only domesticated animal that is not caged or tied.

They are seen to be droves of them in our neighborhood. At night when we are trying to get our children to bed and to stop if you have to get up and chase them, and to get and chase them away. There is also a litter of cats in the barn stairs window and prowls the house at night. This is partly due to the fact that we screen on that window.

What makes me mad is that you phone the Humane Society about them and they say nothing can be done; but if a dog snap its chain and these very same cat owners who let their cats roam free, are on the phone and the dog is taken away by the very same society that can do nothing about cats. I don't see why cats aren't allowed to roam free and all other domestic animals have to be caged or chained. If they are let roam free the owners are penalized.

Justice Minister's Move

Justice Minister Otto Lang has been making quite a few waves in his comparatively new portfolio and given the impression he is much happier now than when he was the minister of manpower and immigration. After all, a former Dean of a law school is a natural choice to be in charge of justice affairs in Canada.

His latest move involves the federal government in legal aid and compensation for victims of crimes. At a cost of between $11 million and $12 million annually, he is going to make a maximum of 55 cents per capita of population available to the provinces to help pay for lawyers to defend accused persons who do not have the money to hire counsel, and to provide compensation for persons, or their relatives, who are injured or killed as the result of criminal actions.

Most provinces have legal aid systems but in some cases these are not particularly effective and are administered by provincial law societies without government support. Mr. Lang is hoping the federal financial assistance will make legal aid and compensation more effective and uniform throughout the country. It seems like a modest amount to spend if this worthwhile result can be achieved.

Now, if the Liberals elect a few more MPs from Saskatchewan it might be possible for Mr. Lang to divest his responsibility for the Canadian Wheat Board, where he is not quite at home, and concentrate on his first love—law and justice.

Canada's First Medal

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In Athens they called him zzoom—foreigners—but to the remainder of the world little Billy Sherring was his last marathoner and Canada's first Olympic track champion.

It was May 1, 1906, and a far cry from the Olympic Games to be staged this summer at Munich, West Germany.

There were an estimated 70,000 to 80,000 fans crammed into the stadium in Athens and perhaps three times that many lining the route and the hills surrounding the arena.

The runners left the starting line in groups of three and W. J. Sherring of Hamilton was in the last row—56th in a field of 58. The competitors included about 30 Greeks and such outstanding international marathoners as Jan Svanberg of Sweden, Will Frank of the U.S., George Blake of Australia, Daly of Ireland and French champion Regineaux.

The temperature that day was between 98 and 100 degrees and only the last few miles of the 26-mile, 385-yard course were paved. Greek soldiers lined the course to keep the villagers from interfering with the runners on the narrow track.

Each runner was allowed one attendant and Sherring, 28, had the help of Elwood Hughes, one of three Toronto Olympic entrants and later general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, who injured his foot in training. The others were Ed Archibald and Don Linden.

Blake, a Greek army officer and Daly broke first when the race began after one false start at ancient Marathon at 3:05 p.m. Sherring moved up to a comfortable sixth, running alongside Mike Spring of the U.S.

"They . . . but let Sherring describe it as he did May 28, 1906, in an interview the day he arrived in New York on his way home:

"Mike Spring was running beside me and seemed to be taking every step with a great effort. He told me that he did not think I could run so fast and, when after running about five miles I told him that I was going to start to let out, he gave a sigh and dropped back.

"Blake and Daly covered the first five miles in 30 minutes and the first 10 miles in 56 minutes. I was running about half a mile behind them at the 10-mile post.

"After running 11 miles I passed Frank and Svanberg and conquered Daly about a half-mile farther on.

"Blake was the only one ahead of me now and, as I passed him about the 12-mile post, he shook my hand and said goodbye. At the 15-mile post I was a mile in the lead.

"I then began to slow down a little, and after running 18 miles I walked half a mile.

"As soon as Frank and Svanberg came into view, I started running again and I never saw them again until after the race."

Some reports have Sherring appearing as fresh as when he started—when he crossed the finish line under escort of Crown Prince Constantine of Greece, a pair of spare boots in one hand. He actually had lost 10 pounds from his starting weight of 106 pounds.

He set a marathon record for that era of 2 hours, 51 minutes, 23 3-5 seconds.

For his victory, he received a gold medal, a bust of Hermes, a five-foot marble statue of Minerva, a goat from his landlady and $5,000 from the provincial government of Canada and Ontario and the municipality of Hamilton.

He also got a new job, leaving the Grand Trunk Railway to join the Canadian Customs service in Hamilton, where he remained 37 years until retirement.

The financial gift spelled the end of his amateur days although he reached the distance runners on Canada's 1908 Olympic team at London and in 1946 became a charter member of the Canadian National Exhibition Sports Hall of Fame.

His name still lives in the Billy Sherring memorial marathon around Hamilton Bay, so named the year prior to his death at 86 in 1964.

Smith A Firey Competitor

LONDON (CP) — When Harvey Smith takes to the saddle, sparks inevitably fly at horse jumping exhibitions.

Last year, the fiery Yorkshireman won one of the sport's pinnacle events, the Hickstead Derby, and made a rude gesture as the judges after he jumped the last fence.

Smith's consistent string of victories at major show jumping events in recent years has made him an idol of the crowds. Until he came along, this amateur sport was regarded by the public as a genteel pastime for the upper classes.

Now television viewers and enthusiasts at the grounds can easily identify with a man who started life as a builder in his native Bingley, an unestablishment figure who talks with a blunt Yorkshire accent beloved by the cloth-cap brigade of the British working class.

Built like a heavyweight boxer, standing six feet tall and weighing 200 pounds, the arrogant star of the show jumping circuit has however made many enemies among fellow riders and officials in the sport.

He is criticized because of his training techniques—he was once accused of forcing horses to jump barbed wire fences—while his unorthodox manner is sometimes seen as bringing show jumping into disrepute.

Nevertheless, Harvey Smith, 32, is the man who wins most of the prizes and the bigger the prize money, the better he seems to ride.

"I am interested in only one thing," he says, "Winning."

In recent years, show jumping has climbed in on the sport sponsorship game. In 1971, £400,000 (about $1 million) was poured into the sport which now affords top prizes of £2,000 in major events

Smith, who makes more than £10,000 a year out of the sport, is the highest-paid British show jumper, and reckons he is worth every penny.

"As far as I'm concerned losers don't count," he said. "I've worked hard at it but now I'm the best in the business. Team-mates and judges get on their high horses over my manners because they're jealous. But I just keep on winning and there's nothing they can do about that."

Show jumping is like a circus, with the same riders competing against each other at shows all over Britain and Europe between April and October. Being the central figure in an unfriendly atmosphere perturbs Smith who reckons he can count the number of his friends in the business on "half a hand."

"Officials are like tigers waiting to pounce," he said. "Whatever I do and whatever I say is being watched and noted."

Despite his success as a rider, Smith's way of life has changed little. He still lives in a converted farmhouse on the bleak Yorkshire moors with his wife and two children—a spot, he says, which is ideal for getting a horse into peak condition.

Probably the only person who understands what makes the Yorkshireman tick is his wife Maureen.

"I admit he's not an easy man to get on with," she says. "But, once he decides he likes you and that you can be trusted to become his friend, then he stands by you through thick and thin."

Nonetheless, the British Show Jumping Association takes a dim view of the twice-married northerner despite his superb riding technique.

"The trouble with Harvey Smith is he thinks he's so clever breaking the rules," says BSJA chairman Colonel Bunn. "But it's going to rebound on him one day and I think few will be sorry when it does."

That day, Harvey says, has yet to come.

Foli's Bat Is A Bonus

MONTREAL (CP) — Shortstop Tim Foli has been called a few things in his brief professional baseball career.

When he was with New York Mets, the 21-year-old native of Culver City, Calif., was nicknamed Crazy Horse by his team-mates for some of his on-field tantrums.

And when Montreal Expos first acquired him from the Mets in the deal that sent outfielder Rusty Staub southward, one Montreal columnist termed Foli and the other two players the Expos got in the deal—Mike Jorgensen and Ken Singleton — young turkeys.

Well anyone who has watched the Expos in the first two months of the National League baseball season will realize that Montreal acquired a good major league shortstop when they got Foli and he could be around for a while.

"He can make any play at shortstop," said Expos general manager Jim Fanning. "And he could be our No. 1 shortstop for the next 10 years."

Foli has been making such great plays in the infield for Montreal, many of which have helped win ball games that the Expos otherwise well have lost. And the brash young infielder has had a few run-ins with umpires this season and has already served up three-game suspension assessed by the National League office.

The suspension was the result of Foli disputing a called third strike in a game against Pittsburgh. He banged into umpire Dick Stello in his exuberance and thus the suspension.

"I don't like to lose," says Foli. "I'm not a good loser. It's not part of my nature. You just haven't any fun when you lose. My philosophy is that you don't go out and play if you are satisfied with less than winning."

Foli prides hard into opposing infielders when he's running the bases and tries for that extra base.

While he was with the Mets, he was a back-up shortstop to all-star Bud Harrelson. He wound up playing 36 games at second base, 12 at short, 36 at third base and even played in centre field once.

Foli admits it was a bit frustrating playing behind Harrelson.

"I thought I could play in the major leagues and I thought I could play shortstop in the majors.

"I like it at short and I think I can do the job. I think I can make any play that a good shortstop can make."

Foli was the Mets' first selection in the free-agent draft in 1968. He was signed for a reported $75,000 bonus.

He broke into pro ball with Marion of the Appalachian league in 1968 and led the league's shortstops in fielding percentage, putouts, assists and double plays.

He played with Visalia of the California League the following year and in 1970 was with Tidewater of the Class AAA International League. He moved up to the Mets last year.

Foli plans to marry Patti Drew when the Expos are on the West Coast in July. The Mets are also to be on the coast at the same time.

During New York's first visit here in April, one reporter asked Foli if he told the Mets he wouldn't report to any team but Montreal in order to avoid fouling up his wedding plans.

"No," said Foli. "It was strictly a coincidence."

Is Sex Necessary?

LONDON (CP) — Sex and sponsorship are major talking points among British athletes these days.

Or rather a lack of normal sex life during competitions and the general scarcity of sponsorship during training.

One formidable member of the British Olympic squad, marathon ace Ron Hill, says he thinks athletes would return better performances if their bedroom activities and bank balances were more alike.

Hill, a medical doctor, complains that "Britain sticks to the true blue amateur status as far as athletics is concerned.

"You get the Finn, Juha Vaatainen, able to go to high altitudes in Brmal to train for the Munich games when Britain's steeplechase medal prospect Andy Holden has to struggle along on a £25-a-year grant from the Amateur Athletics Association."

The AAA admitted that "unless an athlete is at school or college, he has to have a regular job."

"Sponsorship money is never paid directly to him. It's spent on his training, travel expenses and facilities," he adds.

Under £100,000 is put up by the government and business concerns in all every year, an AAA spokesman explained.

"But with early as many competing athletes in Britain, award schemes are, not surprisingly, pretty unrewarding financially. But although athletes have had a rough time lately, we hope that Olympic competitors at least will be sponsored individually in the future."

Hill, who was recently made an MBE, a member of the Order of the British Empire, supports the growing demand among athletes that their families should accompany them to overseas competitions.

"When I am away from my wife and children, I get tensed up," Hill, 33, says. "All my great performances were achieved when I had my family with me."

Hill join the European marathon championships at Athens in 1969 and, a year later, the Commonwealth title in Scotland.

"There is nothing sensational in this," he explains. "All modern research into athletic performances shows that the best results come from a man or a woman who can reproduce a natural home life and environment during training and competitions."

Colorful Back-to-school Attire

By BONNIE KING
Women's Reporter

The fashion world's fall presentation of back - to - school wear suggests a tailored comfortably yet stylish together-look for the conscientious teenager who has a limited budget and wishes individuality.

Shrink tops and 'baggies' in bright plaids of wool worsteds, washable polyester or comfortable cottons suggest a casual yet alive look.

In a recent visit to the Quinte Mall, the fashions on view illustrated the 'character yet stylish' school wear and mothers and daughters are carefully selecting the practical yet stylish fashions.

Plaids and checks are back in vibrantly alive colors for pant suits which arrive in matchable blazers, slacks, skirts and sweaters.

The 'baggies' pants are topped with the high waist and finished with cuffed bottoms. Blazers are still top boys though and appear in a variety of materials: velveteens, plaid cotton polyesters, crimplene or tortrel. Black seems to be a popular color as the charcoal grey pinstriped wool. Vibrant red is mixed with golds, blues, greens in a splashy plaid for blazers or slacks.

Back - to - school fashions still include the blue jeans except a different look in 'in' for those comfortable still popular bottoms. Shrink tops, in cashmeres of soft greens, yellows or baby blues feminize any blue denims and yet bright checked, or patterned wool vests can individualize the wearer.

Shoes are solid. The wood-en heels or crepe soles in brown leathers and colorful suedes complete any school outfit the fashion-conscience student has chosen.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Should children fish with Pop?

YES; but the father must want his youngsters along. He should try not to pick on his children even if they seem to interfere when the fish are biting. Perhaps the children do become unsupportable because they sense they are not welcome. The father may have taken to fishing but to get out of the house when the children were around, and now that they are of an age to enjoy Pop's companionship, he may feel he is doing something he doesn't want to do.

Does everyone crave independence?

YES; independence of thought and spirit. That doesn't mean everyone must always act independently or not at all. The well-adjusted, balanced individual learns how to fit his need for independence into a lifestyle that enables him to achieve both his personal happiness and the goals he has set. He can even be dependent and his constant drive to be independent, or not be independent, if it pleases him.

Can a woman be talked into marriage?

NO; she has made up her mind a long time before a man proposes. If the answer is no, a woman will do her utmost to break the news in a way that shows she doesn't reject him as a person. If the answer is yes, a woman may still withhold a direct answer. It is not that she doesn't want to appear eager to marry; but only that she wants the man to think about what he has said after he gets over the initial shock of having popped the question.

Ann Landers' Response to Ridiculing Handicapped

Dear Readers: Several days ago I urged you to write to the presidents of the three major United States television networks and protest the cruel and tasteless ridicule of handicapped people by alleged comedians. The most vulnerable targets for sick humor are stutterers, spastics and hare-lips. My heartfelt thanks to those who did so. The response was staggering.

Here are some excerpts of the notes attached to copies of the letters that went to Julian Goodman, president of NBC, Charles Ireland, (since deceased) President of CBS and Elton Rule, president of ABC.:

From San Francisco: Dear Ann: Over the years I've agreed and disagreed with you, the grace of God goes thou." but today put me in your debt. Urging your readers to protest in behalf of the handicapped was beautiful.—Paul A.

From Des Moines: Bravo for awakening me from my state of lethargy. I have long deplored sick jokes on TV aimed at handicapped people but I never occurred to me to do anything about it. You opened a door for me, Ann. Thank you.—Lacy S.

From St. Louis: I've worked with handicapped people for many years and I know how desperately they need encouragement in order to build self-confidence. You've done a wonderful thing, Ann: Bless you.—Kathy

From Harrisburg, Pa.: As a mother who is trying to raise her children not to make fun of people with mental or physical handicaps, I appreciated your column the other day. I wrote the network presidents and asked my children if they wanted to sign the letters. They were thrilled. Thank you for helping me teach them what it means to be effective members of society.—Mrs. K.N.

From Middletown, Conn.: As a specialist in the field of mental disorders who has a fairly good idea of what L. behind-the-ridicule, I want to thank you for encouraging your readers to speak out against it.—S.A.P. (psychiatrist)

From Miami: I could kick myself for not having had the gumption to write to the networks and complain until now. Thanks for making me do it. G. J. Miller, Key Largo

From Seminole, Tex.: Thanks for your assault on sick humor. "I was only kidding" is the usual defence, but the damage is done by then and the hurt is deep. Keep up the good work.—Rev. G. W. Alexander

From Mackinac Island Mich: My three letters went out today. Thank you for suggesting that we make ourselves heard.—J.M. Fraser MD

From Crestwood, Mo.: Thanks, Ann.—There but for the grace of God goes thou.—H.E.B.

From Washington, DC.: I heartily agree that ridiculing the handicapped is brutal and of totally unnecessary. Intelligent people do not find this amusing. And now I wish they'd quit presenting alcoholics as "funny." They are the most pathetic people of all.—Mrs. D.R.G.

From Little Rock: I've been bugged for years by clods who try for a laugh at the expense of the handicapped or mentally ill. Thank you for suggesting that I do something about it. My three letters went off today.—F.E.B.

From Kansas City: Don't those comedians know that tying a shoelace or shaking someone's hand can represent victory over hundreds of hours of frustration, embarrassment and pain? The handicapped people I know have more character and guts than I know. My hat is off to them.—K.A.S. (RN)

So again my thanks to the most beautiful people in the world—my readers! Ann Landers

Successful Living
Money Could Be Assigned For Opportunities for Aged

By DORIS CLARK

Why couldn't we use something like Opportunities for Youth in an Old Age setting?

There is a certain wayside restaurant which has been developed by two retired school teachers. It is a restaurant-with-a-difference.

Besides producing incredible home cooking (appointments must be made ahead for tables) these enterprising relatives make things and sell them: things like art work, modeling, needlework.

Cooking and crockery is what they do in the summertime; and they make money at it. There, come the first snowflakes, they pick up and head for the Sunny South. What a life!

Money assigned for imaginative enterprises which put to work the skills and organizational abilities learned over a life time would be money well spent.

Dear Doris: Why is it that high schools do not teach these students the proper care of nervous health, when they teach about hygiene and physiology and so forth? They must do to keep in good health.—K.

Neither my psychiatrist nor the hospital staff informed me about the proper care I needed to keep in good nervous health after I had my nervous breakdown. The psychiatrist seemed only interested in trying to understand what my emotional conflict was about, and I was not able to aid him very much, because I did not have one at that time.

It was during the years after my illness that I discovered that nerves do not need to bother anyone who eats a proper diet. Only a rare book will explain that vitamin A keeps up your strength, and hardly one will explain that lack of sufficient vitamin A in a person's diet for a number of years will cause degeneration of the nervous system.

From the Encyclopaedia Britannica I read that a sustained deficiency of vitamin B12 (caused by pernicious anemia) will cause irreversible damage to nerves in the spine. I found that vitamin B12 builds up a person and relieves tired nerves.

It seems to me that much is written about mental health but so little is done about educating people about the relation between good mental health and diet. — Job Seeker.

Dear Job Seeker: The interest and the psychiatrist. I consulted about your letter agree that people are not told enough about proper nutrition, nor about the relationship between good mental health and good physical health.

Look at the ulcers caused by worry; the very real headaches that go with grief.

You did well to improve your own health with judicious reading about the place of some important vitamins and minerals in the diet.

50 War Orphans To Get Shelter

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — The mother who brought two Bangladesh babies to Burlington in July, plans to bring 50 more war orphans to Canadian families by Christmas.

And Linde Fertie is hopeful she will be able to triple her own family within the next few months with the addition of two boys from South Vietnam.

Mrs. Ferrie said in an interview Thursday that the federal government has agreed to provide transportation for a 12-member volunteer contingent to Bangladesh in late October.

The contingent, including two Burlington doctors, hopes to bring back 50 children to eligible parents in seven provinces.

The 24-year-old Mrs. Ferrie did not give details of the free federal plane ride to Bangladesh, but she said it resulted from a telephone call to Ottawa several weeks ago.

"There is a forest of details being everything so they can do the trip can be made as soon as possible."

Mrs. Ferrie gained national prominence last June when she staged a 19-day hunger strike to protest what she termed an endless delay by a provincial government department in determining her suitability to adopt children.

She called off the strike when she became convinced the provincial government would do everything possible to assist people who want to adopt children from foreign countries.

Mrs. Ferrie and her husband, Dr. Robert Ferrie, a surgeon at Joseph Brant Memorial Hospital, arrived from Bangladesh with 15 orphans July 26 after a 9-day trip.

Since then she said she has received numerous inquiries on adoption procedures for Bangladesh orphans. She now has 50 applications that meet all the eligibility requirements, but she will continue to take applicants until Oct. 1.

Canadian Unions Only Are Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A policy paper prepared for the annual conference of the Committee for an Independent Canada says the country's 175 unions should eventually be merged into 35 or fewer all-Canadian unions. The committee, which claims between 170,000 and 200,000 supporters, was established last year to oppose United States economic and cultural domination of Canada. The conference will be held in Edmonton Sept. 14-17.

Test Lungs

MONTREAL (CP) — A new test to detect early airway obstruction to the lungs will be given to a random sampling of Montrealers this winter at a new laboratory for research into lung disease officially opened Thursday at McGill University here.

The laboratory is backed by a $300,000 donation from the Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers' Council.

Each subject in the test program will take a single deep breath of pure oxygen, and exhale, allowing doctors to measure the volume of air the person's lung can hold.

If any change occurs, the doctors will be able to detect the point at which airways began to close.

Fur Giveaway

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The woman carried a hanpy new fur coat as she stepped off a plane at Los Angeles International Airport. The coat caught the eye of U.S. customs agents and resulted in the woman's arrest and confiscation of five pounds of cocaine, worth an estimated $500,000 on the black market, sewn into the coat lining.

Heroin Haul

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentine police have made the biggest narcotics haul in Argentina's history, seizing 101 pounds of pure heroin with a value on the U.S. underworld market estimated at $46 million.

Heads Mailmen

OTTAWA (CP) — Roger Decarie has been re-elected national president of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, defeating a challenge from Bob McGarry, a district representative from Toronto. Mr. Decarie won the votes of about two-thirds of the 300 delegates assembled here for the union's triennial convention.

Woman Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Michele Gilano, 35, of Toronto has been charged with the non-capital murder of a Toronto woman found dead in her apartment Thursday.

Toronto police said Agnes De-souza, 35, died of massive internal bleeding from a broken rib cage. Police said they found the body of the woman in her bed.

RCMP Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former RCMP corporal Jack Ramsay, who recently attacked the force in an article in Maclean's magazine, said he has reached an agreement with Canada's third largest union to help organize the RCMP. Mr. Ramsay said in a telephone interview from Regina Wednesday that he and Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance, have made preliminary plans.

Drug Management Proves Wasteful

OTTAWA (CP) — Bad drug management in Ontario probably costs taxpayers about $75 million dollars a year, says Dr. Ian Henderson, associate professor of pharmacology and surgery at the University of Ottawa medical school.

The blame falls three ways, he said in an interview Thursday.

"It is partly the responsibility of the public, who waste money on over-the-counter drugs, such as sleeping potions, that may do them harm so they end up in hospital.

—Media: advertising and manufacturers who promote drug-taking as a part of daily life also are responsible, he said. Within this area also is the problem of non-medical drug use and alcohol dependence.

—The remaining responsibility—probably wasting about $30 million a year—lies with doctors who have failed in prescribing habits, ordering drugs when they shouldn't or not considering price when they do.

"Modern medicine is too drug-oriented," he said.

Tax Cut Dies With Year End

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner assured the Commons Thursday that the government still does not intend to continue a three-per-cent tax cut to individuals instituted in the fall of 1971.

Replying to questions by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, Mr. Turner said the government's position "hasn't changed" since the last budget, brought down May8.

In October, 1971, former finance minister E. J. Benson temporarily did away with a three-per-cent personal income surtax and another seven-per-cent tax for corporations. Last May, the government did nothing to continue these tax breaks, but granted manufacturing and processing industries other substantial tax allowances.

Mr. Stanfield opened the 40-minute question period during the emergency sitting called to deal with the British Columbia dock strike with a question in the government about "continuing high unemployment."

Later, he asked whether the government is planning any winter works programs to deal with the problem.

Mr. Turner said the government has had a number of talks with the provinces.

Church and School Week Is Opposed

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A four-year agitation by a group opposing Church and School Week has been resumed.

The group of parents opposed to religious instruction in public schools voted at a Wednesday night meeting to ask the Waterloo County board of education to scrap the event, scheduled for Sept. 17-24. It plans to send a delegation to the board before the meeting date.

The group opposes all sectarian religious practices in public schools. It would like to see a ban on reciting of the Lord's Prayer, Sunday school songs, distribution of Gideon bibles and periods of religious instruction.

Even Colombo Denies Hockey Connections

WINNIPEG (CP) — Denials came from all quarters of the World Hockey Association Thursday that Joseph Colombo Jr. of New York has anything to do with the new professional hockey circuit.

Some, including president Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg Jets, said a report to this effect looked like a put-up job to harass the WHA.

Colombo is the son of Joseph Colombo, Sr., who has been named by the U.S. Justice department as head of a Brooklyn Mafia family.

One report quoted Colombo himself in New York as denying the whole story, which came to light Wednesday night in a press release, complete with photo, delivered to Winnipeg news media.

It said Colombo had purchased a posh Winnipeg residence once owned by a member of the Eaton department store family, and that he would live here about two months of the year after marrying 21-year-old Lesia Lucan of Winnipeg.

One of his reasons for setting up a home here, the release said, had to do with "Colombo's "substantial interest" in the WHA.

Miss Annie James was married Wednesday at Trinity Anglican Church to 77-year-old Joe Briggs, whom she met two years ago at the Golden Age Club.

"She's one of the nicest women I've ever met," the groom confided.

"He's lots of fun, too," said the new Mrs. Briggs.

Vancouver Swimmers Hit Silver Chasing Winners to Records

MUNICH (CP) — Bruce Robertson, who was going for a bronze, and Leslie Cliff, who was going for broke, won Canada's first medals of the 1972 Olympic Games Thursday.

The two Vancouver swimmers finished second in their races, each chasing the winner to a world record. Miss Cliff, a poised 17-year-old high school student, got under the former world mark herself in the women's 400-metre individual medley.

And Robertson, a 19-year-old international rookie who attends the University of British Columbia said afterwards that he didn't know where anybody was in the 100-metre butterfly final until the race was over.

"All I turned out, he was behind Mark Spitz, who won his first of two gold medals for the night, and ahead of everyone else, including the second American, Jerry Heidenreich, whom he thought he had in best for a bronze, and Rose Matthies of West Germany, whom he didn't think he could beat at all.

"Spitz was uncatchable, winning the event in 54.27 seconds to erase the world mark of 54.6 he set less than a month ago. But the Canadian outclassed Heidenreich and the fast-closing Matthies in a tight finish. He was timed in 55.56 to 55.74 for the American and 55.77 for the West German.

Robertson's time was three seconds faster than his best a year ago and almost one second under the Canadian record of 56.65 he set at the team trials in Winnipeg earlier this month and had already lower'd in Wednesday's heats.

Miss Cliff, who won three gold and two silver medals at the last year's Pan-American Games, said she knew what she would do all the way in the medley, in which she finished behind Gail Neall of Australia.

"I didn't know who was leading until the end of the breaststroke," she said. "Then I looked and saw that yellow cap and knew who it was. Gail beat me in Sydney too, last January."

Both girls, along with be ase medallist Novella Calligaris of Italy, broke the world record of five minutes 4.7 seconds set in 1968 by Claudia Kolb of the United States. The times were 5:02.97 for Miss Neall, 5:03.57 for Miss Cliff and 5:03.99 for Miss Calligaris.

The Canadian and Italian girls, swimming in adjoining lanes, were watching each other closely but were out of touch with Miss Neall, who was four lanes away.

Early in the freestyle leg, Miss Cliff was leading.

"I went out slowly," she said. "I hoped to pick it up coming back; I didn't want to die out there."

She picked it up enough to keep Miss Calligaris, but could not match the Australian's powerful finishing burst.

"If I had to race it over, I'd do it just the same way," she said. "I'm happy with the silver."

Miss Cliff had led through most of the butterfly leg but faded about halfway home. She made up ground on the backstroke, stayed with the leaders throughout the breaststroke leg and gained her temporary lead with a good turn in the freestyle.

Almost forgotten in the medal-winning binge was a sixth-place finish by Byron MacDonald, a Toronto-born resident of Chicago, in the butterfly. Before Thursday night, no other Canadian had finished better than fifth.

Robertson was back in the water later in the evening, swimming the first leg of the 800 freestyle relay final, in which Canada placed seventh as Spitz won his fifth gold medal in world record time.

Soviets Didn't Sweat

MONTREAL (CP) — Watching a Russian hockey practice is like watching any other hockey practice.

The players take part in line rushes, one-on-one breakaways, three-on-one situations and other things that you normally would see any North American team do.

The Russians practised twice Thursday at the suburban St. Laurent arena and looked like a team that had just arrived after a long trip—which of course they had.

But almost everyone in the stands marvelled at the good condition of the Soviet players, especially after their wind sprints.

"They didn't even raise a sweat," commented Gary Aldcorn of Hockey Canada and a former National Hockey League user with Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings. "They are very well-conditioned, probably the best in the world."

But Russian coach Vsevolod Bobrov said that the Soviets were near the start of their season and "the shape of the players is not up to mark."

He also complained after the morning practice that the ice at St. Laurent arena — a bit of Camp and that it slowed down many of the passes.

"The rink is also a big tight. In Russia, there is more space behind the goals."

And Bobrov was not brimming over with confidence about his team's chances of winning the eight-game series.

"In 1954 when we met Canada for the first time in Stockholm, the series was hard for the Russians. We were playing amateurs then. Now we are playing professionals and I think it will be more difficult."

Brian Conacher, a former member of the Canadian national team and Detroit and Toronto of the NHL, says that the Russians will have an edge in conditioning at first, but that it will be neutralized by the Canadians.

"Team Canada started training Aug. 13 and who knows when the Russians started. The Russians are dedicated, disciplined and totally committed to this series," Conacher said, adding that he didn't think the Canadian team had the same kind of dedication.

The Russians have a whole different way of life."

"The Canadians have the players to win all eight games, if they come up flat though, the Russians could beat them. They aren't going to be that far behind.

"The Russians will almost certainly win one at home. But I'd say if the Russians wanted to win one game, it would be one in Canada."

Espo May Centre Big Canadian Line

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada broke camp Thursday night, more too soon for the 27 players who have been working out at least once a day the last three weeks preparing for a Russian invasion.

Hewitt Worried

MONTREAL (CP) — The average hockey fan might have trouble with the names of the players on the Soviet team which flew off here against Team Canada Saturday night.

Not so Foster Hewitt, dean of Canadian hockey announcers.

"All you have to do," he said Thursday, "is remember to pronounce 'ov' as 'off'."

"No, the only thing that worries me is that, the Russians might change their players' numbers as they have in the past. I think they think it fools the other team's coach."

Hewitt, who began his career in 1923, feels it will probably be easier to broadcast the impending series because the Soviets use the same detectemen with one forward line and usually all five players come off the ice at the same time.

But it's better to be safe than sorry and Foster will concentrate on the Russian lineups.

"From here on I'll go and see them every chance I get," he said.

The Soviet squad arrived in Montreal Wednesday to prepare for the opening game of the long awaited series in the Forum Saturday night.

Team Canada flew to Montreal this morning on two separate aircraft. Harry Sinden, general manager coach, is scheduled to name his starting lineup at an afternoon, news conference.

One of the big question marks as the three-week Team Canada camp ended was who would centre Montreal Canadiens linemates, Frank Mahovlich and Yvan Cournoyer.

Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks worked with the two during most of the camp, but Sinden tried Boston Bruins' Phil Esposito in the slot for the third, and final, intra-squad game Tuesday.

The experiment wasn't an overwhelming success, but the odds are that Esposito will be in that position for Game One. The Bruins centre has no illusions about his training camp. He rarely looks dangerous un less there's a game at stake.

With three weeks of slugging it out in scrimmages behind him, Esposito said Thursday he doesn't care who his linemates are, "regardless of whether I play with Roy Rodgers and Trigger. As long as we win."

Esposito, with 142 goals in the last two National Hockey League seasons—a record is in 1970-71 goes into the series with 312 pounds, three pounds lighter than he played last season.

While the Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., native feels he's in top shape, others leaving Maple Leaf Gardens weren't so enthusiastic about their over-all form.

"It has been an excellent camp," admitted Detroit's Gordie Howe Bergman, "and Harry Sinden has done as much as anyone could do in three weeks.

"But we're certainly not in mid season form, not in conditioning or timing. We're going to have to get it together as we go, and get it together at least enough Saturday night in Montreal to win that opening game."

Bergman along with most of the other players figured that any further training camp would be of no benefit.

"We've had enough of this," Ron Ellis, one of the last to arrive in the training camp, said. "It's time to get to work."

Ellis, along with Toronto Maple Leaf linemate Paul Henderson, is expected to make the starting team. The Leaf wingers have been centred by Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers.

Our last day at the Gardens went well, with a good game at stage, and I was glad about that. It's a good way to break camp."

Goalies Could Be Difference

MONTREAL (CP) — While the Canadian goaltending for the forthcoming series against the Soviet Union appears solid, the Soviet netminding is somewhat of a question mark.

And Brian Conacher, a former member of the Canadian national team and Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, says goaltending could be the difference in the eight-game series.

"If other things are equal the goaltending will make the difference," Conacher said as he watched the Russians' workout Thursday morning.

"I say (Ken) Dryden, (Tony) Esposito and (Gil) Johnston play in the intra squad game in Tuesday Tuesday night. Dryden particularly looked superb."

Conacher, who will be the color analyst on the telecasts of the games, says that it takes a while for the Russians to develop good goalkeepers.

He noted that Viktor Kovalenkov was goaltending the last great one, but "he fell into disfavor for some reason and no one knows what happened to him."

Viktor Zinger, Vladislav Tretiak and Alexander Sidelnikov were brought over by the Russians for the series. They were going to work over Vlachmir Shvalov, but he suffered a knee injury and will miss the series.

Unfortunately for U.S. Spitz Isn't Hurdler

MUNICH (CP) — Unless Mark Spitz develops a sudden proficiency in archery or the high hurdles, the United States will soon have to start looking elsewhere for Olympic gold medals.

In five days of competition, the big United States team has collected 12 gold medals and the Californian has won or shared in five. He can, and probably will, make it seven before swimming competition ends Sunday.

Of 25 events completed Thursday, the Russians won nine, seven of them in wrestling and gymnastics, to the Americans' five, two of them featuring Spitz. All told, the Russians had 34 medals, 14 of them gold, to 33 and 12 for the Americans and 23 and eight for East Germany.

In the unofficial point standings, based on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 count for the first six final placings, Russia took a narrow lead of 228 to 220 over the Americans with East Germany third at 190½. The Canadian total was 18, good for 18th place.

Canada found its way to the medal table for the first time as Bruce Robertson of Vancouver finished second behind Spitz in the men's 100-metre butterfly and his club-mate, Leslie Cliff, picked up a second silver behind Gail Neall of Australia in the women's 400 individual medley.

A little later, Spitz was back in the water as a member of the winning U.S. 800 freestyle relay team for an unprecedented total of five victories, all in world-record time.

Eleven world marks had fallen in four days of swimming, and every Olympic record had been shattered.

Miss Neal, Miss Cliff and third-place Novella Calligaris of Italy all exceeded the world standard in the medley and the record in the women's 100 butterfly disappeared in a semi-final heat.

The pace was somewhat more sedate on the opening day of track competition as few of the top runners went all-out in qualifying for later finals. But the girls came close in the 800 metres, in which Debbie Brill of Toronto qualified for the semi-finals.

Heidemarie Rueendahl of West Germany in the long jump, and Peter Frenkel of East Germany in the 20 kilometre walk were the only winners of final events.

Russia and Hungary shared the gold in the modern pentathlon as the Soviet Union took the team event.

Russians captured five of the 11 wrestling titles, leaving three to the Americans, and two for Japan.

East Germany gave the Russians an argument in women's gymnastics as Karin Janz cap tured two of the last four events to offset a pair of Soviet victories.

Viktor Sidiak completed the Russian haul by winning the individual sabre competition.

Niels Fredborg of Denmark won the 1,00-metre cycling time trial as Steven Lovell of Toronto, a 1971 Commonwealth Games gold medallist, finished 15th in a 30-man field.

Wilhelm Rusks of the Netherlands justified his world judo championship with a victory in the heavyweight division in which a comeback effort by Doug Rogers of Vancouver, a silver medallist in 1964, ended when he was thrown in the third round.

Yordan Bikov won a gold medal for Bulgaria by hoisting a world combined total in middleweight weightlifting as Wenth Adams of Surrey, B.C., eliminated himself by failing to make a legal lift in the snatch category.

The last three Canadian teams disappeared in the two-day semi-finals and Miss Hoffman was the only qualifier in track and field. But two yachts, the Dragon piloted by Allan Leibel of Toronto and David Miller's Soling entry from Vancouver, were in the thick of the medal competition after three of their seven races.

The Canadian riders fell in the cross-country competition, knocking their four-man team out of the three-day equestrian event.

Chris Jun of Vancouver became the first Canadian boxer to score a victory with a 4th-puted split decision in the fly-weight division.

The roster of quarter-finalists in soccer was completed when Hungary and Morocco joined six countries which had qualified earlier.

Russia and the United States, both undefeated and untied, led six qualifiers for the final round-robin water polo tournament as Canada suffered five straight defeats.

Yankees Showing Form Of Other Septembers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frito Peterson is an surprised as anybody, but here it is September and the New York Yankees are in a pennant race.

"I'm surprised all right, but now I think we've got a good chance to stay in it," says the Yankees' southpaw.

The Yankees, not given much of a chance at the beginning and as much as eight games out of first place halfway through the American League season, are only 1½ games back as the result of Thursday's 7-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"Out pitching can straighten out, nobody has a sore arm," said Peterson after pitching the Yankees' fifth victory in six games with a five-hitter.

During the next 30 days, the Yankees play two series apiece with the three other contenders in the Eastern Division Baltimore Orioles, Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox.

"Since we all play one another in September, I guess we can't all stay hot at the same time, can we?" said Peterson.

"We're going to be the ones, I have a feeling."

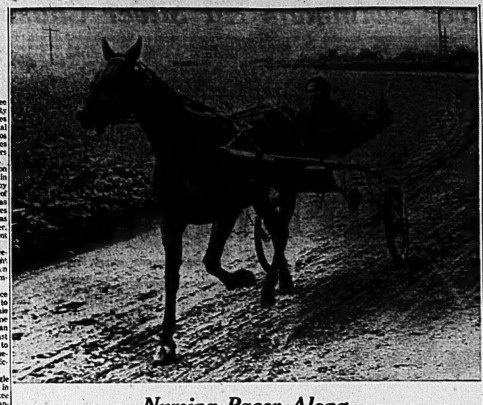
Two clubs are currently ahead of the Yankees Baltimore, idle Thursday, took over first place by a half game after California beat Detroit 4-3 and dropped the Tigers to second place. The Red Sox are behind the Yankees in fourth, two games off the pace.

In the other American League game, Milwaukee Brewers defeated Kansas City Royals 7-3. Only two games were played in the National League, Houston Astros trounced Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers turned back Chicago Cubs 5-3.

Horace Clarke gave Peterson a 1-0 lead with a home run in the first inning and then Bobby Murcer put the game out of sight with a three-run blast as the Yankees scored four times in the second inning. It was Murcer's 108th career homer, the 20th such accomplishment by a Yankee player.

Nolan Ryan pitched a three-hitter for his third straight shutout and ninth of the season as California stopped the stumbling Tigers.

The Angels' righthanded ace extended his scoreless string to 34 innings while helping his team complete a three-game sweep over Detroit. Ryan struck out 10, handing the last three batters in the ninth, to push his American League-leading total to 284. Ryan's victory was his 15th this year.



Dave May's two-run single sparked a three-run outburst in the second inning as Milwaukee rallied for its victory over Kansas City. Winner Skip Lockwood had yielded three runs to the Royals before his teammates came back with seven runs in the first and three more in the next inning.

Doug Rader's two-run single capped a four-run rally in the third inning and Lee Thacker singled home a runner from second base in the sixth for his team's fourth run.

The margin helped the Dodger lefthander, who struck a three-run home run by Ron Santo in the Chicago seventh.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Former major league baseball pitcher Sal Maglie was in satisfactory condition in hospital today, recovering from chest pains he suffered Thursday.

The 55-year-old ex-hurler, known as "Sal the Barber," was taken ill Wednesday at his home in nearby Grand Island. Tests were being conducted to determine whether he suffered a heart attack.

Maglie's career in the majors spanned some 15 years. He began with New York Giants in 1945 and later played for Cleveland Indians, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees. He wrapped up his playing career in 1958 with St. Louis Cardinals.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Moscow Dynamo soccer team completed an unbeaten tour of North American Thursday night by defeating a select team from British Columbia's Premier Soccer League 2-0 before a small crowd of 2,311.

Playing their second game in two nights, Dynamo still had more stamina than the amateur B.C. team, scoring both their goals in the second half.

The superior condition of the Dynamo players told the story in the second half with left-winger Mikhail Gershkovich scoring both their goals within 15 minutes.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Left wing Brian Lavender and defenseman Dave Pulkkinen were sold to the New York Islanders of the National Hockey League by the St. Louis Blues, a team spokesman said Thursday.

Lavender, 25, scored five goals in 46 games with the Blues last year but had 14 goals in 27 games at Denver. Pulkkinen, 23, spent last season with Kansas City.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa 67s of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series have acquired the services of a pair of former Montreal Junior Canadiens.

Defenceman Ian Turnbull and left wing Bogdan Pudiaszcki will play out their final year of junior eligibility with Ottawa.

Both 19 year-olds become free agents when the Canadiens withdrew after last season from the OHA Jr. A to play in a Quebec league.

MONTREAL (CP) — Brian Moorhouse captured his third win in four starts at the North American Invitational Flying Dutchman championships Thursday.

Moorhouse, from the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club of Montreal, remained in the lead in the week-long competition at Point Pleasant Park, two miles on lake St. Louis. Three more races are scheduled—two today and one Saturday.

Moorhouse has 5.7 penalty points after finishing 1-3-1 in the first three races.

"I wish I had a drive like that coming in the club. I hate to tell George about the fenders."

Peterborough Puts Gaels On Verge

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough PCOs defeated Oshawa Green Gaels 12-6 Thursday to take a 3-0 lead in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A finals.

Jim Johnston, league scoring champion during the regular season, broke out of a two week slump to lead PCOs with six goals. Three were added by Jan Magee with Jim Wasson and Gord Floyd netting two each.

Singles went to Bob Wasson, Guy Legault, Paul Evans, Ken Byers and Randy Bryan.

Murray Cockerton scored for Oshawa. Singles were tallied by Terry Lloyd, Larry Shrigley, Tom Roesbeck and Gord Barown.

The fourth game in the best-of-seven series is set for Sunday in Oshawa.

Dynes Open Defence

EDMONTON (CP) — Defending Canadian and world champions Richmond Hill, Ont., Dynes scored two victories Thursday to keep opening round play in the Canadian Senior Men's fastball championships.

The Dynes opened with a 7-1 win over Dartmouth, N.S., Dairy Queens and then edged the host Edmonton entry 3-1 in eight innings.

The wins gave Ontario the early lead in section A over Victoria, B.C., Bait, Nova Scotia and the Northwest Territories, who have 1-1 records. St. John's, Nfld., All Stars is the other team in A section.

In B section round-robin play, Saint John, N.B., Alpines also scored two victories, defeating Prince Edward Island 3-1 and Black Knights 1-0 in an 8-inning.

The only other undefeated team after the first day of play was Weyburn, Sask., Canadians who defeated Quebec 4-3 on a last-inning homer by Dwight McMillan. Calgary Power Chiefs and the Yukon are the other teams in B section.

Two teams will advance from each section to advance into semi-final and final play Sunday.

Brantford Takes Lead

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Brantford Red Sox scored six runs in the seventh inning to gain an 11-10 victory over Kitchener Panthers in Senior Inter-County Baseball League play Thursday night.

The win gave the Red Sox a 2-1 lead in the best of seven semi-final series. The fourth game will be played in Kitchener Tuesday.

Rick Demarche led the Brantford attack with a triple, double and single. Larry Rooks and Robbie Vipond had two hits each. Vipond knocked in three runs.

Tom Hoch and Tom McKenzie had three hits each for Kitchener, with McKenzie knocking in three runs. Kitchener scored four runs in the first inning and led 7-1 before the Red Sox scored three runs in the fourth.

Kitchener was leading 10-3 when the Red Sox sent 12 batters to the plate in their six-run seventh inning.

Don Bernard, one of seven Red Sox pitchers, earned the victory. Gord Peterson, the second of four Kitchener Pitchers took the loss.

Replay Set

TORONTO (CP) — St. Catharines Malls and Toronto Maple Leafs will replay the opening game of their best-of-three Ontario Baseball Association Senior A quarter-final here Saturday.

The teams were tied 3-3 Monday at St. Catharines when the game was called in the 12th inning because of an 11 p.m. curfew. The OBA ruled the game will be replayed.

Team Canada Just Can't Win

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

Team Canada cannot possibly win the eight-game series with the Russian National Team that gets underway Saturday night in Montreal Forum.

Before you swallow your olive, substitute "accomplish" for "win" in the above observation.

The Soviets readily admit they have agreed to the long-awaited series of hockey for educational purposes, as much as anything.

Long-time Russian mentor Anatoli Tarasov once told a Canadian interviewer: "You have said you will sweep us off the ice. We have said we would like to play and to learn for the future. You must fulfill your boast: we will merely play our best, learning as we go."

To put it another way, the Russians rightly feel that they have nothing to lose by playing the best (minus three or four) hockey players North America can muster.

They know that unless they are beaten — and convincingly — in all eight games by Team Canada, the world will know that the day is gone when you wave a sweater with a maple leaf on the front and said hockey was your game and winning was your name.

A two-decade crush program has brought the Russians to the point when even the staunchest Canadian supporter has some doubts as to just how accomplished "they" are.

Don't forget, the last Canadian team to beat a Russian team in international or Olympic competition was the 1958 Belleville McFarlands.

Sam Pollock, the opposing Team Canada series, we will no longer have the excuse of having sent too young or too inexperienced teams to play the Russians.

For those of you who actually fear the Russians might pull off the impossible, rest assured that here Team Canada: six wins, one loss, one tie.

They will win largely because of the ability of individual players, rather than due to any overall gelling as a unit. They will win because goaltending skills have been perfected here more than in Soviet hockey, and because North American hockey players can improvise better than their European counterparts.

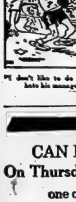
But before anyone gloats over the anticipated results, they should bear some facts in mind.

The average age of the 34 Team Canada players is 28, that of the 29 Russians about 25.



There are 26 Team Canada members who tip the scales at 180 pounds or more, while only seven of the Russians do so. In fact 31 - year - old veteran defenceman Alexander Ragulin (six feet two, 220 pounds) is the only Russian at the 200 pound mark. The Canadians have five.

Most important of all, when you watch the National Hockey League play the Russians, try to remember that the North Americans are the cream of the current crop of a strain of hockey - playing people that goes back more than a century.

The Russians have only played hockey, as we know it, since the 1940's.

By the end of this decade, they will consistently be able to beat us at our own game.

My don't like to do it, but I hate his manager!"

Soviets Confident, Relaxed

MONTREAL (CP) — Vyacheslav Starshinov says that the series between the Soviet Union and Team Canada will be "the most exciting" of his life but feels that the series will be a "friendly" one.

Starshinov, 32-year veteran of international hockey competition, said in an interview Thursday that the reason the series will be exciting "is because it is only natural for amateurs to want to know: If they can play on the same level as professionals."

The mood of the Russian hockey team is one of relaxed confidence. There is no panic, no feeling that the team must win and they will do it with grace themselves if they don't.

"We just want to play a good level of ice hockey just to show that all the talks leading up to the series were not in vain, that they were fruitful."

And just as almost everyone else connected with the Russian hockey team has done, Starshinov refused to make a prediction.

"After the games, all will be quite clear. Only then will it be possible to make comparisons."

Starshinov said there is great interest in the series in Russia, but added "it is not the Olympics or the world championships. They are friendly games . . . and every sportsman should be anxious about them."

Three aspects of lacrosse were represented in the novice division during Thursday night's Belleville Minor Lacrosse awards night when Jim Fleming picked up the all - round Most Valuable Player award, Mike Schmidt the Best Goalie trophy, and Hugh Northey the league's Scoring trophy. The presentations came in advance of a Coaches - Midget All-star exhibition game, won by the coaches 10-6.

Lacrosse Coaches Make Point

The coaches got the last word in last night's Belleville Minor Lacrosse wind-up but the winning teams and best players walked away with concrete evidence of a successful season.

Printers Lose Luck

Oshawa Lucky One didn't require much luck to blank a 7-0 OASA decision over Howard and Robert Printers Thursday night. The victory evened their Senior "B" series at one game apiece.

Dave Leaming hurled a four-hit shutout for Oshawa, striking out 12 batters in the process. Bob Ethier went six innings for Printers before giving way to Bob Swan. They allowed 11 hits and issued 12.

Dave Cockerton struck the key Oshawa blow with a three-run homer in the third. For the losers it was Paul Kellar blasting a triple and single followed by Swan and Jody Campbell with singles.

The third and deciding game of the series will be played Tuesday night at the Alemite beginning at 8 p.m.

Quinte Wins Add Up

TRENTON — The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club's female contingent to the Kingston District Four Ball Better Ball Tournament at Trenton yesterday didn't come up with the big prize but came up with enough little ones to easily prove the class of the field.

The local ladies picked up nine of the 16 prizes awarded in the day long play which involved teams from the entire district.

Judy Hull and Anne Acton came in second to lead the Belleville girls while Joan White and Eva Ketcheson finished fifth. Betty Ingram and Marg McPherson sixth, Anne Fisher and Helen Philip tenth, Betty Walmsley and Lil Taylor 11th, Jean Gill and Harri Pepperal 12th, Alice Stuart and Joan Shupert 13th, Betty Kelsey and Carol Wilson 14th and Ena Corke and Carrie Mahoney 16th.

Industrial Softball

Both Mead Johnson and the CNR won their Industrial League semi-finals the hard way Thursday night but the hardest part is yet to come for the only remaining comes in the playdowns.

Pennant - winning Mead Johnson spoiled the Diesel playoff Insurance Commission, 3-0 and 7-6 leads before rallying in the sixth to take a 9-7 decision and the best-of-five series in three straight.

The CN also swept their series with Stewart - Warner in three games but needed three seventh inning runs and one in the eighth to record a 5-4 victory last night.

Stan Ensbury's first - inning three-run homer shot UIC into the lead over Meads, the winningest team in the league, but six runs in the third inning gave new life to the eventual winners. UIC managed to take the lead again 7-4 after five but three more Mead's runs in the sixth ended any Insurancemen comeback hopes.

Ken Osborne hurled the win, allowing 12 hits and whiffing one. Rick May pulled a four-bagger for the short-stuffed Mead's crew with Sonny Holway banging a double and triple and Tim O'Connell a single and Brian Chase a double and single for the eliminated losers.

Rob McMurter and Zane Plumbe shared the spotlight for the CN in their extra-inning win over Stewart Warner with Plumbe tying the game in the seventh with a bases-loaded triple and McMurter singling in the winning run in the eighth.

The Warner crew had taken a 4-1 lead despite the seven-hit, 13-strikeout performance of CN chucker Marc Sheridan. Jim Hess's homer and single and Keith Bertrand's triple had led the way for the Warner nine before the Trainmen came storming back.

Plumbe added another triple to his tying blast and McMurter two more singles to head the winners hitting attack. Bonnoer Thomas had a pair of safeties off loser Fred Davis.

The first game in the best of seven final series will be played Tuesday at Prince Charles diamond.

One That Got Away

Mead Johnson third baseman Tim O'Connell couldn't come up with this wild throw from the plate in a pick-off attempt of UIC runner Tom Stinson and as the ball sailed into left field Stinson reversed directions and scored. It was one of a few mistakes for the Mead's nine, however, as the Industrial League pennant-winners came from behind to record a 9-7 win and eliminate UIC 1-0 three straight games from the semi-finals.

Farrell Loses Match

Ted Abrams and Frank Farrell matched five - hitters Thursday night, but unfortunately for Farrell the final score didn't.

Melrose made the most of their scoring opportunities to score a 5-1 victory that tied their South Hastings Baseball final series at one game each.

Abrams, a hard - throwing righthander, struck out seven of his former teammates while Farrell whiffed the same number of Melrose batsmen.

Bruce Pascoe paced the winners with two singles while Scott McLaren and Wayne Harrison rapped doubles and Mike Lazier a single. For Read it was Carm Milligan with two hits and one each by Farrell, Steve White and Paul Hanley.

Brakemen Lost to Best

Belleville's Conductors and Brakemen peewees reached the semi-finals of the CNE Toronto Star Peewee Baseball Tournament before bowing out this week, but if it is any consolation they were knocked out by the best team there.

The local crew were nipped 2-1 by Hamilton Mahoney Carrier this week, the same team that won the grand championship last night.

Belleville loaded the bases in the bottom of the seventh against the Hamilton nine but couldn't push across a run. Mike Burke had two hits for the locals with Andy Lupenette and Peter Hall adding singles.

Hall struck out eight in his losing three-hit performance, which brought him the Best Pitcher award for the tournament. Peter was touched for only two unearned runs in four games and was selected to the all-star team.

Belleville still has plenty of baseball action left as they travel to Sudbury tomorrow afternoon for a 4 p.m. Ontario Baseball Association play-off game. Belleville leads the best of three series 1-0 on the strength of a 4-2 first game victory.

Mohawk Institute Plan

Indians Seek Million For Educational Centre

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Within a few weeks a major educational-cultural centre for 30,000 Eastern Canada woodland Indians may be established in Brantford.

If the federal government approves an Indian request for a $1-million grant, the now-empty school known as the Mohawk Institute will become the educational, cultural and nationalist centre for Iroquois and woodland Indians in Ontario and Quebec.

It will mean that Indians from both provinces will come to Brantford to do research, write books and study the culture and languages of woodland Indians from eight reserves.

Affiliated with the centre will be such established institutions as the Royal Ontario Museum, McMaster University in Hamilton, the University of Western Ontario in London and universities in Guelph, Kitchener and Waterloo.

Indications are that the government is on the verge of approving. If not all of the grant, then a major part of it.

Last week a $18,000 advance on the grant was turned over to the Six Nations elected council, owners of the property, to cover expenditures involved in maintaining the large buildings and 9½ acres of land.

The actual idea for such a centre came from Thomas Hill, who works for Indian affairs in Ottawa, and Keith Lickers, both land members of the Six Nations Reserve.

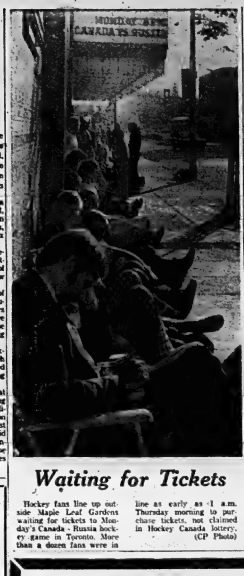
Mr. Lickers, a 28-year-old reserve teacher, said the Brantford centre will be "the first of its kind in Canada that I know of."

William McKim, director of policy, planning and communications for the Indian affairs department, agreed that there are no other plans before the department for a centre along these lines.

The direction this one is taking is more a resource-research centre. Other centres planned are more along a teaching line."

Mr. McKim, who added that the department was "looking very favorably upon the application" was "just a matter of weeks" away, said research done here could eventually have an impact on the curricula of some universities and public schools in Ontario.

Ripley Girl Crowned As Dairy Princess



TORONTO (CP) — Sheryl Pollock, an 18-year-old high school student from Ripley, Ont., was crowned Ontario Dairy Princess for 1972-73 at the Canadian National Exhibition Thursday.

Miss Pollock, who hopes to become a nurse, won the title in part for her ability to assemble a milking machine, milk a cow and clean a machine after milking was completed.

She also was judged on personality and knowledge of the dairy industry in her interview with the judges.

Miss Pollock will represent Ontario in the Canadian Dairy Princess competition at the CNE in 1973. She also will represent the province on goodwill tours to the United States and Great Britain in the coming year.

Miss Pollock was crowned by last year's princess, Nancy Brown of Grand Valley, Ont., who will represent Ontario in the Canadian Dairy Princess competition tonight.

Resignation Applauded

McKeough Wins Praise From Political Rivals

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough's resignation over an alleged conflict of interest evoked words of praise from the leaders of the Opposition parties and a general vote of confidence from the minister's home town of Chatham.

Mr. McKeough, reported by The Globe and Mail Monday as having approved the subdivision of land owned by a company in which he had a financial interest in December, 1969, while minister of municipal affairs, submitted his resignation Thursday.

"I am satisfied that I personally have done nothing wrong," said Mr. McKeough at a news conference at which he announced his resignation. "I feel that I am guilty of no more than having made an error in judgement."

Both Stephen Lewis, leader of the provincial New Democratic Party, and Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberals said Mr. McKeough took the only honorable step.

Mr. Lewis even predicted that "with an appropriate absence of a year or two, he could be back in the cabinet, possibly before the next election."

Mr. Nixon said it had never been suggested that Mr. McKeough had in any way been guilty of dishonesty. "His decision substantiates his reputation for integrity," he said.

Mayor Douglas Allen of Chatham said the people of the city are "extremely sorry" about Mr. McKeough's resignation, adding that it is "rather unfortunate that the people of the province will lose the services of Mr. McKeough," who he said is an honest and capable man.

A spokesman for Ontario Premier William Davis, who is in London and received Mr. McKeough's resignation by telephone, said the premier is seeking ways of cutting short his visit to try and get to Toronto to confer with Mr. McKeough.

Clare Westcott, the premier's executive assistant, said the premier has not yet accepted the resignation and wants to talk to Mr. McKeough before making a decision.

One of the problems facing Mr. Davis upon his return is how to replace Mr. McKeough, who holds the double portfolio of provincial treasurer and minister of intergovernmental affairs.

Speculation is that Arthur Meen (PC—Toronto York East), Mr. McKeough's parliamentary assistant, will take over as minister of intergovernmental affairs. Former treasurer Charles MacNaughton, now chairman of the cabinet management board, may resume his old portfolio, or it could go to John White, tourism and industry minister.

Conflict of Interest Laws, Vague, Archaic

By JOHN ROTH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The dramatic and sudden resignation Thursday of Ontario's provincial treasurer, Darcy McKeough, once again has turned the spotlight on the ill-defined and archaic web of laws that govern conflict of interest situations.

A Canadian Press Survey by the Canadian Press shows that federal and provincial legislation is antiquated, riddled with loopholes, and drafts back in an earnest era when conflict of interest for parliamentarians meant whether they should accept government contracts.

The ballooning involvement of governments in decision-making at all levels has created a vast new set of potential conflicts undreamed of by the early legislators.

At the level of the federal government a study of the issue is nearing completion, but unlikely to be made public. Those at work on it are unwilling even to commit themselves on the exact areas being considered.

A new prime minister traditionally issues a private decree to his cabinet ministers outlining the permitted limits of her involvement in financial dealings. Only once have these guidelines been made public—by Lester Pearson after former minister of state Maurice Lamontagne admitted accepting furniture in a deal that involved no down payment and set no time limit for later payments.

Basically, the federal laws inhibiting MPs from profiting by their positions restrict only their direct gain from voting or lobbying.

Victor and Vanquished Drop from View

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's victor and vanquished, Premier-elect Dave Barrett of the New Democratic Party and Social Credit Premier W. A. C. Bennett, dropped from public view Thursday but are to switch jobs early next week.

Mr. Barrett, whose party swept to power Wednesday by winning 38 seats in the 55-seat legislature, was off on a Labor Day weekend fishing trip with his wife Shirley and their three children. His press secretary said he would hold a news conference early next week to outline his plans and announce his cabinet.

The defeated premier, who held office 20 years through seven elections, stayed at home in Kelowna, only leaving his house for a drive alone through the streets of the Okanagan community where he settled more than 30 years ago.

His aides said he would stay there during the host weekend, then return to Victoria for a meeting with his cabinet. Eleven of his ministers suffered personal defeat in the NDP sweep.

He is expected soon to submit his resignation as premier to Lieutenant-Governor John Nichelson, who would in turn call on Mr. Barrett to form the government.

Social Credit's representation in the B.C. legislature was cut to 10 from 24 while the NDP jumped to 38 from 22. The Liberals remained at five seats while the Progressive Conservatives stayed at two.

Results from the final two polls in the Price River-Smith riding were tallied Thursday, resulting in Social Credit's Don Phillips taking the seat by 26 votes over Donald Marshall.

The member who switched from Social Credit to the Conservatives earlier this year Only absentee ballots remained to be counted in the riding. This count is expected on Sept. 13.

In making his cabinet selection, Mr. Barrett has his choice of 10 re-elected members of the last NDP legislative caucus and 28 MLAs-elect.

Mr. Barrett, 41, will head a group of New Democrats whose average age is 44.2 years. Under Mr. Bennett, who will be 71 next Wednesday, the government had an average age of 54.5 years.

Meanwhile, defeated Social Credit cabinet ministers had little comment on their future plans.

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said: "The media have been riding on my back for 20 years, and that's enough."

His only comment about the future was that he was looking from his office window "to some beautiful mountains." Asked if this meant he was out of politics, he said he would not talk about it.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and Grace McCarthy, minister without portfolio, declined comment.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, a former professor at the faculty of commerce at the University of B.C., said his leave of absence at UBC had expired and he was going to report back to it early there.

"Defeated candidates should be neither seen nor heard," he said. "While one is a professor one should be discreet about one's politics."

Resources Minister Ray Williston, 58, has announced he is quitting politics, citing his age.

Happy Premier

"Reporters and smiling supporters surround premier-elect Dave Barrett, whose NDP candidates swept to victory in Wednesday's B.C. election. He had a victory rally in his own riding of Coquitlam, near Vancouver, that the NDP proposed to initiate as "people's century" in the province. (CP Photo)

B.C. Firms' Shares Decline

TORONTO (CP) — Companies listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange that have major interests in British Columbia had about $75-million erased from the value of shares Thursday following Wednesday's election of New Democratic Party government in British Columbia.

Analysts attributed the price drops to uncertainty over tax and other economic policies that may be implemented by the new government.

Biggest losers were suffered by shares of B.C. Phone, B.C. Sugar and Placer Development, all down $2. Down $1 was Fraser Tractor and Weldwood of Canada. Gibraltar Mines fell 87 cents, MacMillan Bloedel and Bethlehem Copper 62 cents, and B.C. Forest and Cominco 50 cents.

The $75-million loss is calculated on the total of issued shares of each company. Losses would have been steeper had there not been some recovery late in the session.

New Labrador Party Wins Byelection

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Michael Martin, New Labrador Party leader, won the provincial byelection in Labrador South today, defeating Joe Harvey who won the riding by one vote in the March 24 Newfoundland general election.

Mr. Harvey was later unseated by a provincial Supreme Court ruling.

With 35 of 39 polls reported, Mr. Martin had 1,810 votes compared to Mr. Harvey's 1,865 and 129 for Progressive Conservative Edward Kearsey.

Premier Frank Moores, whose Conservatives took 33 of the 42 legislature seats March 24, said Thursday night he did not consider the byelection to be a test of the government's strength.

The party did not contest the district in the March election when the Liberals won eight seats in addition to Labrador South.

"I want to congratulate Michael Martin," Mr. Moores said in Corner Brook where he had attended a cabinet meeting earlier in the day.

"He did a good job and he did it single-handedly."

The premier said Labrador South "is not exactly PC country."

Liberal Leader Edward Roberts was not available for comment.

Mr. Harvey was unseated June 13 when the Newfoundland Supreme Court ruled that irregularities in the March vote had wiped out his victory. A judicial recount had shown 933 votes for Mr. Harvey and 932 for Mr. Martin.

Collection of returns could not be completed Thursday night because many of the district's 2,238 registered voters were still at summer fishing communities.

Trudeau Now Oldest Ruler

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Trudeau is the oldest elected government leader in Canada today—at 52.

The prime minister inherited that dubious honor as W. A. C. Bennett, 71, went down to defeat as premier of British Columbia after 20 years at the helm. Mr. Bennett's successor, NDP Dave Barrett, is 41.

When Mr. Trudeau was first elected in June, 1968, only three of the province's 10 leaders were his junior—Prince Edward Island Premier Alex Campbell, former New Brunswick premier Louis Robichaud and former Manitoba premier Walter Weir.

But, with changes in government or leadership in all but one of the provinces since then, he now finds himself the eldest.

Mr. Trudeau, who will be 53 Oct. 8, is six years older than Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney, 46, the next oldest elected leader in the country.

Mr. Campbell is 38 and Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer is 36.

Frank Moores, Newfoundland's leader, is 39. Gerald Regan in Nova Scotia is 43, and Richard Hatfield in New Brunswick is 41. Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed is 44.

Britons Urged to Be Kind to Asians

LONDON (AP) — Britain's foreign secretary appealed Thursday night for an "orderly and humane" reception for Asians expelled from Uganda, but an opinion poll showed the public doesn't want them.

Sir Alec Douglas-Home said in a television interview that the 50,000 Ugandans of Asian extraction with British passports have a legal right to come to Britain. He said the government will help the local communities meet the additional burdens caused by the immigrants.

The Daily Express, one of the few papers publicly opposed to accepting the Asians, published a Louis Harris poll which reported 71 per cent of those interviewed were against a more multi-racial society.

Only six per cent of the 2,000 persons interviewed in 170 parliamentary districts thought the Asians should be welcomed immediately. Twenty per cent said their arrival should be spaced over five years, and 38 per cent said Britain should pay India and Pakistan to take them, since it was from the Indian sub-continent that their forebears went to East Africa.

The Monday Club of right-wing Conservatives termed Sir Alec's remarks "more cowardly" and said the Conservative government "seems bent on opening a floodgate of coloured immigration through which ultimately vast numbers may come to this country, destroying its homogeneity and driving its native people to emigrate in despair."

Two cities that are likely to attract many of the arrivals from Uganda, Leicester and Birmingham, appealed to the government to keep them away. Both already have large coloured populations, and the local authorities said their overtaxed social services cannot cope with more people.

Airport Hearing Announced

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Thursday there will be a public inquiry on the selection of the site of the new Toronto international airport at Pickering, Ont.

Replying in the Commons to Norman Cafik (L—Gerrard), the transport minister said the inquiry would be set up only after the government has taken steps to expropriate land in the area. He assured Mr. Cafik local area residents will have an opportunity to express their views on the location.

The government has been criticized by some Pickering citizens groups for selecting Pickering.

It has replied that the site was chosen to fit in with Ontario government plans.

Some air carriers also are doubtful about the need for a large new international airport in the Toronto area. They say that the existing airport at Malton can handle expected traffic beyond 1980 with the addition of another runway.

Mr. Jamieson said the inquiry will be conducted by independent officials but would not elaborate on who might be involved.

Eye, Eye, Who's Got My Eye?

REGINA (CP) — It was halftime in a Canadian Football League game at Vancouver.

As the teams, the Lions and Saskatchewan Roughriders, ran off the field, two men moved on to the Empire Stadium turf and, at times getting down on hands and knees, almost literally combed the grass.

Fans in the stands were puzzled.

The men were Ed McQuarters' buddies looking for his artificial eye. They found it.

That was last year. The big Saskatchewan tackle can talk easily, even humorously, of the incident now, but it was not humorous at the time.

Some months before, McQuarters lost his left eye as the result of an accident at home.

It threatened to end his football career but, he says, it actually has improved his game.

EYE POPPED OUT

He says of the lost eye incident:

"The Lions ran a sweep to our left so I hit the guard and was going to get into pursuit, when Ron Sancartier gave me so hard it jogged my head and the damn thing just popped out. It was about three minutes before halftime so I sent somebody back out to look for it—just like looking for a contact lens.

"Then I decided I'd better get something that was going to stay in because it was affecting my game. I felt sort of uneasy; I wasn't hitting as I should in case it popped out again."

Losing an eye, especially in a sport where depth of field is vital, should have spelled the end of the all-star player's career. McQuarters, however, now 29 and in his seventh season with the Western Conference squad, finds his body has made up for the loss.

"Your body, starts getting used to it, the idea of just having one peeper sort of thing. But you gain it all back except maybe five per cent.

"At first, I felt as though I had blinders on but my co-ordination's pretty good so I think I've even made a bit quicker than maybe the normal person would.

"I can see the tight ends and sometimes the wingback. I find I'm more proficient in my reactions as far as trap plays and sucker plays are concerned."

The accident at home, May 17, 1971, happened while he was building a rumpus room. His hammer didn't hit a nail squarely and the nail ricocheted off the concrete floor, striking him in the eye.

The nail, doctors said then, struck him low on the line of his eye and lodged in the upper eyelid. He needed it out.

He underwent surgery that night but the eye could not be saved.

His first artificial eye—the one that popped out on the field—bothered him.

He delights in telling how he used to take it out before a game and give it to one of the team's equipment handlers.

"They would just kind of look, you know what I mean. Everybody would oblige me by saying OK but they would kind of wince when I handed it to them.

"So I said to heck with that. I had to get one that would stay so I wouldn't bother anybody."

His wife Bunny says she wanted him to retire from football at first and concentrate on his other job, public relations officer in charge of advertising for the Saskatchewan Power Corp.

"But he pointed out that it didn't happen to him on the football field so I just had to let him be his own man."

The accident occurred after a series of family troubles.

His elder son, nine-year-old Ed, was hit in the eye by a baseball and the eye became infected. It has healed.

His younger son, six-year-old Mike, had the top of his head sliced open in a playground accident and his wife was hurt in a fall from a chair while washing windows.

"It seemed like the whole world. . . that was it, you know" said McQuarters in an interview.

But something happened in hospital after my eye was removed.

"I'm not what you'd call a really religious man but, and I'm not kidding you, I can't tell you whether it was a male voice or a female voice. All I know is that I heard a voice.

"It said: 'Ed. All these things have happened to you. Do you still have faith and believe in God'

"Just the voice, as clear as I'm talking to you.

"I said: 'Are you kidding As good as God has been to me in my life, as a person, husband, father and friend, I'm going to stop believing'

"I felt so proud. I felt everything was going to be OK. "It has been."

Lift Almost Costly

LONDON (CP) — When British weight-lifting champion Terry Perdue put his strength to carrying hundreds of pounds of scrap metal during a test, he risked Britain's chances of a medal in the Olympic Games this summer.

Luckily for Perdue and the weight-lifting team, an appeal court in 1971 reduced the four-year jail sentence to nine months.

But hoisting the poundage off the floor again after those vital months out of action means a back-breaking training schedule for the 320-pounder from Swansea, Wales. Behind bars, Perdue had to put up with "prison stodge," far removed from his normal training diet.

The burly Welshman's daily diet now consists of two pounds of steak, a dozen eggs, two brown loaves, four cans of brown sugar and five pints of milk.

"Show me a prison where you can get that sort of food on the house and I'd pull any other job to go inside again," he joked during a break in training.

Perdue, a 34-year-old haulage contractor, is aiming at the 1,100-pound mark in three lifts during his pre-Olympics contests in Britain. He recently retained his British super-heavyweight title with three maximum heaves totalling 1,131 pounds and hopes to go high that he'll continue to better his performances up until Munich.

Retained Perdue has been in the heaving business for 12 years. Since 1958 no one has been able to take away his British champion's crown and he was among the finalists in the Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh that year. After the final lifts, Perdue was awarded the silver medal.

"He's the best weight-lifter we've ever had in Britain," says Wally Holland, secretary of the British Amateur Weight-Lifters Association. "He'll be the biggest British hope at the Olympics and I think he's an odds-on chance for the bronze."

Holland noted that Russian Karl Akopyev and the West German Rudolf Mang had already topped 1,200 pounds last year.

"Terry cannot match this sort of poundage yet," Holland said. "But he'll produce his best-ever lift in Munich, I feel."

Holland, as a professional coach, has visited several training camps for athletes in Europe. He claims that if British athletes had the same facilities, Britain's Olympic performance could be greatly improved.

"Weight-lifting for instance, is in a shambles in Britain," Holland said. "It is the only Olympic sport which receives no sponsorship at all."

Weight-lifters like Terry Perdue need every cent to further their energy for a training session during which they each eat up to 15 tons. Perdue's weekly food bill amounts to $40 (about $40) which comes out of his own pocket.

"I could I'd really like to see," Holland added, "is a sponsorship scheme among butchers for weight-lifters."

Sleepy?

MONTREAL (CP) — Left-hander Joe Gilbert wonders where he picked up the name Sleepy Joe.

"Maybe it's because I don't run around talking with everybody. Or maybe it started during spring training. It was really hot one day, man, and I fell asleep on the bench."

One thing for sure though — Gilbert doesn't fall asleep when he's on the mound.

Gilbert was brought up by the Expos from Quebec City Carnavals, their Eastern League farm club, in May. He's only 20 years old and some were wondering if the Expos were making the same mistake they committed when they moved pitcher Baker Moore along too quickly.

"We'll never do that again," said Mel Didier, the Expos' director of player personnel. "Not so long as I'm on the job.

"We'll just have to wait like the good clubs do and bring the player along properly. It sometimes takes five years to get a fellow ready for the big leagues. If that's how long it takes—that's what we'll do.

"We don't feel we are making a mistake in bringing up Gilbert at such a young age. He gets the ball where it's wanted. But there's more than that.

"Joe is more mature than his years. He's been around. He's looked after himself. We know that if we have to send Joe down, it won't bother him; he'll just work his way back up."

Gilbert has been looking after himself since he was 12. His mother died and his father left. So Joe brought himself up and made all his own decisions.

He went to high school in Jasper, Tex., and in nearby Newton, Tex.

"I switched around [?] had any trouble in one school. Anyway, the baseball coach at Newton told me that I'd play all the time if I went to school there. So that's where I went for the last two years.

"I pitched every game and I was on the track team too. I loved to run. I ran the 100 and the 440 and was on the relays.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SATURDAY, SEPT. 2

Aries (March 21-April 19): An early start to wrap up last minute chores and you're into the long weekend. Adopt a reasonable program for maximum enjoyment.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Plans or personal negotiations on property changes prosper while most business matters are to be laid aside for the time being.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Leave mechanical things for others to use if you can. Reach out to communicate with your set of people, compare notes, plans.

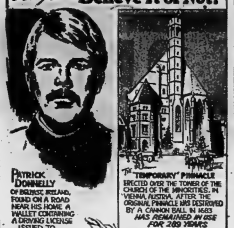
Cancer (June 21-July22): Secret hopes come nearer reality, may require brief hard work shortly. Friends will help if you ask them clearly.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 21): You have more to gain by sticking near home and attending immediate personal needs than by hasty travel to distant places.

Virgo (Aug. 22-Sept. 22): Something that has been an unreachable ideal turns out to be practical. Friends depend on you. Redeem their faith in you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The social whirl is in some respects beyond your reach—settle for what you can deal with comfortably without undue stress.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Concentrate on activities you can share with friends. New associates from people you don't know well may be unrealistic.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Healthy self interest is never out, even if it's not a good day for business. You have the chance to make detailed plans.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you must decide a long-term issue soon, bring to bear all the technical advice you can get. Teamwork is more effective than ever.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Think early about what is essential and what is not, decide on the minimum activity, attend to it thoroughly.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20): Speak right up and ask for what you've earned, take leadership in family or group affairs where it's needed. Offer no promises.

No Complications If VD Is Cured

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write more on venereal disease. It may help a lot of young people. One question I would like to ask is: If a person has VD when young, and it is cured, will it cause things like diabetes and arthritis. — M., H.F.V.

VD doesn't cause diabetes. But if left uncured, it can cause arthritis as well as a lot of other things. However, if the case is treated promptly and adequately, there is no danger of complications later in life.

As to writing more about VD, for the sake of young people—I've tried it.

I've warned of the consequences of VD—which are considerable. I've quoted figures on the present epidemic of VD—more than two million cases a year. I've warned of the various risks of attempting self-medication. I've urged young folks to get pamphlets from their health departments.

I'm beginning to doubt that any of this has made any dent in the youthful ignorance about VD, and how to avoid it and what to do if they suspect they have it.

Perhaps it seems to be that too many just don't care. Or they think it can't happen-to-me attitude. That is, don't care until they begin running into the consequences of VD, and by then it can be a little late to start learning.

Oh. I'll keep on answering questions about VD, and keep on telling you that many of the kids (lots of them 15 and 16, and some younger) won't spend an hour learning the basic facts, instead of getting into messes because they don't know anything better.

But the truth is that you can't force information down anyone's throat until he (or she) realizes that there's some point in learning.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 11, is going through the change that is the cause of her woes. Children and adults make remarks about it, and it is going to do to much harm to her. She is becoming withdrawn.

I believe plastic surgery could help her, but at what age? And where do I consult? Her nose is very flat over the bridge.—Mrs. W.V.

Reconstructive or plastic surgery must be performed after growth has ceased. This means past puberty to around the late teens. Hence age 11 is somewhat too early.

Where to consult? Have your regular physician (or the county medical society) refer you to a qualified plastic surgeon. I would not put it off. Even though he may, and probably will, postpone the time of operation, he is in all likelihood can help considerably in overcoming your daughter's psychological problems. After all, he's seen other patients with similar problems and seen them get over them.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How can you determine whether toys have lead in the paint? I'm possible that some wooden furniture has paint that contains lead, such as a baby's playpen? What's the wisest way to buy toys and furniture to avoid lead poisoning?—A.A.

For practical purposes, there's no need to worry about toys or furniture; the paints used varnishes don't need lead. The main danger from lead poisoning has been in old houses where in which lead based paint happened to be used indoors. Modern paint may be on top—but paint applied many years ago, and now covered by other coats, may contain lead. A small child chewing on the window ledges or whatever may get down to the older layers.

There is no reasonable way for you to test paint to see if it contains lead, but be suspicious of an old dwelling in which walls or woodwork have been covered with many layers of paint.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three X's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Test Your Dummy Play

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump and North leads the six of hearts. When you play the king it wins the trick. South plays the four. How would you play the hand?

2. You are declarer with the same hand at Three Notrump, but this time, when you play the king of hearts, South wins with the ace and returns the ten. How would you now play the hand?

In no trump, you usually try to develop tricks in your longest suit (in the present case, diamonds), but you can't afford to do that in all hands. Thus, the right suit to attack here is clubs, not diamonds.

Lead the ten of clubs at trick two and, when you see it loses to the king, you will have nine tricks available, consisting of three spades, a heart, two diamonds and three clubs. North can't profitably continue hearts, and you are also home free whatever else he does.

If South has the king of clubs, you make ten tricks by simply repeating the finesse.

If you attacked diamonds instead of clubs, and South had the queen, you could go down with a heart return through your queen.

The situation changes drastically when South wins the heart and returns the ten. Instead of South being the player you can't afford to have as lead, North becomes the player to fear. He is the one with the heart length (he probably has five hearts) and must be prevented from cashing them after he's established.

Accordingly, you duck the ten and win the next heart with the queen. Now you lead the jack of diamonds and finesse. You don't mind losing the trick to South because his fangs were extracted earlier.

Suppose he wins with the queen and returns a club. You rise with the ace and run nine tricks. Don't try to be a hero by taking a club finesse. You might wake up in a hospital, badly bruised.

Of course, if and when South wins with the queen of diamonds, he may have a heart to return. This is nothing to worry about because, in that case, the hearts are divided 4-4 and you still make three notrump.

Tomorrow: Accentuating the positive.

Bobby Fischer Defeats Spassky to Win World Chess Title

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (CP) — Bobby Fischer won his own Olympics today. The American challenger captured the world chess championship when Boris Spassky of Russia telephoned his resignation at 12:50 a.m. (5:50 a.m. p.m. EDT) after the call and informed the American camp, but the Americans initially refused to accept the resignation as official. Schmid's announcement made it official.

Fischer arrived at the playing hall 16 minutes late after Euwe ruled that he would have to appear to claim the title.

Fischer walked on stage and stood looking at the chess board with one hand on his hip. The two players had completed 40 moves Thursday before adjournment.

Then Schmid stepped forward and declared him the new champion.

The capacity crowd of 2,500 onlookers cheered and some began a slow handclap. Fischer walked off and the ceremony was over.

Spassky did not appear.

Frank Skiff, president of the U.S. Chess Federation, said Fischer had not been informed of Spassky's telephone call and had been analyzing the game position until the last minute.

The U.S. challenger told friends he thought he had a winning position on the board when the Russian champion sealed his 41st move and play was adjourned Thursday night. That was also the consensus among the gallery of grandmasters and other experts outside the Soviet camp. The Russians as usual weren't talking.

At that point, Spassky had four pawns and a bishop and Fischer a rook and two pawns. International Grandmaster Isaac Kashdan, arbiting the match for The Associated Press, said: "The material is considered about even, but Fischer's king is far forward, and he has a passed pawn ready to advance to decide the issue."

The Icelandic Chess Federation announced that a prize-giving banquet will be held in the playing hall two days after the end of the match.

The menu will include wild Icelandic mountain lamb grilled in old Viking style and barbecued suckling pig and Viking sauce. "Viking Blood," a red-wine drink, will be served cooled with ice from Vatnajokull, Iceland's biggest glacier.

The match began July 11 after months of negotiations, demands, threats, holdouts, disappearances and other delays by Fischer that pushed the purse for the two players to nearly $250,000 or about 60 times what it was when Tigran Petrosian was the champion. Petrosian was the challenger who lost to Mikhail Botvinnik nine years ago.

Spassky won the first game and was awarded the second on a forfeit when Fischer stayed away because movie cameras were in the hall to film the match. The cameras were removed and Fischer won five of the next eight games, giving him a three-point lead.

Spassky, the favorite of the Icelanders because of his gregarious demeanor, revived his fans' hopes with a victory in the 11th game. But Fischer restored his three-point lead in the 12th and held on to it.

Going into the 21st game Thursday, Fischer had won six, Spassky had won two plus the forfeit, and they had drawn 11 times, including the last eight games.

Election Day Oct. 30

OTTAWA (CP) — The long-awaited federal election was announced Friday for Monday, Oct. 30.

Parliament was dissolved in the late afternoon. Prime Minister Trudeau indicated a campaign based on the issue of Canada's unity and independence from the United States.

At a news conference, the prime minister said that "the challenge of this election is to ensure that Canadians continue to exhibit the self-confidence and the assurance which will permit Canada to pursus its own policies and demonstrate the advantages of its own value system."

He said the only guarantee of national survival is the harmony of the country's two linguistic communities and various ethnic cultures.

"We know in our hearts that the alternative to this harmony is inevitable absorption by the colossus to our south."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield declared that "in terms of economic management in particular, the Trudeau government's performance has been dismal."

"The Trudeau record will be a major campaign issue."

Mr. Stanfield promised both an expanding economy and "a new approach in the field of social assistance."

"A decent government must feel compassion and must offer adequate help where it is needed."

"But an aimless, ad hoc welfare state should not be a Canadian goal. The Trudeau government has drifted that way.

"We will aim to stop that drift."

Four words could sum up the Conservative platform: "A job for Canadians."

David Lewis, the NDP leader who has launched his campaign with scorching attacks on the "corporate welfare bums" he says pay little or no tax, appeared delighted the election has been talled.

He struck at Mr. Trudeau's use of statistics from the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Mr. Lewis said the bank was among those allegedly paying income tax over the last five years at a rate of only 27 per cent, well below peak rates.

Stanfield -- Pondering

Stanfield, Lewis Both Complain Money Is Short

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal election Oct. 30 will be the most expensive in Canadian history.

As candidates travel and spend hastily, they may shell out about $30 million.

Preliminary indications of election costs were given Friday by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democrat Leader David Lewis in news conferences that followed Prime Minister Trudeau's election announcement.

Mr. Stanfield said the Conservatives expected the 68-day campaign will cost between $3.5 million and $4 million. Even at that, the party will be short of the money to be as effective as it would like, he said.

Mr. Lewis said the NDP will have a central fund of about $350,000 and that all 260 candidates will spend about $2 million. The party would have trouble raising so much and probably would go "into hock."

breathed optimism, without any details.

"We are going to be very active," the Social Credit leader said. "Don't ask me what are our election costs. We don't have any. Our funds are the people who are working for us across the country."

Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Lewis made their financial predictions before any party will say this, it has more than a general idea of campaign plans and travel expectations of their leaders.

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of the government's new unemployment insurance scheme shaped up in the Commons Friday as a prime election issue, with opposition MPs deciding that Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey disclose how much of the taxpayer's money will end up in benefit cheques this year.

Conservative George Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings) then shouted:

Liberal Forces Cut Five Seats In Four Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal election campaign that is beginning follows four years of by-election battles and Commons defections that have cost the Liberals a net total of five ridings.

During the four years since the last general election, the New Democrats have gained three Commons seats from the Liberals in byelections. The Liberals, however, countered by seizing another from Social Credit.

Conservatives successfully defended two of their seats in byelections, but made no gains in other contests.

Instead, they picked up three disgruntled Liberal MPs who decided they would be more comfortable in Conservative ranks. They also lost one MP the same way.

Commons standing at dissolution was Liberal 147, Conservative 73, New Democrat, 25, Social Credit 13, Independent 2, with four vacancies.

Four years earlier, the general election results were Liberal 155, Conservative 72, New Democrat 22, Social Credit 14 and, independent 1. The independent was Speaker Lucien Lamoureux of Stormont-Dundas, who began his political career as a Liberal but followed tradition by becoming an independent when he became Speaker of the Commons.

Trudeau -- Greeting

West Coast Ports To Resume Work Under Legislation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for the British Columbia Maritime Employers Association said Friday they are hopeful work could resume next week at West Coast ports following Parliament's speedy passage of back-to-work legislation.

Ed Sirug, president of the employers association, said longshoremen, on strike since Aug. 23, should be back at work at the ports on Tuesday.

Don Garcia, Canadian area president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, was enroute to Vancouver after observing passage of the legislation in Ottawa and was unavailable for comment.

In Ottawa, MPs passed the back-to-work order less than 24 hours after it was introduced by the government.

Prime Minister Trudeau had recalled parliament to deal with the strike, which has tied up the port for almost a month.

Major concern was the shipment of grain to Japan, Russia and China.

All four parties agreed in Parliament that legislation was needed to avert a national crisis—the pileup of 30 million bushels of grain intended for overseas customers in China, Russia, Japan and Pakistan.

Longshoremen in Vancouver, the major port, have been off work since Aug. 23 in a dispute over manning procedures at the port. Employers say they need a force of regular workers to man increasingly sophisticated machinery, while the longshoremen contend that employing a regular force endangers the job security of other men.

The back-to-work legislation guarantees the longshoremen a settlement retroactive to Aug. 1, when their contract expired, in any agreement reached.

The act also heads off any strike by 500 grain handlers employed on the B.C. docks. The grain handlers have voted for strike action to back up the longshoremen for a contract to replace the pact that expired in November of last year.

Labor Minister Martin O'Connell said only the section of the legislation dealing with the longshoremen will be brought into force immediately.

The section dealing with the grain handlers would be invoked if they go out on strike, the labor minister said.

The legislation remains in effect until Dec. 31 or until a settlement is reached, whichever occurs first.

Man Throws Ball of Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — A small "ball of fire" dropped by a man in the stairway of a downtown nightclub led to the death of at least 42 persons Friday night in one of the worst fires in the city this century.

Police said the fire was ignited by men who "threw flammable material in the stairway" near the entrance to the top floor of the two-storey Blue Bird club about 10.30 p.m.

Four men were held for questioning, police said.

Montreal police spokesmen said most persons had been expelled from the club shortly before the fire swept through the building, trapped more than 200 patrons in the upper floors.

Most of the victims died in smoke-filled panic, huddled and crushed in corners of the dance hall.

The spokesman said police checks at eight city hospitals and the city morgue have accounted for the bodies "but that's not the end."

We have 42 reported from the fire department and we're trying to track everything down."

He said 54 persons were injured. Hospitals report about a dozen in serious condition.

Fifteen of the dead were found huddled in a corner that had no exit. They were huddled on the ground, holding on to each other like scared children," the spokesman said.

Another 24 jammed in an other area of the club near the bar and close to a back exit. Three more were found in a washroom near a window, he said. Police said they were going through handbags, purses and

Quinte Politicians Stirring

Grassroots Start to Rustle

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The first news of yesterday's October campaign call aroused little initial activity on the Quinte election scene.

Today, it was still so quiet you could almost hear the grassroots rustle.

And, although nomination processes that make political aims into parliamentarians will soon start to perk, some time will elapse before most Quinte voters feel the full impact of yesterday's decision.

For one thing, some key candidates have yet to be officially nominated — a task formally before the party's currently begin.

Here, much of the focus will be on the Belleville - Hastings riding of Hastings.

Lee Grills, Hastings MP, is due home from Ottawa today. May yet to discuss nomination plans with his constituency's Progressive Conservative organizers.

Hastings Liberals have also to name a candidate.

In neighbouring Prince-Edward — Hastings, Conservative MP George Hees, a national party spokesman, today will be in Ottawa on election talks, also has to be nominated.

Indications are local party convention could take anywhere from two to three weeks before such candidates are endorsed.

Not that both Quinte ridings are without campaigners. Three candidates already have been officially nominated by their parties — a Liberal, and two members of the New Democratic Party.

Of the three, most familiar to the public is George Cunningham, running on the Liberal ticket in Prince Edward-Hastings. The 46 - year - old

The Longest Wait Ends

There was good reason for George Cunningham (left) to have a big beam today as he chatted with Rossmore store owner Bob Mitchell. For Mr. Cunningham, Liberal candidate in Prince Edward-Hastings, yesterday's election announcement ends a long, long wait. He was selected to contest the riding in October, 1969 — the first candidate in Canada, he believes, nominated for the campaign that's arrived — at long last.

Tourist Report First To Know

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the first people to get the news of an Oct. 30 general election was a woman tourist in a blue print dress.

As Prime Minister Trudeau left Government House surrounded by aides, the unidentified woman pressed forward and asked softly when the election would be.

"The 30th," the prime minister was overheard replying. The official announcement didn't come until about a half-hour later.

Davis Hoping To Return Today

LONDON (CP) — A spokesman for Ontario Premier William Davis says the premier still hopes to return to Toronto today but may have to remain here until Sunday because all airlines appear to be fully booked.

The Davis party originally planned to fly aboard an Air Canada plane Sunday but aides started looking for earlier bookings after Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough announced his resignation Thursday.

Clare Westcott, the premier's executive assistant, said that after the premier heard of the announcement he made no immediate decision whether to accept the resignation. The premier, he said, is asked to talk to McKeough first.

Watching Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The government told the opposition in the Commons Friday that it is watching rising prices in Canada but gave no indication of taking any action to combat them.

Finance Minister John Turner said that price and wage controls are not warranted at this time.

Voters to Be Counted For Two Elections

Quinte district voters — in common with the rest of Ontario's electorate — will be enumerated twice this month.

The count involves municipal and, now, federal voting lists.

Enumeration of municipal voters is scheduled to start Sept. 5 in Hastings and Prince Edward counties. In keeping with new Ontario legislation it is to draw up voters' lists not based on property qualifications. Provincial regional assessment — now in Lakehead Leighton Thompson, said earlier this week, the door-to-door survey should take 10 days.

Yesterday's Oct. 30 national election announcement means enumerators will be back some time later this month— this time to draft federal voting lists.

Reg Dunham, of Tweed, federal electoral returning officer for Hastings riding, indicates enumerators for the general election will start their rounds about two weeks from now.

He doesn't think the fact two separate eligible - vote counts cannot be close should cause any confusion among householders.

"Everybody is aware that a federal election has been called," said Mr. Dunham.

George Hees To Be Busy

For George Hees the upcoming election campaign goes far beyond the boundaries of his Prince Edward - Hastings riding.

Coast - to - coast, in fact, Mr. Hees, a leading Conservative party spokesman, will be hitting the national hustings as well as seeking votes at home. He estimated last night he'll be dividing his campaign time about equally between his constituency and the country. For instance:

Much of this weekend he remains in Ottawa for strategy talks as a member of the party's national campaign committee. He returns to the riding Sunday night, meets with local party executives Tuesday, goes to Prince Edward Island for a party rally Wednesday, then Friday is back again — in time for the Picton fair.

wallets in an effort to identify victims.

The nightclub specialized in country and western music and housed a cocktail bar on the lower level.

Many patrons had to jump from the second storey as panic swept through the dance hall, creating jams at the exits.

George Lancia, who was in the club, said "everyone began to panic."

"There was lots of pitch black smoke, then a lot of heat and then a lot of yellow light," he said.

One police officer said the whole place was in flames in two or three minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rohstin said they were waiting to get to the upper floor when they saw a ball of fire behind them and a man running down the stairs.

"We tried to run after the man but there was a wall of fire between us that kept us from following," Mrs. Rohstin said.

She said they scrambled out a fire escape and "when we got outside the flames had spread so fast, they had trapped. I don't know how many girls in the women's washroom."

All police ambulances in the city and private vehicles were picked up dead and injured from streets where which were lined up along Union Street, where the club is located in the heart of the city.

In some cases two bodies were placed on one stretcher.

Mr. Garcia, who got out via the fire escape, said "there were so many people on the fire escape that the railing broke. People were falling from the sky almost."

When firemen and police arrived on the scene several injured persons were lying on the sidewalk while others were shouting from windows.

A 29-year-old woman who was in the club said "a doorman grabbed me, took me through the kitchen, and I jumped out a window at the back."

"People were screaming, falling, being stepped on. By the time I got out the whole building was burning and there were still people inside," she said.

Police had said earlier will, nemous reported three fire bombs were dropped by three men who sped off in a car.

Four men were later picked up in a west-end apartment, police said.

More than 1,000 spectators crowded the street, some of them anxious relatives.

Youth Vote Means Tougher Campaigning

The youth vote is an unknown quantity in the upcoming federal election.

But its presence may mean tougher campaigning for candidates, believes George Cunningham, Liberal contestant in Prince Edward - Hastings.

"I think these young people, when we first start talking, are going' to be more questioning, more probing, than other voters have been before," he says. "I don't think they will accept a lot of gobbledegook."

In Prince Edward-Hastings there were about 37,000 eligible voters in the 1968 election, Statistics Canada puts the future around 47,000. A normal increase of 2,000 - 4,000 could be expected between elections. Many of the new eligibles may be those enfranchised since the voting age was lowered, he said.

But a true picture would have to await enumeration.

Bay Bridge: Project Nears End of the Road

Bay Bridge — A Few More Days

The Bay Bridge restoration is in its last days.

Work on the causeway — which in its opening phase spurred feated on the — spot complaints from commuters and tourists using the Belleville-Prince Edward County highway link — should be finished in 10 days at the latest.

That's the word today from a transportation and communications ministry district spokesman.

Work now is entering the final stage on the short bridge span at the north end of the Highway 14 artery across the Bay of Quinte.

Traffic delays appear minimal—in contrast to the holdups caused when the $225,000 project's major work phase was launched July 4 on the longer southerl span, which also includes a drawbridge. Work on that section ended earlier last month.

Dan Collins, the ministry's district engineer at Port Hope said today, work should be completed in a week to 10 days.

Actual repairs called for were finished on contract deadline, said Mr. Collins. But complications developed last week when unexpected cracks were discovered beneath the decking of the south span, necessitating additional work.

Mr. Collins said he already had been in touch with Hastings County school transportation authorities and assured them there will be no delays for school buses, bringing students to Belleville from Ameliasburg township when a new school year starts next week.

Some repairs to the span's sidewalks and cleanup work will remain to be done next week but there should be no interference with traffic.

Mr. Collins said the bridge — including its steel framework, has been inspected — and "we're happy with the structure as it is now.

"We feel it has been restored as well as you can expect."

Completion of the work also means that the causeway's swing bridge will return to normal operation. To ease traffic flow during initial major work, federal authorities agreed to permit the bridge opened only once an hour — instead of each half hour.

Bridge Users Patient Lot

Taken all round, Belleville-area residents proved a fairly patient group while the Bay Bridge was being restored, a provincial government official said yesterday.

Initially, when the repair project was launched with its major repair phase July 4, on-the-spot complaints from commuters, tourists and area residents in general using the Bay of Quinte Highway 14 link appeared numerous. Some letters even reached the office of Premier Davis, it was reported.

Car Crashes Through Window of Store

TRENTON (Staff) — Bunnie Worthing, wife of Worthington TV owner Harold Worthing, was working in the office of their 141 Front Street store at 5 p.m. Friday, when a car came hurtling through the 22-foot plate glass window.

"Both my wife and son Glenn were in the showroom. They saw sterees and plaster flying through the air," Mr. Worthing said. Mr. Worthing was in the back of the store.

Town police report the car, driven by Allen Wayne Williams, 17, of 46 Gould Street, Trenton, was travelling north on Front Street. It apparently went out of control, mounted a six inch curb, crossed the sidewalk, drove over a two-foot concrete wall and smashed through the glass window. The vehicle came to a stop in the showroom, surrounded by heavily damaged televisions and stereo equipment.

No one was injured.

Mr. Worthing said there is to equipment and $4,000 in the to equipment and $4,000 in the store. Police set damage to the car at $300.

Sept. 28 Date Set For Town Hall Hearing

TRENTON (Staff) — The Ontario Municipal Board has called a public hearing Sept. 28 to discuss construction of municipal offices and a park.

The hearing, to start at 11 a.m. in council chambers, may be moved to the Trenton Community Gardens if enough interest is generated.

Council approved its principal $200,000 in the capital budget for the three-storey building to be built to include the old post office clock tower which remains standing.

However, the OMB suggested the town advertise to see if there were any objections to the proposal. Two to three years are the voters turned down the plan.

Tenders had been called and the price tag now stands at $369,000. Advertisements in local newspapers were published and objections forwarded to the OMB, which then decided to call a public hearing into the matter.

Plans for the Dundas St. West lot, left vacant by demolition of the old post office call for a three-storey building. The first two storeys will be used for a car park accommodating a total of 76 cars. The third floor will house municipal offices.

Contacted today, Mayor Duncan McDonald told The Intelligencer, "If the proposal is approved I can't see any delay in going ahead with it."

Trenton Carpet Firm To Double Capacity

TRENTON (Staff) — Centennial Carpet Manufacturing Ltd. of Trenton has announced plans to construct a new plant which has been designed to double the physical size and annual output and increase permanent staff from 18 to 15.

Plant manager Arnold Bell told The Intelligencer Friday, construction of the new building will start at the Sidney Street site immediately. The 32,000 square foot building, housed on a four-acre site, between Hagden, Mills and Crane Canada will cost approximately $500,000.

When faced with the necessity of expansion, Centennial expressed interest in Trenton sites, a move which would have taken them away from Trenton.

Councillor Paul Tripp said in an interview, the industrial commission, of which he is chairman, stepped in to see if local financing could be arranged.

"We contacted several sources and it wasn't been for the efforts of the industrial commission in securing funds, the plant would have moved to Toronto," he said.

In a door session Tuesday, council passed a bylaw approving the factory application.

The identity of local persons who have financial interest in the carpet factory, were not made available for publication. However, Mr. Bell stated All Province Contractors of Toronto, which will build the factory, is also providing backing.

Mr. Bell said his form, which prepares what is known as Grenge-Steel - stage carpeting), manufactures approximately 300,000 square feet of the material annually. When the new plant is operational, he expects this figure to rise to three quarters of a million square yards.

"This will be a more efficient system of operation, with better utilization of equipment and storage operation," Mr. Bell said in a telephone interview Friday.

He said this move is not their first expansion phase. Earlier this year, the company installed a quantity of new equipment in its rented quarters. The new factory is a second phase in the expansion program.

"If the volume goes beyond what we can produce at present capacity, we will take on more employees, on a shift work basis," he said, indicating the firm has made provisions to purchase 4.5 more acres, for future additions within the new factory.

The plant manager said the overall expansion program could result in a factory of 90,000 square feet. This would not come about for at least five or six years, however.

At present, the firm employs 19 regular employees, five part time. This permanent staff figure is expected to rise to 15.

Councillors Tour Disposal Sites

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward county councillors this week toured various provincial waste disposal sites to observe the systems used and costs involved.—Among the disposal sites examined were those at Burlington, Grimsby, St. Catharines and Scarboro.

The councillors were accompanied by Bruce Creamer regional engineer for the Waste Management Branch of the Ministry of the Environment. Mr. Creamer is based at Burlington and joined the bus tour there.

Councillors agreed at their last Saturday's meeting that county-wide feasibility study of waste disposal in Prince Edward at a cost of $19,000. Provincial government grants will pay for fifty per cent of the study's costs.

The survey should be completed at the end of the year and municipal officials have been told deadlines for closing present dump sites will be extended if an alternate plan is underway.

Air Cadets Seeking Camp Gear

TRENTON (Staff) — Since thieves made off with a large quantity of camp gear from Camp Rest, near Wanesville ter Lee Dam in the Bancroft district some weeks ago, the Trenton Air Cadets of 704 Air Force City Squadron, have been trying to recoup their losses.

Not only did thieves make off with goods, but they left a trail of damage and wilful animals destroyed much of what remained.

An appeal has been launched in an effort to replace the camping equipment which was donated by parents and other interested parties.

On Friday, and until 5 p.m. today, the cadets have parked a bus at the Dundas Street East Loblaws store. Donations are being received there.

Lieutenant Ken Bellamy, supply officer for the squadron, says the cadets especially need assorted cooking equipment, cutlery and dishes. Without, he said, future exercises may not be held.

IAN ROBERTSON, staff reporter and photographer with The Intelligencer for the past 2½ years, has been transferred from Belleville to Trenton, to take over the newspaper's 54 Dundas Street West office. He succeeds Kenneth Smith, who has taken up new duties in the Belleville office. Informations about news and upcoming events in the area, Carrying Place, Frankford, Murray Township, Brighton and Consecon areas, will be welcomed at the Trenton Bureau of The Intelligencer at 392-3929

Medical Outposts

Providing health services in outlying communities has always been a problem in Ontario and throughout the country. Where such services exist they are a real asset and undoubtedly the envy of similar centres and surrounding areas that are not so equipped.

The latest in this field has come to public notice of late. One is the clinic operated at Northbrook on Highway 41 by doctors who fly in from Kingston three times a week. The clinic is housed in a former one-room school and there is a resident nurse.

The other facility is one newly-established on Wolfe Island which with neighboring Islands linked by ferry with the mainland are in a situation even more remote from medical help. Now Wolfe Island at least has a clinic operating in a mobile home.

The Northbrook clinic has been assisted on its way by a grant from Physicians Services Incorporated Foundation while the Wolfe Island establishment has got its start from about $11,000 raised by island residents and the people of Kingston.

Community effort is involved in both, as well as that of medical men and nurses whose services are essential to the whole process. It may be that other similar ventures will get their start from community initiative elsewhere. Certainly a flying doctor service, operating from major centres, could go a long way toward meeting the medical needs of people in outlying areas.

Harbor Facilities

It is disturbing that a community such as Belleville, situated as it is on the Bay of Quinte which in turn is an easily accessible arm of Lake Ontario, has neither adequate marina facilities nor the traffic that might encourage their availability.

Bill Vaughan of Vaughan Automotive and Appliances Ltd., who has established such a facility as a service to the firm's own customers — it provides yachtsmen with fuel and a pump-out service for their holding tanks — has this to say in a brief interview in a recent interview with staff reporter Lenny Williamson.

Here is an extract from that interview:

"There is no boating water traffic in Belleville harbor to make a marina profitable (he had noted earlier that the firm would be lucky if it broke even).

"Lack of facilities at the docking level is the reason," says. "It's ridiculous the trade that leaves the city because yachtsmen can't find a place to tie up." The town of Annapolis, Md., with a population of 8,000 does a $1 million business with yachtsmen annually, says Mr. Vaughan.

"People off boats are impulsive buyers," he says.

Belleville harbor, in his opinion, has the space to accommodate the boats that want to tie up but now turn away.

"But we need better docks to accommodate more boats and hydro service at dockside."

Mr. Vaughan says he knows of two industries whose owners changed their minds about coming to the city because of lack of facilities in the harbor."

"The Harbor Commission is interested but the people of Belleville just don't care," claims Mr. Vaughan. "They never come down here to see what is waiting to be developed."

Revealing, isn't it? It is true that there is scant public interest in the harbor, waterfront and Foster Ward area generally. Yet it is one of the most interesting parts of the city and one of the most available with potential for development. City Council should take a look at this situation with a view to creating the kind of facilities that will bring more yachtsmen here, as well as encouraging them to stay a while. Council could begin by making a study of facilities at communities such as Brockville and Gananoque where there is extensive boat traffic — yachts and cruisers — and there are the facilities to cater to it.

Plain Speaking

If ever there was evidence that the absence of capital punishment is an encouragement to crime the words of a bank robber caught in New York the other day provide it. The man, who before his capture had held bank employees hostage, was quoted as saying: "The Supreme Court will let me get away with this. There is no death penalty. It's ridiculous. I can shoot everyone here, then throw my gun down and walk out and they can't put me in the electric chair. You have to have a death penalty. Otherwise this can happen every day." And — we might add — does happen virtually every day in New York.

PM Seeks Their Support Too

Will Stanfield Win Confidence of The Youth Vote?

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It almost makes anyone over the unspeakable age of 30 feel unwanted, the way both the Liberals and Conservatives are chasing what they call the "first-time voters".

These are the 2.8 million people between 18 and 24 who were too young to vote in 1968 or who are being included in the election listing this time by lowering the voting age.

Ironically, this is the generation that made something of an age-gap battle-cry of "Don't trust anyone over 30."

The government, in courting them, has been spending nearly $200 million this year in marketing work non-jobs with its Opportunities for Youth and some of the Local Initiatives action.

They account for an estimated 21 percent of the total vote and are getting priority political attention.

While at the other extreme end of the age scale, the two million pensioners who make up about 15 percent of the total vote are being all but forgotten by the government with that strangest of — call programs, "New Horizons," with its no-pay blackmailing and a non-profit underneath agencies — for - age.

Torrance Wylie, the young go-go Liberal National Campaign Organizer put together what is called the Prime Minister's First - Time Voter Committee" to round up the 18-24-year-old vote.

Ian Green, a geography grad from Ottawa University and former reporter of The Sudbury Daily Star, has drawn a similar assignment from the Conservatives, heading up a 30-member team to corral the same "first-time" vote.

Mr. Wylie, pep - talking the Liberal youth brigade, has set out some basic campaign ABCs. To quote a few:

"The Prime Minister has confidence in young people.

"The Prime Minister's appeal to politics appeals to youth.

"The Prime Minister anticipates the future for youth better than any other leader.

"The Prime Minister is the man for all youth in Canada and has the trust and full support of young people."

But how to get these words of faith across?

"Seek out radio, TV, and newspaper interviews" counsels Torrance Wylie, "in the various media centres across the country."

The emphasis on the Prime Minister makes it clear that despite his age, Pierre Elliott Trudeau "identifies" with, is not actually personifies, youth. Think young, says Torrance Wylie. Think Trudeau.

It could work for the Prime Minister.

It could never work for Conservative Leader Stanfield who lacks the Trudeau image, however misleading in a 53-year-old husband and father, of a swinger, mellowing perhaps, but still, in sandals, slacks and sports shirts, swinging.

So Stanfield is not being presented as "Mr. Youth" although he is only five years older than Trudeau.

They are not wrapping him in a "Youth Package," as a leader with what the kids call "vibes" in tune right on with the 18-to-24-year-olds.

So he is interested in them, sure. Concerned about their problems and thinking, of their future, too.

And, the way his advisers are presenting him, he pays the first - time voters the compliment of assuming they are interested in his attitudes toward them.

So when he comes on with them it will not be in any flip or "Hi, guy" way.

Being Stanfield it will be on the serious side.

The idea, says his "first-time voter" campaign organizer Ian Green, is to insinuate him casually in the youth section.

Not as a part of it, participating in the youth scene, but aware of it and receptive.

They will trot him into coffee houses and youth projects for "conversations with small groups of young people," says Ian Green. "Not so much for him to talk to them but to hear what they have to say.

He will not be "trapping" with the kids, as Trudeau does so well, he will simply be conversing.

Different, eh?

It will be something to see if Stanfield can carry it off.

And carry it off he knows he must, because he is very, very aware that Trudeau can and will.

How It Might Have Been for Dalton Bales

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

What a difference a day makes. Or in this case several years.

Reflecting on the past it is interesting to contemplate what might have happened to Attorney General Dalton Bales if, in the circumstances of his land matter, he had happened to be serving under Leslie Frost rather than William Davis.

Chances could be that today instead of being in the A.G.'s suite he might be sharing a secretary and getting his mail in a private member's office.

And Mr. Frost would have the hustings and an election in mind.

Mr. Frost had three elections and two of them centred on "scandals."

The 1951 election was a straight personality affair.

But in 1955 there was the "highway scandal." And in 1959 there was the Northern Ontario Natural Gas affair.

There are some, including the writer, who have contended there was very little scandal, if any, in the highways affair.

Nevertheless then deputy prime minister and minister of highways and public works George Doucette retired from the government over it.

In the NONG incident three ministers bought stock through the company and made considerable profits. Frost asked for and got, their resignations.

There are those who have always said that the then premier welcomed these incidents. That his biggest political asset was his image of extreme integrity and that the incidents bolstered this.

This is a question on which public judgments are not to be taken. Mr. Frost unquestionably had a fine sense of integrity.

However, with the highways scandal he could have, if he opened it down if not entirely killed it at an early point if he had been so inclined.

This scandal was built up by the Toronto Star. Without going into the details there was a system of operation that lacked loose and could be suspect. But actually it was a system which practically all jurisdictions in America were following in their highways building. Frost did not follow through...the pressure to get roads built in the post-war years.

If the premier had made a major speech explaining this it could have at least taken much of the sting out of the scandal. But it was a year before he mentioned it.

And with NONG at the time of the purchases by two of the ministers it was more difficult that the company's affairs would be a matter of concern to the cabinet, and the two ministers had bought their stock at the market price.

But in the discussion at the time these points weren't brought out, neither by the premier nor even the ministers themselves.

So in another day Mr. Bales might have been out.

Not to say that today (or any day) he should be.

In a case there has been no evidence at all of any malfeasance or dishonor.

His incident will be beneficial in that it will lead to clarification of conflict of interest and otherwise it is probably better that he didn't resign.

For if he had we might be looking for resignations every time a minister scratched his nose.

Politics Intrude in Sport

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The 1972 Olympics Games are underway as planned - but without Rhodesia. Invited out by a decision of the International Olympic Committee.

The removal of Rhodesia, because of the threat of withdrawal by the African countries, plus possibly Cuba and some of the Eastern European Communist countries, was Avery Brundage put it, "political blackmail."

Like the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, where local violence matched international politics of sport, this year's Olympics has seen a new, low level of political interference.

Although Rhodesia sent a mixed team of blacks and whites, better than the racist South African Republic has ever done, a mass boycott of black African states some of them with the best runners in the world, would have wrecked the games, if the Rhodesians had stayed.

The vote to remove Rhodesia might have had slight justification if the reasons were related to pure sports' competence. In terms of great Centenary Grey black athletes, it would have meant the withdrawal of the spectacular Kelso and his team mates from Kenya and of Edmonia Lyn long-distance runner who won the marathon in the last three Olympiads.

But no. The potential loss of these superb black athletes had nothing to do with the vote. Pure and simple politics did.

The Olympic Games, not just a world depository for great athletes, but for a record rate and amount of foreign exchange.

Also uncertain was the future of the Olympics as a forum for its usually substantial black participation in the absence of the American team and medal winners turned out to be Black African countries.

There was the fear this time, that U.S. black militants, like the Panther or not, would also boycott any effort to maintain Rhodesia as a participant.

The 1972 dispute over rugby was a match against the Springboks, an earlier disputes over Communist bloc countries taking part, caused by Communist China not been recognized in the West, the People's Republic of China, North Korea and the German Democratic Republic (East Germany).

These days have passed. In fact the appearance of the East German Republic and the Federal Communist run German Democratic Republic will be further proof that the rapprochement between West and East Germany, also heads a different attitude, even if it will be something to see if Stanfield can carry it off.

And carry it off he knows he must, because he is very, very aware that Trudeau can and will.

Expulsion Of Asians

The Montreal Gazette

President Idi Amin of Uganda is throwing out not only the estimated 18,000 Asians of British, Indian and Pakistani nationality. He has now decided to evict also the 22,000 Ugandan citizens of Asian extraction, including those born there, thus rendering its citizenship meaningless and declaring racism to be official policy.

This attacks by such a government on the eligibility of Rhodesia to take part in the Olympics underlines the fact that sports's discriminability policies is not limited to the white world.

President Amin gave as a reason for his latest move the secrets of sabotage and arson the Asians have now started on property in the country. The president undertakes his own cause, for there is strong implication in his reasoning that the crimes the Asians are said to be plotting are a reaction to his own policies. Ugandaz, like any other country, can readily take steps to enforce laws against arson or conspiracy, but law is not what Uganda seems to be after. It wants a scapegoat.

Cottage Pollution

Galt Reporter

These six inch cottage owners can't be blamed when they told they must stop polluting their lakes and streams, the Guelph health inspector Bob Bond should be thankful for the publicity he received in the matter.

Perhaps what The Mercury's expose of the extent of pollution on the lakeshore may have done is to have aroused the ire of some cottage properties but it should also have aroused interest and prompted a meeting dilemma.

There is no mistake about it: Pushinch Lake's water table is becoming increasingly polluted by the cottages that are crowded on relatively small lots but small lots and any buyer should be made aware of it.

At the same time, the three-part series in The Guelph Mercury prompted cottage owners to band together and try to find a solution to their problems and Thursday's meeting in Aberfoyle seemed to be the first step forward. It showed that the installation of holding tanks on such property within the next two or three years is the only adequately protect cottage owners.

It may involve some expense and some trouble, but public health and public safety are concerned in this matter. That is why The Mercury decided to publish this series: and it paid off in renewed efforts toward fighting pollution.

Smoking Clinic Scheduled

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

The Cornwall unit of the Canadian Cancer Society, in cooperation with a number of other help groups, will have a three-day "stop smoking" clinic here on Oct. 16.

The registration fee is very modest, and anyone who is seriously interested in breaking the smoking habit is urged to attend.

Films and demonstrations will introduce ways to break the habit and literature on how to relax and avoid hang-ups will also be made available. However, we expect the challenge of a group effort will be the biggest factor in the tobacco habit may be the biggest impetus to success.

Medical studies have shown that lung cancer and other respiratory diseases have become a cause for serious concern in recent years. "It is those who have smoked heavily for 25 years or more who are most susceptible Mr. Ralph Randlett of Cornwall, told a cancer seminar here earlier this year.

Bible Digest

by H. B. DEAN

"But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." — Acts 1:8

Make no mistake about it, God not only has the power to see through us but the power to see us through. There is no mountain so high, no ocean so wide, no valley so low, no soul so dirty, as sin, as God's love. He can go blue, no spirit so down, as Jesus was to through the Holy Spirit in the name of Jesus will see us through and over.

Behan Defined Anglo-Irishman As 'Protestant With A Horse'

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — They lined for only a couple of centuries yet inspired their image on the buildings and literature of a land that remained basically foreign and hostile to them.

Unlike the British in India or Africa, the Anglo-Irish of southern Ireland produced rebels—even martyrs—in the nationalist cause which eventually brought them down. Like the country they inhabit they were full of paradoxes.

Distinguished more by social class than by heredity, they are hard to define, though one of their descendants, the Dublin writer Terence de Vere White, grappled with the task in a new book called The Anglo-Irish, published by Victor Gollancz.

How, after all, can you find a common thread linking British military heroes like Wellington, Kitchener and Roberts with the sparkling wits of Oscar Wilde and Thomas Bradley Sheridan, the satire of Shaw and Swift, or the mystically Celtic poetry of W. B. Yeats? Or trace a connection between quixotic rebels like Theobald Wolfe Tone and Robert Emmet and eminent statesmen such as Edmund Burke and Charles Parnell?

Each harder to pigeonhole, and one of the most tragic ironies, is the case of Robert Erskine Childers, a late convert to Irish nationalism who was executed, not by the British but by his Irish opponents in the civil war of 1922.

The irrepressible Irish writer Brendan Behan once defined the Anglo-Irishman as "a Protestant with a horse," a description White feels apt —though there were Roman Catholics among them—as a means of distinguishing the means of distinguishing the new Ulster Protestants, pro-southern landed gentry from ducts of a different background.

Most of the southern Anglo-Irish, White points out, were really transplanted from the English "county" set. Though the world thinks of them as the architects of Georgian Dublin and wacky conversationalists turning out plays for the Abbey Theatre, such individuals were the icing on an otherwise sinful cake composed mainly of philistine squires and the snobbish society surrounding the Viceroy's court.

The shifty members of Dublin's exclusive Kildare Street Club, for instance, were unhappy about admitting Yeats, probably the most distinguished Anglo-Irishman of his generation. Years later, it was explained to author White by Raymond Brooke, a cousin of Northern Ireland's first prime minister: "It was not so much Yeats himself that anyone objected to, but the sort of people he was likely to bring in."

Yeats, after all, actually mixed with the Irish-Irish. He had a passionate attachment to the revolutionary Maud Gonne, regarded by the establishment as a traitor to her class. And even the Gaelic literary renaissance with which Yeats and J. M. Synge were associated was seen by Kildare Street members as a potential threat to the Crown.

Basically, as White's series of pen-portraits shows, the story of the Anglo-Irish was the story of the Protestant Ascendancy. It was this, not their English background, that made them an island and caused their stately homes to be burned after the transfer of power.

English parentage was never a bar to Irish nationalist credentials—even Patrick Pearse, hero of the 1916 Easter Rising, had an English father, as did Erskine Childers, leader of the present-day Irish Republican Army and Conor Cruise O'Brien, born John Stephenson in England.

Other writers have expressed the theory that the nationalist struggle for Ireland was at bottom a class war, tinged with green. Certainly when they lost power, the former elite found they had no place in the plans of independent Ireland, even losing out in their bid to have divorce made available to the Protestant minority under the new Catholic-oriented legislation.

It was this issue which sparked Yeats's famous defence of the Anglo-Irish in the Dublin Senate: "We against whom you have done this thing are no petty people. We are one of the great stocks of Europe. We are the people of Burke; we are the people of Grattan: we are the people of Swift, the people of Emmet, the people of Parnell. We have created most of the modern literature of this country . . . the best of its politics, intelligence."

All to no avail. The inevitable reaction against Britain's influence in southern Ireland resulted—and still is result-ing—in harsh fine hearings being thrown away.

Robert Kee, himself the author of a comprehensive history of Irish nationalism entitled The Green Flag, says Mrs. White's book leaves him with a sense of loss, "the sense of how irrelevant like so-called Anglo-Irish might have proved today as a link in the situation in the North, if only they had been allowed to survive as a political force in Irish national life, as earlier nationalists had always intended that they should."

Live in Day-tight Compartments

By Rev. Gordon C. Smyth

St. Paul had to bear through out his life the bitter memory of a misdirected past. He had become an apostle, the chief agent in the propagation of the Christian religion, but he could not escape the memory of times when he had done everything to thwart the religion he now professed to serve.

He had persecuted the church and stood by while its first martyr was stoned to death. And he thought of these things when paralysed his apostleship. What he had to be a leader? How could he call himself an apostle?

He was wise enough to see that although the past could not be altered it could be learned for. A habit of mind he confidently set to work to shed that lets the old past bury its dead, clings one's past and mistakes just where they are, and leaves one free for the future. He said, "Brethren, I do not presume that I have behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:13,14).

There are some who misunderstanding of the past it would be foolish to forget. Strength, caring, consulting and unfailing associations that give courage and self-control to each day's life. Along with these precious memories, however, there are the mistakes and regrets and mistakes of the past that are now irremediable and for which the only redemption lies in the future in the repentant, self - reproaching, backward look toward sin. Things is the paralysis of energy.

It is, as Paul says, like the runner who glances over his shoulder and becomes a competitor instead of a competitor. Instead of looking back, he must look forward and press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:13,14).

There are some who misunderstanding of the past it would be foolish to forget. Strength, caring, consulting and unfailing

The things that are behind are like pursuers, and they drag us back but to make us run. The prize is not for looking back in the backward-looker, or for the quitter, but for the individual who, in spite of faults, failures and sorrows, has acquired discipline for the strain of life.

In A Way of Life, Sir William Osler, the Ontario-born physician, outlined guiding principles from which we can benefit. "The load of tomorrow, added to that of yesterday, carried today, makes the strongest falter. Let the limit of your horizon be a 24-hour circle. Believe that you can, and you will. Self is dyed by the thoughts, let no day pass without a contact with the best literature of the world. Learn to know your Bible, though perhaps not as a believer. Bible is forming the character and in shaping conduct, its touch has still its ancient power."

Osler continues, "Fitness or 25 minutes a day will give you fellowship with the great minds of the race and little by little the best that has been said and thought will enter your mind and become part of your life. Live in day — tight compartments will help you to bear your sins and other burdens with a light heart. Life is a stretch, plan and work, and the way is clear, blazed for you by generations of living men, into which labors you enter and whose ideals must be your inspiration."

Useful training all these lines has made many a weak man strong, or many "a dark horse" win. The test of life comes when the things that are behind close on the heels quickly runner, with no turn of his head opens the gap and strains forward to what lies up front.

Snake-charmer on Rocks

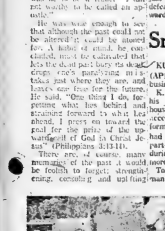
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) — The snake-charming business is on the rocks.

K. N. S. Pillai used to have his own chauffeured car, big house and telephone. He would accept appointments only if informed weeks in advance. He had three full-time and four part-time assistants to help out during weekends. That was all more than 20 years ago.

Today he is a gray-haired man of 53, who earns hardly 50 cents a day with a cobra.

He has moved from the limelights to a 5ps near a gutter in a dusty corner of the main street in Kuala Lumpur.

People now are not interested: Movies, television, radio, night clubs and other entertainment have pulled the bottom out of the business.



"The money we get today is not for the performance," he says. "It is as though we are beggars. It is given out of pity."

Pillai has been a snake charmer for 70 years, after learning the art from his father. He looks with contempt on charmers who use defanged for non poisonous snakes.

Pillai tapped his basket and said, "Now it is only the two of us, Mycliff and Desdemonas here."

Desdemonas is a cobra which does a good belly dance and variation of the Malaysian highland fling.

Looking at Desdemonas, sleeping after a lunch of two frogs, Pillai sighed, shook his head and said there was a time he could afford to feed his snakes on choice chicken.

Also A Landmark

St. Michael's church, like Stikes being the oldest native of worship for the city's Roman Catholic community, is also something of a landmark. Built atop one of the highest points in the city, the structure is topped by an imposing spire which makes it a prominent point on the city's skyline.

Underdogs of Sea Said in Danger

MONTREAL (CP) — Diana Magor says some of her best friends are sea-cows. So she plans to spend part of next winter doing whatever possible to save them from extinction.

She described the rolly-poly creatures as "something like a big fat cigar" and the "underdogs of the marine world."

To be more specific, the sea-cows Diana is interested in weigh about 1,000 pounds as adults, have heavy, flat tails, two front flippers, are also known as South American manatees and live in the Amazon River.

Most important, said Diana, is the fact that after 50 million years sea-cows are on the endangered species. Hence her trip to the Amazon this November.

It's vitally important for us to determine how abundant the sea-cows are because if they get down to a critically low level they won't be able to find each other to breed. As it is, we think they only produce offspring on an average of every three years, and then only one calf in most cases, though occasionally two will be born.

Diana, currently working as a waitress at a downtown Montreal restaurant, is a native of Galt, Ont., who originally planned to be a doctor.

During pre-med studies, however, she took a course in scuba-diving and was sidetracked by the fascination of underwater life.

Since graduation, from Acadia University in Nova Scotia and Stanislaus College in California, Diana has worked at the Undersea Gardens in Victoria, collecting, caring for and displaying marine animals. She has also carried out a pollution study on the effects of human population on a previously uninhabited island in the Bahamas and studied whale populations in the north Atlantic for the fisheries research board of Canada.

She attributes her interest in science to long conversations with her father about dinosaurs, apes and biology in general.

She hopes to receive financial aid for her expedition from the Marine Science Centre at McGill University but is prepared to go it alone on her waitress earnings if no grants are forthcoming.

Fewer than 10 scientists have done research on the sea-cow, although it has long been a source of food and skins for leather and also good at cleaning channels — eating an average 100 pounds of vegetation daily.

"It's been overlooked because it's kind of a sluggish, unexciting animal, docile and without an enemy in the world except man," Diana said." It doesn't do anything cute, like the dolphin leaping out of the water."

Diana spent four months last year in British Honduras, doing preliminary work on the abundance, distribution, movements and behavior of the sea-cow.

She said they are difficult to find because they tend to stay in turgid water, becoming visible only when they come up to breathe. Sea-cows were polygamous except while mating but were fiercely protective of their young.

"The fishermen deliberately try to capture the young calves because they know the mothers will try to rescue them and so be easily killed as well," Diananaid.

"It justisn't right that a creature that has been evolving for 50 million years should be wiped out in 150. As a biologist, I am naturally a conservationist and I think more people would be if they realized the significance of a creature becoming extinct for no good reason."

Bavarian Party Oct. 21

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton goes Bavarian Oct. 21, when the Rotary Club presents Oktoberfest at the Trenton Community Gardens.

Real Bavarian food, eaten to the background music of a German band, will add to the atmosphere of this gala event. A maximum of 250 tickets will be made available for the 8 p.m. fest, the price being $4 per person, which includes a stein of beer.

However, organizers of the event say they are prepared to hold a second Oktoberfest celebration in the afternoon, if enough interest is generated.

Stimulants Could Stunt Growth of Hyper Child

BOSTON (AP) — Using stimulant drugs to control the behavior of hyperactive children could suppress their growth, says a Maryland research group.

In a study released in the New England Journal of Medicine, researchers at the Baltimore County department of health said two commonly used stimulants suppressed the normal weight gain of 29 children surveyed.

The stimulants, dextroamphetamine and methylphenidate, are used to decrease restless ness in overactive, impulsive and easily distracted school children.

The one group of 20 children surveyed, between the ages of eight and 12 were on stimulants during the school year and not during the summer.

Several offers continued medication throughout the year.

All 20 managed to gain weight while on them, but at the 40 per cent rate they normal for their ages. The children taken off drugs during the summer showed a sharp increase in weight gain for that period, about 130 per cent the average for their ages.

One of the researchers Dr. Daniels Safer said in an interview that the children taken off drugs during the summer appeared to compensate for some of the weight not gained while on stimulants.

The Baltimore study said the reasons why stimulants re stricted growing in children are not clear, but the researchers noted that many of the children on drugs are less than ordersdesc ages, an effect noted in adults. The study also noted that such drugs suppress sleep in adults and a similar effect in children could reduce the relaxed time needed to secrete growth hormone.

The study, co-written by Dr. Richard Allen and Dr. Evelyn Barry, is one of the first long term studies on the postrective effects of stimulants on children. Safer said such studies are important because about five per cent of all school children in the United States are hyperactive and about 20 per cent of these, some 250,000, are on stimulants.

Anglicans Are Asked To Ordain Women

TORONTO (CP) — An inquiry group of the Anglican General Synod has recommended that the Anglican Church of Canada ordain women to the priesthood, says the Canadian Churchman, the Anglican national newspaper.

The Churchman reports that the seven-member inquiry group recommended acceptance of the principle of admission of women to holy orders, appropriate steps to implement this principle and communication of the decision to other churches in the Anglican communion as soon as possible.

One member has written a minority report. The Churchman states, saying that "based on the evidence of scripture, church tradition, history, the judgment of great minds and a Catholic and apostolic understanding of the sacremental priesthood, it would seem utterly impossible to make the case."

The members of the inquiry group, all from Nova Scotia, include three women, three clergymen and a layman. They were appointed in 1970.

The committee on the ministry will study the report with a view to presenting it to the general synod, highest governing body in the Anglican Church of Canada, next May.

Hospitals Need Nurses

BANGKOK (Reuter) — Thai hospitals are suffering from a serious shortage of qualified nurses—many of them lured to the United States by higher pay.

More than 2,000 Thai nurses now are working in the U.S., a senior Bangkok nurse reports.

Suteera Ayuvaraua, writing in the Ramathibodi Hospital Journal, said 38 nurses had resigned from the hospital in the last three years and all but four of them had gone to the United States.

Besides the wage differential, nurses working in the U.S. cite inefficiency of hospital administration in Thailand and a lack of medical equipment here as factors contributing to the decision to go abroad.

Miss Suteera, who herself has worked in the U.S., said the "brain drain" hurt even more because the nurses who left were usually in the 26-to-40 age group—considered the prime of working years of their profession.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Should skyjackers be defied?

NO, but even the meekest passenger under the control of a skyjacker knows better if he shouldn't put up more a battle against the air pirate. Yet resistance would prove more satisfying to the skyjacker. The headlines he would then garner may do more for his ego than being interned in a foreign land, or living in ignominious anonymity off his illgotten ransom—just bursting to tell everyone of his feat but, of course, not daring to whisper a word.

Are all grownups alike to kids?

NO, the youngsters not only can spot adult differences in attitudes and behavior, they can also take advantage of them. For instance, if one parent is more permissive, the children will pit the one parent against the other. In the ensuing clashes of temperaments, the children will find that they have "divided and conquered" the authority they felt was aligned against them. And don't think each parent won't try to be the children's favorite.

Is it wrong to relish a marital fight?

TILLY depends. A husband who gleefully provokes his wife into fighting is obviously lacking the essentials needed to make his marriage a success. On the other hand, a husband, who relishes a marital fight once the battle is on, may welcome the opportunity to clear the air of a thousand little annoyances that have cropped up, and is hopefully looking forward to a happier, smoother marriage once the fisticuffs stop flying.

SEPTEMBER OPENS SCHOOL

"Dunnole is the school of mankind," - Edmond Burke (1729 - 1797).

September, the month that turns our hope, energy and thoughts toward school and education. The Intelligencer, mindful of this seasonal interest, was in accordance with this pensive mood, from former Belleville residents namely Mr. and Mrs. Neil Bell for information concerning their daughter Judy, who has appeared in this column with her involvement in nursery school programs. She had written several poems on this subject and was interviewed by Toronto newspapers in connection with these [illegible]

Mr. Bell did this, it says, with no formal training in engineering or any of the physical sciences.

Education, training, be it formal or informal brings creative enlightenment for all humanity, dare is September to celebrate this truth and welcome all with open arms to the halls of learning.

Teenager Calls for More Facts on Drugs

By DORIS CLARK

According to a 16-year-old ward of the Kingston C.A.S., the use of drugs is growing. He considers that much of today's drug education means little to many.

For instance, we don't know enough about the difference between "hard" and "soft" drugs, damage done; and the existing laws are inconsistent.

The fact that the so-called older generation are heavy users of alcohol and prescription drugs doesn't help any. Alcohol is totally acceptable by most of society and underage drinkers are seldom prosecuted. Yet drug possessors are heavily fined.

The very useful users of the harder drugs are seldom aware of what they are doing. More of these users are in the first few years of high school than in the senior grades.

Our 16-year-old writer concludes, "There are many reasons why people use drugs, but if people knew themselves better, maybe drugs would be less of a problem."

Dear Doris: I have been interested in the controversy raging just now about bicycles on the roads, and the dangers entailed. Away back in 1962 I had a poem which was used in the Buffalo Courier Express on the same subject. Enclosed is a copy. — V.A.

Dear V.A.: Your amusing rhyme "Dual Personality" expresses what I have often thought: That as pedestrians, we have a built-in resentment of the motorist; but — as you say — "When I'm in the driver's seat, Watching pedestrians cross the street, They make a nervous wreck of me; I think, "How stupid can they be?"

I'd love to hear some of the private thoughts of the folk on bicycles when the air is superior motorist zooms by!

Your 22 line poem expresses all sides delightfully, and with tongue in cheek I'll be glad to share it with anyone writing in for "Dual Personality", enclosing the usual 20 cents to cover reproducing and handling, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Doris: I can understand the need of the woman who has M.S. to communicate with other people and will write to her. I'd like to give a great big boost to her sister! She has done a wonderful thing in bringing her home.

My doctor wouldn't let me have my Mum when she was ill even though I had made arrangements with the Red Cross Society to have all appliances in my home and had 12 years' nursing experience. They felt I didn't realize what a handicap she would have been.

She passed away 10 weeks after, and I guess that will always be one of my deepest regrets as Mum wanted to come home to me. She had cancer.

That is why I feel such sympathy for these two very brave women. — Letter writer.

Dear Letter Writer: Just about anybody would rather be home than in hospital, especially if they knew their time on this earth was limited and they had a loving daughter or sister to care for them. But it may well be that the strain of lifting, bathing, giving much service, would have left you yourself handicapped.

Try not to let this one disappointment become a lasting sorrow. What you are doing now by writing to "Collecting Stars" is expressing a loving friendship which you can no longer give to your mother. Mum is out of pain now and wouldn't want you to be feeling sad for her.

Ann Landers

Keeping Quiet Is Best Policy

Dear Ann Landers: From time to time you print letters from girls who ask if they should tell their prospective husbands about a past love affair. You wisely tell them, "Keep quiet. A man should be willing to accept a woman as she is for the time she is today. Her past is nobody's business."

It's a funny thing about men, at all ages they use every trick in the book to get a girl to bed in and even consider themselves more manly every time they score. But when they get ready to pick a wife, she'd better be a virgin or she'll have to put up with his lip forever.

I say nearly all women are as pure as 99 per cent of the men they marry. If a girl volunteers any information about her past indiscretions she deserves what she gets. Furthermore, any man who asks such questions should be told to get lost. He wouldn't believe her no matter what she said. And it's an even bet he's looking for an excuse to bail out. — Pisces in Portland.

Dear Pi: Thank you for a good job of re-emphasizing a point worth making again and again. You speak the truth.

Dear Ann Landers: How do I tell my 4-year-old granddaughter that Grandma and Grandpa aren't married? Marie and I met at a summer resort last year. Since that time we've written letters back and forth until three months ago she wrote something I couldn't read so I ran into someone who lives in the same town. He said he had heard that Marie died. I was shocked and asked for details but he said he knew very little casually and thought he had about it. He wasn't even sure if she was the same girl.

I don't want to write to her parents for fear of upsetting them. Yet I am anxious to find out about this. What do you say next? — C.Z., Jr.

Dear C.Z.: You can write to the office of county clerk in the area where the girl lives. State the girl's name and address and ask if they have a record of her death. Enclose a self addressed, stamped envelope for the reply. If they tell you there is no record of her death, write to the girl and ask her to please drop a line because you've been concerned about her silence.

Dear Ann Landers: I just finished reading the letter signed Pittsburgh Reader. She wanted to take pictures of the neighborhood cats and dogs and pass them around the vacation resort. When everyone else pulled out snapshots of their children and grandchildren. I would like to tell you how my husband solved the same problem.

I went forth, battle of furniture polish called Pride, put it along with a bottle of deodorizing air freshener called Joy and took a new-headed him a fistful of snapshots of their children or grandchildren, he gave them his pictures and said with a gleam in his eye "And now I'd like you to see my Pride and Joy."

It didn't cure anybody but it sure did break up the monotony. Sign me — Married To A Barrel Of Laughs

Dear Married: I'm sorry you weren't blessed with children to brag about, but at least you have a sense of humor. Thanks for writing.

Economy Grows At High Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — The economy has been growing this year at an annual rate of more than 6.2 per cent—the rate which the Economic Council of Canada has said is needed to close the unemployment gap in three years.

Statistics Canada reported Friday that the gross national product—the total value of all goods and services produced in the country—was at an annual rate of $102.09 billion in April, May and June.

This was a three-per cent increase over the first quarter of the year, and it included an over-all increase of nine-tenths of one per cent in price levels. The price factor was down sharply from 1.4 in the first quarter of the year.

Statistics Canada said that in the first half of 1972, the physical volume of output rose at a quarterly rate of 1.8 per cent. If this rate is maintained for the balance of the year, it would mean a 6.54 per cent increase for the year.

TORONTO (CP) — A break was announced Friday in the protracted strike of 12,000 employees against Ontario Hydro.

A spokesman for Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, said labor and management bargaining teams have tentatively settled "more than 50 items," leaving only 10 issues open to bargaining.

Bases Close

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The era of nuclear weapons at Canadian soil has ended officially.

A federal defence white paper had set Sept. 1 as the deadline for phasing out the Bomarc bases here and at La Macaza, Que., and the last personnel working at the bases worked their final shift Thursday night.

Hughes Leaves

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Howard Hughes party has left the Bayshore Inn where the billionaire had been living since March 14.

Mr. Hughes left his suite on the 20th floor of the hotel for Nicaragua Tuesday.

Heads Police

QUEBEC (CP) — Chief R. J. Shrubb of Peterborough, Ont., became president of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police Friday at the association's 67th annual convention here.

Dairy Princess

TORONTO (CP) — Caryl Bancroft, 18, of Cochrane, Alta., was named Canadian dairy princess Friday at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Miss Bancroft, who graduated from high school this spring, will postpone her plans to go to university for one year so that she can attend to the various duties connected with the title.

Fewer Students

TORONTO (CP) — Applications for first-year enrolment at the Ontario College of Art were down by almost 500 this year, the college's registrar revealed Friday.

Two Legislators Quit As Alderman

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas Wardle is the man in the spotlight following the resignation Friday of two members of the Ontario legislature from municipal offices they held.

Michael Cassidy, New Democratic Party member for Ottawa Centre, announced his resignation as an Ottawa city alderman under new Ontario legislation barring MPPs from holding a second elective office, then challenged two Toronto Progressive Conservative members, Mr. Wardle and Dennis Timbrell, to do the same.

Later Friday, Mr. Timbrell, Conservative member for Don Mills, resigned as an alderman in North York. Mr. Wardle, Conservative member for Beaches-Woodbine, has not as yet announced his resignation as an alderman in Toronto.

Earlier this week, Claude Bennett, also a Conservative, resigned from the Ottawa board of control.

On July 31 an amendment to the Municipal Act, passed by the spring session of the legislature came into effect, stipulating that a member of the legislature, or the Senate or federal Parliament is not eligible to be elected to a council or to sit and vote at council meetings.

However, a companion piece of legislation incorporated in amendments to the Legislative Assembly Act, which would automatically have made the aldermen, and say in a similar position, lose their aldermanic seats, was not proceeded with.

J. A. MacDonald, solicitor in the treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs ministry, said Friday "it's really up to the courts to decide what's illegal."

Passenger Hurt

MADOC (Special)—Gangadhar Ramnarine of Ottawa escaped injury when his car struck a rockcut on Highway 7 near here.

However, a relative of the driver Violet Ramnarine, and a passenger in the car, was taken to Belleville General Hospital where she is being kept for observation of possible head injuries.

The Canadian Mime Theatre opens its fall season in Toronto Sept. 26.

Pay Offered Postmen $60 Million Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The latest government offer to postal workers of a new two-year increase over three years would cost $60 million, Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote said Friday in rejecting union complaints the post office has not been bargaining in good faith.

The wage offer was made two weeks ago but was rejected by postal workers as "insulting" and not enough to keep their wages in line with the cost of living.

Mr. Cote said it is a reliable remarks by Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada convention here this week were inaccurate.

Mr. MacDonald had said the government was not negotiating a new contract with the postal letter carriers in $2.35.

Consume Less, Share More

Catholic Labor's Message

OTTAWA (CP) — An attack on the consumer society is the essence of the Canadian Catholic Conference's annual Labor Day message, released Friday.

In the prepared statement, clergy members of the organization's social action branch outlined the problems of unbalanced resource distribution.

They said people should "consume less and share more."

They termed the "once-unquestioned goal" of ever-increasing economic growth "an ambiguous good", prompting glaring inequalities.

"The problem is the abuse of power, the coercion of the weak by the powerful-internationally, nationally and locally.

"Rich nations, corporations, groups, families and individuals will have to learn—or be forced—to consume less and share more of this small planet's finite treasure."

workers in good faith. He said that the post office was willing to spend $72 million on machinery yet considered a $4 million wage settlement with the mailmen a waste.

"The total cost of the demands made by the Council of Postal Unions in current negotiations is in excess of $120 million just for the 1972-73 fiscal year," Mr. Cote said. "This represents over 35 per cent of our current straight-time payroll for these employees."

The unions have not moved from their original pay demand except to reduce their requests from "substantial" to 66 cents an hour on straight time wage, he said. The government has made a tremendous concession," Mr. Cote added.

Mail sorting postal clerks receive $3.09 an hour, while the average hourly earning of tive

Water Bad

GRIMSBY, Ont. (CP) — The assistant medical officer of health for Niagara region has warned Grimsby residents to boil their drinking water because of a high bacteria count.

Dr. Joseph Burkholder said Friday there was some form of contamination between the water plant and the homes of the users. He said until the specific source of the contamination is identified, chlorine treatment has been increased and residents were advised to boil water for at least 10 minutes.

Grimsby is about 10 miles southeast of Hamilton.

Team Canada Hopes to Commence Hockey Win Streak Tonight

MONTREAL (CP) — Quick now, when was the last time a Canadian hockey team defeated a team from the Soviet Union?

Well, believe it or not, a Canadian team did score a victory over the Russians during this year, Feb. 22 when University of Toronto Varsity Blues dumped a Soviet student team 5-1 at Varsity Arena.

But before that, Canadian victories have been scarce over the Russians. Tonight, Team Canada hopes to launch a winning streak against the Russians selects the opening game of their eight-game exhibition series.

The game is scheduled for 8:10 p.m. after Prime Minister Trudeau, fresh from calling a federal election Friday, drops the puck for the official face-off.

Opposition leader Robert Stanfield will be on hand as well. The game will be televised on the CTV network and some CBC-affiliated stations.

Both clubs worked out Friday and then their head coaches, Harry Sinden of Team Canada and Vsevolod Bobrov of the Soviet Union, named their start ing alignments.

Either Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens or Chicago Black Hawks' Tony Esposito will start in goal for Team Canada while 26-year-old Vladislav Tretiak will begin the game in the nets for the Russians.

Sinden would not divulge his starting goalie and explained why.

"Both came out of the Team Canada training camp with a balanced" camp," Sinden said. "Ken would have a good series, mage, then Tony would be the star. They were both equal there."

There were no real surprises when the Canadian team was announced. Brad Park of New York Rangers and Gary Bergman of Detroit Red Wings will form one defence pairing while Boston Bruins' Don Awrey and Rod Seiling of New York will be the other.

Gerr Laquinte of the Canadiens will be the fifth defenceman and may see some work on the power-plays.

THAT'S PORTER

Boston's Phil Esposito will centre the Canadiens' Frank Mahovlich and Yvan Cournoyer while the second line will be the New York Rangers' trio of Jean Ratelle, Vic Hadfield and Rod Gilbert.

Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers will centre the third line with Ron Ellis and Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs while Detroit's Red Berenson will centre team-mate Mickey Redmond and Montreal's Peter Mahovlich.

Sinden said he was sure there was some disappointment on the part of some players who were not picked, but "there seemed to be no hard feelings."

The first game may be the most significant, but it is not the most important. All the games are important."

Tretiak's back-up goalie will be Viktor Zinger, who played against the Canadian national team in 1968. Veteran Alexander Ragulin will head up a six-man defensive corps while the Soviet line will be Vladimir Vikulov, Alexander Maltsev and Valery Kharlamov.

Guennady Tsygankov, Evgeny Polnjkyev, Yuri Liapkin, Viktor Kuzkin and either Vladimir Lutchenko or Alexander Gusev will round out the defence for the Soviets. Gusev is reported ill and if he can play, Lutchenko will sit out.

Eugeny Zimin, Vladimir Shadrin, Alexander Yazubev, Boris Mikhailov, Vladimir Petrov, Yuri Blinov, Eugeny Mishakov and Vyacheslav Starshinov will be the other forwards dressed.

Both coaches expressed some dissatisfaction with the condition of their players.

"Our physical fitness is not up to the mark," said Bobrov. "Our inter-club season does not begin for another month. Our peak will be in December.

We were very impressed with the Canadian team's practice. I hope that Mr. Sinden will give us a good practice here so we can win the world championships in Moscow next year."

"We are not in the condition we should be to play a top flight game," said Sinden. "It takes eight to 18 games to get in top game condition."

But, no matter what condition the players are in, tonight is the night when the two schools of hockey meet for the first time.

"It's the biggest sporting thing in Canadian history from the point of view of interest," said Al Eagleson, executive-director of the NHL's Players' Association. "It's the hottest thing that has ever hit Canada.

"We feel we have the best hockey players. Now we have a chance to prove we are right.

"We know that here we have players who have everything to take the series—and we'll be very disappointed if they don't."

Aussies Gather Gould Medals

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

MUNICH (CP) — They hand out a new prize for swimming at the 1972 Olympic Games—the Gould medal.

It is strictly reserved for 15-year-old Australian girls who break world records. Shane Gould owns three of them.

She collected the third Friday night, settling a couple of old scores in the process.

The silver medallist was Shirley Babashoff, another 15-year-old from California who had borrowed one of Shane's world records a month ago and finished ahead of her in the 100-metre freestyle this week.

Mary Gould reversed the placings in the 200-metre freestyle Friday and took her record back, swimming the distance in two minutes 3.36 seconds compared with Shirley's mark of 2:03.29. The American and the third-place team-mate, Keena Rothhammer, also got under the former mark but Shane left them behind.

BEN Dennett salvaged a victory for the U.S. team in the men's 400 freestyle, breaking the Olympic record as every winner has since the start of the swimming program.

But hard times continued for the Americans girls as Mayumi Aoki captured Japan's first swimming title in 36 years and reclaimed a world record of her own in the butterfly.

The U.S. team was denied a medal in that one, the Japanese girl was followed home by Hiroshima Beer of East Germany and Andrea Gyarmati of Hungary, the girl who had taken Miss Aoki's world mark from her in a heat earlier in the day.

It wasn't a victory for the Americans, their only gold medal as the Russian Davis was raised after five of the day's 13 events and Japanese gymnasts brought the country's total to four.

East German girls won the long jump and a gymnastics title and Britain took the individual and team championships in the equestrian three-day event. A Polish marksman was the free-pistol competition and a Norwegian cyclist finished on top in the individual pursuit.

The Russians were leaving the U.S. in total medals with a total of 43, 19 of them gold to the Americans' 38 and 13.

In the unofficial point standings, based on a 10-3-1-2-1 count for the first six final placings, it was Russia 241½, U.S. 201 and third-place 224½, Canada, with no points to add to the 18 won earlier, sliced 16th in the table.

There were surprises and disappointments in the Canadian day.

Marg Hoffman of Toronto, competing in her third Olympics, ran the fastest 800 metres of her life to qualify for Sunday's final.

In yachting, a sport in which Canada has not won a medal in 50 years, two Canadian boats were in the top three of their divisions after four of the seven races.

But there was gloom as the Olympic pool, where Bev Boys of Pickering, Ont., the most experienced Canadian diver, failed to join teammates Nancy Robertson of Pickering and Kathy Rollo of Saskatoon in the final of the platform competition.

And Donna Marie Gurr, the Vancouver girl who won two backstroke gold medals at last year's Pan-American Games, was eliminated in the semi-finals of the 100-metre event.

For the second day in a row, a Canadian Judoka won his first two bouts and then bowed to a first-round defeat in international competition as light-heavyweight Terry Farnsworth of Montreal, like heavyweight Doug Rogers before him, was denied a medal.

The judo gold went to Shota Chochoshvili of Russia.

Another Russian, 22-year-old Valery Borzov, became his country's first track champion at a distance of less than 5,000 metres when he outsprinted the only surviving American after team officials had failed to get two co-holders of the world record to the track in time for their quarter-final heats.

With all quarter-final places decided, the last preliminary-round games of the soccer tournament included two clashes between unbeaten teams in which Russia crushed Mexico 4-1 and Poland edged East Germany 2-1. All four were quarter-finalists, along with Hungary, Denmark, East Germany and Morocco.

American Hold on 100 Broken By Russian

MUNICH (AP) — They say Valery Borzov can't run a world record 9.3 seconds in the 100 metre dash but all he does is win.

Borzov himself says a 9.9 is possible on the posh Munich Olympic Games track but it will have to be at another time.

The blonde Russian with the ready smile and the cool eye for victory won the gold medal for the 100 and was at pains afterward to prevent its being tarnished by absent friends.

Eddie Hart and Rey Robinson failed to get to the stadium on time and Borzov went against one-third of what had been a formidable three-man United States team effort. Taylor, the Russian did 10-14, Taylor 10-24 and a crowd of 80,000 wondered what would have happened if Hart and Robinson had been there.

But for two years now, the 2.9-year-old speedster Europeans have dubbed the White Flash has been meeting Americans regularly—and beating them. He met them all and whipped them in last Angeles last year but with Hart injured.

Then why doesn't he beat the Americans' world mark or tie it? His own recorded best is 10 flat.

The answer seems to be in the style of running. He does not run against the clock or to the finish line but against the opposition.

An explosive starter, he is off and running and then moves like a wide receiver bearing footlogs.

He seems to know where the opposition is and is geared to playing that one big piece ahead. That is what he did to Taylor, start to finish.

Some American track experts say Borzov is programmed, trained to do everything in a certain way for maximum effect.

But, these experts add, this cannot hide his talent.

"This guy can really run," one said, "and he is consistent."

Under the Russian sports program everything from food to sleep is organized for maximum effect.

Once discovered, a Russian star is confronted with facts and figures that say, given this, he must be able to deliver that. There is no threat involved but delivering means a better life in a real hero's image.

Borzov says that life will be no different for him with a gold medal than without. Except it will help to sign more autographs.

Borzow is about 5ft one, weighs 180 pounds. He says he loves fishing. A Ukrainian, he is studying to be a sports teacher in Kiev.

He probably will run the 200 metre race in Munich Sunday and is to anchor the swift Soviet 4x100 relay.

Hoffman Pleasant Surprise

By AL McNEIL

MUNICH (CP) — Abby Hoffman, who didn't expect to earned a shot at an Olympic medal Friday but two hardly rated Canadian girls will watch the finals of their events from sidelines.

The 25-year-old Toronto runner, who says she has been having a terrible season, broke her own Canadian record for the second time in two days in her semi-final of the 800 metres to become the first Canadian finalist in a track event.

But at the Olympic pool, Donna Marie Gurr, the Canadian and Pan American Games champion missed the final of the women's 100 metre backstroke and Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., senior member of the Canadian diving team, failed to qualify for the three final dives of the platform competition.

Two other Canadians reached the diving final as Nancy Robertson of Pickering qualified in seventh place, with an outside chance for a bronze medal, and Kathy Rollo of Saskatoon moved up seven places with her last two dives to catch the 11th of the 12 qualifying berths.

Miss Boys, who was ninth after the three afternoon dives, just ahead of Miss Robertson, managed a 14th place finish by a point shy of a qualifying score.

Fifteen-year-old Wendy Cook ranked second behind Miss Gurr in the backstroke, swam her Vancouver club team-mate to reach tonight's final. Her time of one minute 6.86 seconds was her best in competition. Miss Gurr's 1:07.28 was almost a full second wide of the Canadian record she set at the Canadian championships last month.

As for Miss Hoffman, who placed seventh in the 1968 Olympic final with an 800 metre time of two minutes 6.1 seconds, she had to run more than five seconds faster to place third in the semi-final Friday.

Her time of 2:01.4 broke her own Canadian record for the second time in two days. Before she came to Munich it was 2:02.8 and she lowered it to 2:01.6 in her qualifying heat Thursday.

Esks Hope To Bury Calgary

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders want to climb out of a hole and hope Edmonton Eskimos hope to make it deeper.

That will be part of the Western Football Conference scene Monday afternoon when the Eskimos put their 4-1 record on the line against the inconsistent Stampeders in a game at Calgary's Stampede Corral.

In Regina, the explosive Winnipeg Blue Bombers—who share first place with the Eskimos—will be out to extend their four-game winning streak against Saskatchewan Roughriders, fresh from a two game sweep over the Stampeders.

For Calgary coach Jim Duncan the situation is simple:

"If we're ever to make a recovery, now is the time. If we don't, we'll go further into the hole."

It's the first chance in regular-season play for the Roughriders and Stampeders to test the leaders. And victorious would result in a three-way tie for first with Calgary two points behind.

The Bombers and Eskimos have eight points apiece, two more than the Roughriders, with a 3-3 record. The Stampeders have four points on two wins and three defeats, while British Columbia Lions, the odd ill nest Thursday, have two points.

Winnipeg, which won only seven games last year while finishing in the basement, depressed Saskatchewan coach Dave Skrien's Bombers 49-16 Wednesday.

They looked unbeatable against Edmonton. They're the best team in the coast right now. They did everything right and they have vastly improved their defence over last year and they are a better team than last year.

The Bombers lost their open ing game 20-19 in Calgary, but came back with wins over the Stampeders, Lions, Toronto Argonauts and the Eskimos.

Two of the Winnipeg players Saskatchewan coach Ken Preston is expected to be out for another six weeks.

Defensive tackle Rock Perdoni has been placed on Ed monton's 30-day inactive list with a pulled groin muscle and will be replaced by veteran Greg Pipes, who was cut earlier.

The Winnipeg-Saskatchewan game will be televised on the CTV network beginning at 2 p.m. CST. The Edmonton-Calgary contest is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. MDT.

Considered a major factor in Winnipeg's improved defence is rookie linebacker Mike Kuhn from Kansas State, who suffered a pinched nerve against Edmonton and will have to wear a protective collar.

Meanwhile, Calgary fans are expected to see middle linebacker Wayne Harris wearing a similar collar.

The veteran all star, who suffered a chipped neck vertebra in Calgary's last game, isn't listed as a doubtful starter but may not get much action. Defensive end Craig Ellison could spell Harris with Jim Hopkins taking over Kohuta's position.

On the sidelines for the Stampeders will be defensive back Frank Andruski, nursing a thigh calf muscle. Receiver John Senst could see limited action due to strained knee ligaments.

The Stampeders, defending Grey Cup champions who were last at this time last year, have been taking advantage of a two-day stay of National Football League cuts as the U.S. teams trim their staff down for the 1972 schedule.

Two players are in camp on five-day trials, including offensive lineman Marion Latimore from Kansas and Jack Lee from Age from South-western Louisiana. Defensive back Fritz Seyferth from the University of Michigan and defensive back Bob Barnaugh from Montana State.

Also seeking a position is wide receiver Peter Paltrotti from Ohio College who was cut earlier this year by Montreal Alouettes.

Fw Edmonton, the news is good and bad.

Quarterback Tom Wilkinson, who suffered an ankle injury against the Bombers, is expected to start.

The way it looks now, Wilkie will be the starter but he said Edmonton coach Ray Jauch.

Wilkinson took over as quarterback when Bruce Lemmerman was injured.

Lemmerman is expected to be out for another six weeks.

Defensive tackle Rock Perdoni has been placed on Ed monton's 30-day inactive list with a pulled groin muscle and will be replaced by veteran Greg Pipes, who was cut earlier.

The Winnipeg-Saskatchewan game will be televised on the CTV network beginning at 2 p.m. CST. The Edmonton-Calgary contest is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. MDT.

Yaz Hurts Drago In Two Ways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Carl Yastrzemski, who has won the Gold Glove for fielding and the silver bat for hitting, gave Dick Drago the purple heart for pitching Friday night.

The Kansas City right-hander tried to tell about it, though, after Yastrzemski's line drive bounced off his face during Boston Red Sox' 1-0 triumph.

"He was fortunate, he got it on the right side of the jaw instead of flush," said Kansas City manager Bob Lemon.

Drago keeled over after catching Yastrzemski's fourth inning ball on his follow through. The crowd moaned while players from both benches rushed to the mound.

It was all right, though. Drago managed to leave the game under his own power while suffering one loose tooth and several others that were loosened.

CARL YASTRZEMSKI

What followed was also painful for Drago. He wound up hitting the game as Yastrzemski eventually crossed the plate on Rocco Piretti's single.

Boston's victory kept things interesting in the zany American League East baseball race. The fourth place Red Sox stayed within two games of first-place Baltimore as the Orioles beat California Angels 3-2.

New York Yankees stopped Chicago White Sox 4-0 and moved into a second place tie with Detroit after the Tigers beaten 4-1 by Oakland Athletics. Both New York and Detroit are 1½ games behind the Orioles.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins beat Cleveland Indians 6-4, Milwaukee Brewers blanked Texas Rangers 3-0.

Minnesota got a three-time batting champion and six-time winner of the Gold Glove while playing left field, also distinguished himself on first baseman Frodo night. Having fallen out of favor of late because of his poor play in left Yastremski became Mr. Wonderful behind the plate as Fenway Park fans by pulling off some astounding infield plays.

The first was at second when he saved a run by starting a first to third double play in the eighth inning when the Royals were on first and third with one out.

Dave McNally pitched to Cesar Tovar, who hit a ground cause with a bases single to lead Baltimore over California.

McNally's bunt off loser Clyde Wright landed in the basic of the Orioles then scored two runs on sacrifice fly by Bobby Grich and Tommy Davis' bouncer. Andy Kirkpatrick's run-scoring single in the Baltimore eighth provided the eventual winning run.

Picton Boat Races Sunday

If you are planning a leisurely sail through the waters of the Bay of Quinte this weekend be sure to avoid Picton Long Reach.

Long Reach will be the setting for the Gold Cup boat races Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m. The races for inboard motors only will be drawing competitors from across Ontario in the day long event.

Spitz Beaten In 100 Freestyle Heat

MUNICH (CP) — Mark Spitz, winner of five gold medals, was beaten for first time in the Summer Olympic Games when Mike Wenden of Australia beat him today in the heats of the 100-metre freestyle swimming competition.

It could be an omen, for it was Wenden who took the 100 metre freestyle title in Mexico City four years ago with a world record swim, which left Spitz, the favorite, holding only the bronze.

Today, Wenden had the best qualifying time of the day entering tonight's semi finals with the final scheduled Sunday.

Wenden was fourth behind Spitz when the American won the 200-metre butterfly gold medal here and the Aussie said later he had misjudged the race in which Spitz set a world record.

Wenden said he had misjudged the pace but that although happen again in the 100. He won his 100 heat in 53.66 seconds while Spitz, seeded in 32-48, was third fastest qualifier.

The Canadian team advanced two swimmers to the semi finals — Bruce Robertson of Winnipeg and Bob Kasting of Lethbridge, Alta., were second and third in their heats. Also in the American Jerry Heidenreich in 52.58 and qualified. Bruce Robertson of Vancouver, silver medallist in the 100 butterfly, was fifth in his heat and didn't qualify.

Phillips was out of his Canadian record with a time of 53.75 while Kasting clocked 54.46.

British Girl Leads Pentathlon

MUNICH (CP) — Mary Peters of Britain leaved the lead by 53 feet 1¾ inches today to take the lead after two events of the Olympic women's pentathlon.

The veterian international competitor opened the two day competition by winning the 100-metre hurdles in 13.53 seconds, the second-best time among the 30 contestants, and had a two event total of 1,020 points to 1,967 for Heidemarie Pollak of East Germany, the runner-up.

Diane Jonas of Saskatoon was 10th with 1,670 and Debbie Brill of Toronto, 16th with 1,667 as the girls moved on to the high jump in the two-day competition.

Miss Van Kiekebelt, the 1971 Pan-American Games champion, ranked 19th in the hurdles and 12th in the shot. The latter event pulled Miss Peters up in the standings as she produced the fourth-best throw in the field after placing 26th in the hurdles.

The event ends Sunday with the long jump and 200 metres.

Seniors Lose Round

The Belleville Quintes lost a round Friday night but they're hoping the fight is far from over.

The Senior A hockey entry failed in their bid to keep Belleville's Ken Knapton into the confines of the Memorial Arena when he announced his signing with the Kingston Aces last night.

Knapton was an 18 goal scorer for the Oaks last seas on and would have been a on and would have been a valuable addition to the build ing Belleville team.

"We would have liked to have had him," commented team spokesman Lionel Bolly. "But we still have a line on a few other prospects."

Hard Luck Hurler Wins for Phillies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia's Ken Reynolds and Atlanta's Jimmy Freeman had identical 11-11 records after the National League baseball season Friday night. The only difference is that Reynolds has been around since the start while Freeman is just up from the minors.

Reynolds, who dropped his first 10 decisions, scattered seven hits in pitching the Phillies to an 11-1 triumph in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

"With that many runs, you have to win," he said. "If you can't win with that many, you can't win at all."

Freeman, a 21-year-old, 6-foot 4, 180 pound left hander, went out and the Braves suppied him with—you guessed it—11 runs for a victory in the nightcap, although the youngster surrendered eight and 11 walks.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati Reds edged San Francisco Giants 2-1 in 11 innings, Houston Astros blanked New York Mets 8-0, Pittsburgh Pirates outslugged San Francisco Giants 10-6, Chicago Cubs trounced Los Angeles Dodgers 14-3 and St. Louis Cardinals and Los Angeles Dodgers split a doubleheader, the Cards taking the opener 3-1 and pounded Ron Reed and Denny McLain for seven runs in the fourth, Montreal Expos outslugged Atlanta Braves 12-11 in 10 innings, Houston Astros blanked New York Mets 8-0, Pittsburgh Pirates outslugged San Francisco Giants 10-6, Chicago Cubs trounced Los Angeles Dodgers 14-3 and St. Louis Cardinals and Los Angeles Dodgers split a doubleheader, the Cards taking the opener 3-1 and Dusty Baker and a solo blister by Jim Brosnahan.

"I was very nervous." Freeman confessed. "Couldn't you tell? I'll bet those walks I gave up? That's the wildest I've ever been in my life."

Cincinnati's Ross Grimsley and Clay Carroll matched scoreless innings with Montreal's Bill Stoneman until the 10th, when the Reds broke through for a run on Cesar Geronimo's pinch single, double by Pete Rose, an intentional walk to Johnny Bench and, after Bobby Tolan forced Geronimo at third, Hal Lanier's Bench snapped an 0-for-14 slump with a drive off the left field wall for a single.

The Houston New York game also had scoreless pitching from Don Wilson and Tom Seaver until the Astros jumped on the Mets for five runs in the sixth.

Al Oliver and Manny Sanguillen each drove in two runs and Bob Robertson homered to pace Pittsburgh past San Francisco.

Ollie Hendricks drove in back runs with a pair of homers, including the three-run blow as the Cubs scored nine times in the seventh inning a routing San Francisco hitting in routing San Diego.

Battered Argos Face Als

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winless in their first five season games, Toronto Argonauts ought be expected to unwind Wednesday in a game one of the rays, strengthened by the knowledge that things just can't get any worse.

But things do keep getting worse for the Argos and if some observers they would fare better in the Wheelchair Olympics than in the Canadian Football Conference encounter with Montreal Alouettes Monday.

The Argos limp out for a 2 p.m. EDT kickoff in Montreal while Ottawa Roughriders take on the Tiger Cats at Hamilton at the same time. There is no Labor Day coverage scheduled for either game.

Winnipeg is at Saskatchewan and Edmonton at Calgary on Monday's Western Conference action.

The Argos were just getting over their 14-11 loss to the Roughriders in Ottawa Wednesday when they learned that Bruce Bergey had to be taken to hospital and subsequently onto the 30-day injury list.

Bergey played in Ottawa but when he woke up Thursday morning he had severe chest pains. At hospital, it was discovered he had a hole in one lung.

Head coach Leo Cahill had indicated on his walking wounded to keep walking.

Chip Barrett, who played Wednesday with a charley horse, will be called on to fill in at Mary Luster's safety position while Jim Corrigall moves to fill the middle linebacker spot vacated by Pete Martin.

Martin suffered a dislocated elbow in Ottawa and will miss his first game since joining the Argos in 1965.

Elsewhere, defensive end Jim Reed has been benched even though he hasn't stopped limping since he suffered an ankle injury in the pre-season all star game and offensive end Tony Moro is still catching passes with his two cracked ribs.

And Monday after all those injuries is trainer Mert Prophet who himself suffered a pulled muscle running out to aid a back fallen player at Ottawa.

Placekicker Dave MacMillan is likely to be back in action after a 17 game absence. Andrusyshyn, doubling as placekicker, missed a convert and two field goals against Ottawa.

MacMillan was cut earlier in the season but came back Wednesday for a five-day trial.

The Alouettes, meanwhile, will be looking for their third win of the season and their second over Argos. The Als won the opener in Toronto 19-8.

And unlike that first game when Jim Charrey, now with the Argos, and Sonny Wade blew hot and cold, the Als now have National Football League veteran George Mira at quarterback.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

A defender sees only his own cards and dummy's, but he should always be busy as a beaver constructing and reconstructing declarer's hand so that he can deal with it in the most effective manner.

One basic rule of defense is that you don't credit declarer with a hand that allows him to make the contract.

On the contrary, you try to imagine hands he may have that allow you to stop the contract. The imaginary hands may seem farfetched, but, even so, it is better to think in a positive manner that permits defeat of the contract than to think in a negative manner that amounts to conceding the contract.

Here is a typical case. Assume you're West, defending against four spades. You cash the king of diamonds and continue with the queen as everyone follows suit.

In the light of dummy's highly impressive hearts and clubs, you realize you can't defeat the contract unless your side can win two trump tricks. All-your thinking at this point is therefore devoted to conjuring up hands South can hold — particularly his trump holding — that will permit the contract to be defeated.

Instead of thinking directly in terms of South's possible trump holdings, it is considerably easier to think of East's possible trump holdings. Some of them will lead to defeat of the contract, provided you get the greatest mileage possible out of the trumps you have.

The proper play at trick three is a low diamond. This play will be effective if East ruffs high with any of these four trump holdings: Q-x-x, singleton queen, or singleton jack. In all these cases you make two trump tricks with the A-10, instead of only one, because your partner's ruff promotes your ten into an extra trump trick.

Film of Soldiers

TORONTO (CP) — The Red Chevrons, members of the first Canadian Army division to see action overseas in the First World War—the name came from red, inverted V-shaped insignia—will live on in a documentary film created by a group of young people to whom the 1914-18 war is distant history. "The story of the Red Chevrons has been forgotten or never known by most people outside military circles," said Robin Bell, 22, one of nine people putting the film together under a $14,040 federal Opportunities for Youth grant.

Rest Best Remedy For Water on Knee

By GEORGE C. THOMPSON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I am a girl, 14, and have water on the knee. All the doctor has me to wear an elastic bandage and no sport, but I can't stop playing in sports. I'm a growing girl.—T.B.

Dear Doctor: My husband is on his knees constantly due to his type of work and has developed a bag below his knee cap. He has had it drained and in whatever the procedure is, it will leave him with a stiff leg. He won't see a doctor as he says the doctor will only tell him to stay off it.—Mrs. A.A.

Call it water on the knee, or call it housemaid's knee, or call it bursitis, it's all part of the same ailment, bursitis of the knee.

There's a sac of fluid just below the knee cap. (Similar protective sacs are in other joints). Injury or excessive pressure can irritate a sac or bursa, and excess fluid gathers inside the sac as a result.

Miss T. F. obviously doesn't realize how lucky she is—she has a chance to get her problem under control before it does too much damage. It is ridiculous to say that she can't give up sports for a time.

Mr. A's situation is a good deal tougher because of his work. Long-continued kneeling undoubtedly caused his trouble. Housemaids, working on their knees, used to develop it so often that such bursitis was called housemaid's knee.

Mr. A must certainly should see a doctor for treatment. True, the doctor without question will tell him to stay off his knees, and if he won't do so, the doctor can't make him. But even so, there is a prospect that the doctor can do something to help him.

I would suggest, first of all, though, that Mr. A. try to find some way to do his work without keeping the pressure on those damaged knees. Perhaps there's a way to shift the pressure; perhaps some sort of bulky pads will help.

Sometimes injection of hydrocortisone arrests the disease process, although the long-term outlook isn't good unless the basic cause—pressure—can be avoided. Extensive effusion (fluid formation) may require drainage through a hollow needle. The knee may be protected by use of a compression bandage or a tight, elastic sleeve.

Withdrawing fluid does not leave a patient "with a stiff leg." But it, too, can be treated, can result in the formation of adhesions and a stiff knee.

I urge Mr. A. (or anyone with bursitis) to get treatment and, besides, use all possible ingenuity to keep pressure off the area.

For Miss T. R., I suggest that she stop insisting that she can't do as the doctor told her. She should wear the protective knee support, avoid sports temporarily, and apply heat which will help the healing process. Giving up sports for the time being is a lot better than risking ruin of the knee for life.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is it true that a woman cannot get pregnant if she is still menstruating?—R.S.

No, not true—although quot is several times more prevalent in women than in women. Reason not known.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is it permissible for a diabetic to take a cup of juice instead of unsweetened prune juice each morning before breakfast? I am 66 and become constipated if I don't. I keep my blood sugar normal through diet.—A.B.

Your last sentence makes it permissible for you. Prune juice is an excellent mild laxative, but prunes—even unsweetened ones—are high in sugar content. A quarter cup of unsweetened juice is equivalent to one fruit exchange; two prunes are equal to one fruit exchange. It is important to keep your sugar level controlled, but as long as you can do it, the prune juice is all right.

TORONTO (CP) — The new Rainbow pop music magazine Rainbow has signed a contract with Disc magazine of England for exclusive North American lifting rights to all editorial material in the British magazine. Rainbow editor Martin McHugh said the deal is the first in a series of base-branching moves to put Rainbow in a position to give complete international coverage to the North American market by the fall, still keeping the Canadian music scene in a prominent position as far as coverage is concerned.

Hull Restrained By Court Order

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge extended Friday a temporary restraining order banning Bobby Hull, former star for Chicago Black Hawks, from publicizing his new club, Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association.

The ruling by Judge Philip Tone extended for 10 days a previous order issued by him in U.S. district court prohibiting Hull until Sept. 4 from attending the Jets' training camp or "representing himself as anything other than a Chicago Black Hawk player."

The restraining order extension is academic regarding attending the Jets training camp since the WHA has set an Oct. 1 date for former National Hockey League players to report to teams of the new league.

Judge William Lynch of U.S. district court will rule Sept. 15 on whether a previous Black Hawk suit against Hull and a counter-suit against the Black Hawks and the NHL by Hull should be tried in federal or state court.

The case centres on the legality of Hull's departure from the Black Hawks to the Jets while still under contract to the Hawks.

Hull was ordered to appear in court Sept. 15 furnishing the contract he signed with the Jets on June 27 for a reported $2 million. Hull's current Hawk contract expires Sept. 30 and he has not contract beyond.

The Black Hawks open NHL training Sept. 11 at Chicago but it was not clear at Friday's court hearing whether Hull would be forced to attend the Hawk camp.

Hull's counter-suit charges the Black Hawks and the NHL with violation of a U.S. anti-trust act in connection with the NHL's reserve clause in player contracts.

Russians Respect Orr's Ability

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Orr walked through the Forum during the Russian hockey team's workout Friday and one might have thought it was the second coming.

Not only were the patrons trying to get the young Boston Bruins superstar's autograph, it seems the entire Soviet club held Orr in awe.

Anatoly Davidenko, a former player in Russia and now chief accountant of the Soviet trade mission here, accosted an invitation to meet Orr, escaped eating from surgery to his left knee.

Davidenko, approaching the National Hockey League's most valuable player the last three years, was stopped by Russian player Vladimir Petrov.

"Psst, Anatoly," whispered Petrov. "How about Orr's autograph."

When Davidenko met Orr, he produced a dozen cards from the Russian players who wanted an autograph of the 24 year old native of Barry Sound, Ont.

The Russian renounced returned the autographs to the visiting Soviet players it appeared as if someone had landed them a sample from the Moscow mint and Davidenko was hard pressed to keep one for himself.

Islanders Sign Four To NHL Contracts

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — The signing of four Canadian amateur hockey players, Richard Grenier, Derek Kuntz, Don McLaughlin and Ron Smith, was announced today by New York Islanders.

The National Hockey League expansion club had selected Grenier in the first round, Kuntz in the second, McLaughlin in the third and Smith in the fourth.

SHAWANO NUGGETS

FIXINS FOR DEER PAUNCH STEW

by SOURDOUGH SAM

Long before the call to tell supper is ready, folks usually can tell by the aromas for entertainment.

Up here in Hastings County, some old timers used to have more tales in their craw than bones in a hog's belly.

Bill Beaver was one of these. Bill was a full-blooded Ojibway who lived more than a hundred years, much of it in Shawano country. With a bit of evasion, he used to tell about the Indian way of life.

Ways of chokin' interested me, even as how I've had to cook my own vittals most of my days.

For salt, Bill's tribe used vivid crystals from a nearby salt spring. Sugar they got by tappin' the maple trees and mixin' the sap with wild berries.

'Cos they had no icebergs. To add to say.

Shawano is the 1,200-acre four-season vacationland in the beautiful Highlands of Hastings, 75 miles northeast of Peterborough. Get your free colored brochure from Bowes & Cocks Ltd., Realtor, 175 North Front St., Belleville, 968-4571.

preserve food, they dried meat and fruit and berries in the sun. Then dirt them a deep hole in the earth, pockin' it with birch bark. Next year, the food would be in perfect condition.

There were no pots and pans. Bill said

For cookin', the women would strip and wash down a deer haunch, then pack it with meat and vegetables. This was tied in a framework of sticks and their crew than bones in a hog's belly. cooked over a fire.

Kitchen sprawls could only see how inconvenientfolk at Shawano cook today. Bill said, Bleed well as how common has five pans, not counting the skillet.

Joe Sabiston, the feller in charge at Shawano, said there's a contraption called a garbage disposer that chews up bones and spits 'em out. When I told him a dog sounded like better company, he nearly swallered his tongue laughin', but was civil enough to offer me a beer.

At least one rabbit in the stew-pot is better than six geese on the wing, as Aunt Emma us-ed to say.

Election Outlook

New Rules, New Voters--Same Leaders

OTTAWA (CP) — New rules, new voters and battle-tested party leaders are key ingredients in the long-anticipated federal election announced by Prime Minister Trudeau.

At least 13 million people are expected to be eligible to vote, compared with 13,080,000 on June 25, 1968.

Extending the vote to 18-year-olds accounts for most of the increase, and that's a major feature of the revised Elections Act.

The leaders of the four parties seeking control of the 264-seat Commons are, for now, all well exposed.

Mr. Trudeau, 53 Oct. 18, and Progressive Conservative Robert Stanfield, 58, each is in his second national campaign.

David Lewis, 63, is the senior statesman of the group through lengthy ser vice with the New Democratic Party and its forerunner, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. But this is his first election as NDP leader following his succession in 1971 to T. C. Douglas.

Real Caouette of Social Credit, 55 Sept. 26, is in his 10th Commons campaign, the first in 1946.

Issues Familiar

The campaign issues also have familiar ring, although some may well evolve over the by the end of the eight week period before election day.

The economy is a major one—more jobs for a steadily growing labor force, inflation foreign ownership, taxes, soc ial benefits, persistent labor problems and tough inter national trading com petition.

Bilingualism is a festering and regional economic inequalities.

Mr. Trudeau had been expected by many to call a summer election and there is evidence that he was within a whisker of doing so.

Instead, prompted by concern about polls showing increased support for the Liberals, some reports said he promised the country an election before summer.

Mr. Stanfield said he was eager for an election and continued wide-ranging travels, concentrating on Ontario where many, including cabinet ministers, believe the election will be won or lost.

The government could take hold of until next year since the mandate is for five years But a four-year term is traditional.

In 1968, voters returned 155 NDP members, 14 Creditistes, now officially called Social Credit members again, and one independent, Lucien Lamoureux of Cornwall, Ont., representing Wright-Ottawa Dundas riding, who was re elected Speaker of the Commons.

Deaths, resignations and byelections made the standing at dissolution of the 28th Parliament: Liberals 147, Conservatives 72, NDP 22, Social Credit 13, Independent 2, vacant 4.

Long Parliament

The 28th Parliament lasted longer at four years, nine month, 8 days than any since the exceptional 19th Parliament during the Second World War, which ran for the full five years permitted by the constitution to April 16, 1945. The life of the Parliament just dissolved began formally July 23, 1968, and could have run legally to July 24, 1973.

There were four separate sessions—the fourth opened last Feb. 17—and legislation promised then but not passed simply dies.

Mr. Trudeau formed his administration April 20, 1968, after being chosen by a Liberal party convention to succeed Lester B. Pearson on his retirement after five years as prime minister. Three days later, Mr. Trudeau went to the country.

Then, he was a largely unknown figure, with a swinging, libertarian image based on his years as a critic of the Quebec regime of Maurice Duplessis, a global travelling writing and a persistent bachelorhood.

He had emerged in the 1965 general election, living with his wife and friends Jean Marchand, labor leader, and Gerard Pelletier, who resigned to get started on a reputation as an able justice minister.

The election accorded him by the public in the 1968 campaign, and his subsequent solid victory after six years of minority government of Ottawa testified to the impact of his style.

This time Mr. Trudeau cuts a different figure, his hand now of the grand wife, Marguerite, he wed in North Vancouver March 4, 1971. Father of a young son and leader of a government that has been scarred by four years in office.

Steady Effort

For Robert Stanfield, the last four years have been a steady persistent effort in reshape the Conservative party.

It was left divided somewhat by bitterness over the ousting of former prime minister John Diefenbaker and initially pilloried at the hand way to attack Pierre Trudeau, a man who, accused of mouthing an obscenity, said it was only "fuddle duddle."

Mr. Stanfield, is regarded as having grown on the job without much visible change in the style he displayed so long as Nova Scotia premier—calmness, competence, patience and a good dry wit.

This is his third campaign for federal election and his second national one as leader since succeeding Mr. Diefenbaker in 1967.

David Lewis, former labor lawyer, made his first bid for the Commons in 1945 for the CCF and eventually succeeded in 1962, losing in 1963 and returning in 1965. His efforts to better the political fortunes of the NDP have been afflicted by internal dissent centred on the left-wing Waffle faction in Ontario, where his son, Stephen, is provincial leader.

The Waffle, which mounted a strong force at the 1971 convention appointing Mr. Lewis has withdrawn largely from the federal election campaign.

Real Caouette is another veteran who has seen more party ups and downs than most. He split with national leader Robert Thompson in 1963 and resumed his Quebec wing the Ralliement des Thereupon swung over to the Conservatives in 1967, Mr. Caouette took on the national leadership and later referred the Social Credit [illegible]'s federal party still predominantly Quebec-based.

The government's record, as usual, is on the line.

Quebec Crisis

Without doubt, the most dramatic episode for Prime Minister Trudeau was the Quebec kidnapping crisis in October, 1970, culminating in the unprecedented peacetime use of the War Measures Act, the slaying of Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister, and the eventual release of British diplomat James R. Cross.

No other event in the government's four-year turmoil evoked broader support despite criticism that it had apparent than real.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SUNDAY, SEPT. 3

Aries (March 21-April 19): Enjoy this reasonably quiet Sunday. Invitations based on your recent approaches to others and eligibility are at hand.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Seek the shortest and most pleasant path this Sunday. Romantic and sentimental considerations tend to take your attention.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): It is all right to scatter your attentions and energies today, but not so much your money. Visit and catch up on community news.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Going along with a group has special dividends, refreshes you of some personal chores, may bring an introduction important to you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Give, if you can afford it and really care. There are likely emotional expressions going on you'd rather keep out of notice.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go along with family, friends for special events, excursions wherever conditions permit. Get off your regular track for a change.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make your appearance promptly for your share of Sunday observances. Make a local circuit of visits, take in public entertainments.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Where family reunions are in order, help get them together. Time invested in group affairs makes the difference in future ventures.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Within the bounds of propriety, have a fling this lively Sunday. You are barely past your lowest ebb for business.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Confront rivals and interesting people with your brightest good humor for a lively day of many quirks of circumstance.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let people be themselves, do the spontaneous thing with them, let nature take its course. Venture into unaccustomed directions.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Harmony is your keyword for today. Bring people together, make cheerful ceremonies of everyday amenities. Be yourself.

MONDAY, SEPT. 4

Aries (March 21-April 19): Neglecting nobody else in your path in a day of hobby-work. An original thought should be kept for further expansion.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Today's confrontations bring subtle challenges to your convictions. A survey of your household should suggest changes.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Short trips, using by-ways, are favored. It's a great day for reunions, club meetings, creative enterprises. Gather with friends.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Use the day for serious study, thoughtful review of recent efforts, mediation. Later hours should bring quiet fun.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Turn on your charm, welcome younger people and make it a busy day, from getting acquainted to sharing hobbies and secrets.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Clearance is the keyword, as you have unaccustomed access to people and things for all questions you haven't answered.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It's like a second Sunday, soiled for sports and pastimes even in countries which do not observe this American holiday.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Listen to yourself for a while. Think what you are projecting that others fit what you really want or expect.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An extra range for your search is open—cross-ow inclinations toward contact with others in your field, including rivals.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Group effort makes for a good program. Take the time to call on those who can't get out so readily. Causes deserve your calls.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The spirit of today is the gathering of the clans, kith and kin, friends, neighbors, acquaintances, for renewal.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your intuition works overtime today; follow it to achieve clarity unity, selecting people for inclusion in future projects.

Tuesday, SEPT. 5

Aries (March 21-April 19): Work tends to untidiness, associates differ. It's up to you to keep the peach and get the work onto its right tracks.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Emotions dominate the day, hinder progress. Channel yours into some constructive application, take the most difficult chore and get it done.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Seems nobody is quite satisfied with anything, and you can ride out the storm quite simply by seeing the humor of it. Be alert.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Getting back to normal involves settling petty differences, sincerity. Make a list of completed items so nothing is skipped.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Friends and money mix but not to your advantage. Keep them apart in your discourse. Significant purchases are best deferred.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Care is important in anything you do now. Impractical ideas, experiments create momentary confusion. Schedules need double-checking.

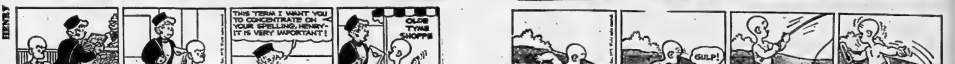
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Planned and promised attendance, assistance may not be there, or it may be late. Do the proper thing, without recrimination.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22): Progress is slow, but if you stick to detail at it then you'll get it all settled before pushing on to the next.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Hard times sweat you, weather. You're getting into a new spot or returning to an old one. But you really know what it all can.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Details pile up and may become confused in the push to get something settled. Be sure you really know what it all means.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can't have everything all the time and this is one of those times when something gets left out. Review your schedule.



Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): For something you've worked and waited for over a long time, another day may improve the getting. Discussion is needed.

Arab Guns Slay Two at Olympics

Canuck Group Moved

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

MUNICH (CP) — The Canadian headquarters staff and all the male athletes said today they have been evacuated from their headquarters in Olympic Village.

The evacuation came after Palestinian Arabs broke into the Olympic athletes' village, killed an Israeli team member and took Israeli hostages.

The Canadian headquarters staff was evacuated at 1 p.m. Munich time (8 a.m. EDT).

The doors of the Canadian building were locked and the only Canadian remaining-inside was team manager Ken Murray who reported: "Everything is quiet. They moved us out because this could be one way the terrorists might come if they break out."

The Canadian centre is only 46 yards from the Israeli quarters. The male athletes are housed another 30 yards away from that.

The Canadians' doors were locked and there were two soldiers outside with submachine guns.

"They let me stay to answer the telephone," said Murray. The building next door has been cleared. The only Canadians still there are two Canadians of our medical mission.

"Everything in quiet but things have really tightened up. I just got a call from one of our canoeists who are at the gate. They couldn't get back in."

Murray said arrangements for alternative housing will be made if necessary.

"Right now, we're hoping this will be cleared up by tonight."

Earlier German police evacuated the nearby East German building.

Mob Raids Police Post In Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — A Protestant mob hurling sticks and bottles attacked a Belfast police post early today and a powerful bomb damaged the headquarters of Northern Ireland's main Roman Catholic opposition party.

Security forces also reported two men were shot and wounded in the capital and a tavern blown up in a new upsurge of Protestant militancy.

The extremist Protestant Ulster Defence Association only hours earlier said it had broken off contact with the British Army because of military harassment.

The subsequent violence was seen as muscle-flexing by Northern Ireland's Protestant majority.

At the same time, there were continuing reports of a shakeup in the Belfast command of the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing and speculation the guerrillas will end their bomb attacks on civilian targets.

13 Israelis Held Hostage

MUNICH (AP) — Arab terrorists armed with submachine-guns broke into the Olympic village today, killed two Israelis and held 13 more Israelis hostage in their living quarters, Reuter news agency reported that only one Israeli was killed and one wounded.

The Arabs, who had blues of explosives, threatened to kill all the hostages unless 200 Arab terrorists held in Israel were released.

They first set a deadline of noon—7 a.m. EDT. Later a West German spokesman said an extension of the deadline was achieved in negotiations between the terrorists and Mohammed Chatib, head of the Arab League office at Bonn, who had rushed to Munich. The new deadline is 3 p.m.—9 a.m. EDT.

The Olympics, founded to foster international understanding, were thrown out of balance. After an emergency cabinet meeting, Israel asked West Germany to halt the Games.

Chancellor Willy Brandt called a meeting of the West German cabinet, then flew to Munich from Bonn to supervise the negotiations.

Brandt appealed to all Arab nations to do everything they could to help achieve safe release of the hostages.

Police surrounded the Israeli building and negotiated with the terrorists. Israeli diplomats rushed to Munich from Bonn.

The Arabs refused to surrender.

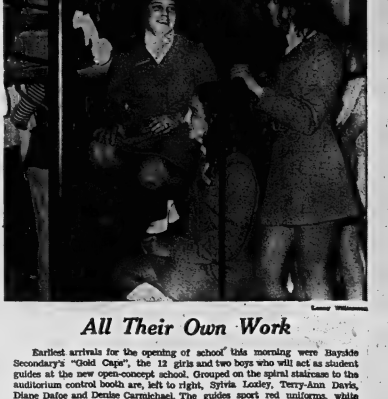
One of the dead Israelis was identified by the Bavarian interior ministry as Moshe Weinberg, 32, a wrestling coach. He was shot twice in the head and once in the stomach as the Arabs broke in before dawn.

The raid was carried out by about five men with blackened faces. They climbed over the fences surrounding the village and made straight for the building, also occupied by the teams of Uruguay and Hong Kong.

The terrorists tossed a paper out of a window of the Israeli quarters. It bore the title "Commando" and listed five points of an ultimatum:

1. West Germany must declare itself prepared to bring the Israeli hostages to a place to be specified by the "revolutionary forces" inside the Olympic village.

2. West Germany must provide the guerrillas with three airplanes. The Israelis would be divided into three groups and placed aboard each of the planes. After the first plane left, the other planes would in succession leave as soon as word was received that the previous one had reached the as yet undisclosed destination.



3. Any attempt to interfere with the operation would result in the killing of the hostages.

4. West Germany would take full responsibility.

5. The Ultimatum deadline would run out within three hours.

6. In the event the ultimatum is not heeded, orders would be given "to carry out revolutionary and fighter force in order to give the war chiefs of the Is-

Montreal Arson Suspects Hunted Throughout Nation

MONTREAL (CP) — A nation-wide search continued today for two Montrealers wanted for questioning following a fire at the Blue Bird Club Friday which killed 37 people and injured 53 others.

Marc Bazin, 24, and James O'Brien, 22, are being sought by police, while a third man, Giles Eccles, 24, is already in custody. A warrant allowing police to hold Eccles was renewed Monday for eight days.

Meanwhile, police are maintaining a 24-hour guard over the remains of the downtown country-music club, to ward off curious spectators.

The police did allow two men to lay a wreath on the doorstep of the club Monday.

Denis Lee, a 25-year-old suburban Lasalle resident, and Don Annett, 19, whose cousin Sandra died in the blaze, laid the flowers against the sooty plywood which seals the club's entrance.

This is a reminder, I guess, to everyone who goes by" said Mr. Lee. "This is where 37 people died in a fire on Sept. 2, 1972."

More than 200 patrons scrambled for safety in the second-storey dance area of the club Friday night when a wall of flame swept up the stairs, cutting off escape by the main entrance. Ten patrons are still in hospital, three in serious condition.

John MacDougall, Montreal's fire commissioner, said that technically the nightclub met the legal requirement for fire exits.

"But whether the exits were properly lit and unobstructed will be determined at a coroner's inquest later in the week," he said.

Police said many patrons were caught in a mad rush from one exit to another. About two persons were injured when they crowded onto a balcony which collapsed under their weight.

Others jumped or fell from second-story windows.

Lieut. Normand Trudeau of the Montreal police department said three men, known to regulars at the club, had been ordered out Friday night following an argument with the doorman about seating arrangements.

Shortly after the three drove away from the club, three men bought gasoline at a downtown service station he said.

Witnesses told police they later saw three men drive up to the club in a grey Comet, jump out and dump liquid in the stairway leading to the second floor.

Games Suspended

MUNICH (AP) — The 20th Olympic Games will be suspended today and a memorial service held Wednesday morning for two Israelis killed in a Palestinian Arab terrorist raid on the Olympic Village.

The joint announcement by Avery Brundage of the United States, president of the International Olympic Committee, and Willi Daume of West Germany, president of the Olympic Organizing Committee, was announced at a news conference.

The announcement said competitions under way this afternoon would be completed. The statement did not say when competitions would resume but it was believed they would after the Wednesday memorial service.

Passengers Lose Seats On Chartered Flight

TORONTO (CP) — Eleven would-be air passengers to London were the first victims Monday of the federal crackdown on charter flights.

The 11 were among 31 passengers removed from a-bonanza Airlines International Airways flight when it was found they had not flown here on the first half of the charter three weeks ago.

The passengers, who were from Toronto and neighboring cities in the United States, all said they bought their tickets from a Toronto charter travel organization.

The flight was chartered to a British club and 153 people who came over with the original club flight on Aug. 12 were on board the 189-seat Boeing 707 when it took off.

So were 20 of the people who had been pulled off, but allowed to travel on for a variety of compassionate reasons.

A. D. Pearce, chief of the international section of the Canadian Transport Commission, said he was "going out on a limb" letting so many people fly who were obviously not legitimate members of the chartering group.

"My head may be on a platter in the morning," he said, but he let Donaldson carry them without endangering its status as a charter carrier, as long as the passengers were not Canadians.

The main thrust of the new strict enforcement of the charter rules is to stop Canadians travelling overseas on one-way tickets from so-called "bucket shops" and turning for help in Canadian consulates when they get stranded.

"If you were a British resident, I might be able to help you," Mr. Pearce told one traveller. "I'm under instructions no one who's a Canadian citizen goes."

A few of the passengers allowed to return to the aircraft in fact were British residents who had been left stranded after other charter flights had been cancelled.

The president of the Irish-Scottish Centre, the charter agency the passengers said they bought the one-way tickets from, denied that they had been bought through his firm.

"We have no connection with any Donaldson flight that was going out today," he said. "We had a CP Air charter go out Sunday, but it had six empty seats."

Art Worth $2 Million Stolen at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Thieves, described as men who knew what they were doing, stole $2 million worth of art from the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts Monday.

Bill Bantey, the museum's public relations director, said three masked and armed men stole jewelry, figurines and 18 paintings, including a Rembrandt worth $1 million, by breaking in through a skylight in the 112-year-old museum.

"Obviously someone has been casing the museum. They knew we were working on the building and they knew what they were looking for," he said.

"... we have been doing repairs on the skylight, it's not as good as it used to be, and as the alarm was only partially functioning. If they had come through a different section of the skylight, the alarm would have gone off."

The alarm did go off when the robbers opened a door to leave with their first load of booty, Museum officials think this prevented a larger loss.

Mr. Bantey said: "They had stacked about 18 other paintings and left behind far more important works than they took."

The robbery was the largest in the museum's history. No arrests have been made but police have alerted Interpol, the international police agency, and all border points to prevent the works from leaving Canada.

Investigators found a long ladder on a back wall of the museum which repair workers told police was not theirs.

The three men entered the museum at about 3 a.m., overpowered guards and kept them bound and gagged in a conference room.

Police arrived a few minutes after the alarm sounded but the robbers had already fled.

raeli war machine a hard lesson."

The communique ended with the appeal: "Revolutionaries of the world, unite."

Dr. Manfred Schreiber, Munich's chief of police, told reporters the West German government offered the terrorists an unlimited amount of money to free the hostages, but the Arabs refused.

They also declined an offer to send in substitute hostages if they would free the Israeli athletes.

The interior ministry called the negotiations "very, very difficult."

The Middle East news agency said an organization called Black September took responsibility for the raid.

The list of imprisoned terrorists whose freedom was demanded was reported to include the same as one handed to Israelis after the hijacked belgian plane landed. That time, Israeli commandos got aboard the plane by disguise and killed or captured the hijackers.

One addition to the list was Gen Okamoto, survivor of the three Japanese terrorists responsible for a massacre at the Tel Aviv airport in May. He is serving a life sentence.

About 20 Israelis were held hostage at first along with attendees from Uruguay and Hong Kong. But some have escaped and the Uruguayan and Hong Kong men were allowed to leave.

A Hong Kong man said: "We heard some shots fired and then we were ordered to lock ourselves inside our rooms."

Later the Uruguayan and Hong Kong competitors exited through a back door.

Police who rushed to the village found Weinberg slumped outside the door of the building.

Cablevue Switch Due On Sept. 30

Belleville Cablevue Ltd. has requested permission by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission to replace Channel 6 CBLT Toronto with CJOH - TV 6 Deseronto. When that station, goes on the air local viewers will have the choice of two CTV network stations.

The announcement that Cablevue would replace CBLT Toronto with the Ottawa Channel 6 station at Deseronto was made over the weekend by local Cablevue officials.

"We are enthusiastic about the new Channel 6 Ottawa station — it will give excellent reception," stated Roy Taylor, sales manager for the local cable system.

The decision of Belleville Cablevue to switch to CJOH Ottawa in place of CBLT Toronto was prompted by that fact that the Toronto station will change from Channel 6 to channel 5 on Sept. 11.

The Channel 6 Ottawa satellite station at Deseronto is scheduled to commence broadcasting at the end of September.

Mr. Taylor said this means Cablevue subscribers may find that Channel 6 will be blank in Toronto Sept. 11 until the Deseronto satellite station goes on the air.

The second CTV network station will be a plus for local TV sports fans as they will be able to receive football broadcasts from an alternate station should the games be blacked out either in Toronto or Ottawa.

All regular CJOH programs from Ottawa will be broadcast over the Deseronto satellite station.

It's All Theirs Now

Eight months later than expected, Bayside Secondary opened its doors to their new $4½ million building half way between Belleville and Trenton. They sat on the floor of the auditorium - cafeteria to hear welcoming speeches from principal L. D. Read and director of education Eric Hunnicres, before sorting themselves out for classes in the open concept school. Familiarization tours conducted by their home room teachers were the first order of business as students marched their way around the bright orange, purple and red painted interior.

Auto Hits Trailer, Flees Scene

TWEED (Special) — A Picton resident on his way for a weekend holiday north of Tweed had his plans suddenly disrupted Saturday night when just north of Thomasburg a hit and run car smashed into his house trailer causing $900 damage.

Walter C. Weese, 59, was north bound on Highway 37 when an unidentified motorist came out of a sideroad and struck the trailer broadside.

A section of the trailer flew off and smashed the windshield of a following car-driven by Ronald Lee of Burlington.

Provincial police are still looking for the hit and run car which has a broken headlight and front end damage.

In other weekend accidents, in the Tweed area, Ivan Glenn MacMillan narrowly escaped injury at Ivanhoe when his car struck a canoe laden trailer being hauled by Douglas McNeill of Scarborough.

Mr. McNeill, travelling south on Highway 62, stopped for the railway crossing but the following car driven by Mr. MacMillan was unable to stop in time.

The canoe pierced the windshield on the passenger side of the MacMillan car.

Bayside School Opens As Ontario 'Showcase'

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The school predicted to become "the greatest in Ontario" opened this morning.

"It's in your hands," Hastings county's director of education Eric Bonsteels told Bayside Secondary School students at their first assembly.

The spanking new $4½ million, open concept secondary school was eight months late in opening. And its first day was not without hitches. The air conditioning wasn't working; a main waterline had broken over the weekend.

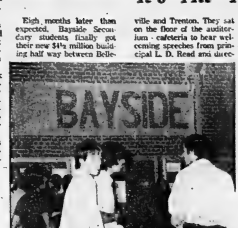
But thanks to the 10 custodians, who worked 14 days without a break prior to the opening, the building was at its best for its first day of operation. Only some landscaping and painting remains to be done.

School colors are red and white, and the red theme predominated in carpets and interior walls. Even Principal L. D. Read was resplendent in a red blazer for the first day. In matching attire were the "Gold Cups", student guides who wear red suits, white gloves and those gold cups. One will be on duty in the reception area at all times to receive guests and guide lost students.

Bayside, destined to become, in the words of the director of education "the showplace of Ontario", is coming on strong from the beginning.

No flickering lamp of leadership for it. The student-designed school creed, features a sun, shedding its rays over a stylized outline of the school. The creed on the front elevation of the school was boasted by students with 5000 earned last year on a chocolate bar drive.

In retrospect, Bayside's first year in accommodations shared with Trenton High School's students, "wasn't harmful at all," says Mr. Read.



Thirteen per cent of last year's students earned first class honours, a high percentage, the principal indicated.

This year, Bayside will have Grades 9 through 12, with Grade 13 to be added next year.

The staff of 52 teachers is augmented by a library technologist, a full time nurse, 10 custodians, and two engineers. The school encloses 39 acres of floor area and contains about a half million dollars of equipment. Mr. Read estimated this morning that if every family with children in the school donated a year's salary, the sum would just about cover the cost of the building.

The school is of precast concrete and concrete block construction, its heart a three level library resource centre. One of only a few open concept secondary schools in the province, it is expected to attract visiting educators and architects in its first years of operation.

"And every stone has a bit of my blood in it," Mr. Read told his students at their first assembly.

New School

Hasting county's Showcase school, Bayside Secondary, opened its doors for the first time this morning to start the school year.

With about 850 students enrolled, the [illegible] reception area was a scene of [illegible] after the first assembly.

Mohawks Run Own Bus Fleet

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — The Bay of Quinte Mohawks have started the new school year operating their own bus fleet.

The Mohawks have acquired six buses which will transport students to public schools on the reserve and high school in Belleville, says Chief Earl Hill.

Five of the buses will be used in daily operations, with one as a backup spare.

The fleet dispenses with the need for contracting services of private operators — and gives the Mohawks more direct control over the operation, said the chief.

Public school students are housed in three one - room schools and the five - room Quinte Mohawk school on the reserve. Enrollment is to be centralized in a new school expected to be built on the reserve next year.

No Snarls or Snags On 1st Day of School

Summer ended officially today in the minds of many with the opening of schools for a new academic year.

And the first day of school in Hastings county came off quietly, with no major problems for school administrators.

Transportation officer John Bancroft had no reports this morning of a big surge of new pupils to throw bus routes into disarray.

Some minor adjustments will be made on routes to the new Bayside Secondary School

Road Closing On Agenda

CANNINGTON (Staff) — Thurlow township council meets in special session Wednesday night to discuss a road closure issue in the Foxboro area.

The township will hear representations from property owners fronting a portion of old County Road No. 5 that Thurlow wants to close. The strip of roadway in question is near the old Foxboro station on what is now known as Bayside Ave.

The township proposes declare the length of road as a frontage access to the hoo-chulers, giving each alternate access to the new county road now built to the south of the old road.

The special meeting on the road closing will begin Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Canniton township offices.

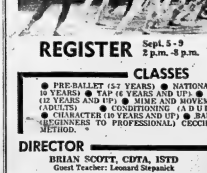
Trenton, Murray Sign Agreement

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton's fire department has extended its fire-fighting boundaries to Murray Township, replacing service in that township formerly provided by the Frankford and Brighton Fire Departments.

According to township clerk C. Kenneth Bree, the decision to contract with Trenton, was based quite heavily on Trenton's status as a full time department rather than part time as in the case of Frankford.

The move represents a 100 per cent increase in fire costs to Murray Township. Last year, their total bill for fire protection came to $6,070. The price tag of $12,000 set by the Trenton Fire Department, has been under negotiation since January.

Trenton insisted on this figure, says Mr. Bree, regardless of the number or seriousness of fires responded to. In return, the town's department promises to answer calls to the furthest reaches of the township.



He said he understands a fire truck can be at any fire in Murray Township, within 15 to 20 minutes of receiving a call at 392-6555.

The Waiting Game

We don't meet that many trains but the one we tried to rendezvous with the other day was well named. It was the CN's Cavalier due at the rather unseemly hour of 1.50 a.m.

We were there on time . . . but the night wore on and the air was chilly when a full two hours and three quarters late (which everyone thought was "it") later the Cavalier finally arrived.

We never did find out the reason for the delay, disdaining any thought of asking any of the handful of other folk involved in the long wait, knowing full well from experience and the looks on their faces that none of them knew either.

While waiting you observe what little activity there is. Taxis came — and went with nary an arriving passenger to console them for those two hours. In the waiting room there were perhaps four or five people at most at any one time. A young woman busied herself writing an essay, a thesis — something or other for she had pen and pad and she might have been a student en route somewhere for a new term. A heavily-bearded young man, as tired looking as the jeans outfit he wore, left the waiting-room and plunked down Latin-siesta fashion at the corner of the building outside. Hardy he was, but at cool.

Perhaps there was some good reason for the delay, which we understand took place at the Toronto end. At the same time we take a look at Canadian National folders and see references to regular service (regular we take to mean "on-time" as much as anything else) and wonder if the company cannot be as good as it claims.

If rail travel in Canada is not to appear further outdated, ponderous and ailing, with hapless passengers, relatives and friends forced to spend long hours waiting at cheerless stations, it should allow some of the magic implied by the CN folder "Let CN Take You To The Ball Game."

"Action," says the blurb, "is the name of the Game and excitement is keeping pace to the pastime during every inning that is played. . ."

Yeah . . . If you get there on time!

Extremes

Man's relationship with the animal world manifests curious extremes of behavior, all the way from outright neglect and cruelty through indifference and the ideal of normal loving care to the extreme of extravagant if not neurotic attachment.

Locally, there have been complaints from a local resident about cats which wander about other people's property and this certainly can be a problem. Cat owners should keep their pets under control, failing which the Humane Society may have a responsibility where a complaint is laid.

As to extremes we think the news from Florida falls into this category. Eighty - one dogs ,reports say, have inherited some $14 million from the estate of their late spinster owner. The will of Eleanor Richey ,heir to the Quaker State Refining Corporation, was finally settled after years of litigation. The dogs that Miss Richey (who was only 58 when she died in 1968) had cared for now live in a modern clinic on a 130-acre ranch near Deerfield Beach. Whether any of the handful of relatives who contested the will got anything or not is not stated, but after all the canine heirs succumb the estate is to be passed on to a research foundation in Alabama for the study of diseases of small animals.

Front Fort Lauderdale to Campbellville northwest of Burlington comes word that Lady Roberts, widow of Sir Charles Roberts, Canadian poet and novelist, is moving with her 18 cats and 30 cats to British Honduras where she hopes she can maintain her menagerie for half the $1,000 a month it is costing her now.

Who knows, maybe Lady Roberts, who was an RCAF radio operator when she married Sir Charles then an 83-year-old widower, in 1943, will revive interest in British Honduras as a tourist or retirement spot. We recall Prime Minister Trudeau spent a vacation at an island down that way some years ago. Meanwhile Lady Roberts' proposed move demonstrates the lengths some people will go to maintain some of our four-legged friends in the state to which they have become accustomed.

It's No Longer "Easy Street" For Convicts —

Solicitor-General Goyer Finally Gets The Message

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It has taken time, crisis after crisis, multi-strikes, sit-ins — the whole incredible lot — but finally Solicitor General Jean-Pierre Goyer is changing his penal tune.

For long stubborn months, in and out of Parliament, his one persistent note was that the safety and security of the public was second only to what he called reform of the penal system and rehabilitation of criminals.

Now, under new pressures, he sounds the new and different note that he had his priorities mixed, that public safety comes ahead of criminal welfare.

And get this, he blames not himself, although it was he who had drawn the soft permissive policy, but his staff for taking him at his word.

"If our personnel interpret liberalization of the penal system as meaning laxness in carrying out duties and enforcing laws, then they will learn differently, and soon," he promises.

"Aisi if it means revamping the whole system then I do not hesitate to do so, for it is time we got at the problem."

What turned him so suddenly around was the breakout from maximum security St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary of six convicts, veterans of other escapes.

The odd thing was that it took so long and required so many critical situations to bring him around.

He got off to a poor start the very day Prime Minister Trudeau appointed him when the RCMP, knowing his attitudes and background, showed open resentment of his posting as Solicitor General.

Perhaps they suspected he might — as he later did — attempt to downgrade the special status of the force by changing the insignia on patrol cars to simply "police".

Then there was the Yves Geoffroy caper of the convicted wife - slayer taking off with his new bride for a honeymoon in Spain during a holiday pass from prison.

A dozen other convicts, out on "leave," similarly failed to check back in.

There was the Kingston penitentiary riot, a smashing so complete the prison was evacuated with the inmates moved to nearby Millhaven where they staged hunger strikes, mini-riots, and finally a mass escape of 16 convicts with four still at large.

The still incomplete roundup of the fugitives, involving RCMP, Kingston city, Ontario provincial and district police as well as the armed forces, cost $500,000. .

Millhaven guards publicly charged that Jean-Pierre Goyer was to blame for decreeing that the penitentiary should be operated, as they described it, more like a country club than a prison.

Sandwiched between his prison troubles the Solicitor General chewed on other problems involving convicts on leave committing further crimes including murder.

But stubborn, if nothing else, Jean-Pierre Goyer insisted that it was the rehabilitation of criminals that mattered most. Public safety came second, he ruled.

As a man of his word, he directed that the taxpayers, not the convicts, must pay the cost of prison riots.

The prisoners could have their smash-up fun and keep their prison wages, too.

It was too much for Conservative MP Douglas Alkenbrack of Frontenac - Lennox and Addington, a plain-spoken parliamentarian in whose constituency Millhaven is located.

In the Commons, just before the summer recess, he pantomimed Solicitor General Goyer in an imagined message to the "coddled criminals" of Millhaven:

"You deserve a better place in participatory democracy, so we are removing most of the deterrents in your chosen vocation of crime. If you go to prison we will give you a better living standard than many taxpayers enjoy, "You can destroy your prison and we will neither hold you morally nor financially responsible. We will extend your privileges, restore your commodious quarters and compel the taxpayers to foot the bill. You may keep your wages, thumb your noses at the courts and society. And when the government has given you a franchise of special privileges denied everyone else."

Trouble continued to pile on trouble, most of it of his own making, for Jean-Pierre Goyer: more escapes, further prison outrages — and finally, after St. Vincent de Paul he had had enough.

"Prison reform will not continue at the rate of security," he says now.

Maybe it was the successive crisis situation, perhaps the Alkenbrack attack, could be even a word from the Prime Minister or possibly the pressure of a concerned electorate, but whatever the cause, the Solicitor General has done a sudden and complete about-face.

"Conflict" Revelations Embarrass Government

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

The Darcy McKeough incident at least has brought this there to life.

There is a government at bay and that means tension.

Not since the Police Act, drama of the sixties has there been such underlying excitement.

The excitement, of course, is political.

And the question which fuels it is how much harm the government may suffer.

One answer is that it could do a great deal of harm.

It might turn out to be the most serious setback for the Tories out of any one incident since they took power in 1943. More serious than the Police Act, gas and highways "scandal" and the various other incidents over the years.

This is because of two perhaps not readily apparent reasons.

One of these is that what is important politically is what the public thinks has happened, not what actually has happened.

And at this stage there appears a good chance that the public is going to end up with a sour mouth over the combined McKeough and Hahs incidents.

There is no known venality. One minister, McKeough, was clumsy (at least that's how it appears at this point) and the second, Hahs, was a victim of unfortunate circumstance.

But to the man on the street there have been large amounts of money involved and the man on the street being the man on the street it's most unlikely, no matter how many explanations he will see much beyond this money. Under his concept of politics and politicians no matter what is said he will feel there was something rotten.

The second reason is that Premier Davis is going to have to handle this.

And Davis is not, at least not yet, a Leslie Frost or a John Roberts.

Frost with his image of stern integrity rather than suffer could perhaps have won an election on it—in fact he might even have called one on it.

And Roberts with his public front of reserved dignity would have stood over any storm.

But it's doubtful Davis has won this public trust, this confidence, yet.

He's relatively new in office, appears young and playful, had his Vermont trip talked about and now has just been to the Olympic Games. Rather than dampen fires in the public mind his presence might even fuel them.

So that the government and the party could be harmed.

Not critically so. That would depend on the future and many other events. Talk of doom at the moment is nonsense.

But a leak might be started that could grow.

Province Asks For Area Dollars

The federal government is being asked by the Ontario government to contribute toward the cost of a conceptual plan for the Quinte region now being prepared by Quinte planning Board.

Basis for the request is the pervasive effect on the area of CFB Trenton.

In a letter to minister of state for urban affairs Ronald Basford, provincial treasurer Darcy McKeough made the bid for federal funds because, he advises, ... has been and will continue to be the primary focus of municipal planning activity in the area."

McKeough says the impact of the military installation is both social and economic and "considerable research is still required" on the base's impact before appropriate planning policies can be formulated.

The provincial treasurer indicates in his communication with the urban affairs minister that he is writing on behalf of the Quinte Planning Board municipalities to seek a federal grant for conceptual planning in Quinte "particularly as it relates to the airbase itself and its future impact on the surrounding municipalities."

McKeough mentions that urban affairs publications mention the availability of "limited amounts of financial assistance for municipal planning activity." He asks for a statement from the federal minister of the conditions and criteria that have to be met for such financial assistance.

QPB authorities do not know the structure of the federal assistance but all indicate they would welcome relief from the burden of the expense of conceptual planning — a central aspect of which will be an examination of the impact of defence department installations on the region.

Warkworth Dam To Be Opened

TRENTON (Staff) — The efforts of six years work have finally culminated in the official opening of the Warkworth dam and reservoir this Wednesday at 2 p.m.

Ceremonies will be conducted in the park area adjacent to the reservoir on Mill Street. John R. Rhodes, parliamentary assistant to the Hon. Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, will conduct the official opening.

The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority claims it was through its efforts, that the dam has been completed. According to their announcement release, the township of Percy had attempted to begin the project, but ran into several obstacles. "It was not until after the formation of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority, that the ultimate construction and development of this area was received," reads their statement.

Ballet Film Highlights Opening

The film used to entertain the Bolshoi Ballet during its Toronto visit in June will be shown here Wednesday night.

Ready and ... features the National Ballet School in Toronto, and has won acclaim for its young producer, Chris Hosier.

The film will highlight the opening of the Quinte Dance Centre, the school sponsored by the Belleville branch of the National Ballet Guild.

"It is perhaps not generally appreciated that the National Ballet School is unique in the way it combines academic and dance training," says the film's producer.

The half-hour film was lent to the Quinte Dance Centre by the National Ballet School. Those attending the public opening of the school, at 218A Front St., (over Eaton's Order Office,) will be among the first in Canada to view the movie.

Parks Deliver Urban Color

Tinting the features of Belleville's urban bulk with a little blooming beauty is a growing business.

Aside from the private enterprises of home gardeners and commercial-site landscapers, the most strategic role is played by the city's parks department — a role now ready for wraps for another year as the seasons change.

In contrast to its major commission as developer of the city's greenbelt system, many of the landscaping projects are of undramatic dimensions — squeezed into available land pockets to blossom as flashlights on surrounding urban growth.

The department is continually exploiting such areas if spotted in locations convenient to servicing.

"We try to spot them any place they can improve an area," said parks superintendent Lloyd Syer today. Such improvement pockets have been on the increase.

This year they've included such locations as the embankment overlooking the new Dundas St. W. overpass and the corners of Coleman and Moira Streets. Other areas include the Dick Ellis Memorial Rink and the Quinte Exhibition Grounds. All are planted with bright-blossoming annuals — petunias, geraniums, cannas.

Such small orders can mount up. Added to the number of blooms needed to highlight beds in greenbelt areas gardeners this year planted up to 20,000 such blooms — much more than last year.

This is "really a large number" estimated Mr. Syer as he made a rapid count of the season's plant orders today.

Soon, however, the annuals will come out — to be replaced by bulbs, which after winter's hibernation, will herald spring for Bellevillians next year.

Artist Returns To Hold Show

An Ottawa artist, who trained at Schneider's School of Fine Art in Actinolite 10 years ago returns to the Quinte district next week.

Marie Devlin will display oil paintings in a one-woman show at St. Joseph's School auditorium Wednesday, Sept. 13, from 8 - 10 p.m.

Mrs. Devlin recently shot into prominence when one of her works, At the Fair, took first place in the Ottawa Art Association's 1972 exhibition in Ottawa city hall. A total of 87 paintings were entered in the association's 19th annual competition.

The show here is sponsored by St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League.

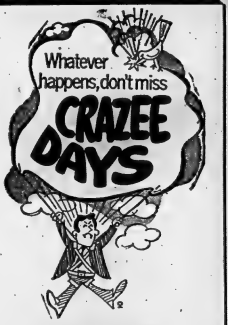
Ontario is now putting together the biggest municipal enumeration in its history.

Without you it won't be right.

This is an election year for municipal councils, school boards and other local bodies in most of Ontario. An early step in these elections is the documenting of voters' lists. To assemble voters' lists we need to make an enumeration. This is done by the Province for each municipality.

But our municipal enumeration involves more than just voters' lists. It helps determine the division of education property taxes between the public and separate school systems. It lets the Province more fairly distribute grants to local governments to help reduce municipal tax bills. And it also helps provide us with an accurate population count.

Collecting nearly 8 million names and addresses, as you can imagine, is a big job. The Province is employing 8,000 people to visit every residence in Ontario. When the government representative knocks on your door, the procedure is simple. The enumeration notice is pre-printed by computer with the names of everyone currently on record in your household. If you agree that the information is correct and complete, you simply sign the notice. If there are changes, such as an addition to the family, corrections are made on the spot, verified and signed by you or any other adult in your household.



If you are not home the notice is left, together with simple instructions. You mail it, postage free, only if there are changes.

You will be counted sometime between September 5th and 18th.

The Municipal Enumeration: September 5-18.
Without you it won't be right.

New Process Heals Wounds in Hours

TORONTO (CP) — A process that reduces the healing time of open wounds on experimental animals to hours from days has been developed by three Canadian scientists.

The process employs electromagnetic radiation and speeds healing by a factor of 100 to 1. Dr. Alan Tanner, head of the Control Systems Laboratory at the National Research Council, says the process can be used to "seal lesions in a very short time; in our test animals, we've done this in minutes."

Dr. Tanner was to present the group's findings for the first time today at the International Symposium on Electrosleep and Electroanesthesia in Varna, Bulgaria.

Dr. Tanner says the method has been tried only on rats at this point, and although no adverse effects from the radiation have been found, the group wants to test the technique more intensively with animals.

Dr. Tanner says the technique involves the application of an electromagentic field in the radio frequency range, which has wave lengths longer than those of visible light. It also involves the application of histamine, a natural substance which dilates the capillaries and increases circulation to the area of the wound.

He says that applying the electromagnetic field speeds up the generation of collagen, a fibrous protein which helps knit wounds together.

"That's all very well, but you're relying on the natural supply of histamine and this is not truly adequate if you're going to accelerate the process."

"If you accelerate the generation of collagen, you also need to provide more material at the site for the body to work on. This is why we add histamine. With this greater supply of histamine, plus the electromagnetic field, you can accelerate the sealing and healing process by at least 100 times."

Dr. Tanner thinks the process will one day revolutionize the economics of hospital care, "because the turnover of patients can be accelerated."

"If we can do this, we can really make inroads into the escalating problems of hospitals.

"As far as convenience to society, we're going to gain many more manhours of work. For instance, the principal can be applied to healing broken limbs. Now you've got to go through the indignity of having a massive cast on for a long period of time.

"This can be reduced to days, maybe hours, eventually."

New Record Is Set at CNE

TORONTO (CP) — A new attendance record of more than 3.5 million visitors was greeted by Canadian National Exhibition officials Monday with a great deal of jubilation—and just a little concern.

"We've got to figure out some way of increasing weekday attendance," said J. S. Corrigan, CNE president, referring to the five days—all of them on weekends—when attendance topped 200,000.

"It's just too congested after that," he said. "We have more people than we can comfortably accommodate with our present physical plant, on a day when we have 264,000. The midway is especially congested and there are lineups for everything."

The president said CNE directors have rejected increased admission fees for the weekends as a way of diverting attendance to weekdays: "Some people can only come on weekends."

Attendance during the 20 day event varied from 102,000 on the kickoff day to a high of 279,000 Saturday, Aug. 26. The exhibition lasted 19 days in 1971.

Looking to next year's program, Mr. Corrigan said the Chinese will participate again, but not as extensively. He said next year's largest exhibit will be a provincial government, but would elaborate, except to say it is not Ontario.

The CNE president contradicted statements made earlier by CNE officials that the Scottish World Festival will be back in 1973; maybe later, he said, but not next year.

"I think they should come every two or three years. That way, we could go on forever. If we have two in a row, that will finish it."

China's Victory Over Misery, Want Impressive

The following is the first of several articles by Pulitzer Prize-winning historian Barbara W. Tuchman, who recently returned from a trip to China, on what she refers to as "one of the greatest bootstrap operations in history."

By BARBARA W. TUCHMAN

In a country where misery and want were the foundation of the social structure, famine was periodic, death from starvation common, disease pervasive, slavery normal, and graft and corruption taken for granted, the elimination of these conditions in China is so striking that negative aspects of the new rule fade in relative importance.

The dominant fact is that for China's working class, which is to say over 80 per cent of the world's most populous country, the list of exploitation has been lifted. While invisible betterment varies widely between the major cities and the provinces, it is probably true to say of all areas that the working class have found a sense of purpose, self-confidence, and dignity in the knowledge that they are the objects of the state's concern, not, as in the past, society's victims.

The most obvious negative in the process is the mental monotone imposed upon the country. All thought, all ideas past, present and future, not to mention the historic record, are twisted, manipulated, rolled out and flattened into one, expressed in half a dozen slogans dinned incessantly and insistently into the heads of the public.

As far as the life of the mind in China is concerned, its scope has rigid limits and its sound is a blaring, endlessly repeated single note; with effect, at least upon a Westerner, like the drip, drip, drip on the victim's head of the ancient Chinese water torture.

The message is that "the People" are the motive force; that Marxism-Leninism is universal truth, and that propelled by its principles and Chairman Mao's thought China's working class can ultimately build socialism, meaning well-being for everyone. The goal lies ahead and can only be reached by keeping the revolution green, that is, by continually renewed contact with the masses.

Domestically it seems to work. I say "seems" through out these notes cautiously and advisedly because ignorance of the language is a barrier equal to being deaf. A six-week visitor under this handicap can offer conclusions as impression only.

Perhaps, too, the transfer to collectivism has been made easier because China's life was in some ways collective to begin with. Consider the "kang," the build-in, wall-to-wall bed of north China on which, in the poorer homes, the whole family sleeps. With that in their background, collective adjustment is natural, not to say imperative.

In any event, from what we could see through 11 cities and a variety of rural settlements, collective effort has made up China's oldest lack — enough food. Our reception at an agricultural commune in central Shansi included three or four heaping platters each of sliced fresh peaches and sweetened made of glutinous rice — a substance to make a Western stomach quail — in far greater abundance than was required by the company.

Admittedly this was laid on to impress the visitors, as was everything else we met in China, but the availability of such abundance to agricultural workers and their unhungry attitude toward it was simply not possible in the past when, as one member of the commune said, "the lower peasants could not even have the chaff of the rice to eat."

Controls Fail

BRANTFORD (CP) — Acreage controls imposed by the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Board have failed to increase prices and have caused loss of earnings for growers, says an economic report compiled by the University of Guelph.

The study produced for the provincial agriculture ministry says that acreage control "has only has failed to enhance producer prices but has imposed losses in the form of earnings forgone because of production restrictions."

Increased production, materially speaking, is what China's revolution is all about. It refutes all the firm statements of economists and agronomists in the past that China's arable land could not be augmented, nor the unit yield of land be raised sufficiently to feed the expanding population. Both have been done, not by magic but because the people have been mobilized and motivated to do it. The motivation resulted from expropriation and redistribution of land, permitting communal farming in large tracts instead of fractional plots, and from the knowledge that everything they do to make improvements will now benefit themselves, not the landlord.

I will cite no statistics on increased yield, but in this summer's drought in north China, with day after relentless day of no rain and of temperatures over 100, when one sees fresh water being pumped in life-giving gushes from irrigation channels, and trees surrounding fields green, vegetables ripening, and seedling crops sprouting instead of withering, one needs no statistics.

In the old days this year's drought would have been lethal. The great Ming Dam and reservoir northeast of Peking, the pumping stations and sedimentation plants along the Yellow River and similar projects have supplied power and brought drought, flood and famine under control. The result provides the agricultural surplus which, paid in kind to the state as a form of tax, supplies the capital for expansion of industry — the other of the two legs on which the new China walks.

Beats Machine

TIMMINS (CP) — Jim Donison of Sudbury struck a blow for mankind Sunday by shovelling a ton of rock in one minute and five seconds. His efforts made him the hand-mucking champion of Miner's Day held in conjunction with the town's diamond Jubilee. But that wasn't his only distinction—in the machine-mucking contest winner William Skomorowski of Timmins took three minutes and 33 seconds to move the same amount of rock.

"Insurance Is Going Up?"
Yes, increased losses force insurance premiums higher. One way to keep them down is to accept a 'deductible clause', as the cost of handling small claims is a big insurance expense. Also, 'padded' or false claims has the effect of forcing everyone's insurance costs up — such abuses of insurance should be discouraged.

Hundred Tourists Stranded in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — About 100 tourists who bought cut-rate tickets from the Soviet airline Aeroflot found themselves locked in a Moscow hotel Monday instead of free and touring as planned in Tokyo, New York or London.

The airline was unable to provide the seats it said them and the travellers were delayed here, where they were only to change planes, until flights could be made available to continue their trips.

Consular officials from Western embassies did not know exactly how many persons were involved, but there were reports from different countries, although more from Canada.

Since the tourists had no visas for the Soviet Union, their passports and tickets were held at the airport and they were kept under strict security in the Aeroflot transit hotel's upper four floors. Entrances to those floors were locked.

The travellers, some confined since Friday, were taken to the hotel restaurant in shifts.

Before you use your back, use your head.

The unfortunate thing about throwing your back into something is that you might just throw your back out. And that means pain. Perhaps time off work. And you're unable to enjoy all those nice things that make life worth living.

Think about what happens at work. You've got to move something, or lift it. And it's very heavy. So you either try moving or lifting on your own. Which might be painful. Or you use your head.

Using your head means that first you test the weight. If you can't lift it easily, get some help. That's self-defence. And it works. For you, your family, and your friends.

The sure way to safety is Self-Defence.

First test the weight.

If you can't lift it easily, get some help.

Enjoy all those nice things in life.

WEDDINGS

BLANCHARD — CHASE

St. Peter's Church in Trenton was the scene of the recent double-ring wedding ceremony of Sharon Chase, of Uxbridge, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Chase of RR 1 Carrying Place and Don Sebastian Blanchard, son of Mrs. F. A. Blanchard of Lindsay and the late Mr. Blanchard. Father J. Moran was the officiating clergyman. Wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Marie Rose who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Donna O'Dell.

The bride given in marriage by her father chose a floor length white Georgette sheath over crepe gown. White guipure lace accented the bodice while an empire waist, long full sleeves and a stand-up collar highlighted her gown. She wore a garland of flowers in her hair and carried a bouquet of red baby roses and stephanotis.

Susan Hunter of Belleville attended the bride wearing a long floral chiffon dress of royal blue and turquoise blue. An empire waistline, puffed sleeves and a scooped neckline enhanced her gown.

Best man was Joseph Black of Lindsay. Gordon Chase and Deacon Peter Doyle ushered the guests.

For the reception held at the Maple Inn, Bloomfield, the bride's mother received guests wearing a sapphire blue lustre crimplene dress completed by white accessories with a white and pink rose corsage.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a navy and white petal dress enhanced by a navy sleeveless coat, white accessories and a corsage of pink and white roses.

For the wedding trip to the east coast, the bride donned long red border print dress which featured a cummerbund waist. White accessories completed her dress.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard will reside in Lindsay.

PALMATEER — ARMSTRONG

TWEED St. John's United Church, Tweed, Ontario, was the scene of a double-ring wedding ceremony, recently, when Eva Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Robert Armstrong of Bannockburn, became the bride of George Arthur Palmateer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Palmateer of R. R. No. 1, Tweed, with Reverend I. E. Munro officiating. Fred Porter provided the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white lace over taffeta, featuring a large bow in the back and a shoulder length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red and white carnations.

Maid of honor, Miss Joan Mollins, of Stirling, was attired in a floor-length gown of white lace over yellow taffeta. She wore yellow and white 'mums in her hair and carried a matching bouquet.

Bridesmaid, Mrs. Elizabeth Allore, sister of the bridegroom; junior bridesmaid, Miss Sylvia Anne Allore, niece of the bridegroom, and flower girl, Miss Gail Armstrong, sister of the bride, wore white lace over blue, mauve and pink taffeta gowns. They wore matching flowers in their hair and carried tinted and white 'mums to match their dresses.

The best man was James Palmateer of Tweed, and the ushers were Clayton and William Palmateer. The ring bearer was Bruce Palmateer, cousin of the bridegroom. A reception was held in St. John's United Church Hall where the mother of the bride received the guests, wearing a yellow gown with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Assisting, the bridegroom's mother, was attired in a pink gown with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride's travelling ensemble was a beige linen dress trimmed with lace. She wore a corsage of orange and white 'mums.

Upon return from their wedding trip to Prince Edward Island, the couple will reside at R. R. No. 1, Tweed, Ontario.

MR. AND MRS. EDWIN RODNEY ST. AMAND

St. Amand – Hart

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville was the setting on Saturday, August 26, 1972, when Karen Ann Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hart, Belleville was united in marriage to Edwin Rodney St. Amand, London, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. St. Amand of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. Rev. Father J. MacGillivray officiated at the morning ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white lagoda in empire style with the bodice featuring a Victorian neckline and full wrist length Juliet sleeves. Highlighting the gown was a sleeveless coat of French crystalene lace with a built-in chapel train and band of matching lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses intermingled with stands daisies and fern.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister Miss Sean Hart and bridesmaids were Miss Elaine Buckle and Miss Stephanie Brennan, cousin of the bride who were identically attired in colorful floor length ensembles. They consisted of sleeveless dresses of white polyester crepe in A line style with the Victorian neckline and empire waistline outlined with blue and white embroidered ribbon. The gowns were highlighted with floor length coat, and attached head of blue and white wet-look lace. Each carried a white basket of matching blue-tinted white 'mums.

Michael Hanek of Toronto attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Paul Roebuck and John Silbert, both of London.

A reception was held in the Officers' Mess at CFB Trenton, where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a floor-length gown of flowered chiffon in shades of rose and fuschia with a corsage of white sweetheart roses and complimenting white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length gown of flowered polyester crepe in shades of pink and rose with white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip, the bride donned a pant suit of pink crimplene featuring a long fitted jacket with lace inserts and white accessories to complete her attire.

Mr. and Mrs. St. Amand will reside at 331 Queens Ave., London, Ontario.

Successful Living

When You Give Your Word, Keep It

By DORIS CLARK

About character values which ought to be part of what a young person learns: The second one on the list I quoted was trustworthiness. And here is what I think about it:

The longer we live, the more we appreciate those who live up to their word despite distractions and difficulties.

Trustworthiness means making a date and keeping it, even though something more attractive turns up; it means keeping a secret — to yourself! (The sort of thing I have to do all the time when I read and answer the letters you, my readers, send in to me).

To be able to be trusted means that if Pop promises Junior an evening at a ball game, nothing on this green earth can keep him away from that ball park with his boy on that particular night.

Doesn't it also mean saying the words "I do!" in front of a minister only after long and careful thought that this is a promise to be kept for, life, and then keeping it.

There are half-way measures with trustworthiness. Either you are reliable or you aren't.

Dear Doris: I am writing about a 37-year-old widow who has no support from anywhere and is living off meagre savings. Her husband left no will when he died six years ago.

There is a large family and a garage was left with five old cast iron running it. He and the father had worked together. Now this son takes whatever income is made for his own family of five.

The widow lives very poorly cooks on a wood stove and even splits her own wood.

She has no money for legal help. Can she draw any support for living expenses or any help to get what is really owning to her from her family — by attorney?

Dear Standstill: When a man does without a will, there are regulations in every province making provision for the widow—usually at least one third of his total estate will go to her. Six years ago this woman's share in the family business should have been established or the business sold so that she could obtain her share in cash.

There are times when investing in a lawyer is the best economy in the world. Or she may obtain service through a Legal Aid office in your local County Seat.

There's no reason in the world why she should be living on a meagre pittance, sort because sons and daughters are acting as if she didn't exist.

Dear Doris: Our daughter's wedding is to be a simple one. She wishes a "stand-up" type of reception so that guests (about 175) may mingle freely.

Refreshments would be of an afternoon tea type — sandwiches, dainties, etc. Please send me any hints about general procedures, toasts and so on.—Mother of the Bride.

Dear Mother: Stand-up" is fine — just as long as there are some places to sit down, particularly for the more elderly guests. A rest for tired feet is gratefully accepted.

Guests will enjoy mingling and moving from group, to group, as long as there are enough to converse with old friends of the bride to get everybody introduced and feeling at home.

My leaflet "Happy The Bride the Sun Shines On", and the latest "Wedding Toasts" will help you to see how other people manage. I am sending these along to you. (Available to anyone writing in, enclosing 30 cents for each leaflet and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope).

Ann Landers

Special Time Each Day to Converse with Children

Dear Ann Landers: A young neighbor of mine has six children under 12 years of age. I have always admired this young woman for the way in which she handles her growing family. The children get along beautifully. They are courteous and mannerly. Yesterday I learned her secret.

She told me she makes it a point to spend at least 10 minutes each day engaged in a personal conversation with each child. This makes them feel visible. It adds to their self-esteem and reduces the sibling rivalry that most children grow up with. A child doesn't resent a brother or sister who gets parental attention if he gets his share.

Will you please find room in your column for this little nugget, Ann—Lady Across The Road

Dear Lady: Here's the nugget and my thanks for allowing me to put it in a showcase for other mothers to see. If every mother who reads your letter will make a special effort to act on your suggestion today, I'll bet they'll be astonished at the results.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the girl who signed herself "Chickadee" and it's after midnight, but I won't sleep tonight unless I write her this letter. She said her fiance has a hot temper, is very suspicious and constantly checking and accusing her of everything under the sun. She closed by saying she can't live with or without him.

I pray that "Chickadee" will take your advice and ditch the bum. If she has a brain in her head she'll run for her life in the opposite direction. It may hurt for awhile but better to have a few weeks (or months) of agony than a lifetime of it. Hot tempers don't fade. They get better. I know what I am talking about, because I married the same kind of lunatic and I have the scars to prove it.

So many girls think they are going to make a man over after they are married but it never works out that way. I realize this is a pretty tired tune I'm singing, but some people have to hear something 48 times before it sinks in. So, I say to all you "Chickadees" out there, call me a bore, but do yourselves a favor and listen.—Learned The Hard Way.

Dear Learned: Here's your letter and if just one person gets the message it was worth staying up an extra 30 minutes to write.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm probably old enough to be your mother but I am coming to you for advice because you seem to have good judgement.

I am a widow who recently met another nice woman with out a husband. We have gone to the movies together and have had dinner in one another's homes and in restaurants.

The problem is her table manners. They are atrocious. This otherwise genteel woman uses her thumb as a pusher, eats stewed chicken with her hands, drips gravy all over the tablecloth, and frequently uses her forefinger to dislodge food from her dentures. At 64 it's gold. I become nauseated. The last time we dined out I simply did not look at her.

I enjoy this woman's company but I cannot stand her table manners.

Should I drop her or tell her how I feel. Or is there a chance that I are excessively critical and fidalcant.—New Orleans

Dear N.O.: Tell her. If she resents it and disconsiders the friendship you have lost nothing. If you don't tell her, you will soon become so annoyed by her grossness that you will eventually attack her on some other grounds and the friendship will be over.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Are most gamblers conceited?

YES; and that goes whether they are two-dollar bettors or real "sharpers"—and they can either be devil-may-care women of Lady Luck or compulsive gamblers. The "square" gambler is conceited enough to think fortune is going to smile his way; the compulsive gambler is unconscionably and eternally hopeful that he will lose, while at the same time he thinks so highly of himself that he gives the impression he would desperately to win.

Can parents make a child fat?

NO; overeating is what fattens up the youngster who ordinarily could keep his weight within manageable bounds. The child, however, might have been led down the gluttony path by his parents. His mother, for instance, might have been overly solicitous when she saw her son suffer pain over rejection by his playmates. It was easy to assuage his hurt with goodies; and easier for him, thereafter, to seek solace in food at every disappointment.

Does status worry most couples?

PERHAPS it is not worry, although economic security does concern every couple, especially those who know their standard of living can change because of circumstances beyond their control. The happy husband and wife, though, have other things on their mind than worry about how they compare with others in their neighborhood. They are too busy building their love together so that it will sustain them whether their material fortunes go down or up.

Parley Called on Violence In Metro Building Industry

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Justice Secretary Allan Lawrence announced Monday he has called a Tuesday "emergency" meeting of law enforcement officials to discuss growing violence in Metro Toronto's construction industry.

Mr. Lawrence and Solicitor-General John Robarts have cancelled a trip to Northern Ontario with other legislature members to meet with the Ontario Police Commission and the Metro Toronto Police Commission.

"I deem this particular problem and the apparent inability of the Metro Toronto police to deal with the problem effectively so important that I think very extraordinary meeting such as this is required," the justice secretary said.

Sunday, Mr. Lawrence refused a demand by Dr. Morton Shulman, NDP member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, for a royal commission into alleged extortion in the building field here.

Dr. Shulman's call was made after a $30,000 bombing Saturday at Acme Lathing and Drywall Ltd. here. Vice-president Stanley Sosin of ALC Interior Systems Ltd., Acme's parent company, said his company has been a victim of violence since he refused nine months ago to merge with competitors.

Dr. Shulman charged racketeers attempting to take over control of the $28-million-a-year lathing industry are responsible for a series of bomb attacks on ALC subsidiaries.

Prize Released

LONDON (AP) — Bobby Fischer and Boris Spassky got good news Monday. They are getting the $125,500 in prize money British financier James D. Slater is putting up in any currency they want.

Slater announced Monday that the Bank of England has granted permission to export the £50,000 he offered when Fischer was balking at starting the world chess championship match in Iceland. Because of Britain's current economic troubles, currency transfers abroad are tightly controlled.

Fischer's share from Slater is £76,562.50. He got £78,125 from the Icelandic Chess Federation, making his total purse as the winner and new world's chess champion $154,687.50.

Slater said Fischer had asked that his share be paid to his account in an Icelandic bank. Apparently he wants to keep it away from promoter Chester Fox who is suing him in New York for $1.75 million because Fischer wouldn't let him film the match.

Canadian Hunted

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (CP-AP) — The FBI said Monday it was continuing a search for an escaped Canadian prisoner in connection with a bank robbery here during the weekend.

The FBI said its agents were searching for Roger Joseph Caron, 34, of Ottawa and said another escaped convict, William Bell of Brockville, had been arrested and charged with bank robbery.

Police said Caron and Bell had escaped from prison in Brockville Aug. 9. Bell had been serving a two-year sentence for theft and Caron was awaiting trial on an armed robbery charge, the FBI said.

Gas Leak

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Lake Erie, known for its man-made pollution, now apparently is being dirtied by a natural gas leak.

Bubbles are appearing a few hundred yards off suburban Lakewood, Ohio, and officials said it appears to be natural gas gushing upwards from a two-to three-foot long crevice. It is not known how deep the crack is or the size of the gas deposit.

Schooner Safe

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (CP) — A 30-foot schooner with three persons aboard, the object of an international search, arrived here safely Monday, two days after it left St. Catharines heading for this port on Lake Ontario.

No Money ?

TORONTO (CP) — Some Toronto undertakers have taken issue with a Roman Catholic commission report critical of their prices.

The commission reported to Most Rev. Philip Pocock, Archbishop of Toronto, that financial affairs of funeral homes should be investigated because of "wide disparity" in prices and alleged exploitation of dead persons' relatives. The commission was set up by the archbishop last winter.

"Nobody makes any money in this business," said John Brown, head of a large undertaking firm. His financial statements were open to inspection any time.

Three Slayings

TORONTO (CP) — Two men have been charged with non-capital murder and a third is being sought by homicide detectives following three separate murders in Toronto over the weekend.

Thomas Joseph Coffey, 21, was charged with non-capital murder Sunday after his father, Terrence Coffey, 47, died in hospital from injuries suffered in a beating Saturday.

Brian Roberts, 20, was charged with non-capital murder in connection with the shooting death early Sunday of Gary Spencer, 27. Police said Mr. Spencer had gone to visit a woman and his two children.

Being hunted is a man who shot two youths and a girl early Saturday. One of the victims, Derek Hannan, 22, died of shotgun wounds about two hours after the incident.

Diver Dies

TOBERMORY, Ont. (CP) — Frances Fleming, Toronto, is dead and two men are in a decompression chamber in a Toronto hospital following a scuba diving accident near here Monday.

John Locmelis, 27, of Whitby, Ont., and Daniel Beemer, 28, of Toronto, were reported in satisfactory condition in hospital after having been flown there by two helicopters from Canadian Forces Base Downsview in Toronto.

Two More Escape

KINGSTON (CP) — Two more prisoners have escaped from nearby Millhaven penitentiary, bringing to 16 the number of escapers from the institution in less than two months.

John Thomas O'Neil, 30, of Toronto and Ronald Murray Durham, 35, of Nova Scotia walked away from the minimum security annex of the penitentiary Saturday evening.

The spokesman said the escape was revealed at "lockup time" when the routine head count was held. He said the men apparently walked away from a baseball game that was being played in an unfenced area.

Chou Thwarted

Peking (Reuter) — Canadian businessmen here home Sunday at the end of their first trade fair in China, leaving behind one disappointed would-be customer, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

Chou, when he visited the 12-day exposition late last week, asked immediately to be shown Canadian snow-clearing equipment.

He was told that none had been brought from Canada, despite the fact that one of the world's biggest makers of snow-clearing apparatus is based in Montreal.

Paquette Held

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Defendant Frederick Paquette, a former Canadian Football League player, was in custody here Monday after surrendering to police in Toronto earlier in the day.

Paquette, 32, of Toronto, is charged with non-capital murder following the death last week of Kenneth Mera, 41, of London. He will appear in court today.

Sheriff Jailed

MUNISING, Mich. (AP) — Alger County Sheriff Cluen Malone wound up in his own jail briefly Sunday night on a drunken-driving complaint, but officials discovered later they had no authority to arrest him.

After checking the law, Alger County Prosecutor William Warner and Munising Police Chief Doug Miner concluded that the only one who could arrest the sheriff was the county coroner, acting on a signed complaint from a citizen.

Warner said the sheriff was involved in a traffic accident Sunday and the owner of the other car would issue a formal complaint.

'Colombo' Held

MONTREAL (CP) — Laurier Denis Boutin, 31, alias Joseph Colombo Jr., was arrested by police here on five-year-old warrants charging him with fraud and auto theft and will appear in court today, police said Monday.

Police said Boutin, accompanied by his fiance, a former Winnipeg hospital clerk, will be arrested on a warrant dating back to 1968.

O'Connell Sees Evolution Of Voluntary Arbitration

TORONTO (CP) — A major evolution in collective bargaining could come about through use of voluntary, binding arbitration, Martin O'Connell, federal labor minister, said Monday.

Mr. O'Connell said he believes labor and management "are turning increasingly in this direction as the adverse effects of prolonged strike action becomes more apparent and burdensome on all."

The minister, addressing a Labor Day luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition, noted that since 1967 this type of settlement has been open to employees in the federal public service. He described it as "a large area for experiment in voluntary arbitration in the social service."

"I believe that if this process of voluntary arbitration can be proved successful in the public service, it will be more salient to the private sector," he said. "It would result in less recourse to the strike or lockout weapon and less suspension of vital services."

Davis Remains Silent

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis arrived back in Canada from London Saturday but refused to comment on the resignation Thursday of Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough.

Asked whether he has accepted Mr. McKeough's resignation, Mr. Davis replied: "Mr. McKeough has submitted his resignation beyond that I have no comment."

Mr. Davis said he had not talked to the provincial treasurer since Thursday morning when Mr. McKeough informed him of his decision in a telephone call to London.

But he "will certainly be dealing with Mr. McKeough shortly."

He also said he will comment on the McKeough situation "very shortly" and expected to issue a statement "on the general situation regarding conflict of interest."

Shop-owners Strike

Police Stand Guard Over Rome's Shoppers

ROME (AP) — Housewives went shopping under police supervision here Monday—when they were lucky enough to find an open store.

It was the start of what promised to be the worst week of strike and unrest this summer in Italy—with a national train strike starting Monday evening and chemical and other industrial workers scheduling walkouts for later in the week.

Butchers, grocers and fruit vendors closed in Rome in protest against a price freeze. There was a buying rush at supermarkets, which stayed open, but shoppers found many of the counters had run out of food—particularly meat, fruit and vegetables.

The situation might get worse in the next few days. Rome's only slaughterhouse was idle Monday with employees hanging around and no one showing up with cattle to kill.

Food merchants appeared determined in their anti-government protest as a 48-day freeze on retail food prices went into a second week in Rome and its province. Shop owners clashed with police and beat up merchants who opened their stores during two days of strike last week.

Some of the municipal meat markets and fruit stands closed down for the day. Their managers said they were warned against opening by threatening, anonymous phone calls.

Rome's Butcher Association called a strike for Monday and today and threatened to extend it through the week. Fruit and vegetable vendors also closed down for two days, leaving Rome's traditionally congested street markets deserted. Bak- ers and grocers joined in the protest by closing down in the afternoon Monday and today.

They want the government to call off the price freeze. They particularly resent the fact that controls have been imposed only on retail prices, leaving wholesalers unaffected, and that Rome alone in Italy has been put under the freeze.

Campbell Doesn't Want Any More Team-Canada All-stars

TORONTO (CP) — Under no circumstances, says Clarence Campbell, will the makeup of a hockey team to play at the international level ever again follow the Team Canada format.

Disappointed over a 7-3 setback to the Russians Saturday night, Campbell said Sunday future games will be played by an organized team rather than a group of National Hockey League players thrown together for a three-week crash program.

"There is no way we're ever going to have an all-star team that plays together all the time as the Russians do now," Campbell said in an interview before Canada won the second game Monday. "I just can't visualize this type of all-star team being put together again.

"It wouldn't be this time except for the availability of Harry Sinden."

Campbell said the only possible way to have an all-star team represent Canada in future international tournaments would be to employ player contracts similar to those now in use for soccer in Britain.

"In England and Scotland the player's terms of contract release him from any obligation to play team matches when he is selected to play for his country."

While labelling Sinden, Team Canada coach and general manager, a bonus in setting up the present series of eight exhibition games with Russia, Campbell said he was somewhat upset by the selection of players for the opening game at Montreal Saturday night.

"I think Sinden was influenced somewhat by certain sentimental factors . . . an affiliation with players."

Campbell said, adding he couldn't understand why Ken Dryden, who had "basically a bad training camp," was chosen to start in goal over Dave Tony Esposito "who's always played well in Montreal."

Waiting Game Beats Russians

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada played the waiting game Monday night and reaped the fruits of a costly lesson.

"We found out a lot by losing Saturday night," said coach Harry Sinden after the Canadians handed Russia a 4-1 setback at Maple Leaf Gardens to even the series at 3-3-1 apiece.

The Canadians, left in the wake of the well-conditioned Soviet players in Game One, made their own breaks Monday and kept the visiting speedsters in check.

Phil Esposito, Yvan Cournoyer, Peter Mahovlich and Frank Mahovlich scored for Team Canada. Alexander Yakushev broke Team Canada goaltender Tony Esposito's shutout early in the third period.

The Canadians came through with three third-period goals, the first by Cournoyer while the Soviets were a man short and the second by Peter Mahovlich while the Canadians had a man in the penalty box.

"The game Saturday was a conditioner for us and by the third period tonight we seemed to be getting over the hump," said Phil Esposito. "After two games now we're pretty close to being in condition and this is going to make a big difference."

Third of the four Canadian games will be in Winnipeg Wednesday night, starting at 7 p.m. CDT (9 p.m. EDT), and will be carried nationally on the CTV network.

One of the big differences in the Team Canada performance from the opening game was their decision to keep a close check on the Russians who had been allowed to use their free-wheeling style to advantage in the first meeting.

Sinden did a major rushup to add more defensive strength that paid off.

"We played a much closer-checking game and a little more sensible," admitted Sinden at a post-game interview at which members of the Russian coaching staff failed to put in an appearance. "Those were the key factors tonight."

Asked if his game plan called for slowing the play by bouncing the Russians around, a tactic that failed in the first game, Sinden admitted this is what the Canadians had in mind but "we hit them when we have come instead of laying to manufacture situations."

The Soviets' patterned offence continued to frustrate Team Canada early in the game, but under relentless skating and solid checks the visitors finally showed signs of losing their poise in the second period.

Wayne Cashman, goaded by reporters to admit he was playing the policeman's role for Team Canada, replied only: "My job is to play right wing."

Several of his robust sorties into the Russian one almost triggered retaliation from the normally pacific visitors. Referees Steve Dowling and Frank Larmen were kept busy keeping the players apart.

Team Canada took five of the nine penalties, but the Russians were hit hardest when high-scoring Valery Kharlamov was sentenced to 10 minutes in the penalty box for brushing against Dowling while serving a minor sentence to a teammate.

While he was off the Canadians scored three goals that wrapped up the victory in easy fashion.

The temperature in the Garden was more attuned to hockey than to the Forum. Temperatures inside the Montreal arena ranged between 80 and 100 degrees while the Gardens was a not-so-humid 65.

The better-conditioned Russians took advantage of the sticky weather Saturday to leave the Canadians wilting. Kharlamov, and Boris Mikhailov, Vladimir Petrov and Yakushev also tallied for the winners. Phil Esposito, Paul Henderson and Bobby Clarke were the Canadian marksmen.

There were several heated exchanges in the first period over line changes. Sinden said that the international rules are no different than NHL—the home side gets to make the final change.

Canada-Russia Briefs

Kharlamov Worth Million to Ballard

TORONTO (CP) — Although he's having difficulty negotiating with team captain Dave Keon, Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Sunday he would pay a million dollars if he could get Russian hockey star Valeriy Kharlamov on a National Hockey League contract.

"He's the best young forward in the world," Ballard said, assessing the play of the 165-pound left winger who scored two goals for the Russian National in their 7-3 victory over Team Canada Saturday.

Ballard indicated that Keon was likely to return as captain of the Leafs following his apparent failure to come to terms with Ottawa Nationals of the World Hockey Association.

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda crowed Monday about Russia's opening-game 7-3 victory over Team Canada.

Predictions of eight straight for Team Canada proved a bit "premature", said Pravda correspondent K. Geivandov in a story from Montreal.

After forward Valery Kharlamov's first goal put the Russians ahead 3-2 in the second period, Pravda said, "the Soviets dominated until the end."

LONDON (CP) — A chuckling, John (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, admitted an "I told you so" attitude Monday to Canada's defeat in the first game of the current series with Russia.

And Ahearne predicted that the Russians will emerge victorious over - all in the series between them and the professional hockey players representing Canada.

The moral of the story, he said in an interview, is that "you don't have to be a Canadian to be a top-class hockey player."

Of the Saturday night 7-3 Russian victory in Montreal, Ahearne said:

"I'm not surprised. I've been forteling this for years."

But he said he did not think the Canadian hockey authorities will learn their lesson from the defeat he predicted for Canada in the eight game series.

"I don't think they'll wake up," he said. "They're too small-minded. They'll now start to think up alibis"

Track Takes Weird Turns

MUNICH (CP) — Athletes who spend four years training to compete at the Olympic Games and never win a medal were making their heads at some of the goings-on in Olympic track and field Monday.

Vlg Keino, an established distance runner but a novice at the 3,000-metre steeplechase which he ran for the first time four months ago, beat a fellow-Kenyan in Olympic record time for the gold medal.

Sixteen-year-old Ulrika Meyfarth of West Germany, in her first year of internat'onal competition, equalled the world record as she won the women's high jump.

And 19-year-old Glenda Reiser of Ottawa, who switched from swimming to track 10 months ago and still doesn't know that runners are supposed to take it easy in qualifying heats, forced Ludmila Bragina of Russia to break the old world record in the 1,500 metres and get under the old mark herself.

A sprint double — Valery Borzov with his victory in the 200 metres and a repeat by another Russian, Viktor Saneyev, in the triple jump restored decorum to the proceedings and the United States swept the last four events in the swimming competition, also at world record times as Canada collected a pair of bronze medals.

Mark Spitz was helped to an unprecedented seventh gold medal in the 4x200-metre freestyle team with the Canadian victory of Dale Kerr, Medicine Hat, Alta.; Bill Mahoney, New Westminster, B.C.; Bruce Hence Stevenson, Vancouver, and Bob Keeling, Lethbridge, Alta. Mahoney missed a silver medal and setting a national record.

Donna Marie Gurr, silver with Vancouver made amends for a disappointing showing in the 100-metre butterfly by finishing third behind two U.S. girls in the 200.

Klaus Dibiasi of Italy joined Spitz as a repeat winner by taking the men's lower diving competition and the favored Russian candidates, with only one gold medal to show for the first week of competition, finally captured a second in the heavyweight class.

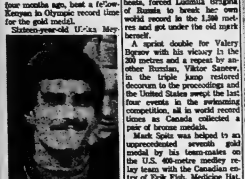
Victories in water polo and tandem cycling gave the Soviet Union a total of five for the day but they lost a sixth when Italian fencers took away the team sabre title that had been Russian property in the last two Games.

Japan won its third judo championship in the lightweight division and the team pursuit cycling title went to West Germany.

Keino, who has described the steeplechase as "an event for camels and says he jumps like a horse, began boning up on it 30 days after he discovered that the schedule prevented him from entering both the 1,500 and 5,000 metres.

The home crowd was delighted when the tall, slender Miss Meyfarth used the Brill Bend to clear six feet, 3¾ inches while Ilona Gusenbauer of Austria, who originally established the world mark, was second. The originator of the backward bend, Debbie Brill of Hanoy, B.C., was eighth at 5 11¾.

Some of the weekend high lights:



— Lasse Viren, a 23-year-old Finnish policeman won the 10,000 metres for his country's first long-distance victory since 1936.

— John Akii-Bua Uganda won the 400-metre hurdles to give the African country its first ever Olympic gold medal.

— Bruce Simpson of Montreal broke the pole vault record. Wendy Cook, 15, of Vancouver, fifth in the 100-metre backstroke. Simpson cleared 14 feet 9¾ inches while Miss Cook was clocked in 1:08.8, the best time of her life.

MARK SPITZ

Spitz Sparkles

MUNICH (CP) — Mark Spitz won a record seven gold medals in the Olympics, two more than the previous high gold winner in a single Games, Italian fencer Nedo Nadi who won five in 1920.

With the two gold medals he won four years ago in relays, the 22-year-old American has equalled the record of nine golds for all Olympics by gymnast Larisa Latynina of Russia in 1956, 1960 and 1964.

Spitz is the first swimmer to win four individual gold. He also got three in the relays.

All his records are in the books as world records.

They are: 100 - metre freestyle, 51.22 seconds; 200 freestyle, 1:52.78; 100 butterfly, 54.27; 200 butterfly, 2:00.70; 400 freestyle relay as anchor man, 3:36.42; 800 freestyle relay as freestyle 1:52.78; 100 butterfly leg of 400 medley relay, 3:48.16.

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan, represented by Weyburn Canadians, upset the defending champion Richmond Hill Dynes from Ontario 2-0 Sunday to win the Canadian Senior A men's softball championship.

McQuay Breaks Argonaut Ice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Leon McQuay came back Sunday to old Ian Sunter.

McQuay, Toronto's flashy halfback, returned to help the Argonauts in their first Eastern Football Conference win, a 42-27 decision over Montreal Alouettes.

And Sunter, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' rookie place-kicker, came back for a fifth field goal try after missing four in a row to give his club a 17-16 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders on the last play of the game.

Sunter's kick from 42 yards, after missing in the second half from 32, 41, 46 and 52 yards, sent the Rough Riders to their first defeat of the season.

Hamilton's victory evened the Tiger-Cats' record at 3-3 and moved them to within two points of Ottawa, who have four wins.

The Alouettes, yet to win at home, are third with four points and Argos are last with two points.

The moody McQuay was missing when the team plane left Toronto Sunday night after he had a flare-up with coach Dave Rainey on the practice field Saturday.

"I didn't know he was here until this morning," Argonaut coach Leo Cahill said in Montreal after the win. "Evidently he arrived here late Sunday night but nobody told me about it. I had no idea where he was."

Neither McQuay nor Rainey would talk about the incident.

"Talk to somebody else, man, I've got nothing to say," McQuay muttered after he ran the ball 14 times to pile up 129 of the 145 yards the Argonauts picked up on the ground.

McQuay also caught touchdown passes from quarterback Wally Gabler and backup Jim Ghasey, who relieved in the fourth quarter.

Cahill said: "There's no question of a suspension. However we'll discuss the matter between us when we get home."

Gabler, making his second start this season for Toronto, also threw two scoring strikes to Eric Allen and another to Mike Eben as the Argos erased a 14-7 Montreal lead and dispatched 14,394 fans.

In Hamilton, a record Ivor Wynne Stadium crowd of 34,778 had a reason to be apprehensive as Sunter strode into the ball to pu ptive first started on the Hamilton 15 with 1:27 left.

Eskimos All Alone

Edmonton Eskimos took sole possession of first place and there was some minor shuffling in the lower ranks Monday after two Western Football Conference contests.

The Eskimos took advantage of many errors in beating the Stampeders 31-13 at Calgary while Winnipeg, which has been tied for first place, dropped into a second-place tie when it was beaten 32-21 by Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina.

With 10 points from five wins and one defeat, Edmonton has a two-point edge over Winnipeg and Saskatchewan while Calgary has four points and British Columbia Lions are in the cellar with two.

The Lions get a chance, although it's a slim one, to pick up points Thursday when they meet the Bombers at Winnipeg.

At Calgary Monday, alert plays by tight end Tyrone Walls gave Edmonton the edge. He put the Eskimos on the scoreboard after 10 minutes of play when he picked up a fumble by Calgary's John Senn and ran 37 yards for a touchdown. He added another touchdown in the fourth quarter-on a 67-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Tom Wilkinson.

In all, Calgary mistakes let the visitors pick up 16 points.

At Regina, the Roughriders gave Winnipeg a lesson in ball control to end the Bombers' four-game winning streak.

Saskatchewan was never threatened seriously and a good example of the way they performed was their fourth touchdown. Quarterback Ron Lancaster put together an 85-yard march downfield, using 15 plays, and George Reed capped the assault with a one-yard dive for six points.

Quarterback Don Jonas and halfback Hugh Harris, Herron and Ed Williams got Winnipeg's touchdowns. Jonas and Williams scored their on two yard plunges while Herron's was a sizzling 65-yard run. Jonas converted all three.

Herron's touchdown, his 10th of the season, gave him a total of 60 points in the conference's individual scoring race. 17 more than Jonas and Cutler. Jonas' points are from one touchdown, 19 converts and six field goals while Cutler's are from 18 converts, five field goals and 10 singles.

Four Teams Fight To Eastern Wire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The pennant scramble in the American League East is so wacky that the four contenders who started play Monday with only one-half game separating them finished the day with one put guessed it—one-half game separating them.

Baltimore Orioles split a double-header with New York Yankees, winning 4-3 and then losing 5-2. That dropped the Orioles into a first place tie with Detroit, which edged Cleveland Indians 2-1.

Boston Red Sox beat Milwaukee Brewers 7-4, but lost the nightcap 6-2 and trails the leaders by one-half game and three percentage points.

Boston took its opener from Milwaukee as Luis Tiant hurled a five-hitter for his fourth consecutive shutout and Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run homer. A group of former Red Sox watched Milwaukee's victory in the nightcap. Sl y G'Ferrio hit a tie-breaking two-run homer, Joe Lahoud also homered, George Scott delivered a run-scoring single and Ken Brett was the winning pitcher.

Willie Horton paced Detroit's victory with a two-run two-out triple off Gaylord Perry in the sixth inning, again preventing the Cleveland ace from winning his 20th game in his third try.

Pitchers Forgotten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Al Oliver's two, three-run homers started Pittsburgh Pirates to a 10-3, 5-1 doubleheader sweep Monday of Philadelphia Phillies.

But after sharing the hero's act with Dave Blass' five-hitter in the first game, Oliver took a back seat to Bruce Kison in the second as the baby-faced right-hander completed Pittsburgh's ninth doubleheader sweep this year with a five-hitter.

"You hear so much about our hitters that people forget that we have one of the best pitching staffs in baseball," said Oliver.

Pittsburgh's National League-leading Bucs' margin jumped to 13 games after the Labor Day activities. Chicago Cubs, second in the East, lost a game after splitting a doubleheader with New York Mets and dropped its first one 2-0 and losing the second 7-2.

The West-leading Cincinnati Reds split a doubleheader with Los Angeles Dodgers and improved their margin to 8½ games. After the Dodgers won the first game 3-2, Pete Rose came back to win the nightcap 6-4 and cover a half-game on Houston Astros who lost 6-5 to Atlanta Braves.

In the other National League games, Montreal Expos slammed St. Louis Cardinals 14-0 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second, 8-7 and San Francisco Giants tripped San Francisco Giants 1-0

So Who Needs To Know Game?

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

TORONTO — Michael Morris, of Campbellton, New Brunswick and Nick Wasicksiwitsch had only one thing in common Saturday — they were absorbed by the Team Canada-Russia world series of hockey.

Michael, train-bound for his second year of studies at Humber Community College, was as quaint a down - home cum - beer - drinking Maritimer as Stompin' Tom Connors himself.

He had other things on his mind, like whether he'd have to endure a spell of coffee and peanut butter ("that's without bread") diet on his $15 weekly living allowance, but he still knew Canada had been humbled 7-3 in Saturday's first game of the eight-game series.

And nothing, not even poaching savory salmon out of the Restigouche River, like he'd went to do from time to time, could bring him more pleasure than to see the Canadians beat the Russians.

His analysis of Saturday's shocking setback was some-

Printers' Gamble Pays Off

Devolin Motors couldn't start hitting and Quinte Hotel just couldn't start as both Post Commercial Softball League semi-final games Monday.

Devolins were blanked 1-0 by Howard and Robert Printing, while Quinte failed to field a full team and were forced to forfeit a 9-0 verdict to Rollins. The win by Howard and Robert gives them a 2-1 lead in the best-of-three series while Rollins has a 2-0 grip on their 10-game total.

A gamble paid off for Howard and Robert as pitcher Bob Swan issued an intentional walk to Rick Rosebush in the third inning to load the bases with two outs. Devolin's Jack Jury then planted a long fly ball to centre that Pug Wallace grabbed against the fence for the third out.

Moe Hanlan scored the winning run, reaching base on an error by Rick Maher who elected to field on a sacrifice by Swan and Rusty Garvin's single and scored on a dropped fly ball by left fielder Tom MacDonald.

Swan gave up five hits for the Printers, striking out three and walking one. The loss was pinned on Don Holoway with fanning six.

Garvin and Dwight Rathwell had two singles each for the winners with Vern Walters matching that mark for Devolin.

Broncos Burst From Gate

OTTAWA — Monday was a day of firsts for the CFB Trenton Broncos. To begin with it was the first game of their National Defence Football League schedule and for the first time in their three-year history the Broncos opened with a win. To top things off the victory was a 14 - 7 decision over the RCMP Hustlers, the first time that Trenton has ever beaten the Mounties.

The RCMP scored on their opening drive as they took the kickoff and marched 80 yards for the score. The 7-0 margin held until the third quarter when Jim Simpson of the Broncos lofted a 49-yard single.

Quarterback Rudy Sitnicki darted 25 yards for the Broncos first touchdown with Bernie Coughlan adding the winning point with a convert. Simpson scored the second major on a quarterback keeper in the final play of the game.

Jim Simpson was the outstanding Trenton player, scoring a touchdown, a single and picking off two RCMP passes.

what more forthright than those you'd read in most critiques, if a trifle less kind.

"The trouble is, our guys were out drinking beer and water-skiing all summer while the Russians were staying in shape."

Michael's fierce nationalism was tempered by the knowledge of hockey he had acquired from watching Campbellton's intermediate A Canadian champion Tigers.

Unfortunately, although he would have loved to attend either Saturday's 7-3 Russia win, or Monday's Canadian comeback, Michael Morris' $15 weekly living allowance wouldn't have put him any closer than a subway stop away from Maple Leaf Gardens's Forum or Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Nick Wasicksiwitsch, on the other hand, had never seen a live hockey game before but was sitting up there in the Gardens Monday to see Jujus like any of the Carleton St. regulars.

Although Nick doesn't know an offside from a landslide, he produces the Russian-language program "Neva" on Toronto Radio CHIN and thereby earned himself one of nearly 500 available media accreditations.

Yet Nick, like the other 16,465 paying customers, knew that he was watching a vital event. He knew it partly because he kept seeing faces he recognized from the cover pages — like Mitchell Sharp, and Paul Martin, and Lester B. Pearson, and Pierre Trudeau — and partly because he was well aware that any time Russians and Canadians get together it's not just to discuss the finer points of chess.

* * *

"If Jean Chrétien called Canada today nobody would pay any attention to him," Nick leaned over and whispered in his shattered Soviet English.

Well, maybe Nick Unless he had a slapshot as good as Bobby Hull's.

Morris 22nd Best in World

Price Morris couldn't bridge the financial gap that exists between Canada and some of the world's weightlifting powers, placing 22nd out of 25 heavyweight lifters at the Monday.

Morris earned the right to compete in his first Olympics by winning the Canadian championship in St. John's, Newfoundland earlier this summer. The Frankford resident won four bronze medals at the Pan-American games in 1971, and was the third-place finisher in the 1970 Commonwealth Games.

Time Was Right

Betty Kelsey is able to tell that it's the second "time" that she has won the Belleville Golf and Country Club championship as

Goyer Wins Title on Wing

Gary Goyer needed wings to make up a five-shot deficit after the opening round of the Belleville Golf and Country Club's mens championship. He got them.

The versatile Belleville athlete carded an eagle on the 34th and a birdie on the final hole of the 36-hole championship to give him his first club title, Goyer had trailed Bob Mound's 71 by five strokes after the first day of play but evened the score after 27 holes.

An eagle by Goyer on the 34th hole put him one up, but Mound's birdie on the following hole tied the match. Goyer's birdie three on the par-four 18th allowed him to edge Mound by one stroke.

The club champion finished at 76-72 for a 151 total while Mound was 77-81 for 152. Third place in the low gross went to Bob Wilkes.

In the ladies event it was Betty Kelsey winning her second championship in as many years by carding 88-89 for a 177 total.

The mén's low net honors went to Jay Morrison of Belleville with rounds of 85-90. Harold Workhoven placed second in that section and Cliff Marnie third.

Peach Johnson took women's low net with rounds of 102 and 106, while Marg Cousins finished second and Evelyn Foreman third.

A total of 35 men and 25 women competed in the two-day event.

Tykes Zeroing In; Brakemen Pull Away

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund tykes "zeroed" in on an Ontario Baseball Association quarter-final win Monday.

The Belleville tykes had dropped a 3-0 decision to Burlington Saturday but blanked their opponents 7-0 the following day to win the series two games to one.

Dale McTaggart hurtled a five-hitter with three strikeouts and one walk for the winners. His main batting support came from Charlie Dorian who smacked a triple and two singles. Mark Crawford added one of each while Garth Scully had a double and single.

McTaggart had lost a four-hitter Saturday as Burlington's Kent Wagner had checked the Yardmen on just two safeties. McTaggart fanned six batters and walked once. His only help came from Dorian and Crawford with a single each.

The Brakemen and Coachmen peewee squad rapped Sudbury 11-3 Saturday to win their OBA quarter-final series in two straight games.

Peter Hall pitched the Belleville win allowing four hits and five walks while striking out 11 batters. Andy Lapenotte paced the batsmen with three doubles and a single while Bruce Bell was good for three singles and a double and Howie Coons a pair of singles.

In house league action Monday, Golden Mile edged Kinsmen 7-6 in a bantam semi-final bout. Brian Turner's five-hitter earned the victory. He fanned 17 batters and walked three. For the Kinsmen it was Mike McClelland allowing only four hits, but walking 10 batters. He recorded 13 strikeouts.

Jeff Merill had a double for Golden Mile, with singles going to John Enright, Steve Jones and Stan Hymers. For the Kinsmen it was McClelland with a triple and single and singles by Mike Crawford, Tony Meacher and Larry Bradley.

Soviet Player's Survey

Hockey Moral Issue?

TORONTO (CP) — A Soviet hockey player is asking Team Canada members to answer anonymously a questionnaire he has prepared on the "moral and spiritual qualities" of hockey.

Veteran forward Vlacheslav Starshinov said Sunday night the questionnaire is to form part of a philosophy master thesis he is preparing during the current Canada-Russia series being played in both countries.

"I hope every hockey player I meet in Canada will take part," the 35-year-old Starshinov said through an interpreter. "I am, giving a questionnaire, translated into English, to all the Canadians and I hope they will complete it for me before our last game in Moscow."

Among the questions asked is: "In what extent do you think yourself morally responsible before society?"

Meads Capture Zone

Mead Johnson squirts continued their two-way performance to advance to the OASA semi-finals.

Tim Soule took care of the defence with a three-hit shutout while his teammates were rapping six timely hits in Saturday's 7-0 win over Oshawa. The victory gave Belleville a two-game sweep of the series as well as the Zone 4 championship.

It was the eighth straight playoff win for Meads who have disposed of Napanee, Peterborough, Palmham and Oshawa en route to a berth in the semi-finals against either Barrie or Minden.

Soule struck out eight batters while walking two. His mates' support came from John Henry with a homer and Bob Hedge who drove in three runs with a single. Other Belleville hitters were Ron Hedley, Darrel Coltman, Soule and Donnie Turner.

Rollins Lower OASA 'Boom'

Rollins Construction lowered the "boom-boom" on Kemptville Saturday night in the opener of their OASA Intermediate "A" series.

With the bases loaded in the fifth and Carl Boomhower on third, Kemptville manager-13 trap Ralph Plane between second and third. Boomhower attempted to move home on the ensuing run-down but was beaten by the relay to the plate.

The Rollins outfielder was safe on the play when he managed to bang the ball loose from the Kemptville catcher. Boomhower's fire engine arrival and the comments of some Belleville fans crazed the Kemptville catcher to reply with obscene language. Plate umpire Mike Whalen then forfeited the game to Rollins.

The Belleville team had won the opening game of the series 4-3 and was credited with a 9-0 win in Saturday's fiasco.

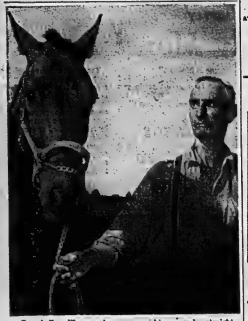
The questionnaire explains that Russians look on a sportsman as "a moral example for people."

Starshinov also asks details on whether a player's attitude to people is influenced by fan reaction, gratitude for training in sport, duty to a "legal contract with a sports organization" or "anger against accepted moral interrelations."

Plane's Take Shortest Cut

Plane's Concrete tykes took the shortest route to the Ontario Baseball Association "C" finals by sweeping Hagersville in two straight games.

The Thurlow team opened semi-final play Saturday with a 17-5 victory and followed up with a 13-9 win in Sunday's game.



Tom Masterson and David Blakely worked the Saturday win getting plate support from Gerard Hall who collected two doubles, two triples and a single. Blakely and Boyd Sullivan powered a homer and four singles apiece, while Jeff Hedge had two round-trippers and a double.

Sunday, it was Blakely going to route for Thurlow while John Card belted two triples and a single. Sullivan, Beggie, Masterson, Tony Parks and Stan Jupp had two hits each for Plane's.

Campbell Wannamaker has kept a number of harness racers into the Belleville track, but none sports a better win percentage than Meadow Dale Wanna. The three-year-old gelding won his second straight race here Saturday night by pacing to victory in the fourth race of the night. It was the second win in as many lifetime starts. Both wins have come on the Belleville track.

Wannamaker Keeps Tradition Running

Meadow Dale Wann continued to uphold racing tradition as he paced to a win in the fourth race of Saturday's Quinte Exhibition Raceway card.

The three-year-old gelding, owned by Campbell Wannamaker of Consecon is out of a full sister to J. Wann and along the same blood lines produced $300,000 winner R. Yankee Wann.

Driver-trainer Murray Dale reined the colt to a 2:15 winning time for his second victory in as many lifetime starts. Both wins have come on the Belleville track.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, SEPT. 6

Aries (March 21-April 19): It is just possible you've gotten into a spot where you don't know enough, or need highly skilled help. Haste will not do.

Taurus (April 20-May 21): The temptation is to rush a new idea into use—at some risk. Travel brings good results. Remembering to bring home a pleasing surprise.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Self-control is worth all you invest in it. Favorable comment disappears altogether, unless you keep generating it.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Carefully planned travels encounter interesting diversions, require changes. Creative ventures prosper, purely material concerns lag.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Take a break from time to time, reflect on your progress, trying for nothing special. Better influences will show in due time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do things in groups if you must stick to home base. If you have business at a distance, use the opportunity to develop a new view.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finding a balance between the many ideas and demands of the day is difficult but worthwhile—you learn something.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Conditions still encourage vague or wishful thinking. Later hours bring good questions, attention to precise details. Be ready.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Playing it straight is the only path today. Yesterday's turbulence should abate, tomorrow's not yet stirring. Be diligent.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): your energy and persuasive ability are up and to be used constructively. Persistence is needed, accept some delay as helpful.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): So many factors are musing you may judge today's situation well; give people time to fill in more of the story.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Opinions clash, and it may be your task to find common ground, offer conciliation. Your patience with discussions is receptive.

Pigeon-toe Cure Requires Patience

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have just been told that my six-year-old daughter is pigeon-toed. Our pediatrician said my son had he would make an appointment with a bone specialist if we liked.

How serious is this defect? Is the treatment long and expensive? Or can it be taken care with corrective shoes? Is it possible that, if we keep reminding her to turn her toes out, she would improve?

We also have a four-year-old who seems to "throw" her feet the same way her sister did at that age. Could this be corrected more easily at an early age?—B.E.D.

It's not a dangerous condition so far as health is concerned, but it causes an awkward, ungainly gait. Having it corrected is worthwhile for the child as she grows up. After she is grown, there is no easy way of making the correction.

Pigeon-toeing results from tension on certain muscles that cause the feet to turn in. Position during sleep can be a factor in some youngsters.

The correction is not rapid and neither is it expensive except in terms of time and patience. Special shoes, massage and a treatment or two out.

I would do as your pediatrician has done—see an orthopedist. And since the earlier correction is made the better, I would like him examine the younger girl, too.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why don't doctors prescribe nicotinic acid to aid circulation? Since it belongs to the vitamin B-complex group, I cannot see how it would be harmful.

My sister suffers from failing eyesight due, the specialist said, to poor circulation, yet he did not prescribe any medication to help her. Her condition is getting worse and I would if nicotinic acid would help her.—Mrs. R.W.

Doctors do prescribe nicotinic acid to improve circulation—in cases in which it will help. Some cases cannot be helped by it. I am sure the specialist would have told your sister to use it if he thought it would help her. Some eye problems are slowly progressive and it is impossible to stop the process. If it will set your mind at ease, ask the doctor whether nicotinic acid would help.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am concerned about an article that said when a female is X-rayed in the vicinity of the ovaries, the testicles should be shielded chromosomes.

I am 37 and had my bowel X-rayed once for shoulder and stomach X-rayed twice in the last six years, and my ovaries were not shielded.

My husband and I would like to start our family now, but I am leery and afraid the baby might not be normal. Do you think the X-rays could cause damage to our offspring or am I worrying needlessly?—M.W.

It is true that heavy doses of X-ray can cause changes—but these are the heavy doses used for treatment purposes. You didn't have any such doses for diagnostic purposes. Such exposure is very far a fraction of a second. Indeed, all your X-rays together doubtless totalled only part of a second.

In a word, yes, you are worrying needlessly.

Contract Bridge

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

World Bridge Olympiad

Italy again asserted its supremacy in the field of bridge when its famous Blue Team captured the open team championship in a 28-nation World Olympiad tournament played in Miami Beach last June.

The Blue team has now won 13 of the 14 world championships in which it has participated!

In the preliminary phase of the tournament — conducted by the World Bridge Federation — each Country played a 20 - board match against every other country. The four teams with the best scores in the round robin then participated in a semifinal knockout round of 64 boards, and the two surviving teams clashed head-on in an 88 board final match to determine the championship.

Italy defeated France in the semifinal round by 90 international match points, while the United States team shrewed equally devastating form by trouncing Canada 99 718 imps. The Blue Team then proceeded to register a nightly convincing win when it defeated the U.S. team 203 imps to 128 to win by a margin of 65 imps. This was roughly equivalent to outplaying their opponents by 3,200 points in rubber bridge scoring.

By and large, the calibre of bridge played throughout the event was good — though of course far from perfect. Occasionally, a so-called weak team would rise in its might and unexpectedly topple one of the giants, but nevertheless the four teams that actually got to the semifinals were all regarded as serious contenders from the start. From that standpoint, the tournament ran true to form.

The Italians led the round robin with 631 victory points. They won 23 of their 28 matches, losing only to Great Britain, Switzerland and Nicaragua. China, Second was the US, team with 598 points, then Canada with 535, fourth was France with 534, followed by Canada, Great Britain, 509; Turkey, 506; Israel, 491; Switzerland, 488.

Then, in the order of finish, came: Denmark, Australia, Ireland, Poland, Sweden, Morocco, Brazil, South Africa, Austria, Argentina, Netherlands, Germany, India, Spain, Venezuela, Mexico, Finland, Colombia, Lebanon, Belgium, Jamaica, Peru, Philippines, New Zealand, Bermuda, Panama, Japan, Chile, Netherland Antilles, Bahamas.

During the next few weeks, in this space, I will be reporting some of the most dramatic and interesting of the 28 boards played. Not all the hands will be instructive, since aberrations of mind as well as billiards-can be featured, but they will, I trust, demonstrate the severe flavor of a world championship.

Tomorrow: Venezuela vs. Australia.

Medals Hang In Balance

MUNICH (CP) — Two Olympic medals hung in the balance today as the International Equestrian Committee had the problem of drug usage by athletes thrown into its lap once more.
Champion swimmer Rick Demont of the United States and Dutch cyclist Aad van den Hoek both showed "positive" reports in urine tests for stimulants and were disqualified for taking "forbidden preparations."
Demont, 16-year-old freestyler who is an asthmatic, was yanked out of the 1,500-metre freestyle final minutes before the race started Monday night.
For Van den Hoek, it meant that the entire Dutch four-man team in the pursuit road race was affected and their bronze medals withdrawn.
Demont won the 400-metre freestyle gold medal last Friday. Whether he can keep the medal is up to the IOC's executive board, which will also review the cyclists' status.
Strictly following the rules governing use of drugs on its banned list, even for asthma, the medical commission announced that Demont was disqualified "because of the use of forbidden preparations."
The commission gave similar reasons for disqualifying the Dutch team which had had in the 100-kilometre team time trial race last Tuesday.
Since Van den Hoek was part of the team although he dropped out early in the race, the International Cyclist Union disqualified the entire team and left the final decision on their medals up to the executive board of the IOC.
The IOC said it was considering the question of whether to stay the medals and not hold the Dutch cyclist and Demont.
In Demont's case, a medical blunder apparently committed by U.S. Olympic Committee officials came to light shortly before the California schoolboy was ordered his 1,500-metre world mark of 15.52.9.
Defending champion Mike Burton, at the "call room" of the U.S. team, took the gold in the gruelling race and with it Demont's world mark. Burton won in 15:32.58.
The disconsolate Demont, in his warmup suit at the pool, said of the drugs he uses for asthma: "I put it all on my forms. I did everything anybody asked."
Dope tests following his victory in the 400 showed traces of ephedrine, a drug used by asthmatics but blacklisted by the IOC.
U.S. doctors say it dilates the bronchial tubes, making it easier for asthmatics to breathe.
U.S. team officials disappeared immediately after an IOC official said the whole fiasco was their fault.

Swimmers Bronzed

MUNICH (CP) — Two bronze medals in swimming and a world record performance on land brightened Canada's Olympic day Monday.

Donna Marie Gurr of Vancouver, the 17-year-old double gold medallist at last year's Pan-American Games, finished third in the 200-metre backstroke after failing to reach the 100-metre final last week.

And four Canadians, each breaking the national record for his stroke, picked up the second bronze in the men's 400-metre medley relay, last event on the swim program.

That sent the swimming team home with four medals—silvers won by Bruce Robertson of Vancouver in the men's 100 butterfly and Leslie Cliff of Vancouver in the women's 400 individual medley to go with the two bronze.

The total count was the same as four years ago at Mexico City, when the Canadians won three silvers and a bronze.

The swimmers performed creditably in a pool where world records were falling in virtually every race, including the four in which they won medals. But when it came to beating the clock, a 17-year-old distance runner from Ottawa topped them all.

Glenda Reiser was in the first qualifying heat of the women's 1,500 metres, the opening event of the morning track program.

It figured to be a dull race. Although Ludmila Braglina, the Russian holder of the world record, was in the field, the pick still had to go through a semi-final Wednesday before lining up a third time two days later to run for the medals.

But they ran as if there were no tomorrow.

Miss Braglina was first across the line in four minutes 6.5 seconds, followed by Miss Reiser in 4:06.7. The Russian girl's world mark, set earlier this year and not yet ratified, was 4:06.8.

The next three runners were under the 4:08.6 and fifth-place Jaroslava Salckova of Czechoslovakia, who beat it by more than a second, didn't even qualify for the semi-final.

Miss Reiser, a Grade 12 student at Ottawa's Hillcrest High School who took up running only 15 months ago, said she had no thought of saving herself for the later round of the competition.

"Maybe I was a little more daring because of my inexperience," she said. "I didn't have time to think about it, to fatigue or that huge audience."

Miss Gurr moved up from sixth place to challenge Miss Braglina with about 700 metres to go and finished two strides behind her.

"In the stretch I just wanted to be near her," she said. "I wasn't thinking about trying to leave myself."

As for the rest of the girls, she said she didn't give them another thought. The runner in front of her was the only one on her mind.

Miss Gurr, who says her shoulders ache when she trains but that it doesn't bother her in competition, wouldn't keep up with Melnick Belote and Susie Atwood of the United States in the backstroke as both of them broke the world record. But she came back from a slow start to edge the next three swimmers for her bronze.

The relay team, Erik Fish of Medicine Hat, Alta.; Bill Mahony of New Westminster, B.C.; Robertson and Bob Keating of Lethbridge, Alta., also had to fight for their medal.

Fish chopped more than a second off his own Canadian mark with a 59.81 backstroke leg relay to finish in fourth place. Mahony, improving on his previous best on each of his four competitive Olympic appearances, did the breaststroke in 65.88 and dropped back to fifth.

Robertson's butterfly leg turned the race around. Swimming faster than anyone except the redoubtable Mark Spitz, he got home in 54.8, two seconds faster than his old Canadian mark and a second faster than his time when he won his individual silver.

Sudden Seven Stirs Up Suds

PICTON — Th e "Sudden Seven" more than lived up to its name Sunday as the American-owned hydroplane raced away from the field to capture the Prince Edward Gold Cup.

Sunday's races marked a revival of the Gold Cup event which had not been held since 1953. The trophies, plus $1,000 prize money were enough to draw 48 entries from across Ontario as well as the northern United States and Quebec. The last major power boat race to be held at Hayward Long Reach was t h e Maple Leaf Invitational in 1956.

"Sudden Seven" named for the group of seven Tonawanda, N.Y., investors who purchased the former "Miss Budweiser" won both heats of the seven-litre Grand prix event, to win the Gold Cup and $10 in prize money. Each of the five classes competed in two heats with the highest pointgetter in both being declared the overall winner of that class.

Driver Howie Benns, also one of the seven owners, zipped over the 1.67-mile course at speeds of about 136 miles an hour. He defeated the former seven-litre world record holder, "Miss Canada" in both heats.

"It was a little choppy out there today and I had trouble seeing," said Benns of his winning races. "It's like driving a car on ice when you try to corner in rough water."

Benns was familiar with the Long Reach course, having competed in the 280 - class here in 1968. "You have to be a little quicker," he said of his jump in the bigger seven-litre class. "You have to have quick enough reflexes to react out there. It isn't something that everyone can do," advised the 14-year racing veteran.

It was the eighth win in 10 Canadian starts this season for the boat which captured the American seven-litre national championship in 1970. The 1250-horsepower craft has defeated Miss Canada in two of three meetings this season for her first - year owners. Points from the races help determine the Canadian Boating Federation champion.

The "Sudden Seven" led virtually from start to finish in both heats, covering the five-mile distance in 2:16.5 for the victory that cinched the Gold Cup.

The 266-inch class provided a familiar winner in Picton area racing fans. Art Asbury, who drove "Miss Superfast" to a world record over the same Long Reach course, came on to win the second heat for the over-all championship of that class. The Willowdale driver had placed second in the opening heat of that round.

In the 280-class it was Brian Butson of Whitby getting the over-all win, while Toby Barker of St. Catharines guided "Little Miss Canada" to a victory in the 150-170 event. The boat is owned by Don McDonald of Toronto, who also owns "Miss Canada" in the seven-litre event. The 145 class went to Gregory Barker of Grand Island, N.Y.

The event was sponsored by the Prince Edward Racing Club and the Picton Chamber of Commerce.

A crane was used to lower boats from their trailers into the water. New York State entry, the "Sudden Seven" captured the Gold Cup by winning both heats of the grand prix class in the one-day event. The races marked the return of Gold Cup competition at Hayward Long Reach after an absence of 19 years.

Nine Hostages, Five Arabs Killed in Airport Battle

Games Go On

MUNICH (CP) — The 20th Olympiad will continue after one day of mourning, the president of the International Olympic Committee announced today.

Avery Brundage made the announcement.

"The Games must go on," Brundage said during the memorial service for the dead Israelis.

The IOC had been scheduled to meet after the service to decide whether to continue the Games, suspended for one day Tuesday. Aides to the German organizing committee of the Games predicted the full membership of the IOC would go along with Brundage's decision.

"We cannot allow a handful of terrorists to destroy this nucleus of international cooperation and goodwill that we have in the Olympic movement," said Brundage, patriarch of the Olympic movement.

Shortly before Brundage spoke, the chief of the Israeli team, Shmuel Lalkin, told the throng that "the sportsmen of Israel will continue to take part in Olympic competition in the spirit of brotherhood and fairness."

Lalkin apparently was referring to future Olympic competition. An Israeli official said later the entire Israeli team will leave for home Thursday.

German Police Move In

Terrorists Stir World To Horror

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Palestinian terrorist slayings of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics aroused outrage and revulsion in many parts of the world. Some usually pro-Arab quarters commented that the Palestinian liberation cause was being hurt by such violent acts as the Munich attack and the Tel Aviv airport massacre that took 24 lives last June.

Israeli newspapers demanded revenge.

The first outright Arab condemnation came from King Hussein of Jordan, who has battled the Palestinian guerillas himself and defeated them. He said the Munich tragedy was "an abhorrent crime perpetuated by sick minds that do not belong to humanity."

Boff one of the strongest voices in the Arab world took a sympathetic view toward the terrorists. Mohammad Hassanein Heikal, confidant of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and editor of the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram, said the attack was the desperate act of "people in a desperate condition." He added that "certain extremist organizations are out of step with the times."

Moscow Radio reported that Soviet representatives had expressed commiseration to the Olympic committee ... and expressed condolences on the deaths."

Some East European Communist media avariably sympathetic to the Arab cause in the Palestine liberation movement would be hurt.

Budapest Radio said the attack "degraded the Palestinian movement to the level of political banditry."

Dov Hikind, a youth leader of the Jewish Defence League in New York, said "retaliation must reach into the Arab ruling classes" and could take the form of "assassination of Arab diplomats."

80,000 Crowd Stadium For Memorial Service

MUNICH (CP) — A bitter silence, not unlike the quiet of an armistice parade, fell over this Olympic City at 10 a.m. today.

More than 80,000 people crowded the huge modernistic stadium for an event that was not on the program when the 20th Olympic games were received.

They came for a memorial service for those who died in terrorist strife between Palestinian guerillas and Israeli athletes. Outside on the crowds filled in newspaper banners proclaimed "16 israel—16 dead—to them up in two words a grim score never before recorded at an Olympiad.

There were speeches by officials, but not delegates from the translators. There was the solemn nuzzle of Beethoven. And long after the stadium was filled the crowds continued to file in. Normally inflexible guards and police were not holding anyone back today.

Most of the traffic stilled, but those cars which did move over had the message to the streets on their radios. There was silence in the great bars, except from the voice on television.

Within the stadium, nine blue-suited ushers stood directing traffic across the track letting the finalists for an event that might never be held.

The Canadian reaction generally was that the Games should go on, possibly as the best kind of memorial for the slain Israeli team members.

Canadian team manager Kevin Murray, who spent a day as a prisoner in his own headquarters during Tuesday's strife, said: "Don't stop the Games. That's what they wanted all along."

Pat Ramsey, a chaperone who had a ringside seat in the stands, said: "Those who are killed were athletes. They would want the games to continue."

Assistant chef de mission, Dick Pound, said headquarters' concensus is: "We'd like to see the games continued. To cancel might enhance what the terrorists have done."

It was a solemn service for the dead, and one of the cynics must have been the traditional spirit of the Olympic Games.

Recent Immigrants Among Israeli Dead

JERUSALEM (AP) — One of the 11 victims of the Arab terrorists who invaded the Israeli quarters at the Olympic Village Tuesday came to Israel two years ago from the United States. Another emigrated from the Soviet Union only three months ago.

David Berger, a 28-year-old lawyer, emigrated to Israel in 1970 from Shaker Heights, Ohio. His main aim in becoming an Israeli citizen was to compete as a member of the Israeli team at Munich, a friend said.

Mark Slavin, 18, was the youngest from the Soviet Union. He was to have made his debut today in the Greco-Roman

German Police Stage Ambush

MUNICH (CP) — The 20th Olympiad mourned its dead today after nine Israeli hostages and a West German policeman were killed in a shootout with Arab terrorists.

The death toll stood at 17, including five Arabs killed in the shootout at an air base outside Munich and two members of the Israeli Olympic team killed when the Arab guerrillas invaded the Olympic Village early Tuesday. The terrorists sought the release of 200 of their kind held in Israeli jails.

The shootout flared after German authorities, unwilling to give in to terrorist demands and convinced the terrorists would kill the hostages, set up an ambush at an air base outside Munich.

The terrorists and hostages had been flown there from Olympic Village in two German army helicopters, apparently believing they would be flown to Cairo.

Details of the fight in the sealed-off air base were still not complete but eyewitnesses said shooting started when two terrorists stepped from a helicopter to inspect a Boeing 727 jetliner they expected to use.

German sharpshooters hit one of the terrorists. Other terrorists started shooting the hostages, officials said.

One Arab blew himself up with a hand grenade, starting a fire in one of the helicopters where hostages were trapped bloodlolled with their maddened.

Firetrucks attempting to approach to rescue them were driven back by terrorist fire.

Bruno Merck, Bavarian state interior minister, announced the hostages were dead along with five terrorists. He said three terrorists were captured.

The fifth terrorist reported dead had originally been reported missing. But his body was found today at the air base, police said.

The Olympic Village, which had been a happy polyglot of 10,000 athletes, resembled a besieged camp after the Palestinian suicide gang broke into Israeli quarters, killing two team members and taking nine hostages.

Today the village was ringed with troops and armored cars.

Security measures at airports and other key facilities in West Germany and other European countries were tightened as authorities feared new action by Arab guerrillas possibly to force the release of the three in custody here.

The West Germans, who had hoped for so much from the Munich Games to erase the Nazi-era image of the 1936 Berlin Games, were shattered by the tragedy.

Chancellor Willy Brandt in a television address said: "The 20-nou Games are over. In the coming days we will have to face ourselves anew."

Brandt had asked in his address that the Games be suspended. But this was before the death of the hostages.

Conrad Ahlers, West German government spokesman, disclosed that when the guerrilla and hostages were flown from Olympic Village to the air base there was no thought of allowing them to leave.

He indicated that even if the Germans had decided to allow them free passage to Cairo, the Egyptians had already refused permission.

Ahlers said Brandt had tried to reach President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to have him intercede with the guerrillas. Brandt could not reach Sadat, but in

Lands Told To Expel Terrorists

JERUSALEM (CP) — Israel demanded today that governments expel Arab terrorists from their territories.

It also warned that it will hold countries that assist Arab guerrillas responsible for the murder of 11 Israeli Olympians at Munich.

In a communique following an extraordinary session of the Israeli cabinet called by Premier Golda Meir, Israel said it has vowed to fight the guerrillas and "will not escape those who aid them from responsibility."

Israel, at first incredulous over the news, seethed with anger and despair at the tragedy.

Hargitay into the emergency cabinet meeting. Transport Minister Shimon Peres said indeed, "must now deal with the terrorists with the same fanaticism and energy."

"I hope the world now realizes who they are dealing with, half-crazed people who don't distinguish between men, women and children."

"We are the end against these murderous organizations, their members, supporters and disciples wherever they may be," said the newspaper Davar.

"As far as Israel is concerned this is an act of war, not only by members of the terrorist organizations, but also by those Arab countries where such support for the murderous terrorists made possible this deed.

"They bear direct responsibility for it. If they do not now eliminate the evil at its source within their borders, Israel will not rule out the right to self-war. The newspaper represents the trade union movement that gives Mrs. Meir's Labor party its chief support.

Israeli Team Will Go Home

MUNICH (AP) — An official of the Israeli Olympic team said the entire delegation to the games will leave Munich for home Thursday.

"We will spend tonight in the Olympic Village," said the official, who did not want to give his name.

It was in the village that Arab terrorists killed two Israeli Olympians and held nine others hostage, until they, too, were killed during an airport shootout between the terrorists and German police.

The official said the Israeli team would have left Munich today "but we couldn't make arrangements in time."

"We will be home for the first Rosh Hashana service Friday night," he said.

Arrangements had been made to hold the Jewish religious services in the Olympic Village.

News Briefs

Trudeau Outraged

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has expressed for all Canadians his horror and distaste for the tragic events surrounding the Israeli team at the Olympic Games in Munich Tuesday.

In a midnight statement, the prime minister said:

"I know that all Canadians share my outrage at terrorism wherever it occurs. These feelings are made even more intense however, when such cowardly and vicious acts are committed at a time and in a place dedicated to the brotherhood of man.

Ordered Home

MANILA (Reuter) — President Ferdinand Marcos today ordered the 77-member Philippines team home from the Olympics following what he termed the "violent and senseless death", of Israeli hostages seized by Arab guerrillas in Munich.

"This violence sets back the quest for unity and brotherhood to which all sporting nations participating in the Olympics have dedicated the ideals of their youth."

Egyptians Stay

MUNICH (AP) — The chief of the Egyptian delegation to the Olympic Games today denied reports that his team is pulling out of the Olympic Games.

Reports of an Egyptian pullout circulated after an Egyptian basketball team Tuesday failed to show up for a game with the Philippines.

A team official said the Egyptians feared for their lives, expecting angry reaction by spectators indirectly blaming them for responsibility in the Israeli deaths.

But Egyptian wrestlers competed Tuesday.

Dachau Six Kilometers

American Describes Scene at Air Base

STENFELDBRUECK, Germany (AP) — "I heard 19 or 12 single shots," an American living near the Fuerstenfeldbruck air base said Tuesday night, "then bursts of automatic weapons fire."

"There was a lot of shooting, some of it heavy stuff," Armand McLean continued.

"They also shot some flares."

McLean and his wife were in a crowd that gathered at a gate of the jet base about 20 miles outside of Munich.

"We were at a house about a mile away, watching television, when they said the three helicopters were going to land here," McLean said. "We got in the car and drove to the base.

"When we first got here, there was only one soldier at the gate, but it was already locked. Then the helicopters showed up. The first two were still in up. Too third one, behind, had its lights on. Inside it was the one with the officials on board.

"The two lighted helicopters circled the base once and then landed. As we stood talking with the soldier, we heard the firing."

The radio warned the local people: "Do not get out of your cars. Do not pick anyone up. One or more of the heavily-armed terrorists is still at large. Do not bridge the police in their search."

Hundreds of civilians rushed to the scene, clogging traffic, many of them blocked from getting back out.

Guards would not let anyone enter the base, which is surrounded by a 6½-foot fence.

Trucks with scores of troops moved along the base roads. The area of the shooting was blocked off, and 10 to 20 police cars were parked there, their top lights whirling.

The grass on the base was high and could provide good cover for a fugitive, especially at night.

A sign near the base said "Fuerstenfeldbruck 10 kilometres, Dachau six kilometres."

In addition, Loyalist this year has 100 former department of national defence employees, now retired and attending Loyalist for accreditation courses.

College officials report an upsurge in enrolment in general arts courses, the result of new programs offered this year for registered nursing assistants and mental retardation counsellors.

TRENTON (Staff) — Michael Miller of Hamilton found himself in a bit of a rut early this morning.

Town police say he was driving his sportscar west on Dundas East near the new access junction one at Flendall St. about 1:30 a.m.

Instead of bypassing barricades, he drove right through them striking the rear end of a back hoe and slipped into the large excavation hole. His car, considered a write-off, incurred an estimated $2,300 damage. Police report he was uninjured.

Pinnacle Businessmen Told Bridge Plans Not Firm

Members of 'a Pinnacle Street merchants' delegation concerned that future traffic restrictions might seriously affect their businesses, were given re-assurance Tuesday that they will be kept informed of planning developments.

Delegation members two weeks ago voiced their concern to city council about possible two-way traffic and elimination of parking on Pinnacle Street after the proposed new Moira River bridge is constructed.

They repeated their concern yesterday to the city traffic committee but were told that plans for the Pinnacle Street bridge were still months away and that no final limitations imposed by the provincial government, construction of the bridge was still four or more years away.

As result of the meeting yesterday the consulting engineers who did the city's north-south arterial road study have been advised to mark time.

The arterial road report recommended construction of a new bridge over the Moira River at the north end of Pinnacle and Church Streets, and also a grade separation over the CN on Carrolton Road.

The city has given priority for the river bridge but pro vincial subsidy limitations will delay the project.

The traffic committee will meet to the arterial road report prepared by Totten Sims, Hubbell Associates avail able to Pinnacle Street merchants for their perusal.

Residents Question Dam Need

TWEED (Staff) — Marble lake cottage owners are evidently divided on the question of the dam dependent on the wishes of the landowners and the authority is not going to force construction. He suggested that the cottagers form an association to sort out their problems and make recommendations to the authority.

Most owners felt some form of water level control was necessary, but were unsure of how to achieve it. Some said the proposed lake level was too high, but authority spokesmen said the final water elevations would be determined by the landowners.

The district forester from the ministry of natural resources in Tweed said the proposed Marble Lake dam would be the only one in the area that would not affect the fish ecology.

Some owners said go real control could be achieved in the lake until flour from Madinow Lake are rigidly controlled.

Fire Engine Red Color To Remain

The color of Belleville's fire fighting equipment will likely remain red for the foreseeable future rather than be painted a lime yellow.

Some weeks ago city council voted that consideration be given to painting city fire trucks a lime yellow which is said to have greater visibility than the traditional red. The matter was referred to the city manager for investigation.

Yesterday a letter from Fire Chief Jim Culhane was read at traffic committee stating that the estimated cost of repainting department vehicles was $9,000.

The chief recommended that in view of the cost all fire apparatus purchased in the future be painted yellow but that present vehicles remain red.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds went along with the chief's recommendation noting that several pieces of equipment were getting old and would soon be in need of replacement.

"The idea is fine but repainting is too costly," he said.

Aldermanr E. A. Orr moved that the committee recommend to council that no action on repainting fire equipment be taken at the present time.

He noted, however, that this did not preclude changing the color of fire vehicle at some time in the future.

Traffic Ticket Ruling Reserved

It was evident from yesterday's discussion that the province stands to lose considerable revenues should Judge Lacourciere rule against the ticket. Barrister Watt said some 3,000 tickets are issued per day, with only a small percentage of those for speeding.

Ticktin estimates that $4.5 million worth of traffic fines is outstanding at any given time. The province collects interest because of a court ruling, much of that amount would be lost.

Ticktin — aided in court by Trenton lawyer Bruce Karten — would not predict the decision of Judge Lacourciere's consultations.

He commented that the province should make it a forms a little better, although not necessarily under discussion in court," Ticktin added.

Still to come is an appeal of Judge Clendenning's decision that Watt, a similar Attorney for Hastings County, is failing to Judge Lacourciere upholding the latter's validity would make further appeals unnecessary, although the procedure is required to put the case back into provincial court.

Trenton's Tax Arrears Lowest in Hastings

TRENTON (Staff) — According to Trenton town treasurer Brian Fagan. Trenton holds the enviable position of having the lowest percentage of tax arrears of 30 municipalities in Hastings County.

Reading from a report prepared by the financial management section of the ministry of treasury economics and intergovernmental affairs, Mr. Fagan told council last night, Trenton's 7.8 per cent tax arrears figure ranks lowest with Belleville in second position with a percentage of 8.2.

He said the present figure of uncollected taxes stands at $216,000 as compared to $36,000 at the beginning of the year.

The percentage quoted is calculated by comparing the tax arrears with the current levy.

Commenting on the status of the 1971 arrears, Councillor Ted Parker questioned how many industries had 1971 taxes outstanding. Mr. Fagan replied only one company remains in this position and negotiations are proceeding to get them to sign an agreement to pay their tax bill.

In an interview this morning Mayor Duncan McDonald said almost all Trenton industries have paid tax arrears owed to the town as the result of tax incentives offered firms several years ago.

"We've recovered all tax arrears that have been outstanding since 1966 or 1967, with the exception of a small amount by this company," When the department in Toronto made us restore them to the tax roll," he said the companies were not allowed to demand repayment of tax arrears over a period of time. However, penalties and interest have been paid over periods of three years.

Enumeration Starts Monday For Oct. 30 Federal Election

Even when it comes to the nation's business, suitable space isn't that easily come by on Belleville's main street.

At least, that's the experience of Reginald Dunham, federal electoral returning officer for Hastings riding.

Sporadically, in recent weeks, Mr. Dunham has been scouting offices from which to supervise the electoral process in the constituency.

Yesterday afternoon he'd finally arrived — at 377 Front St., in an upstairs suite vacant of even a chair on which to relax while waiting for power to be switched on, telephone installed.

In coming weeks, the emptiness will fill with mounting pressure, pyramiding to fever pitch Oct. 29. That day — and night — 377 Front will be the official action centre as voters go to the ridings' 174 polls.

But election night is only the flashpoint terminating a methodical — after seven federal elections, he should know — process of preparation, enumerations, checking, printing and issuing of voters' lists, naming personnel to run the polls.

For Mr. Dunham, a Tweed accountant appointed returning officer in 1967, the action starts now — after seven federal frustrations.

Certain an election was in the offing he started hunting out suitable premises in Belleville weeks ago — but "obstacles will be met," he told council.

Town Plans For OMB Hearing

TRENTON (Staff) — The size of Trenton's former post office on downtown Dundas Street was in the news again last night as council voted on the question of paying architects' fees and hiring a solicitor to speak on their behalf at an upcoming Public hearing.

Council voted to pay Lazzing Associates Ltd. of Trenton, almost $11,000 of their total $22,427 bill for designing and supervision of construction of new municipal offices around the former post office tower, which still stands.

Councillor Ted Parker suggested council waste no time in preparing themselves for the Ontario Municipal Board hearing, which they feel should be held at the Trenton Community Gardens.

Councillor George Greer recommended Belleville lawyer J. D. Templeman be hired and town solicitor William Weston be asked to work with him.

When word was first received from the OMB establishing the public hearing. Nov. 13 was given as the date. None of the councillors have had official word of a change in date, but several have been unofficially notified that the hearing is to be held Sept. 19.

When word is received official time and date will be advertised.

Dam Plan Explored

PICTON (Staff) — An 81-ha. provincial park next to the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority's dam is the latest acquisition of lands for the proposed Demorestville dam. It has been announced by James Taylor, MPP, Prince Edward-Lennox and the Hon. Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources.

The dam is to provide a recreational lake and storage facilities for flooding and drought.

A proposal has been made to lease the land for a private golf course as an option to buy. A temporary sawbag dike will be built to determine the water holding capability of the underlying soil formation.

City Hall Renovations Completed

Belleville city council will have completely refurbished quarters at city hall when members meet next regular fortnight sessions next week.

During the summer air conditioning equipment has been installed at city hall. The old hot water radiators have been removed and replaced with baseboard forced air circulators, new recessed fluorescent lights, acoustical ceiling tiles and new walnut wall panelling.

Also the mayor's chair and canopy has been repainted and grained to match the wall panelling.

Completing the transformation will be new window drapes and a rug covering for the floor.

Vote Total May Climb To 45,000

Lowering of the voting age and population growth could result in another 12,000 votes in Hastings riding in the upcoming election, says constituency returning officer Reginald Dunham.

There were about 32,000 eligible voters in the riding during the 1968 election, he says.

Enumeration could reveal up to 45,000 voters in the riding for the 1972 election, he believes.

And it could go higher — what with extension of the franchise to voters 18 years of age and population growth — notably in the Belleville area — in recent years, admits Mr. Dunham.

The four total must await enumeration which begins Sept. 11 and ends five days later.

Traffic Committee Asks Sydney St. Interchange

Belleville city council will be asked to press both the provincial ministry of transportation and communications for a decision on what will Sidney Street and the MacDonald-Cartier Freeway, with the resultant traffic pressure on overloaded North Front Street.

This was indicated at Tuesday's meeting of the city council traffic committee during discussion on the city's busy roads and safety and what area roads development might influence the problem.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the city should go after a three-level at Sidney and Highway 401.

He said the possibility of such a cloverleaf had long been suggested and said traffic conditions would eventually make it necessary.

"That isn't just something on paper," he urged.

Future traffic build - up would also make necessary the construction of Bridge and College Streets to the Wallbridge-Loyalist Road but it was noted these areas were outside the city limits.

It is clear that traffic committee members might be called in" on long range road plans of the Belleville and Suburban Roads Commission, chairman of the commission Harry Morrow of Sidney township and the city's representative Joseph Raycroft, will be invited to the next meeting of the committee.

Mayor Scott noted that the suburban roads commission makes regular reports to county council but has never appeared before city council.

He felt the city should receive equal consideration as Belleville contributes equally with the county toward the roads commission expenditures.

Centre for Elderly Needs $30,000 Aid

TRENTON (Staff) — Plans for Trenton's senior citizens' drop-in centre at Centennial Park moved closer to fruition last night's council meeting, but not before Councillor Ted Parker announced the public will be asked to contribute $30,000 to the project, unless funds now available.

He said fund-raising plans include a walkathon as well as a direct appeal for contributions, the success of which he feels "certain will be forthcoming."

The centre, to be open six half-days per week, and completely run by senior citizens, will combine active and vocational activities.

A meeting between citizens who have opposed construction of such a building in the public park, was to have been held last February, but has been postponed until 7.30 tonight. The meeting will be held at council chambers.

The area which most concerns council, he said, is the continued esthetic appearance of the recreational area.

"Once we meet with the citizens of the Bay and John Street area, most of the obstacles will be met," he told council.

False Calls Nuisance In Sidney

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Sidney township fire commissioner John Cormack had a bit of advice for township residents last night.

"If people are planning to start brush fires they should call us first," Cormack told Sidney council Tuesday. Were this done it would solve a major problem for the township fire department.

Cormack says if township residents start burning grass or brush, they telephone in an alarm and the fire trucks are dispatched only to find that the fire is often not out of hand.

He feels if people would call the department to tell of their plans to have brush fires, the department would know more fully how to react.

"People just want to get the department out," says the commissioner, adding it is "pretty hard to stop a man from burning brush."

The department is also having a serious false alarm situation in the Bayside area.

"Bayside is the word for false alarms," he told council.

Records presented to council last night show that on one recent false alarm two township firetrucks with 10 men spent two hours searching for astire that wasn't there.

Garage Site Said of Concern

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Those living near the Sidney township offices here do not like plans for building a new garage and firehall adjacent to the township hall.

Neighborhood spokesman Ronald Morgan says concern is not so much the new buildings would detract from property values but that the township may pile salt, sand and gravel on the same site and store equipment outside.

Sidney reeve Jack Bush says it is too early now to tell what the township will do with the property. Decision has not been made yet on the location of either the new garage for township trucks or the firehall.

However, Reeve Bush favors putting them next to the offices here.

He said today he doubts that both structures will be built this year but feels changes are good that construction will begin later this year on garages or the firehall depending on the level of current funds in the township treasury.

Trenton Agrees to Pay Planning Board Dues

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton Mayor Duncan McDonald last night broke a 2-2 tie vote, approving council's payment of $9,927 to the Quinte Planning Board.

This figure represents over-due monthly assessment payments Trenton owes the board.

Most outspoken in opposition of payment of the bill was Councillor Peter Aziz. Commenting on the board's recent announcement of a $18,000 surplus in the capital budget, Councillor Aziz questioned how such a large amount could have been compiled.

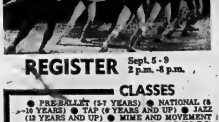
He suggested the board consider lower assessments to member - municipalities and called for a report concerning the surplus.

Mayor Duncan McDonald said planning board director Bert Koorp will be asked to explain the surplus situation.

And in order to keep up with activities of the GPL, ton representatives resume almayor McDonald urged Trenton regular monthly meetings. He was answering a question raised by Councillor George Greer who said he and fellow board members Councillor Paul Tripp and Dr. W. R. Patrick, had not attended meetings in recent months.

The board has been operating for several months on half-strength since the town of Trenton, village of Brighton and townships of Murray and Brighton, forwarded letters stating their desire to get out of the planning board.

However, despite renewed interest in the board - - brought about in part by a recent meeting between municipal heads and municipal affairs department officials from Toronto . . . Councillor Aziz remained adamant in his objections to Trenton's membership.



One of the main objections which sparked the split was the work on Belleville's official plan with an over-all area plan to follow.

"I don't think we should subsidize the city of Belleville," with monthly payments of $1,- 546.41, he said, also bemoaning newsmen after council, that he opposed the meltdown of the board."

Getting Things Done

As a forthright individual and a plain-speaking Minister of Health who knows what is required to update medical services in Ontario, Dr. Richard Potter is not above using four-letter words.

What . . . one four-letter word at least which is respectable enough and straight-and-narrow enough to merit little if any disapproval on the part of a public subjected as a matter of routine in these liberal days to much worse. Pick up any of the modern novels or the scores of the latest-day movie productions and man, realism is in.

Thus when Dr. Potter delivers himself of some meaty lines, as in his references to a clinic at Northbrook served by doctors who fly in from Kingston: "the clinic is a damn good example of what Ontario requires to meet health care needs in many such communities" there might be a few raised eyebrows around but there it is.

Again, this time in critical vein, when he tells the Pan American conference on medical education, regarding over-reliance on diagnostic tests and drugs in the training of medical students — that a diagnosis of abdominal pain for instance can result in "every damn test ordered for the patient." Then continuing, in typical style: "It isn't necessary for a doctor to order all the tests in the book, then have them interpreted for him and then prescribe a pill produced by a pharmaceutical house that has brainwashed him into using it by providing it free . . . I question the quality of the pharmacology taught in medical school. I wonder if they know what is in pills and the quality of pills."

We recall during the nursing home hassle a while ago that Dr. Potter was in a similar admonishing mood and it appeared to us at the time that maybe there was a bit of the dictatorial in his approach and in what he had to say to those operators who were not falling immediately into line with his thinking.

At the same time Dr. Potter is getting things done as few others in the government are doing. Most recently he has been talking of the role of health councils expanding under a major reorganization of his ministry, aimed at developing the concept of one comprehensive medical-care program rather than a "number of separate programs identified with particular types of service."

Between policy-making and his earthy needling of fellow doctors, Dr. Potter is orchestrating (to borrow from the jargon of the day) a whole new approach to health care. It is aimed at greater efficiency and improved performance on both an individual and departmental basis.

As for Dr. Potter personally, the feeling abroad is that he is a "damn good health minister."

Olympics Tragedy

What a stain on the hitherto marvellous Olympic tradition is the latest Palestinian Arab atrocity.

No cause, however just to those who espouse it, can justify the unspeakable act of terrorism that first took as hostages members of the Israeli team at the Games in Munich, then killed them down on German police attempted to prevent the guerrilas from fleeing the country by plane taking the Israelis with them.

What has occurred is tragedy of monumental proportions, for while we have dreadful deeds as a matter of course these days — in Ireland, even in a recent night club blaze deliberately set in Montreal — the Munich episode hits at society everywhere and contains the seeds of dread international reprecussions.

For the Israelis it is another occasion for lament and probable reprisals against the Arab world. For the West Germans and the city of Munich in particular it is a dark cloud descending on a hitherto happy and brilliant occasion. For the world at large it is another horror story.

And we recall, with no sense of pleasure either, the warning of the Japanese terrorist survivor of the recent Tel (Tel Aviv) airport massacre that there would be more of the same. Munich has seen that ghastly prophecy come true.

Stock Market Rallies

McGovern Backtracks A Little on Economic Proposals

WASHINGTON (CP) — Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern, branded a "radical" and worse by his earlier proposals on tax reform, has outlined a new program designed to win back the cautious middle ground of American politics.

The plans he outlined in New York Tuesday to plug tax loopholes and revamp welfare payments is being widely described here as an extension of the traditional economic liberalism of McGovern's Democratic party forebears.

And although the McGovern program has already been attacked by a senior Nixon administration official — Elliot Richardson, secretary of health, education and welfare, who described it as "both costly and scatterbrained" — parts of the policy have a more-than-passing resemblance to some of President Nixon's old ideas.

Wall Street seems to have provided its own assessment of the program. The stock market rallied slightly after the speech, apparently the analysts that feared socialism wasn't being broadcast at the gates.

Two brief sentences from the Democratic candidate's speech are being quoted most frequently as reflecting the philosophy he would bring to tax reform.

Referring to income from stocks and bonds, real estate and similar investments, McGovern said: "Money made by money should be taxed at the same rate as money made by men."

And replying to fears of tax increases for millions of Americans, he repeated twice over: "No American whose income comes from wages and salaries would pay one penny more in federal taxes than he does now."

The reform has been at least a side issue in every U.S. election campaign since the Second World War.

Despite several tax law revisions in that time, however, Congress has proved reluctant to disturb some of the most important of the special provisions which gave tax holidays to billions of income dollars, corporate and personal.

Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, early in his aborted campaign for the Democratic nomination, discovered a widespread anger among voters about their tax loads. He exploited it so successfully that other candidates had to follow suit.

McGovern's original tax proposals were heavily populist in tone and just as hastily withdrawn when they belatedly came under fire late in the campaign. He now has ditched some of the most hotly disputed parts of that program, most notably a "Demogrant" of $1,000 in cash for every American, which his opponents ridiculed into oblivion.

Initial reaction to the latest McGovern proposals would indicate that he is still not out of the woods. Criticism from the Republican is inevitable, but the measures lacked enthusiasm even from Democrats normally inclined to support their party's candidate. The proposals may have made it more difficult to ignore.

Democratic party sources contend that the overall effect of the McGovern program would be to increase job-creating capital investment, while providing a net benefit to the federal treasury and the federal budget.

President Nixon has already promised to attack the problem of rising proportions of tax to be re-elected. But if the new McGovern program succeeds in winning back support from previously frightened moderate voters, the Republicans may have to come up with a more detailed tax policy to match it.

County Newspaper Raps Films Available Here

Stirling News-Argus

The fact that Stirling does not have a movie theatre now means that people interested in attending this form of entertainment must scan the pages of The Intelligencer or Trenton to find out what is playing, that just might be worth waiting for.

A perusal of the pages these past few months has really put on little choice aside from pictures with a horror story in the making or others featuring violence, sex or criminal exploitation as the principal theme of the attraction.

There is undoubtedly those who attend these, and these films with the "adult" or "restricted" labels automatically attract those who do not qualify but try to get in and so elicit some censor, has decreed they should not show. The merit of censorship is under discussion in Manitoba at the moment, and after seeing the advertisements for some films, it really doesn't seem to matter what is shown, as long as the young sters don't get in to see it.

Not so many years ago, theatre entertainment usually provided a sufficiently varied menu during, say, a two - week period, that most tastes would be satisfied. There were westerns with straightforward plots and lots of action; detective stories that kept one on the edge of his or her seat, much as the similar fare does on television; and most of all musicals, where the main thing was quality well - performed songs. Usually these were the most of the hit music of the year, or at least several of the top hits.

There is no doubt movies have deteriorated with the advent of heavy competition from the television attractions. Now even when one film is made for television showing, even a quick glance over the offerings there any night doesn't really give much choice. The themes are all so similar.

As in everything else, those over 30 or even closer to it, are considered "over the hill" by those who produce so called entertainment attractions. There be the material of a few years ago would be labelled corn by today's upcoming generations, who are often more enthused by twanging guitars and unintelligible lyrics, coupled with pounding drums and shouted gobbledegook, but at least the productions weren't so bad they had to be restrictedly restricted. There was the occasional one, but not the majority as there is for the last couple today.

Let's hope that in the near future some way will be found to give us back a little of that type of entertainment more could enjoy.

Mr. Trudeau's Impact On Canadians in 1972

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: Prime Minister Trudeau is certainly not the kind of political man to be satisfied with half measures. . . .

Whether one is a stubborn adversary of the political philosophy he represents or an ardent supporter, it is evident that Mr. Trudeau leaves no one indifferent. The last four years which he spent leading the country prove this easily.

If some people . . . believe the prime minister has changed during his first mandate, it is perhaps because they had an unrealistic image of him. It is not Mr. Trudeau who has changed. . . .

For example, in different English circles, Mr. Trudeau was seen as the man to put Quebec in its place. The leader of the Liberal party never made such a promise. . . .

In all justice, Mr. Trudeau must be given what is coming to him. During his first term in office he has conserved the intellectual heritage and the ease which characterized him when he entered politics. . . .

Nevertheless he remains faithful to the line of conduct he drew up for himself in 1968.

On his bilingualism policy for example, the prime minister does not hesitate to declare often in Ontario that not made sufficient progress in the civil service.

No one is unaware that this policy is creating deep backlashes in the English community. On the eve of a federal election he could have dulled the blow against the bilingualism policy to please the English.

But no, Mr. Trudeau gave himself the task of creating a bilingual civil service and he intends to pursue his objective.

It is the same when he speaks of the Quebec thing. For him, it is nothing new. "But," he says, "these conflicts have always existed — they show how fragile federalism is, not how impossible it is." Mr. Trudeau has a lot of road to cover before he meets the challenge he set for himself four years ago . . . the idea of sovereignty is slowly gaining ground in Quebec and English exasperation about bilingualism is more and more constant. It is thus through this mixture of ideology that Mr. Trudeau must try to work out his designs. It is certainly a sizeable challenge.

Japan's Burgeoning Economy and Its Effect Here

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In all the discussion and concern about U.S. economic dominance over Canada in the years ahead, we have heard little about Japan.

What will Japan's future role as an international trading nation become in relation to Canada's future economic independence? Like the United States, much of Japan's foreign policy planning for this decade and the 1980s will revolve around her ceaseless needs for raw materials.

Unlike the USA, where some experts say self-sufficiency is possible if foreign resources suppliers are unreliable, Japan is in no such position. She must import almost all the raw materials she needs — petroleum, iron ore, coal and natural gas.

As a result, her foreign deals on resources imports during the 1930s and in this decade so far, have been global and exacting. With the USSR, Japan has signed a major commercial agreement which will bring Siberian natural gas into the homes of Japan's 100 million people. In exchange, the Soviet Union will share Japan's technological expertise in selected industries.

On iron ore and coal her overseas deals have settled on Western Canada for over 20 years. First came iron ore during the initial Japanese business boom brought on by the Korean War.

And now it is coal, to such an extent that Japan's need for that mineral has completely rejuvenated Western Canada's once-dead coal industry.

The next move could be the one American industry took in the 1920s, minority—then majority investments—in industries which import, or could build Japanese finished goods, like cameras, electronic equipment, cheaper pharmaceuticals.

A few months ago the Japanese government permitted about $2 millions in yen to float free for foreign investment, and "to roam around the world" in search of the most profitable deals.

This is highly unusual, given the continuing strains on the yen from last summer's devaluation of the U.S. dollar. But the Japanese mean business. Their burgeoning economy must have not only basic resources, but it would appear, control over local industries selling their goods, or which could manufacture them locally.

In the heavy industrial field, Japan's use of much of our coal to augment gas supplies, will result in the expansion of her gasification plants. At present we have some of these in Canada. But as the costs of competitive energy resources increase, will Japanese know-how result in future offers from Tokyo to design, build—and of course—own such facilities in the Canadian West?

Is it possible a Canadian Manchuria will emerge by the mid-1980s where Japanese domination in key resources and light manufacturing industries will be a fact of economic life?

After Ottawa issued its 1970 Foreign Policy White Paper, much criticism centred on its concentration on resources policy and its downgrading of old-fashioned foreign policy.

Two years later, everywhere we look, foreign trade problems and prospects dominate our foreign affairs. Will Peking goods penetrate the world's largest consumer market? Will we compete in the growing European Common Market? Can we afford to diversify out of the U.S. market, still our largest? All unanswered.

Dog Saves Owner's Friend; Joins Animal Hall of Fame

PICTON (Staff) — Trooper, a crossbred hound owned by Daryle Boyce of Wellington joined the Pictou Animal Hall of Fame yesterday for saving the life of Prince Edward County warden Ross Benway in a fire last winter.

The dog was awarded to Toronto for a reception at Maple Leaf Gardens by Mr. and Mrs. Boyce and Warden Benway.

Trooper achieved hero status on a cold March night when he refused to sleep in his outdoor kennel at Ross Benway's Hillier farm home. The dog was being kept at the home because he could enjoy greater freedom in the out of doors.

Curled on a mat inside the house the dog awakened at 3 a.m. to the smell of smoke.

He jumped on Mr. Benway's bed and woke him by clawing and baying.

The warden realizing his home was ablaze pushed the dog through a window to the ground and then leaped himself when a fiery explosion blew the bedroom window. In minutes the entire house was swallowed by flames.

Trooper was cited by the Pictou Animal Hall of Fame for "intelligence and fearlessness."

Police Ambush Arab Terrorists

tend talked with the Egyptian premier.

"He was not helpful," Abba said.

A West German airline official described the scene at the airfield as "the most horrible thing I have ever seen."

Other witnesses said that the three helicopters which brought the hostages and guerrillas from the Olympic Village landed and then suddenly took off.

For 30 minutes they circled before landing again, this time near a Lufthansa Boeing 727 jet which the Arabs had been told would take them to Cairo with the hostages.

After the helicopters touched down, two guerrillas left the first craft and went across to the Lufthansa plane. As they were heading back, police and pipers opened fire.

The West German pilots of two of the helicopters leaped to the ground. One was caught in the guerrilla-police crossfire but the other got away. One pilot was seriously wounded.

Bullets whipped across the field and people jumped from the helicopters and fled in all directions.

Suddenly one helicopter was engulfed by an explosion and a second before police were able to douse the flames. It was burned to a blackened hulk.

About two hours later one of the guerrillas, his face covered in dirt and blood, was brought to the airfield in a police car. Police in the back of the vehicle held him down by the collar and at four points. He appeared to be in his early 20s and had dark hair and swarthy complexion.

Merck, the Bavarian interior minister, said the Arabs and their hostages had agreed they would go to Cairo for further negotiations on the one of the main demands made by the Arabs—that Israel free about 200 Arab prisoners.

He said the Arabs rejected an exchange of German politicians—including himself and Olympic Interior Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher—for the hostages. The guerrillas also turned aside attempts by the West German negotiators to prolong further discussions about a deal until today.

Merck's announcement of the death of 11 hostages came as a surprise because only three hours earlier Ahlers said in a television interview that all hostages had been freed.

Merck, asked by reporters who had given the order to the Police Chief Manfred Schreiber was in charge but the Bavarian government had agreed out in continuous consultation with the German federal and Bavarian governments.

"The order to fire was given by the police chief, who was at the airport at the time," Merck said.

Genscher said that during negotiations with the guerrillas in the Olympic quarters early Tuesday he tried in person to extend the deadline.

Genscher said he went into the room in the Olympic Village's Building 31 where the hostages were being held. All were bound hand-and-foot and guarded by two Arabs with submachine-guns.

"I was able to see for myself it would be impossible to release them from the Olympic Village," the minister said.

men wrestling competition.

The nine others slain included Moshe Weinberg, 33, the wrestling coach and Yossef Romano, champion of Israel in the middleweight division for six years.

Yossef Romano, also 33 and a weightlifter, came to Israel as a child from Libya.

Eliezer Halfin, 28, arrived from the Soviet Union three years ago.

Zeev Friedman, also 28, was a top international weightlifting champion of Israel for six years and a physical education instructor at the Wingate Institute.

Kehat Shorr, 53, the matriculation coach, emigrated from Romania in 1963. His son said to have built Israel's rifle team into one of the world's 10 best.

Mark Slavin, 46, a fencing instructor and trainer, emigrated from the Netherlands with his Dutch wife two years ago.

Yossef Gottfreund, 41, emigrated to Israel from Romania about 15 years ago. He and Yacov Springer 51, were referees.

Andre Shapiro, 32, an athletics trainer and physical education instructor, was coach of Israel's track contingent.

The guerrillas told Genscher they were ready to shot one hosting every two hours until their demands were met.

While life went on almost normally in the Olympic Village, hundreds of troops and police ringed Building 31.

At one stage three sharpshooters moved into positions on the building. But after briefly trying without success to open a window in goin approach to the building they made no more moves to force the situation.

Then, around 10 p.m., a small minibus and a drab green West German army bus drove up in quick succession to Building 31.

The troops spent away some minutes later through the underground road network to three waiting helicopters near the edge of the village.

The bound hostages were transferred from the buses to the helicopters, directed by guerrillas carrying machine-guns. The helicopters headed out immediately afterward for Fuerstenfeldbruck air-raid-base intervals, their flights flashing in the night sky.

Successful Living

Sue Wanted Her Parents' Love

By DORIS CLARK

They sent her up from Wesley House, Hamilton: a tall slender girl in slacks. They sent her up from this home-when - you're - family's - broken - you - out, a project of the United Church Women, selected for someone to cut the lawn.

It was a boiling hot day. I brought her a cold drink after she had been going at it for a while, and sat on the back steps with her as she drank it. She told me she had been away from her own home since she was three years old, when they had kicked her out. It seems her mother always went out in the evenings one place, her father another. And they seemed to give a hang what happened to Sue. She said, "They would give me anything at all — but what I wanted!"

What she wanted was their presence and their love, but neither told her to "Get lost!" I asked her how she had managed over the months and years before they found her and took her in at Wesley House. She said, "By collecting and returning pop bottles!"

That's all I know of Sue's story. Except that she attenders the 1 e ad er of Wesley House, Mac Carrig, a wonderful man: "He has been like a father to me."

Dear Doris: My problem is my dumbbell sister. Just because she is two years older she thinks she owns me.

She doesn't, see. If I want to go to sleep; she keeps the light on and reads. She smears fish on the bathroom she comes in late, but if I do that, she tells me. She wears all my clothes but if I use any of her things I get censored.

I have a violent temper and when I explode that doesn't help any either. — Fumed

Dear Fumeroid: Stand up to this bossy-older sister — but not by yelling at her. Ask her politely to come in a bit more quietly and don't try to retaliate by doing mean little things back to her. She may faint if you keep on being polite and grown-up but you'll see a difference.

Bite back that smart remark and it might start a fight.

Meanwhile, how about having a heart-to-heart talk with your mother? Ask her for help in learning to act in a grown-up way. You can do it.

Dear Doris: I am a widow in my late 50's, living on a small pension. I'm lonely. My children live quite a distance, hence I am all alone. I have family friends but as you know a lady cannot go anywhere alone.

How do I go about getting a companion for car rides, odd dances, weddings and even an odd game of cards? My wedding invitations do not require me to have an escort. — Permeable.

Dear Farmette: Oh, but you can go somewhere alone. That is the difference between now and half a century ago. All you need is a new set-of-the-mind.

I'm not saying it is easy to bestir yourself, get dolled up to help any others. . . . Instead, uncorrected at a wedding or other celebration. I'm not even saying that you don't think the beloved escort you have had over the years.

I'm just saying that it can be done, is being done and will continue to be. If your problem is that you cannot drive a car, it is high time you learned. It will be a new challenge to you — but you will see that there is a new freedom, too, to making all your own decisions, once you get the hang of it. I dare you!

(Talk it over with Doris. This Canadian social problem just shed new light on your problem.)

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Does a father really know his son?

YES, more truly than either the father or the son realize. The closest probably understands what is going through his son's mind in situations that the father remembers experiencing when he was his son's age. Sometimes a father is an outburst will make an unexpected discovery much about his son's behavior in a crisis. Then he will regret saying it because he knows he once might have deserved having the same thing said about him.

In love over disguised as chiffon?

OH, YES. Many a woman has felt she had decided the man she eventually fell in love with and married. There might have been something about him that just didn't fit the mental picture she had of her "dream lover." Many women (men, too), seem to feel more secure in their love if they had first disliked the object of their love then if they had loved that person without experiencing any initial dislike.

Can anger rise involuntarily?

YES, and not only do some people get angry because they cannot control their emotions when they are provoked, but they are also puzzled by their angry outbursts over something at which they are not angry at all. This can happen when someone starts interfering in his mind with the world and react that way. Often such a person's anger is triggered, not by the present event, but by something in his unconscious that never was resolved.

Ann Landers

A Little Note of Value Sent in by Reader

Dear Ann Landers: Occasionally you print something of value and in by a reader. Mine enclosed is called, "So You Got A Ticket—Mister, You Break My Heart." It was written by W. O. Newman, commissioner, Kentucky department of public safety:

"Are you one of those people who call me on the telephone or write and complain that my temper stopped you and asked if you got a ticket for no reason at all? You break my heart. You call me names and criticize and a safe driver and a 'dumb cop' gave you a ticket? Going a little faster than the law allows. Well, I hope the next time you get caught breaking the speed limit he gives you another ticket and the traffic judge takes your license away. I pray that he nails you before you crash into a concrete abutment and he has to pull your lifeless body out of a demolished speed machine.

"I wish you could spend a few days with me and watch a teen-ager writhe in agony on the gravel while he waits for an ambulance that will come too late to take him to a hospital, so instead, he goes straight to the morgue. I wish I could make you help scrape the bits of bone and flesh of a whole family off the asphalt into buckets. You'd vomit—just as we have done. But, you'd think a little differently the next time you climbed into that car of your's and opened it up on a stretch of highway to see what it could do. So you got a ticket? Mister, you break my heart."

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a man who wanted to know how to make the transition from friendship to romance. He said he had known the girl for four years—it had started out as a brother-sister relationship and suddenly he found himself looking at her with different eyes. You said, "Fates heart never won fair mind—or anything else," and advised him to take a deep breath and tell her that the friendship had become deeper and more meaningful and before he fell head over heels he should ask if she could possibly feel the same way about him. Then you added: "Don't be surprised if she says she already does."

Now, Ann Landers, how would you have answered that letter if the writer had been a woman instead of a man?—There Now

Dear There: The same way.

Dear Ann Landers: I must take exception to the answer you gave to the girl who wanted to know why she spent the better part of every evening fighting for her honor. She said her last date ripped with her about the importance of virginity until 2:30 a.m. and she had a terrible time getting out of his apartment. You asked her what she was doing in a guy's apartment until 2:30 a.m. anyway?

Am, it's apparent that it's been a long time since you played the Dating Game. Gone are the outside sofa-cave interpreter. Now the attitude is, "Hey, Babe, that piece of virginity is out. Let's get on with it."

I'd like to pass along my counter-philosophy. It goes like this: "Look, Buster, this is MY body and I'm going to decide who gets his hands on it and when. If you are one of the lucky few, I'll let you know."

This approach saves a lot of time and energy. Sign me—Surrounded And Happy

Dear S and H: (Green Stamps?) Your counter-philosophy sounds very much like something you read in my column. I can't see that you and I have any differences whatever. Thanks for writing.

Interesting Speaker at Women's Sales and Ad

Senator Josie Quart captivated her audience last evening at Sun Luck Gardens when members and their friends from the Belleville Women's Sales and Ad Club met for their first meeting of the fall for dinner and to hear this witty and charmingly justified speaker.

"You can catch more men and women with honey than vinegar," said Senator Quart in explaining her beliefs on the political status of women.

I'A credit to the Senate and to Canada, I don't believe she has any opposition," remarked Les Grills MP the only male present last evening, who introduced the senator, a good friend for more than ten years.

Senator Quart, a delegate to the UN Status of Women Commission went on to explain her work in the Senate and her beliefs on the political status of women. "There are undertones of sex war and male hatred in the Women's Lib movement," said the senator, "and this leads to a self-consciousness and a more defensive male," Senator Quart believes feminism enhances one's individuality and doesn't take it away.

"Women should be alert in political jargon and all subjects pertaining to their rights," she maintained.

The interesting after-dinner speaker reflected back in history when in 1916 women took a leap to attain equal rights with men. Senator Quart also explained why she feels women should take an active part in politics as they pay taxes also and spend most of the money. The speaker amused the turnout with her witticisms and commented on society's mistreatment of the single woman over 30. "Old maid" and "spinster" are misleading and as senator Quart pointed out, the association of a male mate is emphasized too heavily. Senator Quart suggested the semi-detached male possibility. Biblical quotations on the equality of men and women, and references to well-known feminists as Betty Friedan and Gloria Steinhem were also mentioned.

Being a grandmother of 23 grandchildren and a great-grandmother to seven, Senator Quart who believes that motherhood is the most rewarding profession proved last evening that age does not matter and women can play an important and influential role in government today without violence and unnecessary force.

This is the third year the Belleville Women's Sales and Ad Club has operated, Each month there are guest speakers or money - raising events held. Next month there will be an Octoberfest at the Legion Hall, Pinnacle Street.

Senator Josie Quart at Lectern

Before you invest hundreds of dollars in any encyclopedia, invest 49¢ in a New Funk & Wagnalls.

Before you buy anything as important as an encyclopedia, you should take it home and live with it for a while.

But the only way you can do that with most encyclopedias is by buying the entire set.

Not with the Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia.

Come in and buy the first volume for only 49¢. If you like it, you can buy the remaining 26 volumes (including index and bibliography), a volume or two a week. For only $1.99 each.

Naturally, this makes buying an encyclopedia easier. It also makes not buying it easier. When you sell an encyclopedia this way, it has to be good enough to keep people coming back for more.

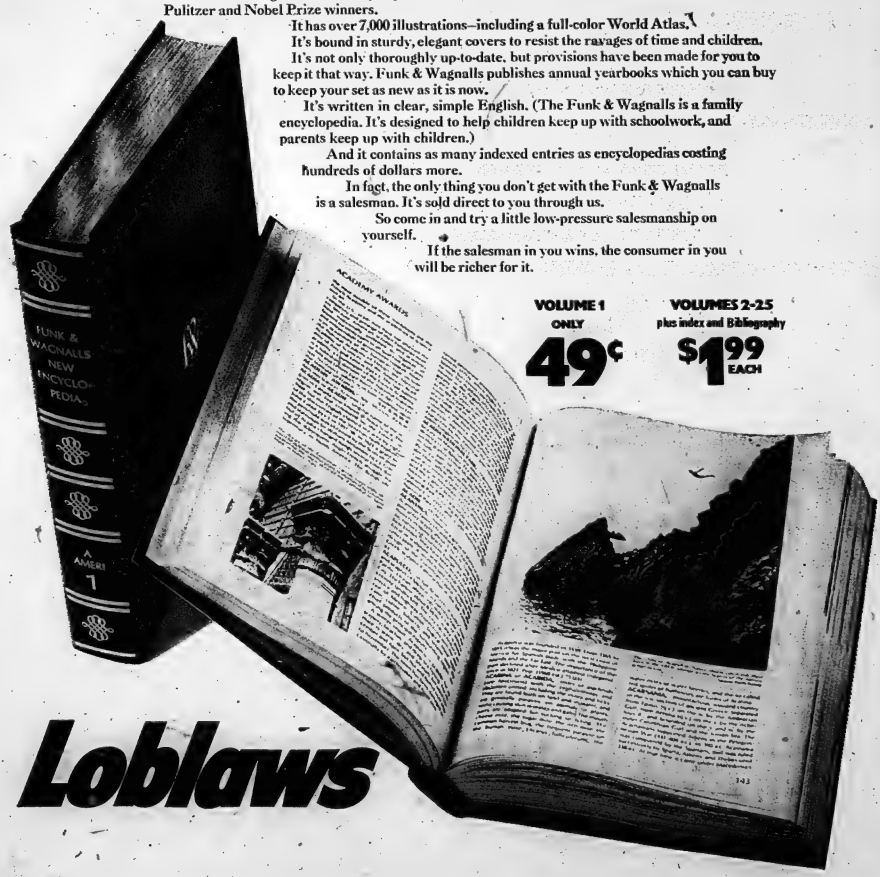
It is.

The Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia is the work of over 500 scholars, including many Pulitzer and Nobel Prize winners.

It has over 7,000 illustrations—including a full-color World Atlas.

It's bound in sturdy, elegant covers to resist the ravages of time and children.

It's not only thoroughly up-to-date, but provisions have been made for you to keep it that way. Funk & Wagnalls publishes annual yearbooks which you can buy to keep your set as new as it is now.



It's written in clear, simple English. (The Funk & Wagnalls is a family encyclopedia. It's designed to help children keep up with schoolwork, and parents keep up with children.)

And it contains as many indexed entries as encyclopedias costing hundreds of dollars more.

In fact, the only thing you don't get with the Funk & Wagnalls is a salesman. It's sold direct to you through us.

So come in and try a little low-pressure salesmanship on yourself.

If the salesman in you wins, the consumer in you will be richer for it.

DYSLEXIA—Hepworth, T. S.

There has been considerable interest recently in the reading difficulties of children. Some cases range from being so severe that the child is almost illiterate to those of a very mild kind, needing very little help. Behavioral difficulties or emotional problems sometimes result and the parent becomes concerned that his child should not be disadvantaged in his educational progress by a reading problem. Mr. Hepworth discusses most significant attitudes that experts and laymen have taken on this matter, and indicates several ways to diagnose and deal with such difficulties.

THE MANUAL OF HOME FREEZING — Cross, Rena

Freezing is the oldest known method of food preparation. Slaves ran in relays from the Italian Alps to Rome with snow tightly packaged to their backs. They sometimes died of exhaustion or pulmonary disease, but they were expendable. This illustrated book is packed with lots of information about home freezers. And in addition, there is plenty of advice on cooking for the freezer, and many recipes. Rena Cross shows you how to save time and money on your food bills and eat better food.

THE LIONS OF LIVING FREE — Jack Couffer

Mr. Couffer who is a naturalist and photographer, went to Kenya to direct the filming of the screen version of Joy Adamson's "Living Free" the story of the Adamson's adventures with the family of cubs to which their famous lioness, Elsa, had given birth in the wild. This book is the story of the unforgettable year he spent during the making of the picture. There is a magnificent gallery of photographs, both from the motion picture and from the author's private collection, in this extraordinary record of Africa and "Living Free".

THE STEEL BONNETS — George MacDonald Fraser

Four hundred years ago, when Queen Elizabeth reigned in a comparatively peaceful England, the people of the English-Scottish frontier country were living in the grip of systematic raiding, feud and organized gangsterism. How the frontier society was born and grew, how Border raiding became so frequent, how the two governments tried to deal with it, how it fitted into the politics and diplomacy of the two realms, and into the social life of the area, is the theme of this book.

HOW TO LIVE WITH DIABETES — Henry Dolger, MD and Bernard Seeman

This is a book for diabetics and for all those who are concerned with the disease. Its major emphasis is on the person with diabetes rather than the ailment. Whilst it deals with the questions of diagnosis and treatment, it is primarily concerned with the patient's physical and emotional adjustment to his condition. Attention is concentrated in those phases of the disease that the patient can help control.

SEA QUEST — Charles A. Borden

Here, in full, is the real sea — the tough but beautiful world of wind, canvas, and long-rolling deep water — in the clear direct prose of a sailor with years of global voyaging in his wake. For many, ocean cruising is a leisure activity. For others who live by the wind, cloud shapes and the state of the sea, it is an art and a special way of life.

Hydro Called Unsafe

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro is showing an irresponsible attitude and jeopardizing the safety of the public by failing to provide adequate electrical inspections, William Vincer, president of striking Local 1, Canadian Union of Public Employees, charged Tuesday.

Mr. Vincer said a union inspection team discovered several electrical hazards in Brampton, near Toronto, including a broken meter box and damaged conductor sheaths, both exposing live wires; a 300-amp service transformer in an open box at ground level and electrical hazards at a community swimming pool.

He also charged that new houses in the Milton and Sudbury areas are being hooked up without proper inspections.

The strike now is in its 97th day. The union and Hydro still have not resolved several key issues in their negotiations with conciliator Victor Scott.

Wagner To Play Big Role

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday Judge Claude Wagner will "play an important role" in the Conservative party.

But he refused to say what role Mr. Wagner, who resigned as a Seciions Court judge in Quebec to re-enter politics and seek a Conservative seat in the Oct. 30 federal election, would play in a Conservative government.

"There have been no promises," Mr. Stanfield told a news conference.

"But very clearly a man of his accomplishments and respect in the province, a man with his following, would clearly play an important role in our party."

Mr. Wagner's decision to seek a nomination in Quebec "will encourage other outstanding candidates to come forward and seek nominations," Mr. Stanfield said.

Auto Ban In Toronto Studied

TORONTO (CP) — The Metropolitan Toronto transit committee decided Tuesday to ask the Ontario government to supply reports that will show the impact of banning all private automobiles from the city.

The committee turned down a suggestion from True Davidson, mayor of East York, that the city should ban private automobiles from a central-core section of the city that would include Queen's Park.

The committee wants to know how people employed in automobile-related industries would be retracted for new jobs; how much compensation the city would receive from lost revenue currently derived from private parking lots; the economic effect on residents from land-use changes and how the province would assist the city to improve public transportation.

Committee members said they hope the answers will show the province the enormity of the decision to halt the Spadina Expressway. More than 15 months ago, Premier William Davis said cities are for people, and cut off provincial funds for the expressway.

Kidnapped Man Beaten

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Six persons are to appear in court here Tuesday charged with kidnapping a 39-year-old Montreal man.

Police in nearby Delhi said Rejean Gouborn was in fairly good condition in hospital suffering from possible concussion, multiple cuts and rope burns.

Police said Gouborn, a tobacco worker, was taken from Delhi to Windham Township Monday and beaten. After the beating, he called police from a nearby farm house.

Charged and in custody in jail here are Louis Lacouvcière, 17, and Gaston Allard, 18, both of Chicoutimi, Que.; Lucien Beaudry, 20, Point aux Trembles, Que.; Romeo Savard, 44, and his wife, Noalia, 30, both of Hamilton; and Claire Labrecue, 19, Montreal.

The six appeared before a justice of the peace Tuesday after being arrested Monday on the kidnapping charge.

Davis Consults Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis held an unscheduled cabinet meeting Tuesday and then told aides he might have something to say on the Darcy McKeough situation today.

Later, he met individually with members of his cabinet, recited by the resignation of Mr. McKeough, provincial treasurer and No. 2 man in the government, who quit over a conflict of interest last Thursday.

Mr. Davis still has not officially accepted his resignation. The premier cut short a European trip to fly back Saturday.

Many of the cabinet ministers had planned to participate in a Northern Ontario tour this week which is being taken by most of the members of the legislature, but they remained in Toronto at the request of the premier.

Shuffle May Be Delayed

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Premier William Davis has decided to postpone a major cabinet shuffle and the announcement of a policy regarding conflict of interest by cabinet ministers, possibly until after the Oct. 30 federal general election.

Quoting unnamed sources close to the premier, the newspaper says that instead, Mr. Davis will make a statement today accepting the resignation of Treasurer Darcy McKeough.

Ballard's Sentencing Postponed

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, has gained a delay in his sentencing on charges of fraud and theft from the sports arena.

Ballard, convicted Aug. 15 on charges involving almost $205,000, was to have been sentenced next Thursday. Judge Harry Dupman has changed the date to Oct. 30 at the request of defence counsel J. J. Robinette.

Because of the current Canada-Russia hockey series, none doubt had arisen about the availability of character witnesses Mr. Robinette plans to call on Ballard's behalf.

Berrigan Is Given Two Years

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Anti-war priest Philip Berrigan, convicted of smuggling mail out of a federal prison in the so-called Harrisburg Seven bomb-kidnap conspiracy trial, was sentenced Tuesday to two years in prison.

At the same time, Sister Elizabeth McAlister, a Roman Catholic nun and ally of Berrigan in the Catholic left peace movement, was sentenced to one year for sending letters illegally to the jailed priest.

She is also to serve three years probation after her release from.

Father Berrigan's lawyer had said the defence will move for an appeal.

More Police Will Combat Building Strife

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Justice Secretary Allan Lawrence said Tuesday more police manpower will be used to combat violence in the construction industry in Metropolitan Toronto.

He said following a meeting with Solicitor-General John Yaremko and members of the Ontario and Metropolitan Toronto police commissions that "as many people as needed are going to be working on it . . . with far greater intensified effort."

The meeting followed Saturday's ninth bombing or machine-gunning of premises of associated firms of ALC Interior Systems Ltd. ALC Vice-President Stanley Soulis says the company has been a victim of violence since it refused nine months ago to merge with competitors.

Equestrian Team May Have Saved Lives by Over-sleeping

MUNICH (CP) — Canada's equestrian team slept in 20 minutes Tuesday and that was the margin by which they missed the slaying of an Israeli coach and weightlifter in the building next door to the Canadian headquarters.

Coach Tom Geyford and riders Ian Miller of Ottawa, Tercelo Miller of Montreal and Jim Elder of Aurora, Ont., emerged about 5:45 a.m. headed for an early training session.

A wild-eyed, bearded man confronted them.

"The man kept yelling 'go back, go back, danger' at us," Elder said.

"We didn't know who he was but we didn't hang around to find out."

"Then we saw a man in a turtle-neck shirt carrying a pistol slick along the wall," Gayford said.

"Finally, a plainclothes policeman with a machine-gun signalled us to follow him and we got out, ducking from pillar to pillar like some kind of spy movie. They made sure we really sprinted when we came to any open courtyards. I understand they had dragged a body away just 20 minutes earlier."

Team manager Denis Whitaker, a retired army brigadier, came out for his morning run about an hour later.

"I came around the corner and a fellow jumped out in front of me with a gun. It was a .38-calibre Browning automatic.

"I thought he was just some kind of bogard - up look, so I turned my back on him and walked back to my room," Whitaker said.

Death Draws Crowds

MUNICH (CP) — The strollers on the embankment surrounding Olympic Village eat ice cream and shoot pictures of the machine-gun-armed guards ringing the besieged Israeli quarters.

Some athletes take pictures of the crowd peering down on them like patrons from the wall of an amphitheatre.

From time to time a lone Canadian walks from his living quarters to the eight-foot-high chain fence that separates the village from the outside world.

Some athletes toss a football around but are warned by the guards to be careful of forward passes.

George Gerosa Jr., son of a Toronto sports writer, tells, of hearing the shots that killed at least one Israeli early Tuesday.

"I guess it was somewhere between 4:15 and 4:30 when I heard the noise but I dismissed it as somebody playing games and setting off a firecracker," he said.

The Koreans, who live next door to the Israelis, said the same thing.

While a uniformed policeman stood inside the fence talking to a pretty girl on the outside, the Canadian cycle team showed up. They had been refused entry to their quarters by the normal route.

Road team coach Ian Brown of Toronto reached down and lifted the fence away from the ground. This permitted the bicycles and riders to squeeze under the fence and they invited this reporter to come with them.

But I was spotted by a group of armed guards sitting on a hill and discretion prevailed. I remained on the outside looking in.

Several hundred Israeli visitors set up an impromptu rally at the fence but were satisfied to sing national songs and chant "Stop the games."

Over and In

Bruce Simpson of Pointe-Claire, Que., clears the bar at 16 feet, 8¾ inches to advance into the finals of the pole event at the Olympic Games in Munich, Friday. Simpson finished a surprising fifth in the final to earn two points and help keep Canada in 16th place in the team standings.

'White Hope' Goner

Cuban Boxer Trounces Bobick

MUNICH (AP) — "I had a bad day," Duane Bobick understated after being soundly thrashed by Cuban Teofilo Stevenson at the Summer Olympic Games.

Bobick, the heavyweight from Bowlus, Minn., who had been pegged by former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali as "the latest Great White Hope," was no match for the Cuban buzzsaw he had beaten in last year's Pan-American Games.

In one of the few events conducted Tuesday before competition was suspended because of the Arab guerrilla assault on the Israeli team in the Olympic village, Stevenson decked Bobick twice and was when the bout was halted in the third round by the East German referee.

Canadians qualified for the semi-finals in two of seven canoeing events.

Dean Oldershaw, Port Credit, qualified in the men's kayak singles by placing third in his heat; while John Wood Port Credit and Scott Lee, Brampton, Ont., qualified for the men's Canadian pairs also by placing third.

Games On!

MUNICH (Reuter) — The Olympic Games are to go on after one day of mourning for the dead Olympic athletes, Olympic chief Avery Brundage announced today.

All other Canadian canoeing entries were relegated to repechage.

In equestrian events, Canada led for sixth in a field of 10 after the first day of team dressage; and Christine Hansen, Sharon, Ont., was sixth of 22 riders on the first day of individual dressage.

By the time Bobick had climbed through the ropes and into the ring, the Arab guerrillas had climbed over a fence and into the Olympic Village and had attacked the Israeli Olympic team.

Bobick knew of the guerrilla attack but called it only a slight distraction, and refused to use it as an excuse for his loss, the first time an American heavyweight had been eliminated in Olympic boxing since Percy Price Jr., was beaten in 1960 Games preliminary.

"Stevenson was in a lot better condition," Bobick said. "He was a better fighter. Last time I faced him, all he had was a jab."

This time Stevenson had everything.

It was chiefly after Bobick's bout that Avery Brundage, retiring president of the Olympic International Committee, called a temporary suspension to all competition as a result of the guerrilla attack.

In Tuesday's only basketball game, Australia edged West Germany 70-69. The Philippines was given credit for a 2-0 victory when Egypt, returning home in the wake of the Arab attack, forfeited its game.

Early Greco-Roman wrestling matches, conducted before the suspension, were a disaster for the United States, which lost five bouts.

Spitz Offered Million

OPORTO, Portugal (Reuter) — A British sportswear firm has offered $1 million to U.S. Olympic swimming hero Mark Spitz to work for the company for five years, it was disclosed here Tuesday.

Sydney Solomons, chairman of Highlight Sports of London, said he made the offer by telegram Monday but had not yet received a reply.

Solomons is here on holiday. Spitz, the young Jewish swimmer who won seven gold medals, left Munich Tuesday following the Arab guerrilla attack on the Israeli Olympic team in the athletes' village.

Summer Fishermen Make Way for Autumn Experts

The summer-season angler, the leaves on the trees, is falling off and being replaced by the more seasoned and hardy sport fishing enthusiast.

The Kenora district office of the ministry of natural resources notes that as the summer angler departs with the season, the percentage of well-equipped anglers, with proper tackle, boat and clothing, rises dramatically.

"We seldom see anglers now without the proper gear and knowledge to use it," the office says.

For those fishermen who linger on, the ministry reports that some good catches of pickerel are available. The pickerel are making their annual fall appearance round Kenora and some four to six-pound fish were caught, mainly with minnows.

There were also some good muskie catches last week, with a 27-pounder and 28-pounder around Sudbury, two 20-pounders in Lake St. Clair and a 25-pounder in the Kenora area.

The plentiful runs of coho salmon that were reported on the Canadian shore of Lake Erie two weeks ago all but disappeared last week.

On the whole, fishing was good, with some excellent catches of pickerel and trout. In Moss Harbor, on Lake Superior, a six-pound speckled trout was caught on spinner and worms.

Tweed—Fishing was mostly poor to fair for most species but some good lake trout were caught in Weslemkoon and Limerick lakes and speckled trout in Tour Lake.

Kemptville—Panfish were area. Speckled trout were good abundant catch throughout the in Green Lake.

Hawks Provide Key Ingredient

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

People have been crediting everything from Wayne Cashman's elbows to Phil Esposito's regained eyesight for Team Canada's 4-1 resurgence in the second game of their series with the Russian Nationals Monday.

Nearly forgotten in coach Harry Sinden's lineup shuffle after Saturday's horrendous 7-3 loss to the Soviets were a couple of defencemen by name of Bill White and Pat Stapleton.

If you had told a serious hockey student that anybody from the Chicago Black Hawks could make any difference, he would have been entitled to laugh at you until he got hiccups.

The Black Hawks, as we all are aware, have managed to avoid anything remotely resembling the Stanley Cup the past decade, despite icing some of the National Hockey League's most impressive talent. You've heard of the Billy Reay Cocktail: take five jiggers of different spirits, stir with an ice cube, then throw away the hard stuff and hide your swizzle stick.

But Bill White, Pat Stapleton, and, yes, that same Tony Esposito who, in Stanley Cup competition has sometimes played with all the agility of an anchor, were the guiding lights for Team Canada Monday night.

Esposito held the fort through a scoreless first period when Soviet centers Yakery Kharlamov (17) and Alexander Maltsev (10) both apparently had goals in their grasp.

Kharlamov, who is worth a million bucks to Harold Ballard when his Maple Leafs won't offer WHA-bound Bernie Parent any more than $750,000, is just one of a half-dozen Soviets who wouldn't look out of place playing anywhere in the National Hockey League.

Another is 20 - year - old goalkeeper Vladislav Tretiek, who is making a myth of tales that the Europeans are weak at his position.

But Messrs. White and Stapleton helped throw a wrench into the fast-skating Soviet machinery Monday by head-manning the puck and keeping the Canadians cool in their own end of the ice.

The Black Hawk pair has not wasted their sideline seats in Saturday night's Team Canada loss. They recognized that throwing the puck to the furthest man as fast as possible was working for the Russians.

The Soviets, too, had copied the fast-breaking style of play from another source.

Montreal's Canadiens, one might point out, have won more than their share of Stanley Cups playing that system.

Pat Asselstine signalled for a right hand turn, but went left instead as Bruce Howard and Robert outfielder proceeded to second on an overthrow by the Oshawa infield. The Printers scored an unearned run in the top of the ninth to back the shutout pitching of Bob Ethier and bang a 1-0 loss on Oshawa Lucky One. Tuesday's tilt was the third and deciding game of their OASA Intermediate "AA" quarter-final series.

Ethier Has 'On Again' Night

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

It had been an "on again, off again" type of OASA series for Bob Ethier, but fortunately for Howard and Robert Printing he was "on again" in Tuesday's third and deciding game of their Intermediate "AA" playoff encounter with Oshawa Lucky One.

Ethier had been brilliant in the opening game of the series, turning in a two-hit, 21 strikeout effort as the Printers won 2-0. He was driven from the mound in the second tilt, however as Oshawa coasted to a 7-0 victory.

Wednesday night he reverted to the form that's made him one of the area's top hurlers, besting Oshawa's Dave Leaming in a 1-0 pitchers' duel.

The lefthander refused to make excuses for the second game loss. "It was just one of those nights when I didn't have it. They were really whacking the ball."

"Shud" was only in trouble twice last night as he handcuffed Oshawa on five hits while striking out 16 batters. He appeared to be getting stronger as the game progressed, allowing only one safety over the last five innings while striking out 11 of the last 15 batters. Ethier finished the game with a flourish whiffing the third, fourth and fifth place hitters in the Lucky One line-up.

"The upshot had to be had to be my best pitch tonight. It was really going up," acknowledged the Howard and Robert hurler.

Leaming was equally outstanding for Oshawa, checking the Printers on three hits while setting down 18 on strikes. He lost the game in the top of the ninth when right fielder Don Cockerton appeared to glove Ken Genereaux's routine fly only to have it fall for a three-base error. The Belleville third baseman rode home on Dwight Rathwell's sacrifice fly to centre.

The big Oshawa righthander walked six batters. He hurt his own cause by fanning twice with runners on base. Ethier also spent a futile night at the plate failing three times to drive in runners.

Oshawa lost a scoring chance in the sixth when Neil Foster crashed an apparent homer to right field only to be called out for missing third base. Their other good scoring chance came in the opening inning when Pat Kellar's perfect throw from centre nailed Cockerton who attempted to score on a fly ball.

For Belleville it was Bob Swan with a double and singles by Rusty Garvin and Pat Asselstine. Howard and Robert were forced to play the game with only nine players. Regulars Gary Goyer and Moe Hunter are not eligible for the Intermediate "AA" playdowns this season because of playing in a different classification last year.

Read Turns Tables

Read turned the tables on former teammate Ted Abrams Tuesday to record a 3-1 South Hastings baseball win.

Abrams allowed only five hits on the Melrose mound, but they came at the right time for Read, who also lead the best - of - seven final series three games to one.

Frank Farrell buried the win, giving up six hits and three walks. He struck out seven. The Melrose pitcher fanned eight batters and did not walk a man.

Read, who had taken a 10-1 decision from Melrose Sunday, got a triple from Larry Coffey and singles by Pat O'Connor, Paul Hanley, Carm Milligan and Peter Enright.

Larry Pascoe paced Melrose with three hits

The fifth game of the series will be played Thursday night in Melrose beginning at 6:15 p.m.

Merchants Wait

Thurlow Merchants are awaiting their final Ontario Baseball Association "C" opponents after disposing of Fenwick last weekend.

The Thurlow pewees scored a 23-7 win Saturday to give them a two-game sweep of the semi-finals. Terry Pascoe belted a homer and three doubles in that game with Dennis Quinn adding a homer, triple and double and Barry Beers a double and four singles. Ken Revoy pitched the win.

"Why don't you actually go see a game. Or would the seventh inning stretch be too much for you?"

Canucks on Time

Danny Hounslow and the Station Square Canucks had the time if the OPP Flyers had the money in their city minor soccer atom championship.

Hounslow scored both goals, including the extra-time game-winner Tuesday, as the Canucks won the city title with a 2-1 decision.

It was the third straight overtime game for the winners, who played in a 2-2 deadlock in their last game with the Flyers.

Pupils Pass

Local hockey players were picking up more than knowledge and sore ankles at the Kingston Summer Hockey School last week.

Stephen Murphy of Belleville earned an honor award as the boy in his junior group best displaying sportsmanship, citizenship and development. Springbrook's Barry Danford won a similar award in the intermediate section.

Merit awards for achievement and sportsmanship went to Randy Hutchinson, Belleville; Wayne Andrews, Springbrook and Rick Hutchinson, Belleville.

CN Gets Last Say

CNR had the last word in five-run rallies as they bested Mead Johnson 10-8 in the opening game of the Industrial Softball League finals Tuesday.

Meads plated five runs in the bottom of the first, keyed by Sonny Holoway's grand slam homer, and carried an 8-5 lead into the final frame before the trainmen exploded for five tallies in the top of the seventh, to draw first blood in the best-of-seven series.

Mark Sheridan started on the mound for CN, who were beaten 1-0 by Meads in a playoff for the "B" division pennant during the regular season. The righthander was ejected along with Mead's third baseman Tim O'Connell in the first inning, bringing Perry Soule in to handle the pitching. They gave up a total of eight hits and four walks, while striking out two batters.

Holoway went the route for Meads, giving up 10 hits and five walks while striking out six.

Horner Thomas clubbed a pair of triples for the winners followed by Barry Tamlin, Milt Bell and Mike Fahey with two hits each. Top Meads' batsman was Holoway with a homer and double.

Chuvalo Champion Longer Than You Think

Quickly, now. Since when has George Chuvalo been Canada's heavyweight boxing champion?

Probably not even many of his hosts this Thursday — the new Quinte Athletic Club — are aware that the 34-year-old Toronto bruiser first held the title as long ago as 1958.

He subsequently lost it in 1960 to Bob Cleroux, regained it again the same year, then lost it in 1961.

But it's been his for keeps since he decisioned Jean-Claude Roy of Regina, June 5, 1965, and during that time, although fighting some of the world's top heavyweights, Chuvalo has upheld his rare reputation of never having been knocked off his feet in a bout.

In fact, most of Chuvalo's opponents — 58 of 87 — have found themselves either on the floor for the 10-count or technical knockout victims.

Quinte Athletic Club president Terry Bennett has confirmed that Chuvalo will be the guest of honor at the fitness-oriented club's open house Thursday night at 8 at the former Pinnacle St. Royal Canadian Legion Hall quarters.

Chuvalo is expected to do some speed-bag and rope skipping exhibitions, and may even don the gloves in a semi-serious spar with any willing takers.

Henley Threat Changes

TORONTO (CP) — No one ever questioned the value of Garney Henley in the Hamilton defensive backfield, but his performance in offence for the Tiger-Cats in Canadian Football League play this year raises the question of why Ugh-ganization won't made earlier.

Henley had been on defence for the Ticats for 13 seasons, with only occasional assignments as an offensive receiver, but Hamilton's new coach, Jerry Williams, made the veteran speedster a permanent flanker.

The move has proved one of the Ticats' biggest successes this season and Henley now is the leading yardage gainer among receivers in the Eastern Conference, according to CFL statistics released Tuesday.

The 36-year-old Henley has caught 14 passes for 458 yards, an average of 32.7 yards a catch. Two of those catches gave Henley touchdowns in Hamilton's 37-18 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders Monday and Henley now ranks fourth in EFC scoring with four touchdowns.

Still leading the EFC's receivers in number of passes caught is Toronto Argonaut Mike Eben who has hauled in 34 for 301 yards.

Laver 'Backs Out' of U. S. Open Meet

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — "If you're unfit, don't go on the court because if you're on the court, you're fit," says Australian tennis pro Roy Emerson.

Second Not Bad

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Trevino's $25,000 winner's cheque from the Greater Hartford Open helped lighten his hold on second place in professional golf's money standings with $208,855.

Jack Nicklaus, who took last weekend off, remained in first place with $260,462, figures released Tuesday by the Professional Golfers Association Tournament Players Division show.

Countryman Rod Laver failed to heed the advice Tuesday and was eliminated from the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Cliff Richey of Sarasota, Fla., beat Laver, the third-seeded 1969 and 1962 title baker, 3-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-3. But Richey seeded 12th, was not happy about the victory.

"What can you say about beating a guy with a bad back," Richey said.

Laver's back, a problem for him over the years, "went out" during the third set. "I think I could've made a better show of it if my back was all right. I felt good over-all, but I just couldn't stretch. I kept getting spasms."

Other seeded players had no excuse. Arthur Ashe of Miami, seeded sixth, ousted Bob Lutz, the 12th seed from Sausalito, Calif., 7-5, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3; and top-seeded defending champ Stan Smith beat Andres Gimeno of Spain, seeded 14th, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, 7-6, 6-3.

Seeded women players are due to fall today as Billie Jean King of Pam-Ate, Fla., seeded first, goes against eight-seeded Virginia Wade of England.

Lacrosse Briefs

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Lake's took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Lacrosse League eastern final with a 19-10 victory over Brantford Warriors Tuesday.

VICTORIA (CP) — Richmond Roadrunners won the Western Canada junior lacrosse championship Tuesday with a 7-5 win over Victoria in the sixth game of a best-of-seven final.

Cashman Newest Hero

WAYNE CASHMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Wayne Cashman's enthusiasm for digging the puck out of a corner has earned him many a harsh retort from opposing players and fans around the National Hockey League.

In the course of a normal NHL season, Cashman plays for the tough Boston Bruins and his use of elbows, sticks and fists are not often appreciated outside of Boston. But today Cashman is on a different team.

The six-foot-one, 180-pound winger now is one of the heroes with Team Canada as they go into Winnipeg tonight for the third game of the eight-game exhibition series against the Soviet Union's national squad.

Cashman's well-known tactics in the corners were a major factor in bringing the Team Canada squad of NHL stars back for a 4-1 victory here Monday night after their 7-3 defeat in the national Saturday.

"You could say that Cashman was one of our leaders in changing the tone of this game from the one in Montreal," said Team Canada coach Harry Sinden.

Cashman was not picked to start in the game at Montreal and after he watched the Russians in action from a seat in the stands, the rangy Bruin told a reporter:

"I figured they started the game by hitting in the corners, and that, baby, is my game."

After Cashman and several other Team Canada players rolled out stiff checks Monday night, encouraged by the discovery that they can get away with more under international refereeing, it became apparent that the Soviets were looking first before going after the puck.

That slowed down the game to the point where the NHL player had control, unlike Saturday when they buffed and puffed all over the ice trying to catch the fast-skating Russians.

Title Apt ?

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Russian hockey team, whose 4-1 loss Monday night left the eight-game series with Team Canada tied at one victory each, went to the movies Tuesday night, prior to tonight's third game.

The movie, a western, was entitled: The Revengers.

Bobrov Didn't Agree

WINNIPEG (CP) — Vsevolod Bobrov, coach of Russia's national hockey team, was critical here Tuesday of the officiating by referees Steve Dowling and Frank Larsen in the second game of the Russia-Team Canada hockey series in Montreal Monday.

Their leniency toward Wayne Cashman in particular annoyed Bobrov.

"If that game had been played in Europe," he said, "he would have spent the entire game in the penalty box."

Bobrov suggested that Team Canada can expect stricter officiating in Moscow. "He (Cashman) must be prepared to spend some time in the penalty box in Europe."

Some of the Canadians, however, indicated they had done nothing more than model themselves on the Russians.

"Just watch the game films," said assistant coach John Ferguson. "The Russians are constantly running interference. That upsets you and gets you off balance. You get in stride and they step in front of you.

Neutral officials are used in the eight-game series. In Canada the referees are from the United States, experienced in amateur hockey, in Moscow, the referees will be from Europe.

Orioles Truly Team to Beat

By KRESCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore Orioles are the team to beat in the American League East. You can tell because everyone keeps beating them.

Tuesday night it was New York Yankees' turn with a 7-6 victory that saddled the Orioles with their fourth defeat in five games and dropped them from a first-place tie down to fourth, which is the equivalent of a disaster area for the three-time American League champs.

Detroit took over top spot with a 4-2 triumph over Cleveland. The Tigers are one-half game and three percentage points ahead of Boston Red Sox, who rallied to beat Milwaukee 5-4. The Yankees, also one-half game out, trail Boston by one point while Baltimore is one full game and seven points behind the Tigers.

Elsewhere in Chicago White Sox set up a crucial two-game series against front-running Oakland by beating Minnesota Twins 5-2 while the Athletics were idle. In the only other game, Kansas City Royals whipped Texas Rangers 7-3.

The contenders all play one another over the next few days—Detroit at Baltimore and New York at Boston for three games apiece in the East and Oakland at Chicago for a pair in the West.

"It should be a bleeping humdinger," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "I think one club will get hot and win it and I hope it's us. We swung the bat good tonight and I expect some hits and runs the next few days."

Unfortunately, the Yankees swung their bats for five runs against old nemesis Dave McNally in the first inning and were never headed, although the Orioles rallied for three runs in the ninth against Sparky Lyle.

Singles by Thurman Munson, Bobby Murcer and Roy White started the uprising against McNally and rookie Charlie Spikes slammed a two-run double. Rich McElravy singled Spikes home and the final run crossed on a bases-loaded walk by reliever Dave Leonhard.

"I still think Baltimore is the team to beat," said Manager Ralph Houk after beating the Orioles two of three.

It wasn't easy against Cleveland. The Tigers trailed 3-1 until the fifth, when Mickey Stanley walked, Aurelio Rodriguez doubled and Eddie Brinkman laced a two-run single. Frank Duffy homered for one of six Cleveland hits off Joe Coleman.

The Red Sox also came from behind to beat Milwaukee. They trailed 3-1 against Skip Lockwood until the eighth when Tommy Harper beat out a bunt, Carl Yastrzemski singled and Reggie Smith homered. Ben Oglivie then doubled home an insurance run.

"If Reggie and Yaz get hot, I think they can win," said Milwaukee's Joe Lahoud, an ex-Red Sox. "but they won't win without those two. If one is hot but the other is not, they can pitch around the one who is hot. You get past Rico Petrocelli and there isn't much left in the line-up. Carlton Fisk is hitting, I guess, but not like he was before the All-Star break."

The White Sox broke a skid that saw them lose six in seven by downing the Twins despite Harmon Killebrew's 537th career homer for Minnesota, moving him ahead of Mickey Mantle into fourth place on the all-time list.

Seaver Has New Twist

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tom Seaver, who has had a sore arm, had back and muscle pulls in both legs, has come up with a new twist: an injured external rotator.

"I don't think I'll be a cripple for the rest of my life, though," said New York Mets' right-hander after departing midway through Tuesday night's 3-0 loss to Chicago Cubs.

Seaver hurt himself throwing a curve ball to Don Kessinger in the fifth inning and a doctor later diagnosed the injury as an "injured external rotator," which is a muscle in his buttock.

"I thought I had a muscle spasm in my left buttock," said New York's No. 1 pitcher. "I thought it was a spasm that would go away, but it didn't."

Despite the pain, Seaver stayed in to pitch to Rich Morales and was hurt further when the Chicago centre fielder hit a home run.

Seaver's chances thus became slimmer for another 20-game winning season. He's won 16 games

Panthers Square Inter-county Semi-final

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers evened their Senior Inter-County Baseball League semi-final with Brantford Red Sox at two games apiece Tuesday, defeating the Sox 6-4 before 401 fans.

The deciding game in the best-of-five series will be played in Brantford Thursday, with the winner meeting Toronto Maple Leafs in the final.

Hugh Hebden cricked a sixth-inning homer to put the Panthers ahead 5-3 and Tom McKenzie added an insurance run in the seventh on a single, a stolen base and two throwing errors.

FISH FOR ECONOMY

If you're looking for relief from expensive meat costs, there's help for you from the lakes, the rivers and seas.

While the price of some fresh fish and seafoods has risen rather sharply, you can still enjoy real economy in such things as tuna, fish sticks, ocean perch and fillets of haddock. Canned tuna, shelled fillets and shrimp are good money-saving meal makers.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, SEPT. 7

Aries (March 21 - April 19): Give yourself time to think before you say something sharp. You still have to cope with well-meant meddling or other diversions.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Creative projects tend to lag or develop gaps. Discussions on material subjects, money run into snags, possible conflict.

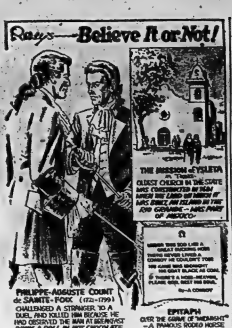
Gemini (May 21 & June 19): Those who care for you are contrary, while strangers offer co-operation. There is no orginized side to which you can switch.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It's time for the action that saves - nine later. Be sure that all concerned understand what you are trying to achieve.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Advice is available on all sides, easy to find, hard or unwise to follow. Those in higher echelons have a different view.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Reflection over recent experience shows you small but significant changes to make. Your persuasive powers are sharpened.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Most of the critical influences today relate to past decisions. Older people and their limitations are especially important.



Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Its expense is normal for now: a little tight squeeze, you get something just in time to make use of it.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Career and family needs are not compatible. Take time off for what is important, get one side of your problem sorted.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This is one of those times when you can't have everything your way without setting up worse complications for the future.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Theorists come in conflict with practical reality, possibly show some flaws. Make sensible adjustments on the spot.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Expect difficult, slow progress and failure of understanding. Neither argument nor single handed action serve any useful purpose.

Neglected VD Causes Much Woe

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am writing in response to the letter from the 15-year-old girl. She thinks she has gonorrhea.

I guess I know something about it. I have had it for 17 years when I got it. That was three years ago. If I had known the warning signs, I would have saved myself a lot of grief.

I thought that because I was a nice girl something so horrible as VD wouldn't happen to me. It went with the boy three years.

This year after I got married (to a wonderful man) and, two years after I had contracted VD, I found that I had it—because I was having so much pain I couldn't walk.

Now I have been married for two years, I am 20 and I don't know if I will ever be able to have children. I have a large cyst in my ovary and have a period or bleed almost every 15 days.

My husband is wonderful, he has remained and accepted the whole thing. But gonorrhea has caused my husband and me grief, a possibility that we may never have children of our own, and very expensive medical bills.

The point I want to stress is you, and maybe you can pass it on, is that it just isn't worth it. Not when you can look forward to years of grief.

I don't believe in free love or sex outside of marriage, but my one mistake has really cost me.

Please, Dr. Thosteson, tell the kids of today that it isn't worth the grief, tell them, even if they are planning marriage, to wait, it may may marry someone else, and marriage is a lot of work without added problems.

Thank you for letting me get it off my mind.—Miss J. C.

P.S.: My family doctor said that if we had found the gonorrhea when we did it could have killed me. I lost 25 pounds and it had gone into my bladder and bowel.—C.

Need I add anything to this letter?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We butchered a beef and the meat is rather tough. My family doesn't let me use tenderizer because "it tenderizes meat and our inside organs are meat." Now they say I am afraid of it. What is the truth?—Mrs. L.E.

They shouldn't be afraid of it. First, the lining of the intestine is not at all like the "muscle meat" which is the beef you eat. Tenderizer won't hurt it. For the final answer: the level of cooking destroys the tenderizer anyway!

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have noted conspicuous listing of spraying method for killing bugs, etc. What effect, if any, does this have on the chickens doing the spraying? They certainly are breathing the same air.—J.R.C.

You are quite right, sir. The sprayer breathes the same air, now the instructions.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three X's. For the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	2♣	2♠
Pass	Pass	3♦	3♥
Pass	4♠	Pass	5♥
Pass	6♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead — queen of spades.

The most sensational deal in the opening session of the World Olympiad was this one where North-South can make seven diamonds and only a handful of pairs reached even a small slam! No one got to the grand slam!

The bidding shown occurred in the match between Venezuela and Australia. At one table, where Seres and Smilde were East-West for Australia, Seres opened that hand with two spades, indicating the normal high-card strength for an opening bid but good distribution.

Overhead, something was wrong with the Venezuelan bidding system when Manrique and Vernon, respectively North-South, stopped at five diamonds, making seven. Assessing the blame is left to the tender mercies of the reader.

When Jim and Norma Boris went North-South for Australia in the other room — Mrs. Boris was one of the few women contestants competing their country — the bidding went:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1♠	1♥
Pass	Pass	2♠	3♥
Pass	4♠	Pass	5♥
Pass	6♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Certainly the Venezuelan West (Berah, playing with Leyrad) had a sound double of four hearts, but he wound up taking second money — as declarer lost only a spade and two trumps to score 730 points. Australia thus gained 730 points — 4 international match points.

In the U.S. - Japan match, with Jacoby and Wolff North-South for the Dallas Aces, the bidding went:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1♠	Dble
Pass	3♦	3♠	4♥
Dble	5♦	Dble	6♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

Jacoby made seven for 1,150 points. At his teammates' table, the Japanese South bid four hearts over East's opening one spade bid. West doubled, but East ran to four spades which everyone passed. Declarer went down two — 100 points — and the Aces gained 1,250 points on the deal, worth 14 imps.

Tomorrow: Italy vs. United States.

Media Serves People

To counter the revolutionary "struggle" is the main goal of the new Chinese leaders, Pulitzer-prize historial Barbara Tuchman, who recently returned from an extended China visit, describes this phenomenon in the following second of five articles.

Written for The AP
By BARBARA TUCHMAN

As prescribed by Mao 30 years ago, cultural and intellectual exercise exists only to serve the revolution. As such it becomes propaganda. Its foundations in China are firm, its structure protective. It exhorts and reassures. It has an answer for everything.

Marxism is "irrefutable truth" and Mao Tse-tung's thoughts the only "correct revolutionary line." There is a continuing struggle with the other line—revisionism, the effort to revert to the "capitalist road"—as represented by Liu Shao-chi. The veteran Communist and president until his ouster in 1967, now is the anti-Christ of the system.

This is the class struggle which is perpetual and never w o n because "bourgeois thinking" never gives up its effort to subvert the revolution, and never is defeated. "Struggle" is essential to the system. Victory will only come with the final achievement of socialism which, like the Kingdom of Heaven or the Second Coming, lies always ahead.

Meanwhile, the main Maoist principles for keeping the struggle going are: 1. Serve the people—this is the whole purpose of the society; 2. Increase production—the former "consumer" cities and communities must become producers and self-suppliers 3. Self-reliance—the people down to the most local level must generate their own innovations and energies for the increase of production; 4. Continuing renewal of "revolutionary consciousness" and continuing guard against divorce from the reality of manual labor and the life of the masses; 5. Non-aggression and non-interference in the affairs of other states, based on the dictum that China can never be aggressive because aggression is incompatible with socialism.

Sixth and most recent—and weakest—is the principle that all states are equal in status: Albania is no less than the Soviet Union, Yemen is on a par with the United States, and China is the friend of all based on a firm distinction, whom necessary, between "good" peoples and "bad" governments.

The idea that a chasm between bad government and good people is a delusion and that in fact democratic governments reflect their electorates is rejected by the Chinese.

The media for communication of six principles and their basic premise make up in persistence what they lack in variety.

The basic form is study groups of Marxism—Leninism and Mao Tse-tung thought in schools, neighborhoods, offices, communes and factories.

There are two national newspapers, People's Daily and Workers Daily, distributed by mail subscription, plus various provincial papers. Content is more lectures than news, and anything but fresh.

There are two company magazines published in foreign languages and intended mainly for foreigners though eagerly read by the Chinese, avi at least one popular magazine. There are no newsstands except for occasional small street tables displaying a newspaper and a few pamphlets and Mao Thought booklets.

Wall newspapers mounted behind glass cases, some with newsprint, most given over mainly to photographs exhibiting various proletarian triumphs in harvesting, athletics, ship-building, barefoot doctoring and other examples of "overfulfilling the quota."

Although TV exists to the extent of one or two hours of programming a day, I never saw a set outside the hosts for foreigners nor was ever allowed one in factory, commune, school, street committee or other institution, much less a home. Radios, however, are prized. Of the 80 households in the Chou Chang neighborhood in Lifyang, 30 possessed radios, and young men walk in the parks carrying transistor radios.

Constable Roy Miller and Elmer

Trenton Appoints Safety Officer

TRENTON (Staff) — While Trenton police Constable Roy Miller will still wear a badge and occasionally be called upon to take part in regular police duties, he has a new symbol which is guaranteed to keep him busy full-time.

Constable Miller has been appointed the town's first permanent safety officer, and the symbol is that of Elmer, the Safety Elephant.

In announcing the appointment of the 13-year veteran policeman Thursday, Trenton Police Chief David Saunders said the "protection of home, life and safety of the citizens of the community is the first consideration," and it was to this end Constable Miller becomes the permanent safety officer.

Described by those who know him as a conscientious worker," Roy Miller has been working part-time on the various safety duties which will now become his chief concern.

The decision to make this position permanent was based on several considerations, as Chief Saunders explained:

"With the continuous use of the automobile and its hazards' ever-increasing use of bikycles, snowmobiles and other vehicles, the need has never been greater to develop and maintain proper guidance and instruction on matters of personal safety, particularly in our schools and with our children."

Constable Miller's duties will include close work with town school officials and students in the classrooms. Here the Elmer safety program will be introduced to first-year students and continued with the older youngsters.

Elmer, whose image appears on a distinctive green flag, is flown on every school flagpole as long as the school maintains an accident-free school year, none of the children having suffered injuries while crossing streets or riding their bicycles.

The safety officer, himself the father of two children, will meet with hundreds of school youngsters, explaining various laws pertaining to pedestrian, and bicycle safety laws, rules of the road, ice and water safety and child molestation.

He will also be responsible for the training and inspection of school crossing guards. (At Trenton's last regular council meeting, a letter from Chief Saunders briefly outlined his future plans to use students as crossing guards, keeping the adult guards on the job until the new safety patrols are trained and ready for duty), plus a safety program which police hope to include in summer schools and for senior citizens.

While along the lines of bicycle safety, Constable Miller will also be responsible for operating bicycle rodeos and a motorized snowmobile program.

Says Chief Saunders: "During the past two years, Constable Miller has been known for his keen interest in safety. During 1971, 90 talks were given in schools "to students; he helped organize three bike rodeos, during which 280 children were tested for their safe handling of bikes and their equipment put through safety checks; and an extensive motorized snow vehicle program included nine lectures, attended by a total of 562 persons."

The new safety officer also brings to his new permanent post, the experience of being cubmaster of the 5th Trenton Cub Pack, as well as Assistant District Cubmaster for Trenton, founder of the Underwater Club of Trenton in 1964, plus a member of the Trenton and Carrying Place snowmobile clubs.

He also attended various safety seminars, held in Belleville, Peterborough and Toronto. There will be further training along this line, in the future.

Madoc Fair To Seek Fair Queen

An interesting new attraction has been added to the upcoming Madoc Fall Fair this year.

The local agricultural society announced that a competition for the title, Miss Madoc Fair will be added to the list of attractions at the annual fall agricultural exhibition.

In competing for the honor, the girls must abide by a set of rules laid out by the society. It is compulsory that the girls live within a 10-mile radius of the village, and, whether married or single, they must be between 18 and 21 years of age at the time of the event. As well, it is important that the girls enter a number of exhibits in the fair because the total number of points each one accumulates will decide the three finalists for the judging.

On fair day, Saturday, Sept. 30, a panel of judges will study the girls for personality, charm, poise and appearance. They will be expected to present a short speech at the grandstand, as well.

The three finalists will receive cash awards, $25 going to the top girl and $10 to each of the runners-up. The queen will be crowned and will thereby become eligible for competition next year's CNE for the Sweetheart of Ontario Fairs title.

All girls entering the competition at the CNE will be entertained at a luncheon, accompanied by their parents, and the executive of the local agricultural society. All contestants will be invited to stay overnight at a motel at the CNE at the expense of the CNE and will be given a free day to tour the grounds. Cash prizes there for the top three girls are $1,000, $500 and $200 consecutively.

The Madoc Agricultural Society is anticipating a number of entries for this competition and would like to receive applications soon.

Dance Centre Opens

Quinte Dance Centre, owner Eaton's Order Office on Front St., opens officially tonight with the showing of a film on the National Ballet School in Toronto. The film "Ready and . . . ", has been the hours of 5:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. "there is next to no water" coming through their taps.

"It takes them forever to get a drink," council was told.

Councillors concluded that there are so many trailers in the park, the peak demand on the community well is so great in early evening that water pressure is cut substantially.

Referring to trailer park owner Paul Sweetman, Sidney Reeve Jack Bush said "if he has a water shortage he will want to rectify it".

Council will advise the Ontario Water Resources Commission of the Mobile Village situation. It is the consensus of township officials that the trailer park needs a water storage tank of about 20,000 gallons capacity.

received enthusiastic reviews and has been lent to the dance centre by the National Ballet School whose students, like those above, star in the film. The public is invited to the screening at 7.30 p.m.

Novel Idea

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — The bite of hops eased the bite of school registration Tuesday for 1,400 students at Niagara College of Technology and Applied Arts.

A beer garden was set up outside the college for students tired out by registration-day lineups.

The idea came from the school student council and was approved by city council and the police department.

Steak House to Open On North Front Street

Foodex Systems Ltd. of Scarborough, operators of a large restaurant chain with outlets in Toronto and Montreal will open a steak house on North Front Street, it was learned today.

Announcement of the opening of what will be known as the Ponderosa Steak House are made jointly by Ronald D. Mendel, director of real estate and development for the restaurant chain and by Alderman R. Carke, chairman of the Belleville Industrial Commission.

Location of the new family oriented steak house will be at 261-269 North Front Street. The restaurant will seat approximately 260 persons and is expected to employ between 50 and 60 persons.

Sidney Considers Buying Avonlough Watermain

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Sidney township may soon be getting into the utilities business through possible purchase of a watermain on Avonlough Road.

The township has called in engineering consultants to advise on future of a water system formerly used to take water into the Kaiser chicken hatchery on Avonlough Road, just west of Belleville. The six inch main to Avonlough is now owned by Sidney Shores Ltd., which is willing to sell the main.

Totten, Sims and Robicki representative Peter Eberlee has been asked to evaluate the system and assess its potential.

The township wants to extend the main up Avonlough Road to a point where an extension of Belleville's Bridge St. West would meet the township road. Sidney also wants to put fire hydrants along the main that engineering consultants feel may need to be enlarged.

Consultant Eberlee has also been asked by Sidney to provide a formula by which Avonlough Road residents may hook into the main for household water service. Water comes up the existing Avonlough main through agreement with the Belleville Utilities Commission.

Moodie Books Adapted For Radio Series

Belleville's best known author, Susanna Moodie, will be the subject of a CBC radio drama to be aired in two installments next spring.

The two-part production will be heard the next two Saturday nights, Sept. 9 and 16 at 11:30 p.m.

The drama will be based on Mrs. Moodie's book, Roughing It in the Bush, the story of her life on an uncleared farm near Peterborough in the 1830s.

Following the rebellion of 1837, Mrs. Moodie and her husband, John Dunbar Moodie, moved to Belleville, where Moodie became the first sheriff of the county. Roughing It in the Bush was written in Belleville, and was followed by Life in the Clearings, a volume concerned with mid-19th century life in this city. Joseph Schull has adapted Mrs. Moodie's books for radio and Andrew Allan will direct the production. Aileen Seaton will play the part of Mrs. Moodie and Colin Fraverd will play her husband. Others in the cast are John Rodeman, Ruth Springford, David Hughes, Sean McInroy, Jane Mortimer, Alice Hill, Sandra Scott, Frank Perry, Murray Westgate, Pat Dixon, Alan Scarfe, Judy Sheslet, Maxine Miller and Moon O'Beirn.

Boil Water Villagers Are Told

WELLINGTON — Villagers in this Lake Ontario community have been warned to boil drinking water until reasons have been found for a rush bacteria level in the municipal water supply, public health authorities said today.

The warning was issued late yesterday by Dr. C. R. Lenk, health officer for Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Dr. Lenk said an illness caused by contaminated water had been reported in the village but that the risk was not necessary as a health precaution.

It followed information from the ministry of environment's water management division on samples taken from the communal water supply, revealing higher than usual bacteria counts, said the health officer. Coliform bacteria — derived from human waste — were found in the count.

The water is pumped from wells and chlorinated.

The treatment factor makes it all the more mystifying why the water should show the amount of bacteria it does," said Dr. Lenk.

The cause could be revealed as a failure in the chlorination system, he speculated.

Ministry officials were to probe the problem with village council representatives this morning, said Dr. Lenk.

Plant Closed

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Acme Screw and Gear Ltd. Tuesday informed Trevor Smith, Ontario labor department conciliator, that its decision to close permanently the strike-bound company is irrevocable.

Officials of the company and of the United Auto Workers met separately with Mr. Smith, but after the fruitless meeting Mr. Smith terminated meeting proceedings.

The 130 production workers went on strike Aug. 23 after rejecting a company request for a second 18-month wage freeze.

UAW representative Andrew Sutherland said the workers will have to look for other jobs.

Haig Road CPR Lights Endorsed

Installation of flashing lights at the Haig Road CPR crossing in the city's east end will cost an estimated $15,000 with annual maintenance and operation costs of $625.

These are the cost estimates arrived at by the Railway Transport Commission for installation of flasher warning lights at the level crossing which last winter claimed the lives of two Belleville women.

The cost figures were read out at Tuesday's traffic committee meeting with members recommending to council that they be accepted. The city would pay 15½ per cent of the installation cost and 50 per cent of the annual maintenance and operational costs.

BIG CITY

SAO PAULO (AP) — Brazilian officials said Sao Paulo, now with a population of six million, might be the biggest city in the world by 1980 if its present five per cent annual growth continues.

Information Gathered

Centennial student Marie Deline, 17, (left) and BCI's Janet Barron, 17, put finishing touches on tourist information displays for the Belleville Chamber of Commerce assembled by them during summer employment. Salary for one of the girls was paid by the Royal Bank of Canada as a civic project.

Argentine Guerrillas Nab Dutch Industrialist

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Argentine police were silent today about the fate of Dutch businessman Jan van de Pasque, presumably kidnapped by left-wing urban guerrillas. Unofficial sources indicated his company, Philips Electrical, was secretly negotiating for his release.

Van de Pasque, 55-year-old chairman of Philippa Argentina and a director of the Dutch parent company, was snatched from his car shortly after he left his home in the suburb of San Isidro for his office Tuesday morning.

Police sources said questioning of witnesses showed that 25 to 30 persons were involved in the kidnapping using up to seven cars to confuse searchers.

The planning indicated to observers that the operation was the work of urban guerrillas, rather than common criminals. There were similarities with the kidnapping of Fiat motor company executive Oberdan Salvatore last March.

Salisatro was shot dead in April when police stumbled on the "people's prison" where he was held by guerrillas of the Peoples Revolutionary Army. After the government of President Alejandro Lanusse refused to allow Fiat to negotiate for his freedom.

Van de Pasne's 18-year-old son was reported to have found a communique in his father's abandoned car which "de-

Sarnia Asking Million Grant For Opera

SARNIA (CP) — The Sarnia Arts Foundation is preparing a brief asking the Ontario government for more than $1 million for a light opera theatre proposed for a site on Sarnia Bay.

No decision has been made by the Sarnia industrial developm committee to a request for $1 million toward the $6-million theatre. The federal government has turned down a request for $500,000, present last week.

Want LIP Kept

TORONTO (CP) — More than 1,000 persons employed in Local Initiatives Programs in Metropolitan Toronto are threatening to campaign against the Liberal party in the forthcoming federal general election if the programs are not renewed by Oct. 1.

The Toronto projects are part of the federal government's $100-million employment program that last year created 85,000 jobs across Canada. The program was to have ended May 31, but Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey announced a four-month extension May 4. There has been no further announcement on the future of the program.

Tour Hits Snag

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The quadrennial train cavalcade of Ontario legislature members—an eight-day tour of Northern Ontario—ran into some snags Tuesday night at the beginning of the trip.

Premier William Davis did not appear to make a scheduled speech to the Sault Ste. Marie Rotary Club. He had a cabinet meeting to attend in Queen's Park.

Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, spoke instead.

The tour usually is held every four years to acquaint members with the north. Thirty-two MPPs, most of them from southern Ontario, nine reporters and a 15-man staff from Mr. Bernier's ministry are on the trip this year.

Mr. Bernier's ministry is footing the bill for which, he said in an interview, $100,000 had been budgeted.

Sixteen Drown

HELSINKI (AP) — Sixteen men drowned early today when a dredger capsized outside Pietarsaari harbor on the north western coast of Finland.

Authorities said 26 men were on board at the time of the accident, and four managed to swim to a nearby tugboat.

The dredger returned only a few hours before from a working trip.

Move Jobs

OSHAWA (CP) — Tom Green, international representative of the United Auto Workers, said Tuesday he has been informed that Philadelphia-based Budd Automotive had ordered that tool and die production for its auto-frame plant at Kitchener be transferred to the United States from five independent Ontario plants.

The Canadian tool-and-die plants affected are Fabricated Metals and Engineering Co. here and there in Windsor, Toronto and Kitchener. Work for Budd takes 40,000 man-hours a year.

Strike Ends

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The 10-week strike at the du Pont Maitland works plant in Brockville ended Tuesday night when members of Local 536, International Chemical Workers Union, voted 83 per cent in favor of accepting a new 32-month contract.

Delay Charged

OTTAWA (CP) — Chances of a postal strike during the federal election campaign are lessening, bal's union spokesman said Tuesday the post office is using "delaying tactics" to make sure the government is not embarrassed by a walkout.

Jim Mayes, chief spokesman for the Council of Postal Unions bargaining committee, said the treasury board's application for appointment of a conciliation officer to help resolve disputed issues in on-going contract negotiations is a political move.

Deceit Charged

MONTREAL (CP) — Benson and Hedges Tobacco Co. conveyed a plea of not guilty Tuesday to charges of publishing misleading advertising of its Belvedere cigarettes in 1969-70.

The complaint under the Combines Investigation Act was based on advertising content which offered "instant cash" certificates of $2,500 to $25,000 right out of the blue" in Belvedere packages.

Inquest Set

MONTREAL (CP) — Coroner Laurin Lapointe said Tuesday a coroner's inquest into the Feb. 2 day night fire which killed 37 persons in the Blue Bird Club will be held Wednesday, Sept. 13.

He told Giles Eccles, the 24-year-old being held on a coroner's warrant, that he will be detained as a material witness until the inquest.

Eccles' appearance before Mr. Lapointe lasted only a few minutes.

Meanwhile, the search continued for two other men being sought by police in connection with the fire.

Two Killed

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Two 16-year-old youths from Belle River, 15 miles east of here, were killed in a two-car collision near Windsor Monday night.

Police Tuesday identified the youths as Gregory Ladouceur and Donald Kreitzer.

Thugs Slay 8 Golfers

'Our next guest was actually present at the 1936 Olympics.'

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, St. Thomas, V.I. (AP) — Police hunted today for four or five gunmen wearing green fatigues who machine - gunned eight Americans to death during a robbery in the golf clubhouse of a Rockefeller resort in the Virgin Islands.

Officials would not release the names of four of the victims, but Lt.-Gov. David Maas said they were believed to be tourists from the United States mainland.

A spokesman for the Rockefeller family in New York said two of the victims were tentatively identified as Pat Tarbert, a girl who worked in the club's golf shop, and John Gulliver, a groundskeeper. He said another two victims were electricians.

The gunmen opened fire late Wednesday afternoon at the Fountain Valley Golf Club on the Island of St. Croix, about 36 miles south of St. Thomas. Maas said. Seven persons died at the scene and another at a hospital.

Ronald Tonkin, the territory's attorney general, said there were four or five masked green fatigues using automatic weapons. The killers herded their victims' pockets, and cleaned out the clubhouse cash drawer before escaping into the overgrown hills around the course.

"This is absolutely the worst thing that has ever happened in the Virgin Islands," said Maas. "These men will be caught."

Olympic Terrorists' Accomplices Sought

MUNICH (AP) — West German police hunted for 15 more Arabs today and pressed an investigation into the airfield killing of nine Israeli hostages Tuesday.

Bavarian state police said the 15 were suspected of being accomplices in the planning and execution of the Arab terrorist attack Tuesday that killed two other members of the Israeli Olympic team and culminated in the airfield shootout.

Five of the terrorists and a West German policeman also were killed at the airfield. A German helicopter pilot was seriously wounded. Three of the terrorists were captured slightly wounded.

The three captives were identified as Ibrahim Badran, 28, Abd Es Kadir El Desawy and Samer Mohamed Abdhah, both 22. They said they were students and last lived in Jordan and Syria.

A Bavarian court official said they faced multiple charges of murder. They were being interrogated at an undisclosed location.

The Olympic competition, suspended 12 hours after the first Israeli was killed in the Olympic Village, resumed late Wednesday with big crowds.

The circumstances of the shootout at Fuerstenfeldbruck were still unclear, and the West German government said it was investigating.

The Munich police initially said the first shots were fired by one of the Arabs who reacted hysterically when he saw police waiting at the airfield. But the police later retracted this and said further investigation showed police sharpshooters opened fire when two of the guerrillas showed themselves in an especially favorable position. However, the police said the sharpshooters were unable to knock the two Arabs out of the battle before they got off shots of their own.

Police spokesmen said the visibility also was poor—it was about 11 p.m. and the airfield was not illuminated—and the sharpshooters were using telescopic sights to fire at shadows.

Bandit Is Trapped By Language Barrier

MONTREAL (CP) — French still has a way to go before becoming Quebec's language of work.

A bandit walked up to a wicket of a downtown bank and handed over a note which read in French:

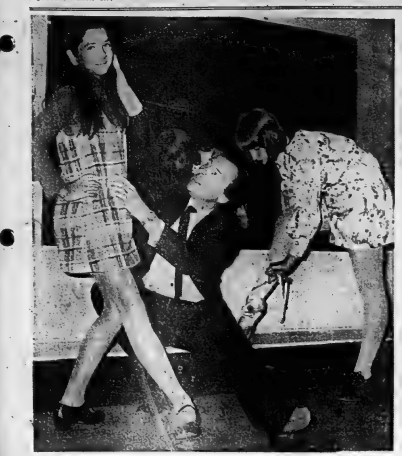
"This is a holdup — put your money in the bag."

The teller, who understands only English, reacted in confusion.

The holdup man impatiently repeated the instructions verbally, again in French. Still no understanding.

Finally the teller in the next wicket read the note, translated it and filled the robber's bag with $200 from the till.

The exasperated bandit grabbed the money and ran, only to be collared by two bank employees who had assessed the situation during the language confusion.



The would-be bandit will face the courts today. In the language of his own choice.

Lawrence Rumored Running

TORONTO (CP) — Reports circulated today that Provincial Justice Secretary Allan Lawrence plans to announce Friday that he will seek the federal Conservative nomination in the rural - riding of Northumberland-Durham.

However, the justice secretary would not confirm the report of his candidacy saying only "I just simply have not made up my mind up yet."

In Northumberland-Durham, the sitting member is Liberal Russell Honey, 51, who narrowly defeated Conservative John Pratt in the 1968 election.

MacNaughton Replaces McKeough as Treasurer

TORONTO (CP) — Charles MacNaughton, 68, became treasurer of Ontario for the second time today, replacing Chatham businessman Darcy McKeough, who resigned last week over conflict of interest.

Mr. MacNaughton, sworn in by Lt.-Gov. Ross Mackay, said it is expected he will fill in as treasurer at least until Premier Davis shuffles his cabinet sometime before mid-November.

Mr. Davis said he hasn't made his decision as to when the legislature will sit again but expects the session would be at least three weeks" and will be called probably by mid-November and after the Oct. 30 federal election.

Mr. MacNaughton was made management board chairman when Premier Davis announced his new cabinet last February. He will retain that position.

And besides being provincial treasurer, he will be responsible for the department of intergovernmental affairs as well as being acting premier when Mr. Davis is away.

Premier Davis announced Wednesday he had accepted the resignation of Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough.

Mr. Davis said he accepted the resignation "with great regret" and his acceptance did not "in any way reflect upon his (Mr. McKeough's) personal integrity, nor does it imply any misconduct on his part."

In answer to questions, the premier said guidelines to conflict of interest will be brought forth shortly, "next week, if possible."

Mr. Davis said he was not sure that legislation would be necessary or what form the guidelines would take. He said the guidelines would not be restricted to situations involving land but would not expand on what other areas they would cover.

Mr. Davis said he has been unable to find any precedent "that would preclude the possibility" of Mr. McKeough's return to cabinet at some future date. He said Mr. McKeough's successor will take on exactly the same portfolios because it was set up by statute and "could not be broken down at this time without legislation."

Canadians' Story

Planned Attack On Arabs Dropped

MUNICH (CP) — The lights burned 24 hours in Bunker 23 Wednesday night as a forward command post was turned back into the Canadian team headquarters at the Olympic Village.

But a high Canadian team official filled in the details of the hours when Arab guerrillas held Israeli athletes as hostages in a nearby building.

"We were the closest building overlooking the action and our telephones were taken over by the security forces," he said.

"The guards used our headquarters—by then we were calling Building 23 Bunker 23—as a command post. They were all using hand radios and we could keep good track of what was going on."

By this time, the athletes had been cleared from the area. Police and army men strolled casually about wearing track suits, the jackets bulging with bullet-proof vests.

"We were told in confidence that a three-part ultimatum had been delivered to the terrorists at 4:35 with instructions to discuss the alternatives and to have an answer ready at 5:65 p.m," the Canadian said.

"At that point, three sure shots-shooters with rifles on the adjoining Trinidad-Tobago Embassy roof.

"The theory was, that at 5 p.m.—with the terrorists tired and nervous by this time and all of them in one room discussing the ultimatum—that the soldiers and police would rush the Israeli building—five minutes before the deadline.

"At five minutes to five, the smelling athletes picked up real-cattle army helmets, ergonomic rifles and machine-guns. It was a strange army, in old-fitting track suits of red, white or orange, wearing track shoes and carrying automatic weapons.

"Then something happened. An order came down from somewhere pretty high up that there was to be no gunfire inside the village. The word we heard was that it came from Chancellor Willy Brandt himself. Whoever it was had a lot of clout to get that operation stopped."

Bomb Destroys Home Of Ulster Laborite

BELFAST (AP) — A woman was killed in a bomb attack on a leading Roman Catholic politician's home in Belfast early today as guerrillas stepped British troops and rioting mobs with gunfire and hand bombs.

The woman, a visitor in the home, was dragged dead from the rubble of the house owned by James O'Kane, chairman of Northern Ireland's Republican Labor party who last recently released from a British prison camp for Irish Republican Army sympathizers.

There were fears the attack on O'Kane's home was made by Protestant extremists.

The bomb was buried by two men who drove up in a car after midnight. One smashed in a front room window. The other hurled the fire to a bomb packed inside a duffel bag and threw it into the house.

O'Kane's wife, Josephine, was wounded as she ran upstairs to get her three sleeping children. But despite her wounds, she got the children to safety. A neighbor woman was also wounded.

The blast virtually demolished the front of the house. O'Kane was apparently not in the house at the time.

Egypt Blames Germany For Airport Gunfight

CAIRO (Reuter) — The Egyptian government said today it holds West Germany squarely responsible for the Munich gun battle in which five Arab commandos and nine Israeli athletes were killed. The Middle East news agency said in Cairo.

The agency quoted a government spokesman, who described the shootings as regrettable.

The official said the West German government did not fulfill promises given by German officials to the Palestinian commandos who had held the Israelis as hostages.

West Germany did not handle the Munich incident "correctly and with wisdom and should bear the consequences," the spokesman said.

"The West German government alone bears full responsibility," he added.

Police said Laroque, 22, was mond Albert when he was using the name of Gerry Raypicked up during investigation of a break-in. It was not until investigation of the incident proceeded that his real identity was discovered.

Laroque was the 12th man involved in the escape to be picked up.

Frontenac-Lennox Nominations Set

DOUGLAS ALKENBRACK

NAPANEE — Nomination conventions have been confirmed for later this month by both Liberal and Progressive Conservatives parties for the sprawling riding of Frontenac-Lennox and Addington.

Douglas Alkenbrack, the incumbent Conservative MP since 1965, said here yesterday he had been told by the party's riding executive its convention will be held at Cloyne, Sept. 23.

Mr. Alkenbrack said he will again seek renomination.

Meantime, Liberal riding president Barry Young today announced a convention in Napanee Sept. 16.

Yesterday, Ernestown township farmer Peter MacKinnon, of Bath, said he would seek the Liberal nomination. Ross Baker, of Arden, also is expected to seek the Liberal candidacy.

The riding is a bulky electoral area, mostly rural in makeup. It reaches from the Bay of Quinte almost to the Ottawa River near Pembroke, and east toward Gananoque.

Mr. Alkenbrack has become politically prominent in parliament in the past year as a critic of the government's methods introducing bilingualism into the public service. Recently he also has attacked its penal reform moves, warning they are too permissive, benefiting criminals at the expense — and hazard — of the public. His riding includes Millhaven penitentiary—scene of a recent mass escape — and the minimum security Bayside penal complex.

Penal reforms must be more realistic, with the protection of the public taking precedence over rehabilitation of prisoners.

He accused the Trudeau government of creeping main national disunity by "outright fawning" of Quebec.

Mr. MacKinnon, with lengthy credentials in agricultural and community services, says he has not been previously committed to any political party. But he feels Canada needs a strong Liberal government to assure its unity, natural resources and guidelines for its future destiny.

He is a past chairman of the Ontario Wheat Producers Marketing Board and the Farm Credit Corporation Appeal Board of Ontario.

Mr. Baker is a tourist operator in the Arden area.

The Conservative convention is scheduled for the North Addington Educational Centre. The Liberal event will be held at Prince Charles' Public School in Napanee, and will be an open convention, not tied to selected delegates.

Only requirements for voting, says Barry Young, is payment be paid-up members of the party association "in good standing" 72 hours before the convention.

Rural Non-Farmers Surveyed by Planners

Non-farm residents of Sidney and Thurlow townships will have a chance to contribute to the future planning of the Quinte area through participation in two surveys being mailed out today.

The surveys drawn up by Quinte Planning Board will be sent to over 2,200 rural non-farm residents of the population and 200-300 mobile home dwellers.

"Provincial policy is to discourage rural non-farm living," says QPB's senior planner Richard Dastoor, who adds that such land uses "are an increasingly important phenomenon" in the two townships.

He says considerable research has been done on both rural and mobile home living in both the United States and British Columbia but there is little data on the basis such is needed similar development areas.

"We need as much information as possible . . . we can get objective material from assessment rolls but we really should have answers to such basic questions as why people want to live in the townships and how they like it," Danziger explains.

Results of the two surveys will be tabulated, analyzed and taken into consideration as a new comprehensive plan for the regional planning area is drawn up.

Planning director Bert Kenny indicates the QPB staff is "trying to collect the facts for policy for various types of development in the area . . . if people are unhappy with the way things are we must ultimately be able to work out alternatives."

Stamped return envelopes will accompany the surveys and QPB officials stress it is up to the individual whether he wants to sign his name — the most important thing is that the planners receive a sufficient level of response.

The surveys contain between 20 and 30 questions, most susceptible to yes or no multiple answers to the survey questions will provide an accurate picture of what residents consider the advantages and disadvantages of rural and mobile home life.

"We should learn what the likes and dislikes of the people are, what their park needs are, their recreation needs, what are standards of density should be considered," Danziger said.

He concludes the surveys are a way for the people involved to be "called in on a direct sort of way through citizen participation . . . if we do not get this involvement it will be more difficult to plan for them".

The two surveys going out today will be followed in the months ahead by surveys of urban and farm homes. .

Road Issue Hampered By Access

CANNINGTON (Staff) — While a radio in the council chambers kept the pace up to date on the Canada Russia hockey game last night, Thurlow council met in special session to hear views of a delegation of Foxboro area residents on a road closing issue.

Council heard five residents skeptical under a portion of Old County Road No. 5 that Thurlow wants to close. The roads are in question is near the old Foxboro station on what is now known as Rose Road.

The township had proposed to defer the length of road way fronting each home to the homebuilders owned it giving each access to the new county road now built to the south of the old road.

However, the matter has a new been complicated by the fact one man owns a strip of land between the old and new roads and has expressed the intention to keep it as a garden. The strip blocks access to the new road.

One resident told council the strip of land "would make a poor garden . . . it is all rock." He called for elimination of the strip.

Residents say were it not for the proposed garden would they would not be against the road closing but they took the position here Wednesday that if the access question is not settled now "the whole issue will just drag on and on."

Council will consider the question again at a meeting next week.

Courtesy Seminar Proposed

The friendliness of one segment of the so - called Friendly City is not what it is cracked up to be, say members of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

Downtown businesses are not friendly, chamber directors contended in a meeting yesterday and the Chamber's manager Donald Sutton says "we miss it in centennial attitude to the public by a country mile."

He called for a seminar to be drawn up at Loyalist College to instill more pleasant attitudes in those working in the downtown area.

"We should have a seminar at Loyalist to refresh their attitudes," said Mr. Sutton, particularly concerned that visiting tourists be treated pleasantly here.

Chamber director Walter Street argued that the back-to-school sessions for Belleville's merchants and their workers be launched next April so they are prepared for next year's tourist season.

However, he stressed he does not feel pleasant attitudes-amiable those downtown should be restricted for tourists only.

"We should have people from Belleville treated well, too," he said.

Manager Sutton said he thinks there are some enterprises in the core of the city with the proper approach that you have to go in the older businesses for that . . . or else go up north."

He commented favorably about hospitality extended to his family on a recent holiday by shopkeepers throughout Northern Ontario.

Hydro Inspections Down

Operating with a skeleton staff, Ontario Hydro inspectors are checking partially completed Belleville homes only half as often as they ordinarily would.

While under construction, new homes are visited at various stages by inspectors to ensure that the highest standards of material were used and that adequate safeguards are incorporated in the home's wiring.

Because of the province - wide shortage of employees of Ontario Hydro, inspection staff at the local office has been reduced to one person.

Inspectors now are visiting homes only once before closing their stamp of approval, instead of twice as in the past.

Jack Muir, speaking for the local hydro office said, "The situation is that all of the inspection department is spread as thin as it can, working day and night to handle the load".

In many cases inspectors are relying on the co-operation and reputation of the contractor.

"Because we have not got the staff to do the job, we are placing more of the responsibility on the contractor's shoulders," said Mr. Muir, "I suppose, it is possible that they could take advantage of this situation."

Recent press releases issued by union sources, state that either the honor system or the shortage of inspectors has led to a dangerous situation.

The same releases cited certain subdivisions (not in Belleville) where poor wiring is going unnoticed.

"We are doing as much as we can but it is true that five cannot do the work of 35," said Mr. Muir.

"Hazards are found anytime, strike or no strike," he said.

For the managerial teams across the province who are maintaining the power services, there is no relief in sight.

Mr. Muir said, reflecting on the status of negotiations, "unfortunately there is no sign of hope".

Bylaws Passed

PICTON (Staff) — Town council Tuesday night passed bylaws regulating the speed limit and parking on certain Picton streets.

The new bylaws were prepared after provincial court judge James Clendenning declared Picton's parking bylaws were "ultra vires".

A speed limit of 25 miles an hour was approved by council for several streets in Picton.

Judge Clendenning preparad a 21-page report concerning local parking bylaws this summer when he pronounced them ultra vires.

Museum Opening Delayed

The long-awaited opening of Glanmore House, new home of the Hastings County Historical Society, has again been delayed.

The refurbished mansion now is expected to open its doors to the public some time in January, with an official debut in the spring.

Although work on the building should be complete by October 15, the museum's management committee is allowing three months for the transfer of exhibits and setting up of displays.

"We have set unrealistic dates in the past," said society president Frank Foley. A spring opening will allow time to work out the bugs, he commented.

Meanwhile, the museum's home for the past 11 years, the old county office on Church Street closes tomorrow. Volunteers and professional movers have until Nov. 1 to vacate the one-time Hastings county office. Then workers will move in to demolish the old structure.

Most of the three month interim should be devoted to enhancing the various rooms being used to house exhibits at Glanmore House. Cabinets, display cases and other essential items will be purchased and installed before final decisions can be made as to lay-out of individual displays.

Peter Styrmo, senior adviser with the museum's branch of the Ontario government, will be on hand today to advise on the committee of museum officials' plans for eventually map the building.

The final three contracts, for interior painting, ceiling restoration and carpeting, were let last week.

The historical society will hold its 15th anniversary reunion at the old museum Sunday, Oct. 1. Mr. Foley says that with 120 cases ready to move, the place will look "kind of stripped" although memories should suffice for most ex-members.

The woman who has done much of the packing, Mrs. Mary Jane Hale, this week terminated her 12-week stint as curator. A native of London, Ont., she may return to western Ontario or go out west where she once held the post of registrar at Vancouver Centennial Museum.

Glanmore House officials will decide shortly whether or not to hire a full-time curator. In the meantime, Ross Irvin continues as acting curator.

Fish Fry Raises Rink Funds

MARMORA — A capacity crowd of 200 attended the fish fry at Marble Point Lodge on Crowe Lake Saturday evening sponsored by the Marmora arena reconstruction committee to raise funds for a $30,000 ice plant.

A plentiful supply of fish, salads, rolls and coffee was enjoyed by everyone.

Later in the evening Murphy's Orchestra from Madoc provided music for dancing. Two television sets were provided for those people who preferred to watch the Canada - Russia hockey game.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bateman hosted the affair and prepared the fresh lake perch while the wives of committee members provided the salads. Thus the second year this popular event has been held and the demand for tickets is high.

On Sunday, Aug. 20, the Marmora Lions Club executive started off the campaign for funds with a chicken barbecue at Legion Park. Two hundred chicken dinners complete with trimmings were provided and no great was the turnout that the food ran out. Donald Smith of Port Dover was chef for the affair, assisted by members of the committee.

This event raised $625 towards a new ice plant for the arena and raised the temperature on the Object Thermometer considerably.

Asphyxiation Said Cause Of Trenton Man's Death

TRENTON (Staff) — Former Trenton police sergeant Douglas Bradshaw died as a result of asphyxiation in the fire which consumed his Front Street variety store last May 1.

This was the finding Wednesday night of a five-man coroner's jury at the inquest looking into the circumstances surrounding the Trenton man's death.

The jury accepted the theory of Inspector Paul McKerracher of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office that the store owner had been awakened by a noise and carrying a gun commenced an investigation.

"We believe he raised the gun in both hands over his shoulder in a defensive position, stumbled over a chair, the gun discharging, resulting in instant paralysis," the jury's verdict read.

Testifying at the inquest, however, Trenton police sergeant Sid Vickers theorized that Mr. Bradshaw might have chosen suicide rather than wait for death after being trapped in the flames which were consuming his variety store.

The official pathologist's report listed as "asphyxiation due to inhalation of smoke." The previously unreleased fact that the body contained a .32 calibre bullet was introduced into the qualifying statement that the wound would not have caused death, but "immediate paralysis" from the neck down.

Cpl. Jim McCumber of 75 Trent Street, Frankford, told the coroner's jury he tried unsuccessfully to raise neighbors, finally driving to the police station to turn in the alarm at 6 a.m.

Trenton police Constable Gary Davis climbed onto the roof after he found several doors locked.

"As I opened the first window, I saw a tremendous amount of smoke and flames. The glass broke and I had to vacate the roof immediately," he testified.

Firemen equipped with air-packs successfully entered the upstairs living quarters, but did not find Mr. Bradshaw. It was not until smoke and flames were nearly quenched that his body was found at the foot of a set of stairs.

Deputy Fire Chief Henry Barr found a .32 revolver 6 inches from the body.

A juror pondered whether they were dealing with a question of the bullet having been fired before or after the fire.

Inspector Paul McKerracher said: "Mr. Bradshaw may have been awakened by intruders. Suspecting a robbery, the store owner went into the residence adjoining the store to get the revolver out. Upon entering the living room, he was met with dense smoke, which caused him to trip over a lazy boy chair."

He said the origin of the fire was narrowed down to the rear of an ice cream freezer. The inspector said he believes Mr. Bradshaw may have left a cigarette on the freezer surface, on an angle, which could have caused it to fall behind, igniting paper exhibits and dust.

Detective Sergeant Vickers was the first to give the possible attempted suicide theory.

Sgt. Vickers said he thinks the store owner may have got trapped in the stair well, having fallen.

"I feel he was in a state that he couldn't get out. Either the gun went off accidentally, or he shot himself," he testified.

An employee of the store, for 20 years, Miss Jackie Sharpe said Mr. Bradshaw had seemed "depressed", keeping to himself rather than chatting as he usually did.

One Day World Fair Saturday

A total of $1,800 in prize money is being offered for the various exhibits and events.

Downtown firemen will again be at the fair operating their "Save the Children" booth.

Admission to the grounds remains at $1 with children admitted free.

Picton Seeking Housing Units

PICTON (Staff) — Town council has approved the provision of four housing units for the senior citizens in Picton and will mention the availability of the former Mary Street school site to the Ontario Housing Corporation.

A resolution passed by council stated that the one-bedroom units will be built owing to need and effective demand shown in a survey taken last month.

The town has agreed to contribute 1% per cent of any annual less arising from operation of the senior citizen housing units.

It was decided the town clerk send a letter to the OHC should note the Mary Street school property is being retained for the housing project and is available.

The school was demolished early this summer following the sale at auction among members of council concerning its fate.

Several maintained the building should have been considered as a site for town offices and lock-up facilities.

Mail to Allow C of C Booth

Cambridge Leaseholds, owners of Quinte Mall, have agreed to allow the Belleville Chamber of Commerce to operate a new tourist information centre on their property flanking North Front St.

Donald Sutton, the chamber manager told a directors' meeting Wednesday "we will still have to present a proposal" for the building to Cambridge Leaseholds . . . the specifications are being drawn up now."

Directors agreed that operating a booth on Elliott Motors land further to the south this year would "not be as beneficial".

"I think that is the answer," said director Walter Street, commenting on the decision of Quinte Mall proprietors to allow a booth on their property.

Olympics Perspective

Although the cruel fate of the Israeli team at the Olympics and the reputation of the Olympics per se are uppermost in the minds of people everywhere we should not allow this tragedy — conceived in evil and given effect by blind and ruthless radicalism — to blot out what went before.

We had been thinking of the Russians — in and out of the Olympics — and concluded that here are people united with the rest of the world in a love of sport, with a so-called cold war of years past well in decline, handsome young people just like our own — but with their own unmistakable blend of facial perfection in the eyes and in the line of mouth and cheekbone.

And there was a little girl called Olga Korbut, an electrifying youngster of 17 who moved with a grace and charm that brought her a couple of gold medals in gymnastics. She seemed to typify the spirit of the Olympics so ruinously and gratuitously shattered days later.

We think also of our own fine Olympic competitors and of that excellent young American, Mark Spitz, who has won more gold medals than anyone in history. But because he is Jewish he was forced to leave Munich for his own safety.

In another branch of sport — one of consuming interest here — we think of the hockey players, Canadian and Russian, locked in friendly battle.

There is Boris Spassky, edged out of his world title in chess by that awful . . . irascible . . . redoubtable (take your pick) American Bobby Fischer. Both estimable fellows when all is said and done and fundamentally one in their love of this most demanding and technical of games.

We shall remember such competitors and those of all the other nations who have been performing in the Olympics (which rightly, we believe, are being allowed to continue after a day of mourning), as we shall remember the hockey players and all the others who are greater than any misguided moron with a gun, any latter-day hoodlum who thinks he can blackmail individuals or nations.

Back to School

After the long summer break the return to school brings mixed feelings. In the interim the mental processes, if not exercised to any degree in some job or other, are sluggish. The student returning to the grind, unless he is unusually keen, does so with a sort of stoicism, a dull fortitude. For most however this feeling is fortunately shortlived; indeed, there is a sense of relief as well in returning to school. The summer vacation can be too much of a good thing — say travelling abroad for those who have the means, or at the other extreme, nowhere to go, no job, idleness and a sense of frustration. For the latter, summer is good thing, and school is an opportunity to get back on the rails again, see ones friends and, hopfully, improve ones standing academically.

For some — and those in this category are particularly in need of guidance — there is a continued sense of futility in school. The reasons are manifold and not least is an unhappy home life. How many fail into this category we cannot say but we suspect their numbers are considerable.

There is something reassuring though, in the groups of youngsters — of primary age as well as those maturing at high school — waiting for the bus these September mornings: the boys in slacks, shirt and sweater or track jacket; the girls in their new spring mini outfits, pant suits, or jeans. And they shiver a little as they wait for the bus these cool mornings.

Soon we may expect early morning fog — in the rural parts at least — and eventually the visual trauma, the fabled, ageless scene that is autumn. By school time all will be really under way and the young people decided one way or another about their immediate future.

"No Need to Separate"

Quebec Has Never Had It So Good Says Marchand

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Maybe it is because of the oncoming election and the government's urgent need for a positive image.

Or perhaps it is because Regional Economic Expansion Minister Jean Marchand, a bouncy little man of high spirits, never looks on the dark side if there is even the faintest glimmer of light amid the gloom.

Not that his particular cabinet assignment does not call for optimism, for after all, is not a Regional Economic Expansion Minister supposed to be enpansive?

Even so, what a refreshing change of pace it was to hear a leading French-Canadian politician say that Quebec's prospects never were better nor future brighter.

His words had a nice, reassuring sound to the rest of Canada which for years has been watching the administration at Ottawa bend the federal-provincial intergovernmental game rules to pacify the province, and force-feed it with far more than its proportionally fair share of attention.

Quebec, perpetually discontented, has been pampered with all manner of special deals.

They range from extra large helpings from the federal financial table in a wide range of grant-programs, to simply cutting out of joint federal-provincial undertakings other provinces share to take the money and go it alone.

The federal government bends over backwards in catering to Quebec, and the other provinces for the sake of unity sometimes go to extraordinary lengths to be understanding and accommodating.

But still the whining and complaining continues from Quebec City, and the policy persists with some of the politicians — both federal and provincial — to use French-Canada unrest and the talk of separation to pry further concessions.

While "deploring" the political likes of separatist Rene Levesque, there are some politicians in both Quebec City and Ottawa who see him as a lever.

But not Jean Marchand.

He buys none of that doom and gloom.

Why should Quebec separate, he asks, when French Canada has never had it so good?

He says he is sick of the professional pessimists, tired of the perpetual alarmists".

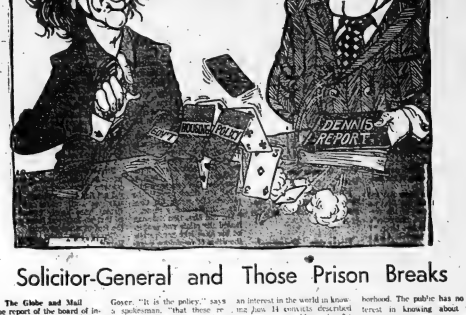
"Never," he said on in a speech the other day to a Montreal audience "has the French language been more widely spoken in Canada as today.

"Never have we had more or better writers, singers and poets.

"Never have we had more French - Canadians involved everywhere in industry and commerce."

Separatism?

"If we let ourselves go," he said in speaking of the talk that Quebec might pry itself — or be pried — from Canada, "we would disappear in a mass of 225 million English - speaking North Americans."



"Building a wall around Quebec will not help, nor change the basic fact that we will still remain living beside the greatest industrial machine in the world" which happens to be English-speaking.

"Build a wall and you still will not stop French - Canadians going to Old Orchard Beach or Miami every year.

"We are not an island, we are part of the "Anglo-speaking continent."

In the past Jean Marchand has suggested that while some extremists in Quebec might be unhappy with the way English-speaking Canada treats them and their province, at least the other provinces have a better understanding of French-Canadians and are more sympathetic of their problems and "sensibilities," as he termed it, than would be the United States, even the next-door New England states.

Finally, Jean Marchand warned Montrealers that to become too preoccupied with the idea of the "americanization" of the status of French Canada's language and culture would be to run the risk of converting Quebec into an isolated museum.

Solicitor-General and Those Prison Breaks

The Globe and Mail

The report of the board of inquiry established to investigate the escape of 14 inmates from the Millhaven federal prison on July 10 will not be made public, says the office of the Solicitor-General, Jean - Pierre Goyer. "It is the policy," says a spokesman, "that these reports not be made public unless, of course, there is something in them that the Solicitor - General feels the public should know. Oh, quite. The public hasn't an interest in the world in knowing how 14 convicts described by authorities as dangerous could wander out through a hole in the fence at Canada's newest and reputed by best planned maximum security penitentiary and disrupt the entire surrounding neighborhood. The public has no interest in knowing about the accumulating evidence of mismanagement in the Canadian Penitentiary Service over which Mr. Goyer has inexplicably presided for the past 20 months — an unparalleled period of prison disorders, rioting, and mass escapes, dutifully investigated by boards whose findings Mr. Goyer suppresses.

When Mr. Goyer announced the appointment of the three-man commission to "carry out a full and complete inquiry into all circumstances surrounding the escape" at Millhaven, he also instructed it to make recommendations applicable to all federal penal institutions.

Does the Solicitor - General really need to be reminded that at the very time his board of inquiry was preparing its report, 14 convicts escaped from four different federal prisons in British Columbia, two went over the fence at the Cowansville, Que., medium security penitentiary, five more went over the fence at the Warkworth medium security penitentiary and seven broke out of the penitentiary complex at Laval (six of them in the precise Millhaven-style)? And the public, says Mr. Goyer, shouldn't know why — when he only brings he can keep under lock and key in this country are the reports he commissions.

"Cambridge" Possible New City

Galt Reporter

The "name game", unquestionably the most controversial subject on upcoming regional government, has found unanimity with municipal councils of Preston and Hespeler. Both civic authorities have placed their stamp of approval on the name "Cambridge". Darcy McKeough, provincial treasurer and inter - governmental affairs minister, has advised the mayors of the three municipalities that none of the current three names can be used, and the councils have until Sept. 15 to submit one name each. The voters will then, at the election on Dec. 11, cast their ballots for the name which most suits their fancy for the future identity of the amalgamated municipalities. A majority of Galt council, supported by the Chamber of Commerce, has vigorously pursued their intention that the name Galt should be accepted, able and maintained for posterity. Another point of view, however, is that the ways of provincial government are often unpredictable, it is most unlikely that at this stage of the game, with less than two months remaining before an election for district and regional councils, that Queen's Park authorities will be unwilling to the latest Galt overture. Should, perhaps, Galt council follow the lead of Preston and Hespeler, then the die will have been cast and the name Cambridge will be adopted. If an alternative is chosen, south then electors will make the ultimate decision on Oct. 16. In a poll conducted by The Reporter several weeks ago, although voters were given the opportunity to express their personal reasons for their choice of name other than the existing three names, "Cambridge" topped the list of those submitted by a substantial margin. After some seven years of deliberations the cards of time are running out on what Queen's Park officials have called "cheese and kisses" method of municipal government which has basically been operational for 125 plus years. Hope is sincerely expressed that extra costs associated with advent of regional government in other areas can be minimized here.

"Eyes on Kenya and Tanzania Too"

Influx of Asians Worries All Shades of UK Opinion

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A demand by some Asians in Britain for the expulsion of Uganda from the Commonwealth and the controversy over which country should bear responsibility for the minority now being ordered out of the East African state have underlined the international scope of the problem as well as its complexity.

Any choice of Uganda's latest moves to leave the Commonwealth as a result of the Kampala government's treatment of the Asians under its sway can be considered remote, at least under present circumstances.

The Commonwealth up to now has played a subdued public role in the dispute. The Commonwealth organization's penchant is rather in fact respect to the inconspicuous part it played in efforts to resolve last December's war between India and Pakistan.

On that occasion the United Nations was more to the forefront. But on the Ugandan issue even the UN is far from active.

In Britain, criticism of the Conservative government for being alleged extreme towards Uganda President Amin and already assumption of pro-rata responsibility for thousands of the Asians has been extended to include attacks on Opposition Leader Edward Heath.

Wilson was criticized for his silence. When finally one former prime minister did make a statement, he expressed backing for the Heath government's handling of the issue.

But Wilson and his colleagues previously made from other quarters for a crisis commonwealth conference to deal with the matter.

The fear is official circles remains is that the situation be such a conference would prove unmanageable with Uganda's immediate Commonwealth neighbors, Kenya and Tanzania.

Both these states have considerable Asian minorities of their own. And Presidents Kenyatta of Kenya and Nyerere of Tanzania might be tempted, if provoked by a full-fledged Commonwealth meeting, to adopt the same expulsion policy as President Amin is pursuing.

This would mean a new immigration crisis in heavily congested Britain as it grapples with the challenge of finding the room and the necessary degree of extra housing to accommodate the Asians from Uganda.

Thus the opinion of some diplomats is that the situation has to be left where it is. There is no not to tolerate additional African states. Another important factor in this connection is the unusual character of President Amin.

Even Harold Wilson pictures Amin as an unstable individual. The first reaction of diplomats who agree with this diagnosis is to avoid trying to push the volatile Amin in any particular direction.

Snowmobile Legislation

Ottawa Journal

A select committee of the Ontario Legislature was appointed this spring to prepare legislation governing snowmobiles.

The committee has held several public meetings but authorities at Queen's Park say they are not aware of when the legislation will be ready. If snowmobiles are to be regulated this winter the committee's legislation should be ready for the House to consider when it convenes.

Present legislation is inadequate. It allows snowmobiles to be operated in all but certain municipalities. The opposite principle would seem to make more sense. Why not ban snowmobiles from all areas of Ontario except in areas specified for their use?

Tough regulations are necessary. As a start the province should ban snowmobiles from all roads. Of the 34 fatalities last year occurred on roads.

Snowmobiles should not be allowed to wander at will through any vacant field damaging vegetation and scaring wildlife. But the 200,000 people who operate snowmobiles in the province deserve to know where they can enjoy their sport without breaking the law and disturbing others.

Harkness Remains Nuclear Advocate

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas Harkness, former defence minister whose resignation Feb. 3, 1963, helped topple a government, said Monday he is a nuclear stand he took then was right.

Getting ready to leave Ottawa after a 25-year parliamentary career, the Progressive Conservative MP for Calgary Centre said in an interview Wednesday he did not think he would have "done anything differently" if he had the great nuclear debate of 10 years ago to live through again.

At the same time he charged that the present Liberal government committed a "great mistake" in cutting Canada's contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization two years ago and said the Canadian Armed Forces no longer have the strength to meet their commitments.

Mr. Harkness, who has decided against seeking re-election in the Oct. 30 federal vote, is one of Parliament's three longest-serving members.

The only MP who has sat longer is former prime minister John Diefenbaker, from whose cabinet Mr. Harkness resigned over the issue of giving Canadian Forces a nuclear capability.

Mr. Diefenbaker has been in Parliament since 1940. Mr. Harkness and Liberal MP Jean Richard (Ottawa East), who also has decided against seeking re-election, have been MPs since 1945.

Mr. Harkness favored purchasing the warheads for nuclear weapon systems which had already been obtained from the United States and backed his position to the point of resigning.

Two days after his resignation, on Feb. 5, 1963, the government fell on a Opposition confidence vote and lost the ensuing election to the Liberals under Lester Pearson, who took office with a minority government.

Asked what effect the disagreement had on his subsequent relations with Mr. Diefenbaker, the retiring MP said "There haven't been any relations. He walks by me as if he has never seen me before."

Conflict of Interest Denied

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Robert White of Scarborough said Wednesday there was no conflict of interest when, as an alderman in 1966, he introduced a bylaw which changed the zoning of land occupied by his family's florist business.

He was a director of the company at the time and now is president.

The bylaw specifically exempted "the owner or owners of the greenhouse" on the site from having to comply with the zoning regulation in expanding or adding to the buildings on the site.

Mr. White said Wednesday the exemption was included on the advice of the planning commissioner.

"We felt that a florist business on the site was only an interim use in a growing urban area. The land should be zoned for the use that would eventually apply: apartment buildings.

"I was not guilty of a conflict of interest in voting at the time," Mr. White said. "We could have sold before 1966 for any purpose."

He said he is not planning to sell the property.

LABEL LOVE

PETERBOROUGH, England (CP) — Pensioner Bert Standen, 76, has colored a new word — labelogy. It means the art of collecting labels off whisky bottles. So far Bert has collected more than 3,000. In between swigs, he's planning to write a book about his pleasurable hobby.

Salt Contract Split With Romanian Product

TORONTO (CP) — An ideological confrontation ended in compromise Wednesday at a meeting of North York board of control.

After heated debate, the board decided that Canadian and Rumanian salt will be sprinkled — half and half — on the icy streets of the Metropolitan Toronto borough this winter.

The confrontation came about when tenders for a supply of salt were opened. The lowest bid was submitted by Miller Paving Ltd., using Romanian salt, at a price of $25,988. The second lowest bid came from the Canadian Salt Co., using salt mined in Windsor, Ont. It was $27,550.

But Bruce McMurray, purchasing manager of Canadian Salt, said the borough had given its competitor an unfair advantage in the tendering procedure and that the Romanian salt was inferior to Canadian.

Controller Irving Paisley said he wanted to forgo the low bid in favor of Canadian salt.

"I want to buy the salt in Canada, not from behind the Iron Curtain."

Controller Paul Hunt asked whether Mr. Paisley is "serious about us selling our wheat over there."

"I don't mind selling," Mr. Paisley said. "But I don't want to buy from them. . . . We should be ashamed of ourselves. For $7,300 we want to take jobs away from Canadians and buy salt in Russia."

Reminded the salt would come from Romania, he replied:

"It's behind the Iron Curtain. It's all the same thing."

A vote to buy Canadian salt was defeated 3 to 2.

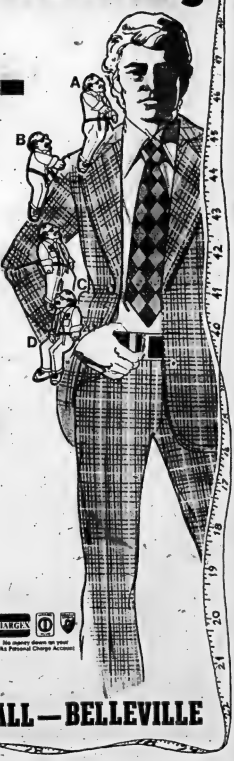
A vote to buy Romanian salt was also defeated 3 to 2.

Controller Paul Godfrey suggested a compromise: half Canadian and half Russian. That motion passed—3 to 2.

Elevators Turn Down Conciliation Report

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations between officials of the grain handlers union and five elevator companies in the city broke off Wednesday night.

Union negotiator Henry Kances said the union had accepted a conciliation board award of a 16½ per cent increase in wages, but the companies involved refused to go along.



Some 600 workers at eleva-tors of Alberta and Saskatchewan wheat pools, United Grain Growers, Burrard Terminals—and Pacific Elevators have been working the last 10 months without a new contract.

No strike vote has been taken among the grain workers, who are members of Local 333 of the International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers.

Dishonest Employees Major Drain on Profits

TORONTO (CP) — Dishonesty by employees is so widespread and lucrative that it constitutes the biggest drain on industry's profits and results in higher prices to the consumer, Norman Jaspan, president of a New York management engineering firm, said Wednesday.

Mr. Jaspan said because of crime in business, the construction industry in the United States increases its cost estimates by eight per cent just to offset the anticipated losses.

"Employees are basically honest at the beginning, he said, but the workplace "becomes a school for dishonesty."

Mr. Jaspan, speaking at the annual crime-in-industry accountant's convention in co-operation with the Ontario Police Commission, said dishonesty by hospital employees is a factor in higher hospital costs.

He said the theft of supplies, equipment, food, drugs and narcotics by hospital employees has reached dangerous heights.

In industry, he said, millions of dollars are lost because of cheating on the incentive plan, yield manipulations, falsified reports, excessive waste, sabotage, kickbacks, destruction of records and theft of confidential information.

To combat crime, Mr. Jaspan said some executives have resorted to using lie detector tests, closed circuit television and security police.

Philip W. Goldman, president of Koffler Stores Ltd. of Toronto, told the seminar Canadian retailers are losing $1 million a day to shoplifters, fraud artists and staff pilfering.

Speaking on a panel on management's viewpoint on security, Mr. Goldman said shoplifting shows "appalling increases by people in every walk of life."

He listed employee theft five to 15 times as high as shoplifting, but said shoplifting remains the fastest-rising crime with an annual growth rate of 20 per cent a year in the last decade.

He said 50 per cent of shoplifters are teen-agers, 45 per cent are housewives and five per cent a year in the last.

"The most prolific shoplifter is the young suburban wife," Mr. Goldman said.

Alberta Police Chiefs Must All Be Canadians

CALGARY (CP) — An Alberta government decision to change regulations in the Police Act regarding citizenship of police chiefs was greeted with enthusiasm Wednesday from the president of the Calgary Police Association.

Sgt. Philip Crosby-Jones said it clarifies the terms of reference which the city police commission must follow in appointing Calgary's new chief.

The change in the Police Act, approved by the cabinet in an order in council, affects towns and cities in Alberta with a population of 3,500 or more persons may, not appoint a chief unless he is a Canadian citizen.

The cabinet agreed to a request from Calgary city council asking that Canadian citizenship be required as a qualification following an unsuccessful attempt to hire Chief Charles Gain of Oakland, Calif., last month.

He withdrew voluntarily after the announcement of his appointment raised controversy.

The commission is continuing the search for a chief but is limiting its selection to Canadian citizens.

Hospital Appeal Board Named by Dr. Potter

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Richard Potter announced Wednesday the composition of the new Ontario Hospital Appeal Board.

The board will hear appeals from physicians denied hospital privileges or whose privileges are restricted by hospital trustees.

Chairman of the board will be Peter B. Tobias, a Huntsville lawyer. Dr. G. L. Blanchet of Toronto and Dr. Campbell MacArthur of Hornby will represent the medical profession. Other members will be Murray S. Cole a Toronto chartered accountant, and Glen W. Phelps who is on the board of Soldiers Memorial Hospital in Orillia.

Mr. Tobias is on the board of governors of Huntsville and District Memorial Hospital and chairman of its management committee.

Dr. Blanchet is chief of staff and chairman of the medical advisory committee and a member of the board of governors of Queensway General Hospital in Toronto.

Dr. MacArthur is a surgeon on the active staff of Oakville-Trafalgar Memorial Hospital. He was chief of staff and a member of the board of governors of the hospital for 13 years until his resignation last June 1.

Mr. Phelps, a professional engineer, also is a past president of the Ontario Hospital Association.

Mr. Cole is not associated with a hospital.

Establishment of the appeal board was recommended by a committee headed by Toronto lawyer S. G. M. Grange, which was established after two Toronto doctors complained they were unfairly denied hospital privileges.

Both men, surgeon Dr. Claude Macdonald and obstetrician Dr. J. E. Sheriton, said Wednesday they intend to lodge an appeal with the board as soon as possible.

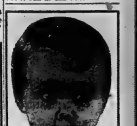
OTTAWA (CP) — A group of nine parliamentarians appointed by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to study the future of the organization will hold its third meeting this weekend at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.

Speaker Lamoureux To Seek Re-election



CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, expected to withdraw from the House at the end of the last Parliament, announced today that he will run again as an Independent in Stormont-Dundas.

Constituency Liberals had arranged a nomination meeting for Thursday night with a strong likelihood that riding president Brian Lynch would be named to contest the seat held by Mr. Lamoureux since 1962.

Mr. Lynch said today he was "somewhat surprised" as there had been an "understanding" that Mr. Lamoureux—presiding officer of the Commons since 1966—would not run again.

Later Mr. Lynch issued a statement saying the Liberal association executive had decided with great reluctance not to hold the nomination meeting and that the group won't endorse any candidate in the riding.

Mr. Lynch said he has chosen not to run at this time.

MR. AND MRS. WAYNE BAILEY

Bailey – Jeffrey

Trinity United Church, Madoc, was the scene of the recent wedding when Brenda Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Jeffrey, Madoc, became the bride of John Wayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Bailey, RR 3, Madoc. Rev. W. Sedgwick of Queensboro officiated at the ceremony. Miss Joan Brownson, Toronto, as organist, accompanied Mrs. Harold Bailey, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of her own design and making in polyester crystal sparkle over rayon satin. A deep inverted pleat at the back waistline of the gown gave the skirt an A-line effect. The empire bodice was trimmed with a single row of tiny pearl buttons. The round neckline and Juliette sleeves were completed with a dainty ruffle. The cathedral length veil, held in place by rosebuds and petals was edged with the same crocheted trim as the sleeves and hemline of the gown. Her bridal bouquet consisted of stephanotis, cream carnations, pink rosebuds, gypsophelia, and fern in a cascade arrangement.

Matron of honor, Mrs. David (Elaine) Burnside, Madoc, was attired in a floor length gown of mint green sheer over rayon satin. The empire bodice was finished in a re-embroidered flower design, while the neckline and cuffs were edged with a dainty ruffle. Her bouquet consisted of brilliant yellow carnations, stephanotis, gypsophelia and fern. She wore tiny green bows centred with yellow flowers in her hair.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. David (Wanda) Burnside, Madoc, and Miss Linda Gutheinz, Napanee, were attired identically to the matron of honor. They carried similar bouquets.

Best man, Mr. Ray Bailey, brother of the groom and ushers Mr. David Jeffrey, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ross Bailey, brother of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre and guests were received by the parents of the bride and bridegroom as well as the bridal party.

Mr. Sheik Bacchus was master of ceremonies.

The bride's mother chose a floor length gown of floral sheer in shades of blue, green and bronze over pale blue. The laced empire bodice featured a pale blue ribbon. A deep flounce edged the hemline of the gown. White accessories and a corsage of bronze mums and gypsophelia completed her ensemble.

Blanching A Simple Method

The food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, say it is critical to "blanch" most vegetables before home freezing.

The purpose of blanching is to set color and destroy enzymes which cause vegetable spoilage or toughness during freezing. This treatment will help frozen vegetables to retain their garden - fresh qualities for 9 to 12 months.

The blanching process is a simple one. The fresh produce is lowered into boiling water, covered, held for a short period of time, then immersed in cold running water to chill. The blanching time is counted from the moment the water returns to the boil. A chart on the blanching time required for vegetables is contained in the free booklet "Freezing Foods", available from the Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Spending Income Is Team Effort

By DORIS CLARK

You've heard the old saying, "when poverty comes in the door, love flies out the window." Is it true? It shouldn't be, if the love is good enough.

Yet where money is tight, this puts a stress and strain on the atmosphere which can be felt sympathetically by any children. When mother and dad are worried, the youngsters know that their world is upside-down.

So when it comes to spending the money, arguments must be straightforward, clear. Each must know the details of the family earnings, and, working together, decide how the available income may be put to the best possible use.

Dear Doris: My biggest problem had my most favored topic (hobby!) is boys. But here comes that dreary row is what I dislike. I'm 18. Maybe I'm stupid or something but I expect to laugh, talk and do various things like riding, swimming, going to drive-in movies, going to parties and bowling. Sex without necking (etc.) nine-tenths of the time.

Almost a month ago Boy Number One phones and asks me to go out and "maybe hit a few." I said I can't. I say "O.K." and he came an hour late "straight from work" with four other guys in the car. I was the only girl.

I found they changed places from time to time and I was kind of being passed around. Anyway I was supposed to be home at 12 and I got home at 4 a.m.

Th thing I want most is to have a boy friend who would almost break his right arm if it meant keeping me. My parents aren't terrifically fond of me either. I cry at least twice every day. — Hopelessly Dying

Dear Hopelessly: Give yourself time. Don't ever feel obligated to go along when you come out to a car and find four boys calling for you instead of just the one you had expected. Mass dates mean a bad reputation.

Your mother is a hard working woman if she is raising six children and doing farm work as well. From part of your letter I hadn't room for here, I gather she depends on you a great deal. Try having a talk with her one of these days and tell her you need affection and praise. You need to talk about things.

Dear Doris: You suggested I write to the Queen's Printer at Ottawa for a copy of the Divorce Act. I want to get a divorce from my wife, who left me 26 years ago.

I sent them 25 cents and wrote twice, but have never heard from the Queen's Printer. This is two months ago.

Also, where can I obtain the legal forms for divorce? — Long Separated

Dear Separated: This time write for information. Canada at Ottawa, enclose 25 cents and register your letter. Ask again, underlining the fact that you have already written twice before to the Queen's Printer.

Any stationery store handling legal forms can supply the right ones for filing a divorce. I am sending you privately the names of an up-to-date book on Canadian marriage laws which will help in completing the forms and all the rest of it.

There is helpful Canadian literature which may shed light on your problem. Ask Doris about it.

Women's Institutes

SPRINGBROOK WI

SPRINGBROOK — Mrs. Gerald Brodsworth was the hostess for the August meeting for Mrs. Williams presided and welcomed 20 members, and several visitors.

Mrs. Williams gave a reading and then opened the meeting in the usual way. The minutes of the June meeting and the correspondence were read by Mrs. W. Barlow.

Plans were discussed regarding the forthcoming tea, being held as a celebration of the 75th anniversary of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario.

Happy birthday was sung to Mrs. Gerie Barlow. The prize was for finishing were collected.

The conveners for the public relations meeting, Mrs. Arthur Reid and Mrs. Ward McIlravy then presented the program.

Mrs. Cyril McKeown read a poem giving the highlights of school vacation and Mrs. Ward McIlravy conducted a geography game. The prize was won by Mrs. Myrtle Cassidy.

Mrs. Lorne McIlravy read an article titled "Publicity", which advised the institute members on how to promote better public relations.

Tree Ripened Pears Have Gritty Texture

There is an exception to every rule, and Bartlett pears are the exception, say food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food. Most fruits are tree-ripened for optimum flavor, but Bartlett pears are picked green.

Pears, unlike most fruits, ripen from the inside out. Tree-ripened pears have a gritty texture and a brown mushy center. For this reason it is wise to buy Bartletts while they are still green.

Allow them to ripen at room temperature. As soon as they are greenish yellow they are fully ripened and at peak flavor. They may be held uncovered in the refrigerator for an extra three to five days. If they are kept at room temperature once they are fully ripe, they will become progressively yellower and softer, and will lose much of their flavor.

FOR BRUNETTES ONLY

MILAN, Italy (AP) — The state-run television system is hunting for those ravishing brunettes Italy is famous for. All current announcers are blondes because they are supposed to show up best on black - and - white screens. Color TV, however, is said to be best suited to dark hair and dark complexions.

Youth Program Leaves Her with Mixed Feelings

TORONTO (CP) — After a year with the Opportunities for Youth Program, Leah Cohen says she has mixed feelings.

She said she believes it has had many successes among the young people whose projects it financed, but that it is a failure internally as an organization.

Miss Cohen is 27. She went to Opportunities for Youth with a real to help the times change for the better. She had a year of law and a master's degree in political science. She worked for the Manitoba government, doing studies on post-secondary education, on the job market and new careers.

"I got frustrated with ideas. I wanted to be doing things, and Opportunities for Youth has provided satisfaction. It is unique."

She said much of her frustration with it arises from its administration problems.

The $34-million program is set up under the departments of the secretary of state to provide funds for projects originated and run by young people.

Miss Cohen said the Toronto staff had to spend days on work such as getting phones installed and chasing lost cheques.

"I think the concept is superb, but administratively it's chaos. I've worked for governments before, and I don't understand the problems. I assume it's bad priority. People were irate, and that helped generate bad publicity."

There were about two months in which to attract and choose project submissions. Miss Cohen had 300

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Will the nostalgia fad die out?

NO, not as long as there are still survivors even remotely connected with the past. One imperishable bit in the human make-up is the desire to think back to the way things used to be; and almost without exception most people seem to think that conditions were always better than the way they are now. A hundred years from now, 1972 years—as highly technical as we think they are—will appear simple when compared with the life style of 2072.

Does 'gradus' love lack romance?

DON'T believe it, although unexpected love does seem to have an edge with the romancies who favor a love that suddenly "comes out of the blue." Yet a love that gradually develops between a man and a woman can be just as romantic, even if it lacks the "pyrotechnics" of flaming sudden love. Gradual love, too, can be more lasting. Since it isn't "urgent," it doesn't impel a couple to declare their love until they are sure it is the real thing.

Is kids' behavior polarized, too?

NO, but many parents and adults have certainly done their utmost to make it seem that whatever children do is either extremely good or extremely bad. Accustomed to hearing "That's a good boy" or "Oh, my gosh, what did you get into now?", the average child is almost fabricated in his behavior. Another fallacy is that polarizing of children's behavior began so early, a child hardly knows what it is to act like and enjoy being a kid.

Ann Landers' Annual Holiday Trip Results in Frayed Nerves

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I just returned from a 10-day trip that I will call a "vacation" for lack of a better word. Actually it was hell in an automobile. When two high-strung, short-tempered people are incarcerated in a car for 18 hours a day at a stretch, one begins to consider the advantages of murder.

My husband thinks of a trip as the shortest distance between two points. He takes it at a large-bossing, bullying, barking orders and making demands. He will tolerate no browsing, no time to enjoy anything, no opportunity to learn. He even resents it when I ask him to stop so I can use a rest room. He'll pull off the road for lunch or supper at the crummiest diive you can imagine, but when we're on vacation anything is good enough.

If I take the wheel to relieve him for awhile he criticizes my driving and yells the whole time. After an hour, my head feels like a block of concrete.

I hate these annual driving trips and have suggested that we take separate vacations, but fact it would be a vacation for me if he'd go alone and leave me at home. I don't care where he goes, with whom or how long he does it. He won't budge it. I must go.

Be a referee, please. Let him see what he looks like in the paper.—Never The Champion In Tennessee

Dear Never: I cast my vote with you, lady. I think your husband should go by himself and let you spend those 10 days at home. And while you're there, why don't you do some writing? I love the way you put words together.

Dear Ann: I've 8½ months pregnant. Two previous pregnancies ended in miscarriage. Both times we had the same Brian picked out and were very disappointed when I lost the babies. Now we are so thrilled that at long last we are going to have our Brian.

My husband's brother's wife is five months pregnant. She announced yesterday that they have decided to name their baby Brian. I am furious. She knows we had our hearts set on that name and I think it is just rotten of her to copy us.

Should we name our baby Brian anyway, or should I come right out and tell her how I feel?—Disgusted In Pittsburgh

Dear Pitt: So what's the matter with having two Brians in the family? Cousins often have the same name since sons and daughters frequently wish to honor a deceased parent or grandparent by naming a descendant after him or her.

Since you deliver first, you'll have the advantage. Like many problems, this one could solve itself. Why not wait and see what your child, or here, might be a girl?

Dear Ann Landers: Keeping people alive are drugs, tubes, needles, blood plasma, mechanical devices and so on is not new. Doctors have, for years, when he is ready to take them. But there's something so sacrilegious.—Dallas Reader

Dear Dallas: Sorry, but a great many terminally-ill patients are forced to vegetate (I hesitate to use the word, live) before ever leaving God was ready—the relatives won't. There is a great deal to be said for death with dignity.

New Money Management Setup Devised

WASHINGTON (CP) — A more flexible system of international monetary management, including provision for the U.S. to alter the exchange rate on the dollar, has been proposed with reservations by the 20 executive directors of the International Monetary Fund. Their 25,000-word report, released Wednesday night, will be debated by the 125-member IMF at its annual meeting of finance ministers and central bankers here later this month.

A new 20-member committee will be given the task of working out the details of a new international system to succeed the Bretton Woods agreement of 1944. That agreement, the basis of IMF work since, was severely bent if not shattered last year when the U.S. released the dollar's tie to its old value of one-thirty-fifth of an ounce of gold.

The report examines numerous proposals for revising the old monetary system, but avoids coming down heavily in favor of any particular system, saying the IMF governors want to leave the subject open for debate at the IMF annual meeting, to open Sept. 25 and run for a week.

The new 20-member committee may take up to two years to complete the job.

Water Dispute Is Settled

STONEY POINT, Ont. (CP) — A dispute over water in this rural area about 30 miles east of Windsor has been resolved and a meeting called for Wednesday to discuss the sharing of the area water supply postponed.

A spokesmen for Tilbury North Township said is an interview Wednesday his municipality will be allowed to double its water consumption under an agreement reached late last week.

He said the new quota of 60,000 gallons a year was established at a meeting with provincial department of the environment officials Friday in Toronto.

The water supply, from a waterworks located on Lake St. Clair in this hamlet in Tilbury North, is shared with the village of Comber and Tilbury West Township.

Local Governments Need Major Changes

FREDERICTON (CP) — Local governments in most Canadian communities require major changes to become effective, Allan O'Brien, former mayor of Halifax, said Wednesday.

He told the annual conference of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada that provincial governments will have to implement policies to provide regional governments with more revenue for municipalities whether by expanded tax bases or unconditional provincial grants.

He said local governments are in a more painful financial squeeze than either the federal or provincial governments.

The three Maritime premiers—Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick, Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia and Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island—were to give their assessment of efforts toward regional cooperation today.

Leftist Harassed

TORONTO (CP) — The manager of a left-wing mideast bookstore told the executive committee of Toronto city council Wednesday that vandalism and rubber-firing at her store is the work of right wingers and police work in the matter is "totally unsatisfactory."

Margaret Bizzell, manager of Bookworld, told the committee a shotgun blast shattered the window of her store at night Aug. 27. Last September, the store was broken into and $3,000 damage done to books. There had also been threatening telephone calls to the bookstore and a burglary of money and files.

Judge Censured

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Supreme Court censured a district court judge and his prosecutor Wednesday for "virtual misconduct" and "flagrant violations" of their oath of office in pointing and fortifying female court employees.

Chief Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh told Ingham County District Court Judge James Ecker, 46, the record "clearly shows your folly."

Sales High

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors and Ford of Canada both reported Tuesday continuing increases in passenger car and truck sales during August, with Ford reaching record sales for the month and in eight month totals this year.

Expect Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Mediation talks between the union for the men who install and service elevators and the representative for six elevator firms across Canada broke down Wednesday and industry officials here are expecting a strike today.

Nickel Sold

TORONTO (CP) — International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. Wednesday announced the sale of 4,000 metric tons of nickel to China.

Rapists Jailed

KINGSTON (CP) — Harold Dowdall, 23, of Bath, Ont., and Brian M. Nolan, 21, of Kingston, were given prison terms Wednesday after pleading guilty to rape. Dowdall was sentenced to eight years and Nolan to five. Ontario Supreme Court Justice T. P. Cullen said that "if it were not for the guilty pleas, the terms of imprisonment would have been much more severe." Dowdall was given the more severe sentence as the initiator of the act, which involved a 21-year-old student at Queen's University last spring.

May Join Forces

WINNIPEG (CP) — Norman Turner, president of the Manitoba Liberal party, said Wednesday he expects there will be serious discussions with the Manitoba Conservatives regarding formation of a united coalition to challenge the NDP provincial government in the next election. Mr. Turner made the statement in response to a question at a news conference at Liberal headquarters.

McKeough Holds Party for His Staff

TORONTO (CP) — There was a lively party in McKeough's office at Queen's Park Wednesday evening.

A few hours after Premier William Davis announced he had accepted Mr. McKeough's resignation as provincial treasurer, a reporter phoned his office about the background ones. "I'm just saying goodbye o my staff."

"O h that," said Mr McKeough in reply to a refer

He was non-committal in his swers to other questions.

Asked whether the premier ad tried to persuade him to tay on as treasurer, he said:

"We had a very nice conversation yesterday and another nice one today."

Asked whether he might be back in the cabinet fairly soon, he said:

"Well, we'll cross one bridge at a time."

When was he moving out of his office?

"I am physically moving out on Friday, but my desk is clear now."

Did he think he had been badly treated?

"Lord, no. We'll talk about that together some day. Not tonight. Some day. Goodbye now."

Hees Urges Drive for Markets

MONTAGUE, P.E.I. (CP) — George Hees, a former Progressive Conservative trade and commerce minister, said Wednesday his party will start a "massive campaign" to find new markets for agricultural products if it forms the government after the Oct. 30 election.

Mr. Hees, PC Member of Parliament for Prince Edward Hastings, made the comments in a speech here to a nominating convention called to select the party candidate in Cardigan riding. It was held by Melvin McQuaid who announced earlier that he would not seek re-election.

Mr. Hees said Canada will have to find export markets for its agricultural products if farming is to become profitable enough to attract young Canadians seeking a career.

He said that in a good crop year all the produce can't be consumed by the Canadian market and the surplus forces prices down.

The convention chose Arthur Fraser, a Montague lawyer, to run in the riding.

The Liberal candidate is Daniel MacDonald, who was provincial agriculture minister. He resigned from the cabinet Wednesday to run in the fed eral election.

Take Over School

MONTREAL (CP) — A group of French-speaking parents and their children occupied an empty school in suburban Ville Emard Wednesday to protest its closing by the Montreal Catholic School Commission.

The parents also "enrolled" nearly 178 local youngsters at the phased-out St. Jean Damascene school and said they would hold make-shift classes until the school is officially reopened.

The students spent their first day cleaning classrooms and repairing windows broken during the summer. School texts and supplies have been removed from the school.

The Alliance des Professeurs de Montreal, a union of teachers with the commission, have supplied at least eight teachers

Asthma Medication Cost American Swimming Gold Medal

MUNICH (AP) — International Olympic Committee stripped the 400-metre freestyle gold medal from American swimmer Rick Demont Wednesday night because he was taking a banned medication for an asthma condition.

Demont, 18, from San Rafael, Calif., won the 400-metre freestyle, and traces of ephedrine were found in urine samples taken after the victory.

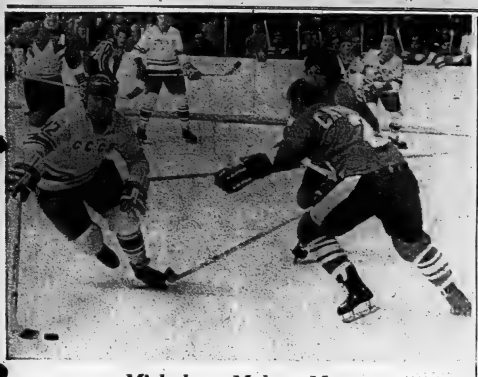
He was then asked to step out of the finals of the 1,500-metre freestyle, an event in which he was the world record holder.

The decision on whether to allow the young swimmer to keep his 400-metre medal was left to the IOC's executive board which ruled against him.

Demont had been undergoing special drug tests under the supervision of the IOC medical commission.

He was taking a drug containing Ephedrine—a drug specifically banned by IOC regulations—for many years for an asthma condition.

Demont said he clearly listed the drug on his pre-Olympic forms. An American team official said at the time the swimmer was scratched from the 1,500 metre race that the U.S. officials had failed to clear the drug with the IOC.



Prince Alexandre De Merode of the medical commission said that officials of other teams had taken up the question of the drug, and had been advised to substitute another one, but that the Americans had failed to do so.

Mishakov Makes Move

Eugeny Mishakov of Russia makes a move to go around Team Canada player Gary Bergman during action in the eight-game Canada - Russia series. The Soviets came from a two-goal deficit in Winnipeg Wednesday to earn a 4-4 tie. Each team had won one of the first two games to set the stage for a tie-breaker Friday in Vancouver. (CP Photo)

Helps Soviets Tie

Tretiak Worth Two Million?

WINNIPEG (CP) — If Russia's Valery Kharlamov is worth $1 million on the basis of his play in the current hockey series against Team Canada, then young Soviet goalie Vladislav Tretiak must be worth half as much again.

The 20-year-old Tretiak mesmerized the Canadians through two periods Wednesday night as the teams played to a 4-4 tie in the third game of the international clash.

The Russians won the first game in Montreal 7-3 as Montreal and Canada took the second 4-1 in Toronto Monday night.

Tretiak's brilliant glove save off Paul Henderson early in the third period Wednesday night played a key role in producing a tie.

President Harold Ballard of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League put the $1 million price tag on Kharlamov, but Tretiak has been the outstanding player in the three games so far and he could be the deciding factor in the eight-game series that resumes in Vancouver Friday night.

Wednesday night he turned back 38 shots, 32 of them in the first two periods before the fast-skating Russians finally took away the play from the National Hockey League stars and held an 44 advantage in shots in the final 20 minutes.

The Russian youth program was also instrumental in lifting the team from a 4-2 deficit late in the second period on goals by Yuri Lebedev and Alexander Bodunov.

Ervatic defensive play by Canada led to the other two Russian goals, by Vladimir Petrov and Kharlamov, while the Soviets were short-handed.

It marked the third time in three games the Russian team has converted a Canadian power play to its own advantage.

J. P. Parise, Jean Ratelle, Phil Esposito and Paul Henderson were the Canadian marksmen.

The fourth game on the West Coast will be carried nationally on the CBC television network starting at 5 p.m. PDT. (8 p.m. EDT)

Canadian coach Harry Sinden seemed relieved after the game that his club had been able to salvage a tie.

"We had our ups and downs, as did the p... just a superb game," he said in a post-game interview. "It was a different type of game from Monday's but there were more mistakes."

Asked if the Canadians again folded under the intense skating of the well-conditioned Russians after commanding an early lead, Sinden said the team "was quite fresh to start the third period."

If such was the case, then the Soviets had Alexander Bodunov and Yuri Blinov, a trio of 21-year-olds in their first year with the Soviet national team—leaves the Canadian hockey dynasty, such as it is, in a precarious state.

The youngsters owned the puck whenever they were on the ice and Canadian goaltender Tony Esposito was hard-pressed to hold them off the scoreboard in the final period.

The three appeared as a unit at the expense of veterans Evgeny Zimin and Yuri Blinov, benched in favor of the youth movement by coach Vsevolod Bobrov.

"We played them to get some experience for the young kids," Bobrov said through an interpreter. "That is why we brought them . . . it was not just our aim to win."

And he warned the Canadian reporters covering the series that the Russians "left some very capable young players in Moscow who will play for us there . . . and we will be stronger."

Officiating Gets Tougher Each Time

WINNIPEG (CP) — The robust hockey shown by both Russia and Canada in the current series could deteriorate into an International incident if the officiating doesn't tighten up.

"They almost let the game get out of hand in Toronto," said Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of National Hockey League officials, in an interview Wednesday prior to game three. "Yes, I guess you could say I'm worried about how they will control the remaining games in the series."

SCOTTY MORRISON

Morrison said he could only foresee games getting tougher progressively faster, making it difficult for two referees to maintain law and order.

"The game in Montreal was handled pretty well, but you could see the difference in Toronto Monday night. And as the series continues, it's going to be all the more difficult for two men to handle."

Morrison thought that even under the North American system, of one referee and two linesmen, that the skaters were moving at such a fast pace officials would be hard-pressed to keep control.

The NHL's chief official said that where a language barrier exists, here and in Russia, an interpreter must be "on ice spot" to explain the calls to coaches in order that potentially ugly scenes that developed in Toronto are not repeated.

"There was a Russian interpreter in Toronto, but he had to be called out of the stands," Morrison explained. "We've got to have them right at the bench."

The Russians were assessed a bench penalty in Toronto when one of the players, trying to get one of the officials' attention, brushed the referee's arm with his stick.

"The referee couldn't identify the player, but he was within his rights to give them a bench penalty," Morrison said. The minor infraction was originally assessed to the Russians for delaying the game.

Later in the game, in the Russian end when the official on the play had his hand raised to signal a penalty, referee Steve Dowling, trailing on the play, had his arm grabbed by Russian coach Vsevold Bobrov at the Soviet bench.

"Here again the official was within his rights to assess a penalty," Morrison continued, "but the incident wouldn't have happened if there had been an interpreter right there."

What type of officiating can the Canadians expect in Stockholm Sept. 16-17 against a Swedish select team and for the final four games of the Russian series in Moscow on Sept. 22, 24, 26 and 28?

"They're going to run into a lot of trouble," said Morrison, "unfortunately the calibre of officiating in Europe hasn't come along as fast as their hockey."

Most Vital American League Strike Not Thrown by Pitcher

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in the history of major league baseball, a strike—but not one thrown by a pitcher—could be the key role in determining the American League champion in 1972.

When the players struck last April for an improved pension plan and stayed out 11 days, the problem seemed to be one considered serious.

The AL schedule was only delayed and the games missed would not be made up, the owners decided.

But now with fewer than four weeks remaining in the regular season, six clubs are in contention in each division and since the title goes to the club with the best percentage, the ending could be controversial.

If the clubs all finish with the same number of losses, Detroit Tigers would win the East and Oakland Athletics the West since Detroit only lost six games because of the walkout, while Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees each lost seven and Baltimore Orioles eight. In the West, Oakland Athletics missed seven and Chicago White Sox eight.

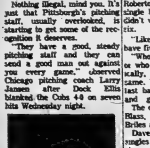
A spokesman for Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says:

"We have discussed it and decided to let things go as is. It's a problem but we'll have to take care of it later."

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players' Association, agrees the setup is "unrealistic" but es to an advantage or disadvantage to the clubs, says.

"You don't really know until it's over."

Miller says that in April, after the strike was settled, the make up games situation was discussed with the owners. Miller said the players would make the games up in any way management desired but the owners declared that we can live with it."



Only time will tell if the owners will regret the decision.

Pirates Hold Five Key Aces

Not only are Pittsburgh Pirates trumping the rest of the National League East, but they're doing it with five aces.

Nothing illegal, mind you. It's just that Pittsburgh's pitching staff, usually overlooked, is starting to get some of the recognition it deserves.

They have a good, steady pitching staff and they can send a good man out against you every game," observed Chicago pitching coach Larry Jansen after Dock Ellis blanked the Cubs 4-0 on seven hits Wednesday night.

DOCK ELLIS

Elsewhere, Cincinnati Reds beat Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3, Montreal Expos edged New York Mets 7-3, Philadelphia Phillies edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 and San Francisco Giants trounced San Diego Padres 6-0.

Pittsburgh's ninth consecutive victory equalled the Pirates' longest winning streak of the season and boosted their lead in the East Division to 13½ games over the Cubs.

"I'm glad we're in the position we're in," said Ellis. "But why couldn't this have been the playoffs. If this had been the first game of the playoffs we'd be one up. If you win the playoffs, that means money and that's what it's all about, isn't it?"

The Buc got off quickly with three runs in the first inning against Ferguson Jenkins, hit by Gene Clines arr. Al Oliver, Roberto Clemete's triple and a single by Richie Hebner. Ellis didn't walk anyone and fanned five.

"Like I've said before, we have five aces," Ellis said.

"Who cares what they print or who they call the aces. Basically, all five of us pitch the same. We all have a slider, a fast ball that moves, a sinker and good changeup."

The other four aces are Steve Blass, Bob Moose, Nelson Briles and Bruce Kison.

Dave Concepcion stroked two singles and drove in the decisive run in Cincinnati's triumph over Los Angeles. The Reds increased their lead in the West Division to nine games over Mike Hondtson. Billy Grabarkewitz hit a three-run homer for all the Dodger runs and Cincy's Joe Morgan made his first error in 61 games.

Ron Woods and Ken Singleton hit home runs and relief ace Mike Marshall preserved Mike Torrez' 10th consecutive victory as Montreal whipped the Mets. Woods homered in the second inning, ex-Mets Tim Foli and Singleton lashed run-scoring doubles in the fifth. Foli homered in the sixth and Bob Bailey added a two-run single in the ninth.

Marshall relirred the last six batters to pick up his 14th save to go with 14 victories, all in relief.

Philadelphia's Ken Reynolds made it two wins in a row by scattering 10 hits as the Phils nipped the Cardinals.

Don Money singled two runs home in the second inning and Tommy Hutton drove in the winning run with a fifth-inning double after Larry Bowa singled and stole second. Bill Stoneman pitched his first big league baseball game, homered in the ninth for St. Louis.

San Francisco's Ron Bryant stopped San Diego on six hits while Jim Ray Hart and Garry Maddox homered for the Giants.

Tennis Titans Do Battle

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The match that may decide the top player in the 1972 US-LTA All-American rankings takes place today during the men's quarter-finals of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

Top-seeded Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., meets sixth-seeded Arthur Ashe of Miami and, although Smith is the betting favorite, Ashe's credentials are more impressive.

Smith is defending champion and No. 1 on the special All-American rankings for best contract and independent pros. Ashe is No. 2 and the tournament's 1968 winner

Both players are noted for their strong serves, but while Ashe has lost only one set in his three previous rounds this year, Smith has dropped at least one to each opponent.

Billie Jean King, top-seeded defending women's champ, said either Ashe or Smith will take this year's crown. "With the kind of, bad bounces we're getting on these courts, the only person who can win is a man with a big serve," Mrs. King said.

She advanced Wednesday to the women's quarter-finals with 6-2, 7-5 victory over eighth-seeded Virginia Wade of England. But it was the match between third-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Russia's Olga Morozova that excited the crowd.

Miss Evert beat Mrs. Morozova, 1972 Eastern Grass Courts women's titleholder, 2-6, 6-3, 7-6. Afterwards, Miss Evert said she never thought she'd be the winner.

"I never thought I could win. Olga was playing well. The only time I got confident was when it was 3-1 in the breaker," Miss Evert said. She won the tie breaker 5-1 with the last point coming on a miss by Mrs. Morozova that just topped out.

Mrs. Morozova was tearful after the match. Down 2-5 in the third set, she varied her strategy and stormed back by taking the next four games and the lead. But Miss Evert held in the 12th game, forcing the tie breaker.

In another match, Pam Teeguarden lost to ninth-seeded Kerry Melville of Australia. Miss Melville beat Miss Teeguarden, the 20-year-old upset winner over Evonne Goolagong, 6-0, 6-2.

Margaret court, women's singles champion here five times, advanced with a 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 victory over fourth-seeded Rosie Casals of San Francisco.

Mexican 11 Advances

MEXICO CITY (CP-AP) — The Mexican national soccer team defeated Canada 2-1 Wednesday night, eliminating the Canadians from qualifying play leading the World Cup tournament in 1974.

It was the third consecutive win for the Mexicans in North American elimination play for the World Cup. Canada was defeated 1-0 by the strong Mexican squad in Toronto and the Mexicans defeated the United States team 3-1 here Sunday.

With their close win over Canada, the Mexicans increased their points to six after three matches and advanced into the next round.

Canada have three points after four matches and the United States one point after three matches.

Mexico went to the attack early and halfback Cesareo Victorino scored in the 20th minute with a 30-yard shot which hit the crossbar and bounced in.

But Canada equalized 20 minutes later on a magnificent shot from 25 yards by halfback Brian Robinson the ball streaked past the Mexican goalkeeper.

The aggressive Mexicans broke away only two minutes after the interval.

After a foul by Jim Douglas, Mexican halfback Fernando Bustos took a direct free kick and sent the ball arching towards the goal. It bounced off the outstretched hands of goalkeeper Dick Howard and into the net.

23 Straight?

Weaver Still Hopeful

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"There's no reason to believe that we can't win 23 games in a row."

Earl Weaver, Baltimore Orioles' manager insists that he isn't flipping his baseball cap.

Optimistic as always, Baltimore's boss, hooked on the cunny side despite a tough 4-3 loss to Detroit Tigers Wednesday night that dropped the team to fourth place, two games behind, in the American League East.

"We've spotted them a couple," said Weaver. "There are 23 to go . . . and we've got to get hot, that's all there is to it."

The Tigers held on to first place by an unstable half-game, leaking over their shoulders at the Boston Red Sox. New York Yankees, who lost to the Red Sox 2-0 Wednesday night, stopped to third, 1½ games behind the front-runners.

While not much daylight opened in the East race, Oakland Athletics opened gaps room for themselves in the West by bombing second-place Chicago 9-1. The Oakland A's gave them a four game lead over the White Sox.

Elsewhere in the American League, California Angels defeated Kansas City Royals 3-1; Minnesota Twins blanked Texas Rangers 2-0 and Cleveland Indians and Milwaukee Brewers split a twin bill—the Indians winning the first game 4-3 and the Brewers the nightcap 2-1.

The Orioles were victimized by Detroit's bullpen, which stretched its scoreless streak through 35 innings. This time,

Chuck Seelbach came in to relieve Mickey Lolich's 20th victory. The lefthander finally made the 20-game plateau on his fifth try.

Seelbach came to the rescue after four Baltimore singles had produced two runs in the fifth. Lolich was lifted after striking out Boog Powell and Seelbach then got the last out with two Baltimore runners on base.

Reggie Smith hit a two-out home run in the fifth inning following Carl Yastremski's triple and Bob Bailey choked off a threat in the eighth inning to give the Red Sox their triumph over New York. The victory was Boston's 10th in 12 games.

Joe Rudi's two-run homer and Don Mincher's pinch two-run double featured a six-run third that carried Oakland over Chicago. Ken Holtzman won his 16th game for the Athletics.

Seniors Won't Press Luck

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

There are a lot of question marks about this year's city entry in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

But one of them has been answered even before the Belleville Quintes open training camp Sunday at noon at the Dick Ellis Rink.

Quinte Sports Foundation director Bill Bolly served notice the local seniors do not intend to press their already financially and morale-drained luck.

"There'll be no number 13 here this year — we've had enough hard luck without that," said Bolly, who revealed that the Quintes have sold sponsorships of their road sweaters to Lafferty - Smith Transport and about half of their home sweaters to various city businesses.

Peterborough winger Ray Johnston has provided the seniors with a rare spectacle during the past two years he has been on the club, being one of the few players in any organized sport at any level to spurn the superstition against wearing number 13.

Another is Soviet National team member Boris Mikhailov, but Belleville senior hockey has hardly enjoyed the same success story in its six years of revived operation that the Russians have in their hockey fortunes.

"Ray'll just have to wear another number," quoted Bolly, adding that, contrary to some reports, there was no hoodoo Johnston and the other members of the Quintes' Peterborough commuting contingent wouldn't be out with the club this season.

The only person signed to date is coach Wayne "Weiner" Brown, but Bolly and the other club directors realize that new faces will be required to keep senior hockey alive in this city.

"We've got to come up with some new players and we're going to, (director Robin). Weiner, and myself will be making some trips out of town and there may even be some new people moved into the area this year that we know nothing about."

The first two-hour session of pre-season training begins Sunday at noon in officially an open practice. But to avoid the usual flood of looks out for a skate, Bolly suggested any serious tryouts contact coach Brown, himself, or director Roblin before waiting valuable ice time.

That ice time, incidentally, marks the earliest jump the Belleville seniors have had in their seven-year history, and puts them ahead of not only the other senior league clubs but most other hockey camps as well.

For that reason, Bolly expected Larry Mavety and Steve Reze, bound for Los Angeles Sharks of the World Hockey Association, to be out for the Quinte camp.

Reze, who has signed a one-year contract with Los Angeles represents a big loss to the Quintes. Last year's most valuable league player and first-team all-star goalie has been a mainstay in his four years with the team.

Otherwise, Bolly was optimistic about various aspects of this year's operations.

"Steve is the only player we think we won't have back for sure. And we've got some new new - ones coming. Financially, there has been the selling of another sponsorment, and a gala beerfest has been scheduled as a club fundraiser in the Armories Sept. 29-30.

* * *

Then there is the Christmas season game planned for the Memorial Arena with one of the European hockey clubs playing an exhibition series with senior clubs.

"And besides our getting an early training camp start, a lot of guys have already been on skates," Bolly noted.

Despite losing everything from a sponsor to half a dozen players that started the year with the club, last year's edition of the Quintes came within a sudden-death game of making the senior league playoffs.

They have missed post-season action three times in six years' operation, and two of those have been a result of sudden-death losses.

Indications of whether that sort of luck will continue should come in the upcoming five - practice - per - week training camp, which opens almost a full month before the likely start of the senior season.

But it will take more than superstition to assure Belleville of a senior hockey winner.

Meanwhile, Belleville's Junior B bobcats also open their training camp Sunday with a 6:8 p.m. session at the Ellis Rink.

The juniors, who almost advanced to the Eastern Ontario league finals last winter by taking Oshawa Generals the seven game semi-final limit, are in an ambiguous position.

They stand a chance at drawing many more spectators with their acceptance into the 10 team Metro Junior B League, but have lost all but three of last year's regulars—Tim Yohn, Dave Horwood, and Bill Jackett.

Coach Murray "Moe" Hunter's main task this year is to make sure he isn't icing a worse team in a better league.

Cosy Grill catcher Beth Palmer managed to temporarily derail the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund scoring efforts as she tags Leah Harper out at home plate.

It was only a minor setback for BYBF, however, as they trounced Cosy 12-2 to give them a four-game sweep of the Belleville and District Ladies Softball finals. The losers had beaten BYBF in a sudden-death game for the league pennant during the regular season.

BYBF Gals City Champs

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund started their drive towards the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball championship with a party and finished it in the same fashion.

BYBF had trailed Cosy Grill in the early part of the schedule and appeared to be only second-best in the four-team league. During the last half of the season they managed to catch fire, however, tying Cosy for first place before losing a sudden-death playoff for the league pennant.

"We had a party at one of the girl's home part way through the season and sort of ironed things out. After that we started winning," advised BYBF coach Doug Loca.

That party couldn't have been any more beneficial than the fifth inning of Wednesday's final encounter with Cosy. The Yardmen gals sent 11 batters to the plate, scoring nine runs to clinch a 12-2 victory over the league pennant winners. The win gave BYBF a four-game sweep of the best of seven series.

Sue Morton started the fourth win of the series, scattering 10 hits throughout the Cosy line-up. Fifth-inning singles by Joanne Green and Verna Hill and Sharon Francis' sixth-frame homer accounted for the only runs against her.

"She's always had the speed, but this year her stuff has been working really well," said Locas of his mound mainstay. She struck out five batters and did not allow a base on balls.

For the losers it was Suzanne Fobert and Sandra Claus splitting the pitching duties. They yielded 16 hits and three walks while striking out two Yardmen batters.

Sheila Smith and Linda Empey paced BYBF with three hits each followed by Donna Lucas and Sue Morton with a double and single apiece. Donna Preston and Leah Harper singled twice with the other hits going to Judy Johnson and Penny Hughes.

Sharon Francis led Cosy with a homer and single followed by Beth Palmer and Joanne Green with two singles each.

BYBF's championship win came in their first year of operation.

Tony's Play Final Zone Game Here

Belleville fans will get a chance to see softball at its best Sunday when the Oshawa Tony's face Donnville in an OASA Senior "A" game at the Alemite Field.

This city has been chosen as the neutral site for the third and deciding game of the zone championship between the two Ontario softball powers. The Tony's had captured the opening game of the series only to have Donnville bounce back with a 4-0 win in the second game, by virtue of a grand slam homer in the bottom of the ninth.

Sunday's deciding game will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Athletic Club Deals Knockout Punch Fast

Most boxers prefer to save their knockout punch for the right moment, but the new Quinte Athletic Club is throwing a roundhouse at the public at to-night's first open house.

The guest of honor at the fitness club's official opening will be Canadian Heavyweight boxing champion George Chuvalo as the club opens its doors for public inspection at 8 p.m. at the old Royal Canadian Legion Hall on Pinnacle St.

Chuvalo, never knocked off his feet in 87 professional bouts despite having floored tigers of such calibre as Mike Hammond Ali, Joe Frazier, Floyd Patterson, Jimmy Ellis, Ernie Terrell, Jerry Quarry, and Buster Mathis, is expected to give some training demonstrations at tonight's opening, which will shift next door to the upstairs of the new Royal Legion Hall if the size of the turnout warrants it.

Athletic Club president Terry Bennett noted he had received assistance in transporting Chuvalo from his Toronto home courtesy Elliott Motors, and also the loan of a suite from the Hotel Quinte management.

The Athletic Club, complete with a variety of training equipment such as floor and wall weights, punching bags, and bicycles, is expected to begin operation within a week.

Membership is open to boys 5-20 for a $1 monthly fee plus the club's $1 initiation charge. Annual membership for males over 20 is $28.

Football Refs Huddle Sunday

The Quinte Football Association is looking to put more men in the middle of high school football action this fall . . . referees to be exact.

The group is seeking officials for Bay of Quinte OSSA football games which begin in mid-September and finish with the OSSA championships in early November.

Referee-in-chief Jack McBride and secretary Art Benne have arranged a Sunday night meeting for prospective officials. It will be held at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street beginning at 7 p.m.

McClelland Cuts Mile

Mike McClelland helped shorten Golden Mile's Belleville Minor Baseball playoff hopes with a 6-3 win over the bantam house league team Wednesday.

The Kinsmen hurler turned in a two-hit pitching performance to prevent Golden Mile from advancing to the league finals. Their best - of - three semi-final round now stands at one game each.

McClelland walked seven and struck out 11 in his two-hitter, while Paul Weeks and Brian Turner limited Golden Mile strikeout and walk totals for the losers.

A double and single by Mike Crawford sparked the winners, who got two hits each from Tony Meaghen and Peter McBride. Turner with a triple and Stan Hyner's single were the only Golden Mile safeties.

Pitchers dominated all phases of the opening game of the tadpole championship series, as Universal Centre and Plane's Concrete battled to a 2-2 tie.

Steve Taylor and Stu Emerson combined for a one-hit Universal pitching effort while Brian Cronkright and Phong VanLierem were matesand that total on Plane's mound.

To top things off for the moundsmen, each hit was a two-run homer by an opposing pitcher. Taylor had given Universal a 2-0 lead with a record trigger in the fifth, but Cronkright connected for a two-run shot the following frame.

Taylor and Emerson struck out 20 of the 21 outs recorded by Universal in the seven-inning contest while Cronkright and Van Lanteren fanned 16 batters.

Second game of the series will be played Monday, 6 p.m. at Park Dale.

Quinte League Could Draw Five

The Quinte Hockey League is shaping up as a five-team league after its first organizational meeting Wednesday.

The league, which last year operated with four teams, had definite commitments made from defending champion Belvedere Hotel, Reid's Dairy, and last year's Teachers' entry in the Gas House League.

Central Taxi will also likely be returning, league president Al Kelleher noted, and Harold Bunnett is trying to organize a fifth entry.

The next league meeting, also the entry deadline, will be Wednesday, Sept. 13 at a time and place to be announced.

GEORGE CHUVALO

Another KO For Chuvalo

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo has scored his 70th professional boxing victory, his manager reported Wednesday.

Irv Ungerman said the 34-year-old Chuvalo had knocked out Charlie Boston of New York in the second round of a bout in Haxi Tuesday night to reach the career milestone.

Chuvalo now has a record of 88 professional fights, 70 victories, 59 knockout wins, 14 losses and two draws. He has never been knocked down during any of his 88 fights.

Olympic Games Resume

MUNICH (CP) — Six medals were won and two lost Wednesday as sport returned to the 20th Olympic games after 24 hours of mourning for 11 Israelis who were killed by an Arab guerrilla band.

Competition resumed shortly after a memorial service for the dead but when the Games started again, there were fewer participants.

Delegations from Israel, Egypt, Syria and Kuwait left and were followed by individuals, 13 from the 128-member Norwegian team. They all said that in light of the terrorism they were unable to continue.

It was a quiet day with only two finals events completed.

Vasili Alexeyev of Russia emerged as the strongest man in the world as he hefted a total of 1,411 pounds to win the super-heavyweight weightlifting title.

And in fencing, Csaba Fenyvesi of Hungary won the gold in men's individual epee.

On the minus side of the ledger, the International Olympic Committee, took medals away from an American swimmer and a Dutch cycling team because of the use of drugs.

Rick Demont, who swam, to victory in the men's 400-metre freestyle last Friday, had to forfeit his gold medal because a medication he used to fight asthma contained ephedrine, a drug banned by the committee.

The committee also withdrew the bronze medal won by the Dutch team in the 100-kilometre team pursuit event Aug. 24 because one of the four riders, Aad Van Den Hoek, had taken the drug ceramine.

Presence of the drugs was revealed by tests which are mandatory for all medal winners.

The medal standings after 126 of 195 events showed Russia leading with 27 gold, 21 silver and 16 bronze. The U.S. held more medals—70 compared with 44 for Russia—but had 24 gold, 25 silver and 21 bronze.

In the unofficial point standings, based on the traditional 10-5-4-3-2-1 scoring system for the top six final placings in each event, the U.S. led with 509.

Ring Medal Was Close

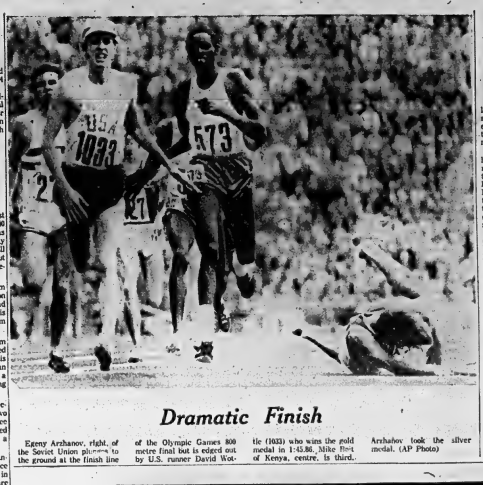
MUNICH (CP) — The first Canadian Olympic medal in 40 years in Canadian boxing was tantalizingly close Wednesday night halfway through Carroll Morgan's quarter-final bout with Hasse Thomsen of Sweden.

The 25-year-old battler from Antigonish, N.S., ahead on points after the first round, had landed a series of shots to his opponent's head and sent him to the canvas.

Carroll couldn't keep him there. Thomsen was penalized for holding but recovered his pace and sent the Canadian staggering into the ropes with a left hook. It was the turning point of the fight.

After a minute and three seconds of the third round and two knockdowns, the referee stopped the fight and declared the Swede the winner by a knockout.

A victory would have guaranteed Carroll a medal, since both losing semi-finalists in Olympic competition are awarded bronzes. He was the last member of the five-man Canadian boxing squad to be eliminated.



No Canadian has won a boxing medal since Horace (Lefty) Gwynne of Hamilton took the bantamweight title at the 1932 Olympics in Los Angeles.

Colville Steps Up His Pace

KINGSTON (Special) — Orby Colville's results were the same, but his method different as he reached the Frontenac Terms' win circle Wednesday.

The Stone's Corner driver has scored 30 wins at Frontenac this year, but most of them have come in the slower heats. His victory with Happy Hal N last night was an entirely different story as they turned the mile in 2:05.4 for one of the fastest times this season on the Kingston track.

Colville won the fourth race of the evening as well driving David Lawson's Inkerman Bay to a 2:09 effort.

The daily double of Petron Maynard in the first and Honest Hope in the second returned $91.20.

Second fastest race of the night was turned in by Yankee Jed with a 2:08.2 clocking in the eighth race, while Chris Starmo pushed Rein Boy to a 2:08.6 in the 10th.

Other Wednesday winners were Willbrook May in the third, Mil Rose in the fifth, By Rod in the sixth and Pioneer Princess in the seventh.

A crowd of 1,062 wagered $29,979 on the 10-race card.

Cone Antenna

This composite photo of a conical antenna used in Lockheed Missiles and Space Co. spacecraft, has been put together to give it an artistic look. The antenna, consisting of a thin strip of copper spiraled on plastic is produced with an emulsion, then computer made negative of the spiral pattern is wrapped around the cone. The negative is exposed, and the spiral is printed on the cone. Finally, the unexposed copper in the space between the spiral lines is etched away, leaving a thin spiral of copper, which acts as the antenna. (CP Photo)

Germany Reconciliation With Arabs Endangered

BONN (AP) — The bullets that brought death to the 1972 Olympics may also have shattered Chancellor Willy Brandt's long prepared reconciliation with the Arab world.

Three months ago, Egypt became the sixth country to declare resumption of diplomatic ties with Bonn, seven years after the 18-country Arab break-off when West Germany recognized Israel in 1965.

Only five days before the Arab guerrilla operation that left 11 Israeli sportsmen dead in Munich, unofficial West German-Egyptian talks ended in the Olympic city with the announcement of a milestone visit to Bonn this month by Foreign Minister Mohammed Murad Ghaleb.

Now the visit—the first such since the 1965 break appears in doubt. "Nobody knows," a foreign ministry spokesman said when asked if Ghaleb's visit is still on.

One newspaper called on the government to cancel the visit. The anti-Arab reaction in official circles was demonstrated by the resignation of Rudolf Werner from the co-chairmanship of an Arab-German friendship group in the Bonnjestag, the lower house of Parliament. Werner, a member of the opposition Christian Democratic party, said he would not rejoin the group until Arab governments clearly condemn terrorism.

Brandt himself was clearly angered by the lack of response from Arab leaders to his personal appeal for intervention to save the Israeli hostages. A public statement by the chancellor told the television audience Bonn's relations with Cairo have been strained because President Anwar el Sadat refused to help when Brandt telephoned him to ask for safe passage for the Israelis should West Germany let the guerrillas fly their hostages to Cairo.

Even Hans-Joergen Wischewski, the leading expert on the Middle East in Brandt's Social Democratic party and the chief architect of Arab-German reconciliation, said in statements that the "murderous terrorism" has caused "irrepa-rable harm" to the Arab name in West Germany and the rest of the world.

The disenchantment in the wake of Tuesday's tragedy was by no means one-sided.

"The killing could have been avoided if the German police had not deceived the Palestinians," a columnist wrote in the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram.

The Palestine Arab delegation at the United Nations discussed the German authorities as "dirty and inhuman torturers" in opening fire on the guerrillas after telling them they could take the hostages to Cairo.

Edward Liska, a brother-in-law and secretary-treasurer of Ondrey, pleaded guilty of evading tional appeal for intervention to $16,630 in income tax while appropriating $42,666 from the two companies.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, SEPT. 8

Aries (March 21-April 19): Begin immediately on a detailed wind-up for the week's doings, as you will have little chance to do anything later.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Budget both your time and money, take on first the really important matters. Stubborness pays off in savings this Friday.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Too much concern over trivial matters and money is the current drift. Take the trouble to express your deep faith.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The day is best spent smoothing out the upsets and loose ends of the past several days. Be in no great hurry, be thorough.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23): Avoid financial speculations, particularly already thinly spread investments. Bring in the outline of new social groupings.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can be of special service usefully to somebody of great prestige. Make the most of it and go on to other ventures.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The human element comes in strongly in today's history. Laying aside any financial worry for now, do the necessary.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Borrowing, lending, refinancing are all very "fly" activities. Skip the frills, trim your outlays to fit resources.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Buy only that which you know from experience. Participation in friends' enterprises finally leaves you near the short end.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Expressions of co-operation and approval needn't lead you to take on more than you can handle. Avoid being careless.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use moderation in practice; arrangement and personal habits. Emotional urges aren't be let free in any fluent expression.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Consultation consumes time, requires tolerance, brings solid agreement and participation to the best use of family resources.

Hexachlorophene Still Widely Used!

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Several years ago nurses at a hospital used a lotion for back rubs, and I have been using it ever since. Also a soap that contains hexachlorophene.

A doctor told me that since they contain hexachlorophene I should no longer use them. My daughter, a volunteer at a hospital, says the lotion is still used there.

Is it really harmful to use in moderation? I am 64 and very healthy.—F.E.P.

It's plain to see the confusion over hexachlorophene still exists.

Hexachlorophene is effective in suppressing germs: hence, its use in soaps and some other products.

However, studies with animals showed that it could be toxic, causing brain damage. As with other materials that have been tested, large amounts were used. But since they did cause damage, warnings were issued concerning human use.

Hexachlorophene was not banned. It was simply a matter of making a public warning. Products containing it should be used with awareness that the risks of absorbing it are greater when used on broken or injured skin—or burns or skin disorders, for example.

It was widely used in hospital nurseries to combat staph (staphylococcus) skin infections. After the recommendation that it be stopped, an increase in skin infections was reported. Hospitals, however, never had used it as a routine thing for total-body bathing of babies).

The answer, at the moment, seems to be to use it as needed, but not as a daily thing for the little ones.

For adults with intact skin, I know of no objection to its use—the two items you mention contain 3 per cent or less.

The two precautions are not to use it on broken skin and to rinse well after using it. After all, you have used these products for years without apparent harm, and I see no reason for you to discontinue.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is just a year old and one testicle has not come down. One doctor tells me to leave it alone. It's not uncommon. Another says have it operated on, and still another says wait until he is 5.

"I'm very confused.—Mrs. G.I.B.

An undescended testis is not to be ignored. Keep track of the situation. But there's certainly no urgency for surgery at this age.

I concur with the advice not to consider surgery until he is at least 5. At age 5 or 6, if it has not descended, hormone injections (chiorionic gonadotropin) may be tried, which may solve the problem.

Around age 5 the testis becomes more mature, and surgery to bring it down can be undertaken then.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would it be possible for a woman to become sterile from watching color television over a period of eight hours? How many? Would eight hours be possible?—P.W.

No, I suspect that you have misinterpreted something you have read or heard.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taught that drinking plenty of water is essential to good health. Today there are people who drink very little water, preferring juices, tea, soft drinks, etc., instead. Please comment.—Mrs. H.L.P.

It's water, regardless of the various flavorings, as it isn't harmful if all the water you drink is flavored

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♠	Dble	Redble
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
Pass	1 NT	2 NT	3 NT

Opening lead — eight of hearts.

The luck of the draw pitted the United States against the Italian Blue Team on the second day of the Olympiad, and the Aces suffered a crushing defeat, in their first world championship encounter with their distinguished opponents. The Italians, playing most confidently, garnered 62 international match points to the Aces' 3 and thus captured all 20 victory points at stake. The U.S. team eventually recovered from this blow to finish second among the 29 competing countries, but getting the best of the Italians on only one board as it was hardly conducive to bolstering their confidence.

The Aces got the worst of this deal, which featured good play by both declarers. With Lawrence and Goldman North-South for the U.S., they reached three notrump and Garozzo led a heart.

Goldman went up with the king and, in view of the bidding, played West with shortage in both minors. Accordingly, he cashed the queen of diamonds at trick two, following next by the ten. It did not matter whether or not East covered: in either case Goldman was bound to make four diamond tricks.

However, Goldman was fighting a losing cause, since all he could do was score eight tricks and go down one.

When Avarelli and Belladonna — playing the Precision Club — were North-South for Italy at the other table, the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 NT	2♦	3 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

The two diamond overcall guaranteed both majors and Belladonna took full advantage of the artificial bid by also leading the Q10 of diamonds. Had Belladonna made the contract because West's opening lead at this table was the ten of spades. He won in dummy with the jack, and he could not now be stopped from scoring a ninth trick with the king of hearts.

Tomorrow: China vs. United States.

Nothing Changed in 2000 Years

Farmer Is Still Eternal in China

Pulitzer prize-winning historian Barbara Tuchman, who recently returned from China, describes in this, the third of five parts, how the old and the new coexist in the rural areas of the Peoples' Republic.

Written for The AP
By BARBARA TUCHMAN

The farmer is the eternal China.

In the Sian Provincial Museum a tomb carving shows a Han dynasty man driving a single-furrow iron plow pulled by a team of bullocks—and just outside town the same arrangement functions, unchanged after 2,000 years.

In the fields groups of figures working together bend over the never-ending, backbreaking task of cultivation: transplanting rice seedlings, weeding the young corn, hoeing the vegetables, scything the ripe wheat or rice and plowing and harrowing the field for a second crop.

In the north, plowing is by mule or bullock and occasionally, on the lands of a fortunate commune, by tractor. In the south and the Yangtze Valley the grey water buffalo provides the power.

Here, too, occasionally, a motored plow with a man walking between the handles can be seen lurching axle-deep through the mud of a paddy field.

To the eye, rural China is beautiful. Terraced slopes banded by strips of stone walls rise like earth ripples on the hills. The valleys below hold orchards and tile-roofed farmhouses and fields of wheat or corn. In the wide bed of a shallow river women and children scrub clothes against the rocks.

Further south thatched roofs appear and yellow-flowered squash vines climb over them and over everything else.

In a lake of broadleafed, pink-flowering lotus, black-clad women wade waist deep to pick the edible roots.

On a village threshing floor chaff is shaken from the grain in shallow baskets; nearby a mule attached to a pole turns the millstone on his ceaseless round.

The policy of dispersing industry to the countryside already has invaded the beauty. From the train window crossing the area between the Yellow River and the Yangtze, power line grids and the tall smokestacks and sharp outlines of factories suddenly appear here and there.

Old and new exist together. High on a hill in Shensi the fans of a radar station are visible. On the roadside below a large grass-covered mound with a smoking chimney on top signifies a village brick-making kiln.

Boys and women with buckets dangling from shoulder poles carry night soil from a pit to spill on the fields, and elsewhere a creep moves among the corn in a cloud of chemical spray.

Except for locusts, insects seem extraordinarily absent, and birds, too, in consequence. For the sake of agricultural yield, China has taken a long step toward silent spring. Chemical fertilizer is spread by hand from baskets.

Communes are slowly improving rural housing, but the backlog is vast: the rural population living in communities under 2,000 is estimated at 500,000 or approximately 100 million households. Not all have been communalized.

Some still cultivate tiny front yard plots of corn or vegetables no more than 10 or 12 feet square, although their land, we were told, is state-owned. A privy, there was simply a hole in the ground with two flat stones placed on top in the form of a V.

Though painful in the making, communalized farming is by now the rule and the law. At a meeting in Shensi of a production brigade, one unit of a commune, the team leaders, each representing 30-35 households, were brown and weathered traditional peasants in work-soiled clothes, many of them older men. Three of the team leaders were women.

Each member in turn reported his team's progress in the second round of weeding, the second application of fertilizer, and the threshing of already harvested wheat.

Following the team leaders, an "educated youth" of about 16 or 17, sent to the brigade after graduation from middle school for his three-year term of manual labor, urged greater use of the "scientific" knowledge of the young.

Except for a glancing reference by the schoolteacher, not a single Maoist slogan or exhortation about the "struggle for production" or "in agriculture learn from Tachai," or "republican revisionists and capitalist-roaders," was mentioned, although doubtless this would not have been true of a younger group.

Mexico Buys Large Firms

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — Smoothly and quietly, the Mexican government is expanding its business holdings, without the bitter controversy which often accompanies nationalization moves in other Latin American countries.

In the last three months, the government has taken over two major companies without any fuss at all. One of them was the giant Telefonos de Mexico (Telephones of Mexico)—the last important public utility still in private hands.

The government bought 51 per cent of the company's shares and offered to buy out any of the remaining holders who wished to sell.

The decision was partly dictated by events in Chile, where the powerful American International Telephone and Telegraph Co. was accused of plotting against President Salvador Allende.

"We want to be sure who owns the company and the best assurance is for the government to take control," said Mexico's national properties minister, Horacio Flores de la Pena.

The Mexican government's acquisition of a controlling interest in Telefonos de Mexico came only three months after it bought full ownership of Aeronaves Panamericana, the country's main subject producer from the American Pan American Sulphur Co.

President Luis Echeverria, who inherited a $1-billion trade deficit and foreign debts totaling 38 billion when he took office in 1970, began talking early this year of a "mixed economy."

This concept blends capitalist and socialist ideas of economic development and envisages greater state participation in business and industry.

Telefonos de Mexico was already Mexican-owned. The controlling interest was bought from U.S. stockholders in 1938 by a Mexican consortium.

With its latest purchase, the government now owns or controls electricity, oil, railways and telephones.

In the case of Aeronaves Panamericana which accounts for three-quarters of Mexico's sulphur production, the government already owned 66 per cent of the company's shares.

It paid $9,000,000 to acquire full ownership. The company has two plants in Mexico, three ships specially designed for transporting liquid sulphur and storage facilities in two United States and Britain.

Private banks granted the government a loan equivalent to $80 million at the same time that the Telefonos purchase was announced.

This experiment with a "mixed economy" has had a mixed reaction. While newspapers praised it as an attempt to put the common good above private interests, Tlefonos de Mexico shares dipped on the stock market immediately after the purchase announcement.

Behind the market reaction was an apparent fear among stockholders that the telephones would not function as well under government control as they did in private hands.

A newspaper columnist said doubts inherent in state administration might be brought into the company. The main one, he said was bureaucracy.

Mexico expropriated foreign oil companies in 1938, long before other Latin American countries thought of it.

Government officials are hoping to extend telephone services to rural areas as was done in the case of electricity after big foreign power companies were nationalized in 1960.

They maintain that only under government control can essential industries and utilities be oriented towards the common good rather than profit-making.

Mill Will Open Soon

This linerboard mill at Stephenville, Nfld., is scheduled to go into production Oct. 30 and will provide 400 permanent jobs. The mill, taken over by the provincial government earlier this year, is the brightest point in Stephenville's recovery. It is expected to produce 350,000 tons of high-quality linerboard annually. Most of the wood will be cut in southern Labrador's Lake Melville area by about 500 loggers. The logging jobs are all new additions to the province's economy. (CP Photo)

Fast Test Found for Snail Fever

SALISBURY (AP) — A Rhodesian laboratory has developed a fast and inexpensive way to detect whether a person has caught bilharzia.

The debilitating disease afflicts some 200-million people in warmer parts of the world. It is estimated in tating Africa an annual loss of $520 million in economic productivity.

Bilharzia, also known as "snail fever" or schistosomiasses, is caused by parasitic flatworms which lodge in the liver and intestines.

Snails which thrive in stagnant water transmit the parasite. A person can contract the disease simply by swimming, wading or dipping a hand into water while a snail is releasing schistosome larvae.

Salisbury's Blair Research Laboratory says five years of work went into the new test which is to be marketed by a firm called C.A.P.S. Limited.

It is an antigen extracted from bilharzia worms and is said to give positive proof of the three types of the disease only 15 minutes after injection.

The substance doesn't need refrigeration and has a long shelf life. Dr. Clive Stiff said the antigen is made by growing infected snails in a lab, collecting the larval forms of the bilharzia worms and infecting hamsters with the disease.

adult worms are produced in about 10 weeks and the hamsters are sacrificed in the process.

The antigen obtained from the worms is put in cartridges holding enough for 200 tests. Doctors have been told it should be priced at about 25 cents.

The parasite multiplies best in habitats which remain moist throughout the year. When a stream is dammed flowing water, which is not suitable for the snails, is converted into a large still reservoir ideal for them. Irrigation of areas below the dam provides the opportunity for year-round reproduction of the snails in irrigation ditches.

Chemicals are widely used in Rhodesia to control snails in rivers and lakes. Dr. Victor de V. Clarke, director of the Blair ways."

and De Beers Laboratories in Salisbury, said chemicals such as Bayluscid and a newer compound known as Frescon provide only temporary relief. Repeated application is necessary.

"But valuable as these chemicals are in keeping bilharzia under control, they cannot eliminate it altogether," Clarke said. "It is unlikely that Rhodesia or any other bilharzia country will ever be entirely free of it until there is complete hygiene, preventive treatment and

Link with Space

This 90,000-pound self-contained transportable telemetry and command station built by Hughes Aircraft Co., of El Segundo, Calif., will be the primary link for Telesat, Canada's Anik I communications satellite, when Anik I is in its synchronous orbit, 22,300 miles above the Earth. Telemetry electronics plus the station's 26-foot dish antenna and pedestal mount are trailer-mounted to expedite transport and use. Anik I is scheduled to be launched from Cape Kennedy in November. Federal Court Hears Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — The Federal Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday it has the power to review decisions to extradite fugitives and agreed to hear an appeal in the case of Karleton Armstrong, 26, ordered extradited to Wisconsin in the murder and arson charges.

The decision is believed to be the first one giving fugitives sought for extradition the clear right to appeal their cases up to the Supreme Court of Canada.

In the past, once a person was ordered extradited, he was able to apply only on a restricted basis—basically a point of law—to a judge of the Ontario Supreme Court usually a writ of habeas corpus.

The judge could overturn or uphold the decision or order a new hearing. The only appeal from his decision was to the Ontario Court of Appeal, but on a similarly restricted basis.

The ultimate, and in many cases, only, appeal from an extradition order was at the cabinet level in Ottawa. The federal cabinet then determines whether an extradition order is to be carried out.

The Federal Court of Appeal, created in June, 1971, to deal with income tax and citizenship appeals, interprovincial trade disputes and appeals from decisions of federal commissions and tribunals, had no mention of extradition in its legislation.

Armstrong's lawyer, Clayton Ruby, had applied to the Federal Court of appeal for permission to appeal an order of extradition issued by Judge Harry Walsberg of the York County Court.

Austin Cooper, lawyer for the State of Wisconsin, asked the appeal court to dismiss the application because it had no jurisdiction, arguing it had said in an earlier case in which a judge had refused extradition.

But Edward Greenspan, co-counsel with Ruby, argued Tuesday that the court could hear an appeal since a positive decision had been made in the Armstrong case.

Wednesday, Mr. Justice Arthur Thurlow and Mr. Justice J. A. Cameron agreed with Mr. Greenspan. Mr. Justice Thurlow said the warrant issued by Mr. Walsberg for Armstrong's extradition was a command, putting Armstrong in custody to await return to Wisconsin.

Judge J. A. Sweet, the third member of the appeal court panel dissented from the decision.

Mr. Cooper said Wednesday he was content to argue the appeal in the federal court. But finish if necessary in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Greenspan called Wednesday's decision "historic" because it gave a direct route of appeal for fugitives through the Federal Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court.

They (the court) have extended their jurisdiction into the whole area of extradition whereas Parliament hadn't apparently contemplated anything like it," he said.

Vietnam Veteran Gets His Bride

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — After a five-month battle against red tape, Vietnam veteran Keith Munby was reunited Wednesday with his 18-year-old war bride.

He also held his two-month-old daughter for the first time.

Mr. Munby, from New York State, married Nguyen Tri Trang in Vietnam without United States Army approval last January. He later was evacuated, for medical reasons, from Vietnam and was separated from his wife.

Later, he came to live with his parents in St. Catharines and began the fight to be reunited with his wife.

Gabriel Kurpe of Hamilton helped Mr. Munby overcome the major monetary hurdle to regain his family—a $1,500 interest-free loan for his wife's flight.

To Stand Trial

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Edwin M. Walker, 61, was committed to trial Wednesday on a charge of manslaughter in the death of former weekly newspaper publisher S. Casey Wood last May 2.

Hyperactive Children Have Hyperactive Parents

CHICAGO (AP) — A "significant percentage" of hyperactive children have parents who were hyperactive or who have psychiatric problems, a psychiatrist says.

The data indicate that "the hyperactive child syndrome is passed from generation to generation and may be a precursor of certain adult psychiatric illnesses," Dr. Dennis P. Cantwell of Los Angeles reports in the September issue of the Archives of General Psychiatry, published by the American Medical Association.

Hyperactive children are generally considered to be problems in school, and the use of drugs to control these children has recently created controversy among educationists, the medical profession and congressmen.

Children Tell of Slaying of Mother

OTTAWA (CP) — Anthony and Christine LaPalm Wednesday told a hushed court a tale of terror that ended with their mother lying nude and mortally wounded in the family bath room last Jan. 4.

The two, 11 and 16 years old respectively, were testifying at the non-capital murder trial of their father Nelson, 45.

Jacqueline LaPalm, 44, died Jan. 7 in hospital of three gunshot wounds—two in the back and one in the side. Christine was wounded in the thigh, but soon recovered from the superficial wound.

Anthony said the events started at supper time with a rampus at the back door of their house after which LaPalm appeared in the living room dragging his wife by the throat. He said he tried to defend his mother with a chair, but had it knocked away by his father.

Nelson LaPalm and his wife had been estranged for some time and the boy said his father was enraged that Mrs. LaPalm had put his clothes in storage and changed the door locks.

He said his father pulled out a knife when the doorbell rang and a lady came to take Anthony to a hockey game in which he was to play.

After several pleas by Mrs. LaPalm, and a second ring on the doorbell, Anthony was allowed to leave with the warning:

"If you tell anyone, she gets it."

Anthony stayed away until next day.

Israeli Planes Bomb Arab Guerrilla Bases

Syrian Troops Put On Alert

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli air force planes were reported here to have attacked 10 Arab guerrilla bases deep inside Syria and Lebanon today, hours after the government warned it would fight terrorism with all its strength after the Munich Olympic murders.

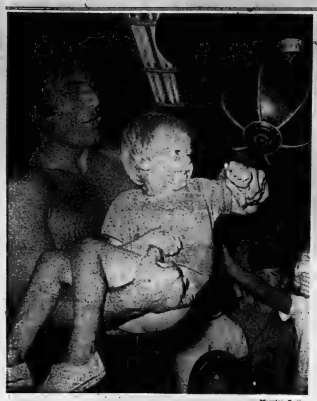
The Israeli jets bombed and strafed the bases and headquarters, striking within four miles of the Syrian capital of Damascus and far into the north of Lebanon above the port of Tripoli, the Israeli military command announced.

The raids were the deepest air strikes by Israel inside Syria since the 1967 Mideast war, and the deepest ever into Lebanon.

All the Israeli planes returned safely to base, a communique spokesman said.

Earlier travellers arriving in Beirut from Damascus reported the Syrian government had put its armed forces on maximum alert and cancelled all leaves, fearing an Israeli attack in retaliation for the killings in Munich.

Reports of an Israeli buildup along the Lebanese and Syrian borders came from Beirut and Damascus.



Israeli forces made an eight-hour raid into southern Lebanon Thursday, but no major fighting or casualties were reported. The Palestinian guerrillas in Beirut charged Israel with an "unprecedented buildup" along the Lebanese and Syrian borders and said they expect retaliation for the Arab attack on Israel's Olympic team.

But the Israelis said the raid Thursday was in reply to a guerrilla incursion across the border Wednesday in which an Israeli soldier and two Arabs were killed.

Sources in Damascus, reached from Beirut by telephone, agreed with the reports of an Israeli buildup along the Syrian and Lebanese borders.

WEST GERMAN police Thursday released the photos of the three wounded Palestinian guerrillas who were involved in Tuesday's attack and killing of the Israeli athletes at the Olympic games. L.-R. — Abdel Khair Al Dnawy, born July 1951 in Jerusalem; Samir Mohammed Abdallah, born in Qufkat in 1950 and Ibrahim Masoud Badran, born in Bourka in 1952. No other details have been issued about these three Arabs. (AP Photo)

Food Costs Push Index Up Point

OTTAWA (CP) — Led by pork, beef and egg prices, food costs again pushed the general consumer price index to higher levels last month, Statistics Canada reported today.

Food prices rose by 2.2 per cent, the biggest increase in August food prices since before 1961, and the over-all index rose 1.1 points or eight-tenths of one per cent.

The August jump followed closely on July's leap, when food prices jumped 3.9 per cent and shoved the over-all index up 1.7 points or 1.2 per cent.

In dollar terms, it meant that it cost $14.57 last month to buy the food that cost 14.25 in July or $13.75 in June. In August last year, that same food bill was $13.59.

For a broad cross-section of all consumer goods and services, the bill last month was $14.13, up from what could be purchased for $14.02 in July, $13.85 in June, or $13.50 in August last year.

The statistics bureau said the only recorded decline in consumer prices last month was in clothing, where prices usually decline in August sales.

In the year from August, 1971, to August, 1972, the overall index rose 4.7 per cent. Economists generally say prices should not rise more than two per cent a year if there is to be relative price stability.

Protestants Battle Army

BELFAST (Reuter) — Bitter Belfast Protestants counted their dead and wounded today after clashes with the British Army in which two civilians were shot to death.

Several others were wounded in a two-hour battle around the Protestant Shankill Road area.

The Protestants, who had previously been on good terms with British troops, expressed shock and anger and accused the soldiers of using live ammunition against people armed only with bricks and bottles.

Three Arrested Arabs Charged

MUNICH (CP) — The Bavarian justice ministry announced today that formal warrants have been issued charging three Arab guerrillas with kidnapping and murder.

The ministry said the three—Abed Al Kadir Dnawy, 21, Abdula Mohamed Somer, 22, and Ibrahim Masoud Badran, 20—were under heavy guard in solitary confinement at Munich's Stadelheim jail.

Under West German law, arrest warrants must be issued within 48 hours of apprehension and can be extended every two days by a judge. Formal charges are filed at the end of the police investigation, which in this case could take months, sources said.

$1,000 Bill Located

Customer Earns Free Repairs

HAMILTON (CP) — For the first time in John Markovich's life, he held a $1,000 bill Wednesday night.

After admiring it, the service station operator put the bill obtained through the sale of a car into his wallet.

Then a customer came in for gasoline and Mr. Markovich, short of change in the till, went to his wallet. He mistook the $1,000 bill for a $2 bill. . . .

"When I realized what had happened it was just like having a heart attack," he said as he told a reporter of pacing the floor of his home until the early hours of Thursday morning.

Then the police, to whom Mr. Markovich had reported his loss, phoned Henry Oraspowski, who lives nearby, had turned in a $1,000 bill, not knowing where he had obtained it.

From now on, vowed John Markovich, Mr. Oraspowski gets free repairs to his car at the Markovich service station.

Robin Jeffrey Plans To Seek Mayor's Chair

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Alderman Robin Jeffrey announced today that she would seek the mayor's chair.

Ald. Jeffrey announced her candidacy at a press conference this morning, Mrs. Jeffrey's husband Roy will act as her campaign manager.

The campaign to win the mayor's seat will get under way with a door-to-door canvass next Monday but will not get into high gear until after the federal election on Oct. 30.

The only other woman to run for mayor in Belleville was Mrs. Jane Forrester who served a two-year term in the mayor's chair in 1956 and 1957 after a one-year term as alderman.

Integrity of the candidates running for office and planning for regional government, which she felt was certain to come, were the two major campaign issues in the opinion of Alderman Jeffrey.

Mrs. Jeffrey said she intended to conduct a personal campaign but hoped that the conflict of interest issue raised in city council over months ago did not become a main campaign issue.

11000 Asians Get Forms For Entry Into Canada

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Canadian immigration officers distributed application forms for about 11,000 Asians wanting to settle in Canada during the first two days the offices here have been open, officials said today.

They said another 2,500 Asians called at the offices Thursday, representing an estimated 5,000 persons.

The first 80 heads of families were called for interviews Thursday and 72 of them satisfied Canada's immigration requirements.

No statistics were available here on intended jobs and destinations or on exact citizenship status but officials expressed surprise at the number of applicants who claimed to have relatives in Canada.

Moira Authority Marks 25 Years

Natural resources minister Leo Bernier will be invited to officially open the Moira River Conservation Authority's $300,000 Deerock Reservoir on Partridge Creek northeast of Flinton.

Official opening of the reservoir on the tributary of the Skootamatta River will be part of the observance of the Authority's 25th anniversary. Other anniversary events scheduled call for an official opening of the Authority's 2-dney township field station, twice-over from the former federal entomology research centre in Belleville and a tour of Authority conservation areas and reforestation plots.

A new Authority two zone fishing achievements since its organization in 1947 also is being published.

No date has been set for the official opening of the Deerock dam. Authority officials are awaiting word from Mr. Bernier on when he will be available.

Official opening of the Sidney conservation area is scheduled for September 23, while the host tour of Authority properties is tentatively set for Oct. 11.

The provincial and federal governments contributed 60 per cent of the cost of the Deerock dam through ARDA. The Authority paid the balance.

Area municipal officials and members of parliament will be invited to the official opening as official guests while the general public is also being invited to attend the ceremonies.

Annexation Before Services

PICTON (Staff) — Extension of municipal services outside town limits has been vetoed by Picton town council in favor of the builder, the developer and the township of Hallowell first consent to annexation of the serviced land to Picton.

The move to curb extension of services to Hallowell was headed by mayor Margaret Ackerman who made a motion to make annexation compulsory at a recent public works committee meeting.

Several councillors did disagree with her stand Tuesday night and claimed the mayor's call for annexation before services would be provided was in direct opposition to earlier agreements.

The motion making extension of services conditional to annexation was passed, however, during the council meeting.

Foster Parents' Course Planned

Foster parents in the Quinte district may soon have a special Loyalist College course to help them in their delicate job.

Mrs. E. J. Wannacott told Loyalist's board of governors last night that a course of study for a foster parents' program is now being worked out by community colleges in conjunction with the Family and Children Services of the province.

Because Belleville now has 83 foster parents caring for wards of the Belleville Family and Children's Service, Loyalist will offer the night course when guidelines are established.

Similar courses in Metro Toronto community colleges run for eight weeks, with one two-hour session a week offered the foster parents.

Rosh Hoshanah Starts For Jewish Community

Tonight a new year begins for Jewish communities around the world — Rosh Hoshanah, the beginning of a holiday period ushering in religious festivals, says Rabbi Meyer M. Sharony, of Belleville.

In the Jewish calendar it's the start of the year 5733, and the beginning of a 10-day holiday of solemn festivals known as the Days of Awe.

"The character of the observances are highly original, says Rabbi Sharony.

"Unlike the other major Jewish festivals, which symbolize national and historical events, the observances of agricultural heritage. Rosh Hoshanah are purely spiritual and religious."

The holidays are a period of personal spiritual accounting of deeds and misdeeds, atonement and pleas for divine assistance toward improvement of human desires and intentions.

Prayers, psalms and poems used in the observances have a moving, highly spiritual impact — even on "lukewarm believers and agnostics" says the rabbi.

Singing the Praises

Sidney's Old Stone Church May Become Craft Centre

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

A Quinte landmark is hoping to become the craft centre of the region.

The Old Stone Church on Sidney Township's 4th concession is housing paintings by Toronto-area artists. But, if owner Fred Charles has his way the deconsecrated building will become a workshop for area craftsmen, where ideas become reality and art enthusiasts congregate.

Mr. Charles began indulging his dream after a visit to Niagara-on-the-Lake several years ago. There he was told he could happen when local talent joins in a purely cultural endeavour.

Niagara artists converted a cheese factory to a theatre now manufacturing and marketing all types of crafts.

"My prime interest is to promote service Canadian craftsmen," Mr. Charles was saying at the opening of his latest art show last night.

"But it hasn't worked here."

Lack of interest, poor communication and financial limitations were among reasons cited for the former church's failure to become an artistic focal point.

Meantime, Mr. Charles, past president of the Quinte Arts Council uses the building — bought three years ago — for exhibitions, like the 12 he's now seen in premises.

"We have 69 paintings by 37 artists all from the Arts, Crafts and Hobbies building at the Canadian National Exhibition," Mr. Charles said.

The paintings, oils, watercolors and acrylics, are for sale for prices between $25-$150. The show is open until Sept. 20 from 7:30 p.m. weekdays and from 1 p.m. weekends.

The show — sponsored by the arts council — is not the first for thesame-time church building. Dottie Shoots, a Redcentreville artist, drew 400 people to a display last fall. Mr. Charles predicts an attendance of 200 for the current exhibition.

Last night, spectators were sparse, although John Bush, Quinte Exhibition president, and Frank Morris, arts council president were present for the opening.

An original touch added by the Charles' is apples and honey accompanied by a glass of cider, all available beside the admission stand — the one-time church's pulpit.

The building is more than a hobby for Mr. Charles. Last week, the couple shop with a secret board and batten coat, moved into a shop open alongside the church, a wooden structure labelled Sidney Shed by Mr. Charles.

There he tabulates in antiques and furniture restoration although he claims there's little time for such activities.

He's now planning an addition to the quarters that will give him a living room with a landscape view.

Idea Dropped

Attempts to start a Chamber of Commerce in Stirling have failed, steering committee chairman William Webber has announced. Chief cause, he said, was the inability to find a suitable manager-secretary. Membership fees already paid will be returned.

UCW School

The Bay of Quinte Conference's 11th annual school for United Church Women is being held at Camp Quin Mo-Lac on Moira Lake today. It will continue Saturday and Sunday under the direction of Mrs. Douglas Redpath of Oshawa.

Counter To Trend

Enrolment figures in Lennox and Addington schools are running counter to the trend across the province, superintendent R. A. Dodds says. Although elementary school enrolments are declining in Ontario, L-A county has an increase of 100 elementary school pupils to date this year.

Bands Named

The Lennox and Addington County Riders of Napanee and the band Fireball, Belleville, will be among the attractions at the Mohawk Fair on Tyendinaga Reserve Sept. 16. Area Plea Is Taken To Ottawa

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Need of Quinte Planning Board for federal assistance in coming to grips with the impact of CFB Trenton is not at the level of personal negotiations among representatives of federal - provincial and regional agencies, planning board director Bert Kenny said last night.

Mr. Kenny told a board meeting here Planning board requires such current data as the participation of spouses of military personnel in the regional labor force. He also cited the need for statistics on military personnel retiring in the area.

Trenton councillor Paul Tripp told the board Trenton knows of the problems related to planning by CFB Trenton. He said previously planners "treat the place like Toronto International Airport."

For development of the town official plan, the province had insisted that such factors as airport noise and flight paths be factors in the land use designations of Quinte peninsula.

Director Kenny told the board he met with an official of the federal urban affairs minister in Ottawa a week ago and outlined the board's need either for a statistical analysis of the base prepared by the defence department or money for the board to compile this data with its own staff.

The dialogue follows a letter to Urban affairs minister Ron Basford from former provincial treasurer Darcy McKeough appealing for assistance to QPB on the basis that the local military complex has a perceptible impact on the area.

A meeting was also held at Queen's Park this week on the subject with federal and provincial representatives in attendance but Kenny said he did not have details on this discussion available to present to the board last night.

McKeough has told the federal urban affairs department "considerable research is still required" on the impact of the base before appropriate planning policies can be devised.

Aid Jeffrey to Run for Mayor

However, for the benefit of those concerned about property holdings close to public office Mrs. Jeffrey gave assurance that the only real estate she owns or holdings she had were joint ownership with her husband in the Jeffrey Farm Street home and a summer cottage in Prince Edward County.

"This is the full extent of my property interest . . . and I give further assurance my husband and I will not exploit these holdings should I be elected. . . ."

Looking ahead, Alderman Jeffrey said the future of the city is going to have to be worked out through agreements and plan planning with neighboring municipalities.

She said a certain amount of governmental was safe to the Quinte area but she stressed she would like to have a hand in deciding what kind of regional government it should be.

She said she would favor a two tier government taking in Belleville, Trenton and the county of Hastings with possibly Prince Edward being included at some future date.

"But I am not pushing for that (inclusion of Prince Edward)," she said.

Ald. Jeffrey said she firmly believed that all residents, regardless of who they are, deserve courtesy, interest and consideration from their city government.

"I firmly believe that the average man and woman should not take second place to the rich and powerful," she said.

In her five years as a city alderman, Mrs. Jeffrey pointed to experience gained on the city parks board and on the recreation committee of which she is chairman this year.

"I have a background there that I think is valuable and some new ideas that should be considered. . . ."

Trenton Zoning Costs Discussed

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Quinte Planning Board tentatively agreed last night to pay for drawing up of new zoning schedules for Trenton.

Such schedules must accompany Trenton's new official plan, now approved by provincial authorities.

"I would certainly encourage the board to approve payment for Trenton's zoning if the price for hiring consultants is favorable," said QPB chairman Jack Bush.

The board requested Trenton representatives to QPB to secure costs quotes for giving Trenton a new zoning bylaw from consultants. Project Planners of Toronto, Trenton board members will report on the price for zoning at the next QPB meeting.

Bush Explains Planning Surplus

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Quinte Planning Board chairman Jack Bush Thursday explained why the board has $36,000 that has irritated a Trenton councillor. Mr. Bush announced QPB's intention to cut back the surplus by waiving monthly levies for planning from the board municipalities later this year.

Trenton councillor Pete Aziz had objected to Trenton contributing to QPB this week because of the surplus and questioned how such a surplus could accrue.

Reeve Bush explained that the 1972 QPB budget had provided for the hiring of additional staff, the leasing of new board office space and further planning services. He said the divisions in the board this summer had led to the planned expenditures not being made and the board intends to rectify the situation by cutting back of levies, perhaps as early as next month's meeting.

A letter explaining the budget will be sent to Trenton town council with word of the

Paving Has Started On Portions of Highway 2

From Belleville to Trenton It's Jolt and Jar in Your Car

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Motorists travelling between Belleville and Trenton are finding no end to road construction, and at times, the travel-weary auton look like they've been travelling the Sahara Desert . . . the rocky portion, that is.

For the past several months workmen have been ripping up sections of Highway 2, installing culverts, sewers, bridgework and new roadbeds. Motorists qualifying for the Highway 2 Obstacle Course have dodged signposts, enormous potholes, piles of earth, rattling and banging their way through dust.

To make matters seem worse, work began last week on Dundas Street East, at the entrance to Trenton.

But the road is definitely becoming smoother, and the promise of pavement - to - come is raising the spirits of many a harried driver.

Now they have a good 11-mile stretch between Trenton and Bayside Secondary School of almost unbroken preliminary surface paving on one-half of the newly-farmed road bed on which to drive.

It's not easy to rip up an old roadbed, raising or lowering levels, plus keep traffic flowing. This fact is attested to by Mulder Paving Company foreman Louis St. Amour.

He says approximately 28,000 cars per day pass his work crews, and full time flagmen have to be on hand to control the flow. He says the contract will be fulfilled by April of 1973, with preliminary surfaces smoothed out by Thanksgiving of this year.

Closer to Trenton, flagmen keep traffic regulated past a

Room Availability Service Fizzled

Lack of co-operation by Belleville hoteliers was cited yesterday as a major obstacle in the possible setting up in Belleville of a central hotel room information service.

The Chamber of Commerce is considering the possibility of establishing such a service but chamber director Pat Houston told a board meeting of the organization Wednesday a partial attempt was made to implement such a scheme this summer with little success.

He said the chamber's tourist booth on North Front St. tried to keep tabs on the availability of hotel rooms in the city "but the hotels would not co-operate to keep us up to date . . . the problem is to keep the hotels interested."

Ottawa has now opened a successful hotel information service and director Frank Murray asked the chamber to seek full details of how that city's program is operated.

giant hole at Flindal Street, as workmen proceed with the reconstruction of Dundas St. East between Campbell Street and the eastern limits of the town. New sewers will be installed, with replacement of private water connections with newer galvanized pipes scheduled.

Acting town works commissioner Arie Hoornweg said the badly patched portion of Dundas, left in this condition until the complete job could be done, would be worked on in progressing stages. New curbs, sidewalks, plus widening of the road from 30 to 42 feet, would be installed in a way which is intended to keep traffic flows relatively smooth.

In addition, the town will install new mercury vapor street lights. Ontario Hydro and Bell Canada lines will be shifted to the south side of Dundas.

This project is scheduled to take approximately 65 more working days with basic surfaces complete by the end of November.

The entire cost of the job, including the Public Utility Commission's installation of their lights and repairs to water mains, is expected to come close to half a million dollars.

Also under repair in Trenton is a section of College Street. A new 36" high sewer is being installed along Ontario and College from Dundas to Street. Once this job is completed, new curbs and pavement will be laid. This new sewer will eventually be connected to Marmora Street, which will be equipped with a new sewer line, curbing and paving, within the next two years.

Mr. Hoornweg said the College Street sewer, at a cost of $35,000, is included in the 1972 budget. The Flindal St. storm and sanitary sewers and curbing will be debentured for at a later date.

He also said the town is looking at construction of new-curbs either on Front Street or on Water Street. A study to determine the cost differences is being done at present. If Front Street is selected, he said, the town will receive a 75 per cent subsidy from the province, for construction costs.

Downtown Core of Concern To Ben Corke, Paul Tripp

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Belleville alderman Ben Corke followed up a report by planning director Bert Keezy of fresh approaches for urban renewal by a statement of concern about the city's deteriorating central area at a regular Quinte Planning Board meeting here Thursday.

Ald. Corke's attention was sparked by a Calgary project detailed by Mr. Keezy in which pedestrian and car traffic is being separated by the construction of pedestrian walkways and bridges built above street level, providing the opportunity for opening sidewalk level second floor stores.

He said, as a downtown merchant, he may be biased but "it is becoming a real concern . . . be said commercial assessment will decline in Belleville if something is not done soon. He said he had seen similar developments to the Calgary scheme in Britain and that the revenue from these approaches must be substantial.

He said it is deplorable that a large store at Belleville's Bridge-Front "Four Corners" intersection is vacant, shops are empty and nothing is in sight for a vacant lot at the corner of Victoria Avenue and Front Street.

Trenton councillor Paul Tripp expressed Trenton's similar need for downtown planning. Playing on the sec-

Refused to Help Man Fined $100

MADOC — A young Belleville man, charged with failing to respond to a police officer's request for assistance, was fined $100 here Thursday. The 19-year old man had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

It followed an incident at a Thomasburg dance hall last summer, when a provincial police officer asked for assistance in breaking a fracas.

Provincial Judge R. C. Jackson said it was the first such charge ever brought before him.

Loyalist Enrollment Up But Not To Predictions

The number of fulltime day students registered so far at Loyalist College is down so from the number estimated earlier in the year, but up about 16 per cent over last year's total.

The drop was greatest in the business and technology programs, with first year technology students 40 per cent below the fewer this year than last.

Total enrollment Sept. 7 stood at 698, with more expected to register next week, as summer jobs end, Enrolment for the college on Sept. 30 last year was 643. Planners had estimated a total enrolment this year of 945.

Governor Donald M. Soutter last night called for an evaluation of the college's promotion campaign designed to attract students. He also asked for a reappraisal of the five year forecast in the building program and use of space at the college.

However, the college now has about 380 retraining students.

"This year we will have almost as many retraining students as regular students," noted Reginald Louder. "We will have to keep that in mind in our building program."

Extensive advertising campaigns by Ryerson College in Toronto has hurt Loyalist and every other community college in the province said president Herbert Reid.

Board of governors member Wesley Downey suggested that students choose out-of-town colleges because they want to get away from home.

"The percentage of students coming from outside the four counties we serve is increasing every year," noted Mr. Reid.

In view of the lower than predicted enrolment, Loyalist will cut hire four teachers, two in technology and two in business, that it had earlier intended to add to the staff.

Total money stolen in the three break-ins amounted to $31.98.

The Election

So the non-campaign — with the late spectacle of party leaders rushing around acting as if the date had been set — has at last become official. Now they are really on the campaign trail and we shall have more of the same and in all likelihood further embellishments.

The Government has much to answer for — on the domestic scene at least. Unemployment, inflation, extravagance in defence and other departmental spending, these are some of the major issues.

Then there is the way in which parole has been made so easy that a convicted wife-murderer can get leave to marry again and next thing he is in Europe with his new wife. Or a man is let out of jail who has been convicted of a sexual offence and while he is free he murders a little girl.

So the Government is on shaky ground here too, although there is evidence that Solicitor-General Goyer is attempting to rid himself of his image of a man who puts the interests of the prison population before that of the public.

Taxation — here is another issue which will occupy the minds of Opposition spokesmen and public in the coming weeks. Tax reform is still something of a mystery package and the Government will have to do some explaining in this area too.

There have been some positive achievements in the Government's record. For example it acted swiftly and effectively during the FLQ crisis and by recognising Communist China it opened up the way to a better understanding between that country and the Western world and notably with the United States. President Nixon's visit to China was made all the more desirable and easier as a result of the Canadian initiative.

The image of the party leaders will have considerable bearing on the hustings and on the outcome. Prime Minister Trudeau still commands a lot of attention and respect, despite occasions in the past when he has fallen from grace somewhat, either by a word here or a seeming arrogance there. By and large though he has weathered the inevitable storms of the Prime Ministerial office with aplomb. He is still very much to be reckoned with.

Conservative leader Stanfield has come a long way too and if anything he is now a much more effective Opposition leader than he was at the start. He is a man of new warmth and humor, readily aware of his own failings and weaknesses, but from such recognition as well as from the experiences of these last few years he has acquired new strength.

NDP leader Stephen Lewis of the Welsh accent and erudite if rather self-righteous manner has given us the campaign's first catchword in his castigation of industry as "corporate welfare bums." But whether he convinces a large segment of the Canadian population that industry and profits are evil and that socialism and a greater sharing of wealth are what we need is another matter.

The race is on, after many a false start and Opposition baiting and October 30 is the date.

Park Visiting

The pattern of park visiting has changed over the years. We recall when one entered North Bay provincial park via the village of Conseaon. Now entrance is gained from Highway 33. Seven years or so ago moreover, when we first went to North Bay, cars and people jammed the old entry route (now blocked off) from Conseaon and the beach and park areas too of course. Last Sunday, by contrast, there was only a handful of people and cars and only four youngsters in the water. But it can be cold there, despite a warm sun and after all it was the final weekend of the sunfmes season. It is still surprising though to see so few people at North Bay and, it seems at times, dwindling interest at other area parks and beaches as well.

Meany Cold-Shoulders Both Nixon and McGovern

Democrats In Bind Over Labor's Changing Attitudes

By BOB CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — In the wake of the traditional Labor Day kickoff of the official U.S. presidential election campaign, the decidedly untraditional role of organized labor is cause for growing speculation with Democratic party leaders still trying to figure out what went wrong.

Until this year, the AFL-CIO has consistently given its support to the Democratic presidential candidate. It was formed in the 1950s. But in July, George Meany, gruff president of the labor organization that includes 117 unions, announced a policy of neutrality, saying he personally would not vote for George McGovern or President Nixon and urging union members to concentrate their efforts on electing pro-labor congressmen.

Meany's distaste for the left-leaning Senator McGovern is an old story, and predates the successful efforts of McGovern forces to weaken labor's influence at the national convention in Miami Beach in July.

Although Meany never claimed he could deliver the votes of the leaders of union members within the AFL-CIO, still his talent-for-granted endorsement as a valuable asset to a succession of Democratic presidential candidates.

Even more surprising than Meany's defection, in the view of many observers, is the failing of several polls that suggests Nixon could get maybe half the labor vote Nov. 7, compared with the 14 per cent he got in the 1968 election.

Indeed, it has been suggested that Meany is not leading his men away from somewhat shaky support of the Democratic party, but in fact is following them. There is little doubt that events of the last decade have conspired to change the working man's view of government policies.

For instance, McGovern's promises of expanded welfare, unemployment insurance and greater job opportunities — the traditional Democratic appeals to the "unworked" — often fall on deaf ears. Now better paid and growing increasingly affluent, many union workers interpret such schemes as simply funneling off their tax dollars for those who don't want to work. They also are skeptical of McGovern's pledge to cut billions from the defence budget, fearing such a policy also would eliminate thousands of jobs.

Nixon has been quick to recognize labor's changing attitudes and to seek to capitalize on them. A number of anti-labor legislative proposals that traditionally are part of the Republican party's platform were notably absent this year. Nixon's themes has emphasized what he terms "workfare rather than welfare," and it has struck a responsive chord among many blue-collar workers disillusioned with the soaring costs of welfare.

As the polls indicate, workers today — unlike those in a generation ago — are not totally preoccupied by job security the rights of unions and the like. Enjoying a better standard of living than ever before, they tend to fall into the "I'm Id I'd do anything" classification said to look askance at McGovern's liberal views on abortion, drug laws and eventual amnesty for military draft evaders who fled to Canada and elsewhere.*

The new approach evident in labor's ranks, however, is not to suggest that Meany and his followers are exactly in love with Nixon. Rather, as indicated, it remains high, inflation still is pretty much out of control and the wage and price controls which Nixon invoked are held in contempt by the unions.

Still, the negative stance of Meany and most other powerful labor leaders cannot help but cast a shadow over the Democratic party and, as the unexpected left to the Republican camp.

Election Campaign: Is It Going to Be A Re-Run?

Hockey and the Election

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The art of dissimulation has now reached a new high development right here in Canada by our own Team Canada!

These players are professionals, and although they are also obvious good Canadian patriots they also have the value of the box office and the gate, and certainly in the normal course of events by this time the Canadian public, having normally been treated to two clear victories, would have quickly lost interest in the series and perhaps even given some attention to the election.

As it is the election will have to wait until the series is concluded.

Perhaps the high spot in dissimulation was the mock anger evinced by the Canadian team — or then again was it — when they refused (or failed) to shake hands with the Russians at the close of the first game.

Their artistic work in the first game also had the glorious effect of smoking out that ancient reptilian enemy of Canadian hockey, namely Bunny Ahearne who gave voice to a number of "I told you so's", before the second game.

Enlightened readers will also note that Canada has left the Russians with some futile flops by still spotting them one goal in the series.

Look to Team Canada for further artful deception if they get carried away by their work and allow themselves to heavily outscore the Russians in the next game.

As a further thought — frightful dimensions is that the boos in the first game was a machination of the Conservative Party, the effect of which was totally to obliterate and bury the election.

They might as well call off the election as far as interest or preparation is concerned until this series is over.

Election Campaign: Is It Going to Be A Re-Run?

Editor
The Intelligencer.

At long last the federal election that opposition members and the media have been working themselves into a lather over has been announced.

The hysteria directed to this event by the combined efforts of the members of the opposition and the space given to coverage by the press is not shared by the average elector. He is not interested — and no wonder.

There isn't the slightest evidence that any of the other parties will do any better if elected. They all strong on mouth but when it comes down to it, short on method.

The ranks of the Tory party haven't indicated any departure from the old doctrines of free enterprise and the acquisition of petulant Paul Hellyer who left the Liberal party when he couldn't get to be captain, can hardly be considered an asset. Likewise the candidacy of Stephen Roman, the genius in a who got nasty when the prime minister refused to allow him to be sent off a lot of Canada's mineral assets, will be more of a hindrance than a help.

One thing I hope will not be jammed down the electorate's throat this time is any claptrap about the "Just Society". With unemployment remaining at a totally unacceptable level we must not forget that it was the gentleman who coined the phrase "Just Society" who was responsible for this state of affairs. And, let us not kid ourselves, if the Tories had been in they would have done the same — recall some of the Diefenbaker years and you will know what I mean.

Too much hope should not be raised either by the socialistic leadership by Mr. Barrett's victory in B.C. The B.C. vote represented for the most part a vote against Bennett rather than an endorsement of Barrett. Premier Barrett will be faced, as are all socialist governments in a capitalist country with the harsh fact that the government really doesn't hold the reins of the country. They are firmly in the grip of the Corporations.

For the next 60 days we will be subjected to more nauseating political hypocrisy than the last four years, and, when it is all over, the elector will make his way to the polls, put his cross on a piece of paper, firmly in the belief that he has opted in exercise his democratic right.

When he sits back and examines the aftermath he will find, just as it has been in the past, he has elected another eccentric of doctors, lawyers, businessmen and industrialists. There will not be many if any postmen, clerks, mechanics or laborers.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

McKeough Resignation

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

You are correct in your editorial of Sept. 1 in your conclusion that Darcy McKeough did the only thing possible by resigning from the provincial cabinet.

You are also correct in writing that "anyone in government at whatever level who finds himself in a similar predicament over land ownership or whatever, while holding public office, will necessarily find his position even more precarious."

You are, however, not correct when you state that the conflict issue "has been well vertilated locally". The reason is simple. Our Mayor has not told his side of the story. The day of reckoning is not very far away. Mayor Scott, with every passing day, is sealing his own political doom. Why such an intelligent man, who in many respects is also a dedicated public official, should be doing so is a mystery which we find it impossible to fathom.

Also, the silence of the other councillors who voted with him (and why they voted is another mystery) will also hurt them in the political arena. Don't they understand this?

A PLAIN CITIZEN

Diplomatic Life Is Not All Wine and Roses

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

One of the easiest stand-up stories used from time to time by lazy Canadian journalists, who our diplomats overseas living off the Canadian taxpayer on foreign allowances which are licences to have fun.

I did know a senior member of our military mission in London who had a pass to a Soho strip joint, which presumably he paid for himself. But the colonel's taste in strip jaunts — and in Soho there's a very wide selection indeed — was so banal, we should let it pass as a personal lack of taste.

Take Paris this month and the hard-pressed, bone weary and not a little angry members of our big embassy there who have been dealing with hundreds of stranded Canadian air travellers. How the cocktail parties, fun places, dinner jaketed formal dinners have been worthy representatives taken in while they tried to find return air tickets for fellow Canadians who have cut their travel funds to the bone and are destitute in a crisis.

A very bad month indeed to all behind the desk and outsides memories to Ottawa about, "The French Connection." But to those in Ottawa.

In other words, we simply haven't been getting our money's worth out of Paris these days, nothing going on paper to the External Affairs Department in Ottawa—only trying times in getting angry and frustrated Canadians home again—and at government expense.

Then there is my very good friend Bruce Rankin, our superb consul general in New York, who spends a good part of his sojourn in India recuperating from bouts of debilitating dysentery.

Or Ken Brown, the late Nicaraguan George Hees diplomat too who is our ambassador in Havana, where Hees has shipped in by air to keep the diets of Canadian embassy staff members up to our standards. This, mind you is an island bath with productive Nicaragua where every kind of food, even sugar, is dirt cheap.

Or there is a former ambassador in a Latin American country, which Ottawa says is important to our trade in the hemisphere, who came in one morning to find the embassy entrance blocked with packing cases.

These were exhibits shipped by sea from Canada for an agricultural trade fair, but the budget request in Ottawa did not permit a Department of Industry Trade and Commerce representative to accompany the exhibit.

The luckless ambassador, already short-staffed because of manpower cutbacks in the Department of External Affairs, was compelled to assign three embassy people to open the boxes to the fair and hang around as the Canadian representatives.

Housing, for the top echelon, however, is usually very good. Have you ever seen the Canadian ambassador's residence in Mexico City? It could be the former palace of the absentee landowners of old Mexico, whose lifestyle was reason enough to start the classic Mexican Revolution in 1910. Do we need such a place?

But for most of our diplomats overseas, especially those with young families, finding housing is a dismal scramble for accommodations and something akin to a reasonable facsimile of the Canadian lifestyle.

Then there are the language barriers, the cultural gaps, the frustrations of dealing with authoritative governments, the ennui of our world is ruled by this kind these days, keeping your children healthy, often having difficulty making ends meet even with the allowances.

I often wonder how long some of my complaining colleagues would last as diplomats? Ottawa might arrange their posting, that's true. But that "good life" abroad would be too much!

Wade and son reported threshing 820 bushels of Banner oats from a 10-acre field, an average of 82 bushels to the acre. E. Hoey of Hallowy has threshed approximately 2,000 bushels of grain from his 100 acre farm.

A. Lawrence to Run in Northumberland-Durham

in 1958 and ran a strong second to Premier Davis in the Conservative party's leadership race in 1971, became the second "name" candidate to declare for the federal Conservatives this week. He also was the second former provincial justice minister to declare.

Earlier this week Judge Claude Wagner, former Liberal justice minister of Quebec, said he would run for the federal party led by Opposition leader Robert Stanfield.

It had been rumored for months that Mr. Lawrence was thinking about launching a federal career in the Cobourg area where he has a summer cottage. The Northumberland-Durham riding is in that area.

The resignation from the cabinet by Mr. Lawrence was the second serious blow suffered by Premier Davis this week.

The premier Wednesday accepted the resignation of Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough.

Mr. McKeough tendered the resignation last week after it was disclosed that his department had approved a subdivision plan in which Mr. McKeough had an interest when he was minister of municipal affairs in 1968. Charles MacNaughton, a former treasurer, was named Thursday to replace Mr. McKeough, at least temporarily.

Rumors had long circulated at Queen's Park that Mr. Lawrence was discontented with his cabinet post. Mr. Lawrence has admitted he was concerned that the job kept him out of public view because as a minister in charge of developing policy, he had no specific department or program to administer.

Mr. Lawrence, who represents the riding of Toronto St. George provincially, earlier turned down an offer to run federally in Toronto Rosedale where he would have faced Defence Minister Donald MacDonald.

The nomination meeting in Northumberland-Durham will be in Cobourg Sept. 28. Mr. Stanfield will be the speaker.

Mr. Lawrence said he didn't want anyone to think he was deserting the Davis government during its "first crisis". He was referring to the resignation of Mr. McKeough.

He said he was not leaving at a time of "rough sledding" because the Davis government had plenty of experience and talent to fill any holes.

"All of us are expendables," he said.

Mr. Davis said that the departure of his justice secretary was "an occasion of regret, coupled with enthusiasm for the step Mr. Lawrence has taken."

"No person has been more loyal or contributed more positively," he said.

Mr. Lawrence said he expected to campaign exhaustively for the Stanfield team beginning Monday night in the Lakehead. His resignation from the cabinet will take effect Sept. 12, the day before the federal nomination meeting.

Mr. Lawrence said he believed the Trudeau government was "dangerous—honestly dangerous—and I'm going to do my damndest to try to turf them out."

"I'm aware of crucial concern in our national life, we are worse off now than we were four years ago when Mr. Trudeau came to power."

He said he felt that "the present Trudeau government is not only arrogant, and insular in its attitude towards people but it cannot attempt to solve problems which it doesn't even understand."

Car Wash Application Received

Local motorists will have further opportunity to keep the family car clean and shiny if the request for still another gas bar and coin operated car wash is granted by city hall.

City traffic committee members were told this week that an application for a building permit had been received for a Station Street property near the chicken take-out facility east of Dexter's hotel.

The request for the building permit was referred back with a request that a site plan be provided.

Personnel In Demand For City

Municipal enumerations currently under way may have slowed assembly of the task force needed for the upcoming federal election canvass.

Federal enumeration to draft voters' lists for the Oct. 30 election begins Monday.

Instruction in procedure for enumerators who will canvass Belleville's 84 polls will be held Saturday at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

Two enumerators are needed for each urban poll and assembling the 168 canvassers required in the city has taken longer than usual, believes Reginald Dunham.

One reason is that some persons usually used for such tasks already have been pressed into service for the municipal enumeration which began Sept. 5.

However he expects full complement of canvassers required will be on hand tomorrow.

Times of instruction periods at Pinnacle Playhouse are: Polls 1-42, 10 a.m.; Polls 43-84, 2 p.m.

Water Test Results Due Today

WELLINGTON — The results of tests, taken by provincial government officials yesterday in an effort to pinpoint cause of contamination in this village's drinking water, are expected Friday.

Meantime, villagers are still being urged to boil water before drinking.

Yesterday the situation was discussed at a meeting between Reeve Douglas Marvin, officials of the Hastings and Prince Edward health unit and the ministry of the environment's water management branch.

The village water supply is pumped from wells, is chlorinated and health officer Dr. C. R. Lent has speculated the problem could involve the chlorination system.

Reeve Marvin said yesterday contamination could be entering the supply system at some unknown point.

Levy Approved

Loyalist College will pay the equivalent of $1,500 for membership in the Association of Colleges of Applied Arts and Technology.

The committee is now preparing a manual for guidance of boards of governors and will hold a regional seminar for governors at Algonquin College in Ottawa.

The college is a already owed $1,200 of the membership fee, Mrs. E. J. Wonnacott told the board last night. In the future it is expected fees will be assessed on a graduated scale according to college size.

Not Mother

MADOC — A report in Thursday's Intelligencer on the search for a missing woman incorrectly identified her, Ed Dreyer, owner of the Caldwell Inn on Highway 7, near here said today.

The woman was not his mother, Mr. Dreyer stated, he said, but lived about a half-mile west on the highway.

Shop Entered

A break-in discovered this morning at Squirrell the Tailor on Front St. netted thieves a quantity of cash.

Entry was apparently gained through an upper-level window when the thieves made use of a 40-foot ladder left on the riverbank beside the Moira storm sewer project.

Genetic Counselling Could Reduce Birth Defects

MONTREAL (CP) — Five of every 100 babies born today have some sort of genetic disease.

Dr. Charles Scriver, a genetic biologist, says he feels that modern genetic counselling techniques can help reduce the incidence of birth abnormalities and hereditary diseases.

"The mass screening program along with pregnancy monitoring, techniques are allowing high-Risk couples to have normal children, but are preventing the birth of a child with a fatal and incurable disease," he said in an interview.

"In effect it's preventive genetic medicine."

Dr. Scriver is involved in the genetic counselling centre at the Montreal Children's Hospital and also heads a Tay-Sachs mass screening program financed by the Jewish Junior Welfare League.

Tay-Sachs disease is an inherited enzyme deficiency which destroys the central nervous systems and causes death before the age of five. One in every 30 Jews is a carrier of the disease found almost exclusively in Jews of Eastern European ancestry. If both parents are carriers, there is a one-in-four chance of the child being born with the disease.

"It's very hard to describe how you feel when the doctor tells you your child is dying," said Simeon whose 18-month-old son was born with Tay-Sachs.

"I don't feel guilty about it. If it happened now, that would be different. I would get on and just have known at the time that we were carriers."

Due to recent advances in the field of genetic engineering it is possible to tell if a baby has the disease as early as the 14th week of pregnancy. In Montreal, a couple has already prevented birth of a child when they discovered the fetus' disease.

"It's easier to have an abortion than to have a child for two or three years and watch him die," commented Mrs. Simeon.

The next mass screening program in the Montreal area will be among the Greek community where one out of 10 is a carrier of thalassemia, a severe form of anemia.

Dr. Scriver said genetic counselling facilities will have to expand as more communities are organized and predicted genetic counselling will ultimately have to be a public health responsibility.

Quebec has taken the lead in Canada in setting up an early warning system to detect healthy adults carrying specific lethal genes. About 250 couples annually receive genetic counselling at the four centres set up by universities teaching hospitals at the universities of McGill, Laval, Sherbrooke and Montreal. There are only 18 genetic counsellors to go around.

Dr. Scriver said as scientists learn more about genes and the mechanisms of inheritance, they will probably be able to screen entire populations for genetic defects and even repair defective genes before they affect offspring.

Swimming Program Concludes

MARMORA — For the past six weeks, the annual swimming program sponsored by the Marmora Recreation Committee, has been held at Legion Park. Red Cross and Royal Lifesaving tests were conducted last week and awards will be presented to successful candidates.

With many cool, damp days and the low temperature of the water Karen Acorn, Chief Instructor, and her assistants, Ellen Colicci, Janet Maloney, Debbie Paranicki and Marilyn Wilson, have conducted a successful swimming program for about 150 swimmers of all ages. They were taught swimming skills, and all aspects of water safety.

Competitive swimming was again a part of the program and a complete report will be given later. The number of communities introducing competitive swimming to their summer program is on the increase and Marmora is fortunate to again have had a Belleville staff member to coach a team for the third year.

Competitive swimming helps to develop a swimmer who is a safer and a more healthy individual. Time spent in the water during training sessions was in addition to any regular swimming lessons. Thus the swimmers were in the water more — exercising and learning new skills which increased their endurance, strengthened water awareness — all of which will lead to safe, healthier swimming.

Marmora's staff of swimming ended at Legion Park on Friday, Sept. 1.

'The Smoker Is A Polluted Person'

By DORIS CLAIRE

There's a doctor in London, England, who says that hospital staff members should ask smoke in front of the patients that visitors should be actively persuaded not to smoke and that cigarettes should not be sold in hospitals. Patients themselves should, of course, be talked out of the habit.

Do I ever agree with him! I have visited in a hospital room where a visitor's smoke made the air blue; and no one said a word. When the visitor left, the patient asked me to open wide the window and fan the air with a newspaper. He sank back exhausted and somewhat nauseated.

Dr. C. M. Fletcher, Hammersmith Hospital (quoted from Progress Against Cancer) is not the only militant medicalman when it comes to the evils of filling your lungs with cigarette smoke. Members of the medical profession have seen the results far too much: deadly lung cancer, heart trouble, emphysema, to mention three killers. Not to mention a general debilitation. The smoker is a polluted Person.

Dr. Fletcher wants smoking control clinics to help hospital staff break the habit. The success rate of such clinics is about 30 percent, which is good.

Dear Doris: I was interested in your answer to the lady who felt she was so generous with the church and yet everybody went out of their way to avoid her and her husband.

It is true that there is often alast a close-knit group of people in a country church where there is plenty of jealousy and criticism. There are some people who just cannot tolerate this kind of closeness — while others thrive on it!

Let's think about why this lady gives so much. What is she trying to prove? Isn't it that she is trying to buy favor, and when the church women don't fall all over her she seizes on the excuse to be angry? She seems bent to "get herself up to be knocked down".

I liked your answer to her, but it may be that she will need professional help in seeing her contributions are not for both affection and alienation. I'd say she should stop doing things in the church just because she is asked.

Rather, she should be more concerned about doing something appropriate in response to what God means to her. — Rev. Howard Brun.

Dear Mr. Brun: Thank you for your comment. Perhaps the lady, "Lassie", will read what you have said and realize that your thoughts are given with a desire to help her achieve more positive thinking.

Confidential to Always On The Jump: Obedient children are less prone to accidents than disobedient ones.

Yet a modern would be saying, "Don't touch that!", "Howard, I hope you aren't doing anything!" all the time. Children have to explore.

Perhaps the best way of all is to have conversations with your little ones. Explain dangers: don't expect them not to understand. Even a very small child knows a great deal more about what is being said than he could possibly repeat.

Let your accident-prone Little Monster explore, within limits. That is the way his world grows. And if you don't keep too tight a rein on him, you are less likely to have the rebellion and disobedience which can mean real trouble.

Ann Landers

Best Gift of Parents Is Love

Dear Ann Landers: Physicians and lawyers must earn their academic credentials before they can hang out their shingles. We don't send a pretend student into the operating room to perform brain surgery. Why then do we expect inexperienced, untrained people to know how to raise children? I suggest a required course in all high schools.

Surely raising children is the most important job most of us have. Yet how many of us are qualified? Doesn't it make sense to get some instruction

Women's Institutes

REDNERSVILLE WI

A talk on Consumers Affairs highlighted the program at the recent meeting of Rednersville Women's Institute with Mrs. E. Onderdonk, president as hostess for the occasion.

In opening there was discussion regarding the short course "Bedroom and Bath Accessories" and it was found that as many groups have chosen it that it will be necessary for two groups to take it together. This will be held on Jan. 19, 1973 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mrs. A. Cairns reported that two 4-H Girls Clubs are being formed and Mrs. C. Vanclief gave a report on a district WI executive meeting. Members are reminded of the area convention in Peterborough on Oct. 24 and 25. A bus will probably be chartered for the first day. At this time Prince Edward is responsible for the entertainment.

A number of other items were brought forth for discussion by Mrs. Vanclief and two in particular were in preparation for the Picton Fair. Branches were requested to help sell the church histories.

Mrs. C. McPaul was speaker for the program dealing with Consumers Affairs and reported on research on various products on the market, naming best brands and so on. She noted also the slowness of putting some passed bills into action — two years in some cases. She cited cases of remarkable differences in some drug prices. She displayed a variety of paper products which are on today's market, even to doctor's paper examination gowns and caps and in some cases paper swabs, sheets and pillow cases, some of which can be washed.

Mrs. McPaul conducted a contest with points for certain articles in one's purse. This was most interesting and was won by Mrs. W. Gaten.

Thanks was expressed by the president after which lunch was served.

Horticultural Society Leads in Church Service

STIRLING — Stirling Horticultural Society held a church service on Sunday in honor of the 75th anniversary at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling. The pastor, Rev. John A. May conducted the service and paid special tribute to the various depts. of work in this organization. The hymns were centred around the beauty of flowers and gardens.

The president, Mrs. Floyd Armstrong and her group of members were seated together in the church and each wore a flower corsage in honor of the occasion.

The past history of the Stirling Horticultural Society was given, dating back to 1867 when the first project, the Victoria Park Site, was purchased.

The Horticultural Society are presently in charge of all three parks. They maintain and plant hundreds of annual seedlings each year and they also remember the sick and bereaved with greeting cards.

The bus convener, Mrs. Carman Nix has arranged several bus tours for the group. One tour will take members to Rockton, for the African Lions Safari and Game Farm. Another tour is scheduled for the Canadian National Exhibition and also the Ontario Plowing Match which will be held later this month near Stratford.

At the recent Stirling Agricultural Fair, the Horticultural Society sponsored 30 classes of flowers open to all exhibitors and 20 classes of specials open to the members only. There were four classes for children's entries.

The next meeting of the Horticultural Society will be held on Monday afternoon, September 18 in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Does Grandma enjoy being a 'spoiler'?

NO, Grandmother knows what it can mean to a child to spoil him. If she does go a bit overboard not spoiling her grandson, however, she is not trying to undermine the authority of the boy's parents. She may be thinking of her children at that age, and remembering their wonderful spontaneity. Grandmother may want to encourage that spirit in her grandson, because she may believe she nurtured it in her children.

Would a he-man husband keep house?

CERTAINLY if his wife has a job she would rather not give up and the husband has one he can't wait to get home from, he would very well keep house without losing one whit of his masculinity. Indeed, running today's home with all its appliances frequently requires more mechanical skill and brain than an office or factory job. Keeping house, too, would help a husband maintain his traditional role of physically supporting his family.

Can a criticism be made graciously?

YES, if the individual criticizing someone else is gracious himself. Say the critic wants to correct a habitually mispronounced word. First he will imagine how it would be if someone were to criticize him in the same situation. Then if he still believes he would like to make his criticism, he should do so; he knows if he puts himself in the other person's shoes, he cannot be anything but gracious.

Olympic Crowd Boos U. S. 'Disrespect'

MUNICH (CP) — Two United States athletes were booed at the Olympic Stadium Thursday by a West German crowd that thought they had shown disrespect for the American flag. The athletes said it was all a mistake.

The incident occurred when Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett came to the podium to accept their gold and silver medals for a 1-2 finish in the men's 400 metres.

As the U.S. national anthem was played, Collett stepped up to join Matthews on the top platform, reserved for the winner. Both stood sideways to the flag, Matthews with his arms folded and Collett with his hands on his hips.

The booing started as the...

Guilty Parties Banned for Future

BULLETIN

MUNICH (AP) — The International Olympic Committee executive board today banned the United States stars Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett from all future Olympic competition—including the 4-X-400-metre relay Sunday—because of their behavior on the victory stand.

An IOC spokesman said a letter about Matthews and Collett has been sent to Clifford Buck, the U.S. chief of mission, telling him of the banning following the incident Thursday.

The spokesman said: "The IOC has expressed to Mr. Buck its displeasure and disgust at the demonstration by the American athletes after the 400 metres final.

Matthews won the gold medal and Collett was second. On the victory stand they did not stand to attention during the playing of the American anthem. The crowd whistled and jeered. Matthews later said they did not intend to be disrespectful, as the athletes left the stand. When Collett reappeared briefly to pick up his sweatsuit, it resumed. He raised his right fist in the black power salute as he left the field.

"People are trying to make something out of nothing," said Matthews.

"The reason Collett came for the standwith me was not a protest," he said. "We consider ourselves the best sprinters in the world—Collett, John Smith, Lee Evans and myself.

"On the right day and in the right lane any of us can win. Collett stepped up to show we are a team."

And the black power salute? Matthews said Collett was simply greeting friends in the stands.

"If you were in the Village at all, you would see everything the sign 'each other,' the same as other people say 'hi.'"

Savard Used To Sidelines

SERGE SAVARD

By IAN MacLADINE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pain is synonymous with Serge Savard.

The young Montreal Canadiens defenceman missed most of the last two National Hockey League seasons recuperating from a broken leg.

But this year had to be different.

Twelve hours before Team Canada embarked Thursday for Vancouver and tonight's fourth game in the Canada-Russia $3-million series, Savard was overly optimistic about his fitness.

He'd played in only 40 games in two seasons because of the two breaks on the same right leg. Then with the leg almost 100 per cent, along came the chance to perform for Team Canada.

Savard missed the first game, but in the coming two emerged as one of the Canadian team's more consistent performers, a surprising situation in view of his incapacitation.

"It's the leg coming along real good in camp," the 6-foot-2, 200-pounder said Wednesday night after the 4-4 tie with the Soviets. "Two more weeks and it'll be 100 per cent for the series overseas."

After tonight's game, to be carried nationally on the CBC network starting at 5 p.m. PDT (8 p.m. EDT), the series moves to Moscow for games Sept. 22, 24, 26 and 28.

"I don't think I'm in shape just yet, but what can you expect? I've only played 40 games in the last two seasons."

As Team Canada worked out Thursday morning, Savard stopped a team-mate's shot with his right ankle, just below the previous breaks, and on the trip to Vancouver had to have the injury attended to by physiotherapist Karl Kilely.

Although he was among 21 names coach Harry Sinden said probably would be in the lineup tonight (Sinden admitted he'd been in out two by game time) it was apparent Savard was suffering considerable discomfort.

Shortly after the players booked into their rooms Sinden announced that Savard would not dress, leaving Team Canada with five defencemen, the same number that played in Russia's 7-3 win in the first game at Montreal.

Sinden also juggled his forward lines, dressing Dennis Hull, Bill Goldsworthy and Gilbert Perreault, who haven't been action in the first three games.

Goldsworthy is slated for right wing with Hull on the left side and Phil Esposito at centre. Perreault is teamed with left winger Frank Mahovlich and right winger Yvan Cournoyer.

The fourth line sees New York Rangers linemates Vic Hadfield and Rod Gilbert flanking Peter Mahovlich of Montreal.

Minnesota Offers Million

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota North Stars' President Walter Bush has offered the Russian government $1 million for the services of hockey player Valery Kharlamov, a Minneapolis television station reported Thursday night.

Bush told KSTP-TV in an interview he made the offer to Russia's third-ranking hockey official Wednesday in Winnipeg before the Russian game with Team Canada, which ended in a 4-4 deadlock.

"In behalf of the North Stars, I have made a firm offer to Russian officials," Bush said.

He said one of the main reasons for his trip to Winnipeg was the attempt to secure the services of Kharlamov for his National Hockey League club.

Bush said he would accompany the Canadian and Russian teams to Vancouver for tonight's game in the continuing effort to complete the deal, and said if necessary he would follow the teams to Europe.

After watching Kharlamov score two goals in the Russians' 7-3 rout over Team Canada Saturday night in Montreal, Harold Ballard, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, said he would pay $1 million for the 22-year-old star.

Yanks in Danger of Missing Golden Sprint

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

MUNICH (CP) — It would be thought much of it the last time the United States came away from an Olympic Games without a sprint gold medal. It happened in 1908, before they allowed the first woman in lace on a track shoe and before Jesse Owens had even been born.

American men and women collected five of the six available golds available, in the 100 and 200 metres and the sprint relay, in each of the last two Olympics. In the current Games, with only the relays left, they have yet to pack up their first.

They might have beaten Valery Borzov in the men's 100 if their runners had made it to the track in time for their heats, although nobody missed roll call when the Russian won the 200.

But the decline of the American sprinter was most convincingly shown Thursday when Renate Stecher of East Germany completed her double in the women's 200.

There was a U.S. uniform in sight. No American girl was able to reach the final.

With Monica Zehrt's victory in the 800, the East German girls had proved themselves the fastest at any distance up to once around the track. The Russians took over at 1,500 metres, winning both semi-finals, one of them in world record time.

Russia was the big winner Thursday, taking four of the first-place golds.

Anatoly Bondarchuk won the hammer throw; Nadezhda Chizhova took the shot; Yevgeny Lamekin the equestrian team won dressage and Russia's rifle team event, the Russian women's team also won the gold medal in volleyball.

The other golds Thursday went to the U.S. in the men's 110-metre hurdles and 400 metre dash, and the Germans, when Hennie Kuiper took the individual road race.

The win was especially great, flying for Kuiper as the bronze he won earlier had been taken away because one of his team members had taken a drug which was banned by the International Olympic Committee.

In the unofficial point standings, based on the traditional 10-5-4-3-2-1 systems for the first six finishers, the U.S. remained on top with 389 points.

Russia is second with 348 and E. Germany has 432½. Canada is in 19th place with 32 points.

Canada's best showing Thursday was in dressage of the equestrian event.

The team finished ninth behind winner Russia. Christine Ivanson of Sharon, Ont., was eighth in the individual and became the first Canadian rider to take a place in the top 12 for the individual dressage final.

Canadian canoeists also faired well as three were good enough in second-chance repechages in advance to the semi-finals and two others won automatic berths when an adequate number of teams did not show to run races.

Canada's hopes of a medal in track and field practically vanished when Glenda Reiser of Ottawa finished fifth in a semi-final heat of the women's 1,500 metre run.

The 17-year-old Grade 12 student, who raced in the same company as world-champion Ludmila Bragina of Russia in the preliminaries and was second, was boxed in early and pushed outside later.

"You must remember she is only a 17-year-old girl and now she knows what this is all about," said her coach, Dan Skeen of Vancouver."

"I'm amazed how tough she is and competitively she's now been through some pretty good knocks."

Don Jackson of Lindsay, Ont., was giving Canada more than a good shot at a medal in archery, a new event for the Olympics.

After 72 arrows, he is in second place behind John Williams of the United States, the world champion.

The basketball final was decided Thursday as the U.S. walloped Italy 68-38 and Russia downed Cuba 67-61.

The two winning teams meet Saturday to decide the gold and silver medals.

Ashe Supplants Top Open Seed

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Arthur Ashe, the 1968 U.S. Open tennis champion, has the inside track on another title this year and he's giving part of the credit to Pancho Gonzales, a winner more than 20 years ago.

After his showdown with top-seeded defending champ Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., Thursday, Ashe said Gonzales helped him prepare for the match.

"I was out practicing my serve Wednesday and Pancho told me a few things I needed to work on," Ashe explained. "He told me I needed to work on my forehand."

Ashe worked on his forehand and put it to good use, but it was his blazing backhand and return of service that carried him past Smith, the Wimbledon titleholder, 7-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Today, a rematch between two of the world's top women is scheduled. Billie Jean King, last year's women's singles winner and top seeded, and Margaret Court, who's won the title five times, will be meeting for the second time in two weeks. The last time, Mrs. Court, seeded fifth, was the winner. The other women's semi-final matches Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. against Kerry Melville of Australia.

Ashe will face Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex. in a semifinal Saturday. Richey beat Pvee McMillan of South Africa 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

Lieutenant Ilie Nastase, seeded fourth, beat the last Australian remaining in men's singles, Fred Stolle, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Lawyers Face Off

CHICAGO (AP) — The muddy rooming legal war in professional hockey intensified Thursday as two clubs of the newly-organized World Hockey Association filed suit in Federal court charging the National Hockey League with monopoly.

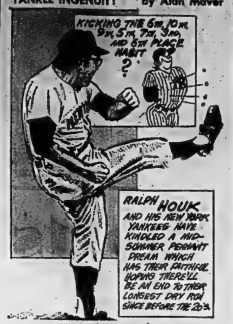
The WHA's Winnipeg Jets and Chicago Cougars asked the court to nullify the NHL's standard player contract, asserting it "perpetually binds the player to play for the NHL team to whom he has been allocated or'ted play at all."

The action was the latest development in a court hassle already embroiling Bobby Hull, former Chicago Black Hawk superstar, who jumped to the WHA's Jets and the Black Hawks, who claim Hull has violated his Hawk contract.

Currently, the Black Hawks have Hull under court restraint until Sept. 15 from attending the Jet training camp or "representing himself as anything other than a Chicago Black Hawk player."

Reserve Clause Threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee approved legislation Thursday which would allow the merger of the National Basketball Association with the American Basketball Association.



A key amendment tacked on to the bill introduced in the Senate more than a year ago, would virtually eliminate the controversial reserve clause for professional basketball. This amendment would permit drafted players to be signed only for two years. After that point a player would become a free agent, able to negotiate on his own with any team.

This amendment could open the door to similar legislation affecting other professional sports, a subcommittee staff member said.

The subcommittee added one amendment which applies to all major sports. It calls for the end to television blackouts in the home area of bowl and "unsched uled playoff games" which are sold out.

A spokesman for the subcommittee said this provision would affect regularly scheduled playoff games, such as pro football's Super Bowl. He said, for example, that it would apply to playoffs involving two teams which were tied at the end of a regular season.

Herron Helps Slaughter Lions

WINNIPEG (CP) — British Columbia Lions' coach Eagle Keys said before Thursday's clash with Winnipeg Blue Bombers he was highly impressed with the performance of Winnipeg running back Mack Herron.

The five-foot-five, 170-pound back gave the Lions' head man more reason to be impressed Thursday night, combining with running mate Ed Williams to lead Winnipeg to a 42-7 thrashing of B.C. in a Western Football Conference game.

Herron scored two touchdowns, gaining his Canadian Football League-leading total to 12, and Williams picked up three majors in sparking the Winnipeg club back into a tie for first place in the WFC with Edmonton Eskimos, both with 10 points.

"You either can't see him, or he's running over top of you," Keys said. "On one play he's a hurdler, leaping over tacklers. Then he's running under their armpits. And he's shown he can run right over people, if necessary."

Herron did a lo of those things Thursday night, carrying the ball 20 times for 169 yards and catching four passes for 70 more. The second-year Bomber now has 791 yards rushing, more than 300 in front of his nearest rival.

But it was Williams who lit the fire under the powerful Winnipeg offence before 23,210 fans.

Boston Taking Turn at Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Never before has one team owned so much to so many Sox.

In Boston, the Red Sox trounced New York Yankees 19-4 Thursday night and moved into first place in the topsy-turvy American League East for the first time all season.

In Chicago, the White Sox whipped Oakland Athletics 6-0 and remained within half-a-game distance in the West Division three games behind the Athletics.

Elsewhere, Baltimore Orioles crushed Detroit Tigers 9-4, Minnesota Twins blanked Texas Rangers 4-0, Kansas City Royals stopped California Angels 4-3, 6 and Milwaukee Brewers whipped Oakland Athletics 6-0 and remained within hailing distance in the West Division three games behind the Athletics.

"It doesn't surprise me that we're in first place," said Boston Manager Eddie Kasko. "I felt that my team with a hot streak would get into first place the way the division stands."

The Red Sox have won three in a row and 11 of 13 and had their fans chanting "We're Number One" in the ninth inning while the scoreboard showed Baltimore walloping Detroit.

"I heard the fans yelling," said pitcher Sonny Siebert, who hit one of Boston's three home runs, "but I wasn't watching the scoreboard and I didn't make the connection."

Neither was Tommy Harper, who, along with Rico Petrocelli, tagged a three-run homer.

The Red Sox didn't have much to worry about after Harper homered in the second inning and Siebert and Petrocelli connected in the sixth. They lead Detroit by one-half game, with Baltimore 1½ out and New York two back.

Baltimore erupted for four runs in the opening frame and three more in the second.

Detroit manager Billy Martin pulled relief ace Fred Scherman out of the bullpen for his third major league start but quickly yanked him after the Orioles opened with singles by Bobby Grich and Paul Blair and a two-run double by Tommy Davis.

Brooks Robinson and Blair later added two-run triples in support of Mike Cuellar's four-hit pitching.

Baltimore's Earl Weaver, in an attempt to rally his troops, had predicted that the Orioles could win their last 23 games.

The White Sox used an old formula to beat Oakland—Bibby Wood pitched a seven-hitter for his 20th victory and Dick Allen drove in four runs with his 33rd homer and a sacrifice fly.

"This one put us back in the

Bateman Reporting Bleep

"Let's go, let's go," said catcher John Bateman of Philadelphia Phillies.

"Don't tell me what to do," said umpire Shag Crawford.

"I'm not telling you what to do," said Bateman.

"Bleep you," said Crawford.

And that little "bleep" will get Crawford into hot water with the National League front office, according to Bateman.

The catcher says he's reporting the umpire for using abusive language during Thursday night's 2-1 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Bateman said that he objected to the plate umpire's call on a pitch thrown by Steve Carlton. Bateman insisted it was a strike, not a ball as called by Crawford.

The Bateman-Crawford confrontation couldn't ruffle the steady Carlton, who posted his 23rd victory. "I'm still shooting for 25," said Carlton, shrugging off a reporter's suggestion that he had a crack at a 30-game-winning season with the lowly Phillies. "I don't want to get greedy."

Carlton wound up with nine strikeouts that boosted his league-leading mark to 272 and erased Jim Bunning's former Philadelphia record of 268. The victory, not incidentally, was the 100th of Carlton's career.

Chuvalo Draws Better Than Belleville Knows

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Canadian heavyweight boxing champion George Chuvalo was probably a bigger Belleville hit Thursday than Jim Beets realized.

Chuvalo, Canadian champ since 1958, drew over 300 people to the official opening of the Quinte Athletic Club. Only 48 hours earlier, he had recorded his final professional win before a not much larger crowd in Port - au - Prince, Haiti.

"It was unbelievable; these guys who were promoting the fight spent all their money before they made it and didn't do any advertising to speak of," Chuvalo told members of the Athletic Club mercantile before helping stage their open house at the former Royal Canadian Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street.

"They kept saying:- 'The general will get all the soldiers out to the fight' - about 15,000 of them. The gate was $334. And I saw a soldier give a kid a rifle butt in the face for trying to sneak into one of the dollar seats!"

It's that type of experience — the unexpected, the exciting, the downright funny — that has helped keep George Chuvalo in boxing since he wandered into a Toronto church hall and put on a pair of gloves at the age of ten.

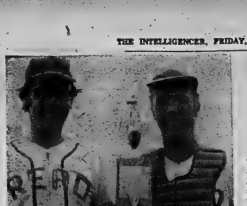
Fortunately for Chuvalo, his wife and five children, most of his 98 pro bouts have been better attended than a Tuesday's two-round knockout of Charlie Buston.

There were the fights, with world champions Muhammad Ali, Joe Frazier, and Floyd Patterson, and other big boxing names like Jimmy Ellis, Ernie Terrell and Buster Mathis.

GEORGE CHUVALO

for an inspection of the new Athletic Club quarters next door in the former Legion Hall.

There may have been some disappointment over the fact that his fight 48 hours previously precluded any demonstrations by the champion, but he proved a popular autograph - signer, picture - poser, and competent question answerer at a cocktail and doughnut party put on by the Legion at their new hall after the inspection of the Athletic Club quarters.



Also on hand for the event were Ted Branton and Ernie Belanger of the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund, whose sponsorship gave the QAC its financial impetus; Legion president Harold Vanghan and Alderman Arthur Keegan, representing the city.

Applications for membership in the club, which should open its doors within a week, were grabbed up as fast as the executive could find them, with all 100 printed being taken. Boys aged 5-20 will be a $1 monthly membership after their $1 initiation fee, with men's memberships going for $36 a year.

There heavy bags and one speed bag, floor mats, weights and an assortment of exercise equipment were on display last night, with other equipment, including a sauna bath, scheduled for the future.

Club president Harry Bennett indicated his hope that the club, primarily fitness-oriented, would eventually open its doors to women.

Future plans also call for boxing instruction and exhibitions by hockey, judo and weightlifting groups.

Read captain Carm Milligan and player - coach Gerry Brennan had good reason to smile as their team captured the South Hastings Baseball League championship 11-1 Thursday night. Read dumped Melrose 11-4 to win the series 4-1 after eliminating Plano's Concrete in the semi-finals. They had finished in third place during the regular season, lower than both playoff opponents they faced.

Hotelmen Reverse Rollins

Perseverance finally paid off for Quinte Hotel Thursday night during this season the Hitchmen had faced Rollins Construction, compiling a dismal 2-8 record against the Commercial Softball League powers.

Quinte took advantage of what could have been their last chance this year to record a 4-0 Thursday night win over Rollins. A loss by the Hotelmen would have forced them out of the elimination finals after Rollins had grabbed a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Scott Reid, who had been victimized for all eight previous losses, got some measure of revenge. The Quinte pitcher was fired a four-hit shutout, walking a single batter and firing third strikes past nine.

Ken Delville was tagged for the loss, giving up seven hits but no walks. He struck out six.

Reid scored what proved to be the winning run when he singled in the third and came home on Larry Mavety's double. The 1-0 margin held up until the sixth when consecutive singles by Reid, Mavety and Elden Grey helped key a three-run Quinte rally.

Mavety batted twice with bases and a single in three trips to the plate and turned in a strong defensive effort at second and base. Reid added two singles to the attack, followed by Wayne Woods with a pair and Grey with one.

Carl Boomhower singled twice for the losers.

Devolin Motors squared off by series with Howard and Robert Printing on the strength of a 3-1 Thursday win.

Jamie Hunter's three-hitter limited Howard to seven runs of the way. The losers' only run came in the sixth inning when Larry Potter tripled and scored on a single by Dwight Hunter. The Devolin pitcher struck out six batters and walked two.

The loss went to Bob Swan who allowed seven hits, no walks and struck out four batters.

The eventual winning run came in the third inning when Ken Mahler singled and rode home on Mary Stacey's sacrifice fly.

Mahler had a single, double and triple for the winners, while Rick Pembroke singled and played an outstanding game at shortstop. Other Motormen hitters included Jim Harwood, Mike Cook and Hunter.

Read Killed Pair of Giants

By ERIC EMERSON
Sport Staff

Read was the third-best team in the South Hastings Baseball League this season, but don't try to tell that to numbers one and two.

After knocking off the pennant winners from Plano's Concrete in the semi-finals, Read crushed the runners-up from Melrose 11-4 Thursday night to win the South Hastings League championship. They disposed of Melrose 4-1 in the final series.

"I think our bench had as much to do with it (the championship) as anything," said Read player - coach Gerry Brennan. "We've got guys who haven't played in the entire series, but they keep coming out and yelling the same as if they were playing . . . great team spirit."

Larry Coffey, who, along with Frank Farrell formed the Read pitching staff this year, hurled the final win over Melrose. "My stuff wasn't really working very well. They were hitting the ball hard, but they were hitting it at someone," explained the slender right-hander. "I went to my fastball more when it started to get shaky."

Coffey allowed only five hits in the 11-4 win. He struck out five and did not walk a batter during the course of the six-inning contest. Singles by Bruce Pascoe, Scott McLaren and Wayne Harrison in the second sparked a Melrose rally that cut Read's lead to 4-3 after two innings and Rick Meagher took Coffey over the centre field fence an inning later to tie the score at 4-4 tie.

Read bounced back to grab the lead in the fifth frame when a walk, two errors and Coffey's double jumped them into a 7-4 lead. They added four more runs in their final at-bat.

The South Hastings champions featured an eight-hit attack against Randy Pascoe, John Pepper and Ted Adams on the Melrose mound. The losing hurlers struck out four batters each in the same number.

Coffey paced Read at the plate with a single and two doubles, while Brennan crashed a three-run homer that pushed his team into an early 7-0 lead. Their other hits went to Peter Enright, Steve White, Paul Hanley and Bert Storey.

It was Read's first championship since 1963. They accomplished the feat despite losing five players to Melrose who made it to the league finals in their first year.

It was a two-man job stopping CNR, but Ken Osborne and Sonny Holoway managed it Thursday night.

Osborne carried an 8-4 lead into the final inning before giving way to Holoway for the final out to preserve an 8-5 win over the Trainmen and even the best-of-seven Industrial Softball League series at 1-1.

The starting Mead's harder gave up nine hits and five walks, while striking out three batters. Holoway added another strikeout, Percy Smith won the ball game for CNR, allowing 10 hits, walking three and nipping five on strikes.

Mead's Jim Hughes was winners with a triple and single while Wayne Starmer added two singles and Mark Reid a triple. Mike Fahey was tops for CN with two doubles, while Milt Bell and Perry Soule rapped one apiece.

United Doubles Cup Chances

Belleville United doubled their chances for a Cup win in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association play this season by edging CFB Trenton 2-1 Thursday.

The win by United, coupled with Whitby Travelers' 4 - 3 decision over Batawa, advances the two teams into the finals of the Trenton Challenge Cup round. United has already qualified to meet CFB Trenton for the Belleville Charity Cup.

First-half goals by Chris Johnson and Mario Collavigh offset a tally by Ray Hare of the air base to give United their win last night. Playing-coach Jim Bryce and centre-half Sandy Duchart gave strong performances for the winners.

Three goals by Henry Sonneveld and a single tally by Terry Blight helped offset Ted Adam's hat trick in the final 10 minutes as the Travellers eliminated Batu Braves.

U.S. Ship Subsidy Is Feared

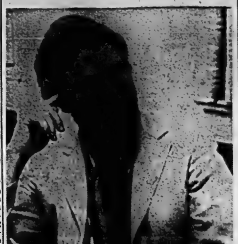
OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian shipping firms want government action to counter the effect of United States subsidies to American companies competing for Canada-U.S. trade on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway.

The Dominion Marine Association, representing Canadian inland shipping companies, has informed the government that the U.S. move to subsidize operations of American shipping firms "threatens to knock" a previously the competitive position of Canadian vessels in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway."

The DMA has asked the government to demand withdrawal of the U.S. operating subsidy.

The Canadian transport commission has responded by asking Ottawa consultant E. J. Darling to study the situation and report next month. Mr. Darling, a former commission member, submitted a report to the government in May, 1971, recommending that the Canadian coastal trade should be reserved for Canadian-flag vessels.

The commission views the U.S. subsidy problem as a "cloud on our horizon" that must be examined in case it becomes too substantial to ignore serious, a commission spokesman said.



At present, the Canadian shipping companies transport about 85 per cent of international cargo on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system.

The average age of the U.S.-flag bulk carrier Lakes fleet was 45 years in 1969 compared with 26 years for the Canadian fleet.

This more modern, efficient Canadian fleet has succeeded in outbidding American firms for traffic between the U.S. and Canada. A large factor in the Canadian success has been lower wages paid to Canadian sailors.

The Canadian fleet has some built-in advantages. It can transport grain from Thunder Bay, Ont., downstream to St. Lawrence River ports or Halifax and return with iron ore for Canadian and U.S. cities on the Great Lakes.

The heavy grain traffic from one Canadian city to another is exclusively in the hands of Canadian shipping companies. Coupled with iron ore traffic on the return journey, this ensures that Canadian ships always are full.

Winnipeg Family Is Host to Whale

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Gillis family of Winnipeg had a whale of a story to tell Thursday.

A 750-pound beluga whale was splashing about in the family's backyard pool where it was being kept on an unexpected stop-over from the Hudson Bay port of Churchill to a marine home near Cleveland, Ohio.

"I thought someone was putting me on when they called about 1 a.m. and asked to put a whale in our backyard pool," said Juliette Gillis.

The whale, named Too Too, and two mates were in a tank in Churchill after being captured in Hudson Bay by a whaling expedition from the Sea World of Ohio when a polar bear broke in last Saturday and killed the other two whales.

Poor flying conditions at Winnipeg delayed Too Too's trip to Cleveland, and marine biologists sought a pool for the whale's comfort during the stopover. She was being transported in a special crate filled with water and lined with rubber.

Dr. Robert Temple, a marine biologist from Sea World, watched over the two-year-old female in the pool most of last night.

"These surroundings are strange to her. There's a possibility she could spook and hurt herself," he said.

The beluga whale, also known as a white whale although of light-grey coloring, resumed its journey later.

Motorcyclists Now Make Toys

MONTREAL (CP) — The difference between spending one's time as a member of a motorcycle club and providing children's toys may seem a large one but members of Les Dead Men have made the transition successfully.

Two years ago Les Dead Men was the name of a motorcycle club regularly running afoul of the police. Today Les Dead Men make children's educational toys in a church basement and are on the verge of opening a boutique to sell their products.

Pierre Lalande, 23-year-old vice-president of Les Dead Men, explains that the club members were tired of stints in jail and with hunting for welfare each time they lost the odd jobs they managed to find.

"We kept losing jobs or we were turned away for those who didn't like our long hair.

or our clothes.

"It was then told there is a big market for educational toys in Canada and since most of us are pretty good at making things with our hands, it seemed a natural thing for us to do," he said at an exhibition displaying toys produced by the group.

They visited hospitals and nurseries to see what kind of toys were needed and a local priest gave them the basement of his church for a workshop.

A trust company helped the group buy a building in the Old Montreal section of the city and the federal government provided a $75,000 Local Initiatives Program grant.

The former club members, now a co-operative, have produced wooden trucks, blocks and xylophones as well as their own inventions, such as an old-fashioned toy telephone which accepts coins and a wooden puzzle based on a map of Canada.

Co-op Won't Pay Award to Union

TORONTO (CP) — A retail union has asked the Ontario Labor Relations Board to file with the Supreme Court of Ontario an award of about $20,000 to six employees of San Parlor Greenhouse (Grocery) Co-operative Ltd., of Leamington, Ont., who had been fired during a drive to organize a union.

The board found the co-operative's action in violation of the Ontario Labor Relations Act but the "Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America says the farmer-owned co-operative has refused to pay the $20,000 in compensation set by the board.

An award by the board filed with the Supreme Court becomes a court order.

All but one of the employees have been rehired.

Coon Dogs to Compete

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Charlie the Coon is in for a busy weekend as the seventh annual Canadian autumn International open coon dog trials get underway here Saturday.

The first event is the water races where Charlie, a raccoon owned by Allen J. Gamble, vice-president of the sponsoring Grey-Bruce Nite Hunters Association, is loosed across a lake in a cage mounted on a raft.

Dogs are let loose from a starting gate in several heats of four dogs each and are expected to swim after Charlie. The raccoon is hoisted on to a pole on the other side of the water and the first dog to bark up the pole is the winner.

At 4 p.m., a treeing contest will be held for trophies for the best treeing male and the best treeing female. The winning dogs are those who bark the most times per minute.

At 8:30 p.m., the night hunt begins with the dog which bests out, runs and trees the most raccoons in the shortest time period being declared the winner.

Vance Challenges Wann

The Quinte Exhibition Raceway's hottest driver will be facing the Quinte Raceway's hottest pacer in the opening race of Saturday night's card.

Al Vance, who picked up two wins and a pair of thirds in last Saturday's meet will be reining Jimmy Command against Campbell Wannamaker's Meadow Dale Wann in the first race. The three-year old gelding, driven and trained by Murray Dale, has won his only two lifetime starts on the Belleville track.

Officials are hoping that attendance will rebound from the 3E6 mark of last week. A figure that was undoubtedly affected by competition from the first game of the Canada - Russia hockey series.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): For millions this is a lucky day. Any plans you worked out ahead of time make it a scrapped because of current de velopments.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): There should be all the backing of odds and ends you can tend along with the details of your personal life management.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Bring your notebook, for by the end of the day's exploration you'll have enough ideas for a month's planning.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Where there are expectations on both sides of an issue, know the balance along is rating back and forth for a while longer.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Conditions tend to divert your drive from expected pathways. Stick with what remains feasible in your planned schedule.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Realize that your expectations may be stiff as others see them; make graceful adjustment. Gather reserves for possible use.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emotion continues to the your views of any issue. Your friend and rivals alike make use of any impulsive move you may make.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Turbulence in your environment arises from the doings of people and forces beyond your control. Seek inner security.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Agonize, or less pressured, routine Saturday should be your lot. There's no point in impatience results in lack of progress.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Winding up neglected details may be more important than trying to start a major project. Notes will be interesting lifter.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let well enough alone. Realize when your advice has not been asked. and when it is falling on inattentive ears.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): If the idea gives you a practical short cut, it might work. Give yourself a break, contemplate your progress thus far.

E. Coli Is Needed But Causes Grief

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write about a kidney infection called "E.coli." Why does one get this infection so often, and what causes it and how can one control it?—V.B.

E. coli is a bacterium—short for Escherichia coli.

This is a good and useful form of bacteria as long as it stays where it belongs. But it can cause a good deal of mischief if it gets in the wrong place.

E. coli is the urinary tract primarily affects women because of their anatomy—the can get to sleep. I may have trusted my feet in 1918 when I drove a livery barn team, and again people in 1936.—E.S.

You may well have damaged the circulation when your feet were frostbitten; the symptoms don't sound at all like gout. Have your doctor check you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am taking cortisone for arthritis. I've been told by several people that cortisone has an after-effect such as hair falling out, swelling of the limbs, and acne which have to have skin grafts to heal, etc. Is there anything in these tales?—L.L.

It's not "after-effects." It's side effects." While your several people" are not very accurate in the side effects they cite, it is true that cortisone has a few good, and bad, judgment.

If side effects begin to develop then it's time to stop or reduce the cortisone. That's your doctor's responsibility, and I suggest that you trust his judgment. The "side effects" usually disappear with reduced dosage or discontinuance of the medication.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had surgery a few months ago for cancer of the cervix, and my husband keeps remarking that I'm losing my mind because of it and that I'm ruined sexually. I can't tell any difference, and myself on either item, although I have heard that women after hysterectomy do lose their mind. Which I don't believe.—L.L.

And you shouldn't believe R. Your husband ought to know better than to believe the things he's telling you, because they aren't true.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X E
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	2♦
2♠	Pass	3♦	Pass
3♥	Pass	4♠	Pass

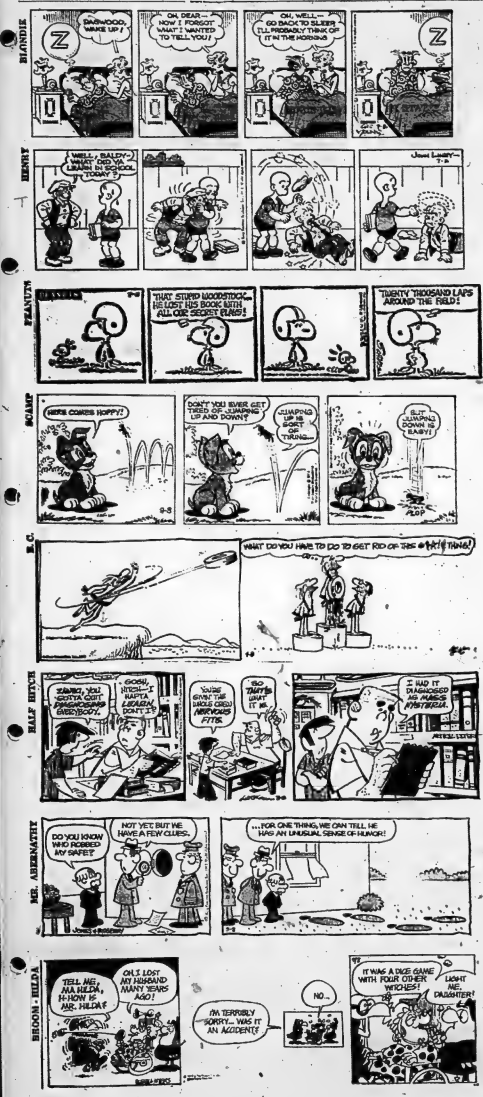
Opening lead — ace of hearts.

Chima finished fifth in the Olympiad and hence did not qualify for the semifinal round, but its team had the satisfaction of having met and vanquished all four countries — Italy, United States, Canada and France — that made it to the semifinal round.

They beat the Dallas Aces by 12 imps despite this hand where the Chinese could have gained 12 international match points instead of losing 4.

Wish it Hang and M. Tal North-South for the Chinese team — who used the Precision Club system throughout— the bidding went as shown. West led the ace of hearts and shifted to a club.

Tal realized that there was a danger of losing a heart, a club and two trump tricks (if West, for example, held the A-J-3 of trumps). So, in an effort to effect a second trump loser, he went up with the ace of clubs, cashed the diamond ace, discarding a club, and continued with the queen.



When East covered with the king, Tal ruffed, entered dummy with a heart, and discarded his last club on the jack of diamonds. At this juncture matters took a severe turn for the worse. West ruffed with the nine and played a heart which was trumped in dummy with the deuce and overtrumped by East with the six.

A diamond return was ruffed by declarer with the queen and overruffed by the ace. When West now played a fourth round of hearts, East scored his jack of trumps to put the contract down two. The effect of Tal's method of play was that, instead of meeting his goal of saving one trump trick, he wound up losing four!

Had Tal known that the trumps were divided 3-2, he could have made the contract by tackling them right away.

Tomorrow: Canada vs. Britain.

Swing Ridings Get Emphasis Of Stanfield

OTTAWA (CP) — After a week and a half of nationwide campaigning for the Oct. 30 federal election, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield plans to zero in on the 50-plus "swing" ridings the party now thinks could make him prime minister.

Whether this emphasis change will be perceptible in such phrases as Mr. Stanfield's campaign itinerary is doubtful. Any strategist can put it Thursday, the issue that conceivably could win the party an extra seat in Ontario might well be stressed at a campaign meeting in Victoria.

But what has been dubbed Phase Two of Mr. Stanfield's campaign, after a national tour made in the first 14½ weeks of his federal electioneering, started Party sources say there is a substantial clutch of such people who could enhance the party's chances, and an early Stanfield tour stressing that Conservatives can form the country's government could influence their decisions.

Organizers say they are still working out final details of the Stanfield itinerary, although it is designed to cover all 10 provinces and perhaps one of the northern territories in the first 10 - 12 days. He starts off with his own convention meeting in Halifax next Tuesday.

And the second stage apparently is fleshed out to a certain extent. Strategists say that the basic style and format of Phase Two are set and that it does not depend on whether the first phase is considered a success or otherwise.

Besides the campaign by the national leader, organizers have worked up a media saturation program expected to cost about $1.3 million for TV, radio and print ads. The total federal national campaign budget is $3.8 million.

When they will start their radio, TV and print advertising blitz is being kept secret by the organizers. Liberal strategists have said they will start this weekend.

There also is a campaign song, although it is designed as a single record which just might be a hit on the country charts without any campaign connection.

Since it makes no reference to the Conservatives by any political party name, it has been cleared by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission as a non-political item.

As one party campaign manager explained, it might be interesting to find out whether radio stations will play it on merit although Conservative promotional broadcast material will make no mention of who it will be identified with us."

Liberal sources say a similar project is completed in their camp.

Election Cost $1.30 A Voter

OTTAWA (CP) — The Oct. 30 federal election will cost the taxpayer $1.30 for each of the eligible 13 million voters, with a big chunk of the total going to workers appointed by political parties.

But because of the pressures of urgency—there's only about two months between the election call and voting date today—patronage appointments are the only practical way to man he electoral machine.

The foundation of favor starts with the cabinet which appoints the 264 returning officers, one for each riding. Returning officers hold their position, permanently, unless they are paid only at election time or have called to their side for between-election training courses.

Paid according to the number of eligible voters in the riding, they are guaranteed a minimum of $1,800. In the country's most populous constituency—Toronto-York-Scarborough with more than 80,000 voters—Returning Officer Rosemary Clark should earn about $4,000 for her eight weeks work.

In the typically rural riding of Brandon-Souris, with about 36,000 eligible voters, Returning Officer Alfred Wood stands to gain about $2,400.In addition, the returning officer is paid office and travel expenses.

Names presented to the cabinet for appointment are usually submitted by a single cabinet minister or by the party's organization in the riding concerned. But the cabinet can reject and in one recent case a returning officer was appointed against upon the recommendation of an opposition MP.

Jerry Yanover, the cabinet's assistant responsible for preliminary investigation of nominees for such appointments, said Thursday that the government tries to avoid obvious partisanship.

The returning officer's function demanded the respect of all parties and so the government, in making its appointments in making its appointments, usually 140 appointments since 1968, is looked for "good, solid citizens."

Of the 264 such citizens, only 33 are women.

Mr. Yanover said the present government is working for a better balance of male and female returning officers but the record shows only six more women in the position than there were in 1968.

A major qualification of returning officers is that they are able to devote full-time effort to their duties during the election preparation. That's why most are self-employed professionals, businessmen or housewives.

Returning officer are prohibited from active politics in addition to being barred from voting. Deputy returning officers, appointed by the returning officer to supervise the actual casting of ballots and the polling stations. The deputies get $28 for the single day they work and they in turn appoint poll clerks who get $22.

The enumerators who collect the names of voters for preparation of door-to-door transits are picked by the party in the first and second in the previous election.

Organized in pairs—one from each party—the enumerators get $25 a day plus 10 cents per name collected. There are between 175 and 200 voters in each enumerator's polling district.

The patronage flow gives the returning officer power to appoint the election clerk to aid in administrative activity. The election clerk's salary is set at 65 per cent of that of the returning officer, up to a maximum of $1,800.

Often, a returning officer appoints the election date lawyer clerk, making a federal election a lucrative family affair.

Mr. Yanover cites as blatant example of patronage that Mr. Justice Dalton Wells Bastedo does not like to see. But there's nothing illegal about it and it's not the first time a judge has been appointed returning officer.

Next in line are the deputy returning officers appointed by the returning officer to supervise the actual casting of ballots and the polling stations. The deputies get $28 for the single day they work and they in turn appoint poll clerks who get $22.

The enumerators who collect the names of voters for preparation of door-to-door transits are picked by the party in the first and second in the previous election.

Organized in pairs—one from each party—the enumerators get $25 a day plus 10 cents per name collected. There are between 175 and 200 voters in each enumerator's polling district.

The patronage arrangement is designed to prevent an unscrupulous enumerator from omitting the names of large numbers of voters or from adding fictitious names that could be used by illegitimate voters on election day.

With 51,253 polling districts in the country, and one pair of enumerators for each, the duties have a huge stock of political appointees, albeit small and very juicy ones, to hand out to loyal workers.

In 1968, enumeration cost the taxpayer more than $5 million and, it will probably cost more, than $6 million this time because of higher rates of pay and an additional two million voters to be listed.

A few weeks after the lists are posted, a team of revisors corrects the mistakes and adds names missed the first time around.

The revision is conducted under the supervision of a local judge who receives no added pay, but the actual work is performed by persons hired by his appointment, usually lawyers who assume the title of substitute-revising officer.

West Germany Is Threatened With Reprisals by Guerrillas

BONN (AP) — The West German government says it is doing all it can to counter the threat of retaliation from Arab terrorists demanding the release of the three guerrillas held for the attack at the Olympic Games.

The Black September Palestinian group said in a broadcast from Cairo Thursday it would "deal Germany a heavy blow" if the three terrorists are not released.

"We will strike the German imperialists, who dragged the honor of the great German people in the mud, what a heavy blow we can deal them if our comrades are not released and the bodies of our dead fighters are not returned to us," the broadcast said.

The spokesman for the West German government, Conrad Ahlers, said "all imaginable and necessary precautions or cautions have been taken.

Earlier, the interior ministry said it had received word that terrorists plan to mail bombs to Jews in West Germany in packages and letters for the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashana, which begins at sundown today.

There are approximately 30,000 Jews in West Germany, concentrated in such large cities as Berlin, Hamburg, Cologne, Stuttgart, Frankfurt and Munich.

Eight Black September terrorists invaded the Israeli quarters at the Olympic Village early Tuesday morning, killed two members of the Israeli Olympic squad, took nine others hostage and threatened to kill them unless Israel released 200 Arab guerrillas serving prison terms in Israel.

Late that night the terrorists and their captives were flown by helicopter to a military airfield outside Munich where a Boeing 727 was waiting, ostensibly to fly them to the Middle East. But five police sharpshooters had already taken up positions at the airfield and after the helicopters landed and some of the terrorists emerged, the police began firing.

The Arabs returned the fire, one set off a grenade that turned out one of the helicopters, and nine of the Israeli athletes were killed along with a West German policeman and five of the terrorists. The other three Arabs were captured.

The Egyptian government and the Libyan press accused the Boon government of total responsibility for the killings.

In Munich, meanwhile, Police Chief Manfred Schreiber told a news conference his forces opened fire on the guerrillas because the Israeli hostages were "practically doomed when Israel rejected demands of the terrorists."

However, it was still not established whose bullets killed the Israelis.

Schreiber, Hans-Dietrich Genscher, the West German interior minister, and other officials held a five-hour news conference to give an account of the Arab attack and subsequent shootout. They said:

In the first round of negotiations at the Israeli quarters, Genscher, Schreiber and Interior Minister Bruno Merk of Bavaria all offered to be hostage replacements for the Israelis, but the Arabs refused.

Israel's ambassador to West Germany, Ben Horin, arrived with news that the government had decided in a special cabinet session not to consider the guerrilla demands.

A representative of the Arab League then met the head of Egyptian Olympic team tried to intervene with the guerrillas but made no progress. They returned with a message that the Arabs were threatening to shoot the Israelis in pairs in front of the team's quarters.

Police consulted with chemical experts and negotiations continued on a plan to pump tear gas into the building, but the plan was rejected as too risky.

Police again queried the Israeli ambassador about the government's stand on release of the 200 prisoners and were told it was "out of the question."

Throughout the ordeal the hostages were in a second-floor apartment, 5-6 per room, tied and bound hims and foo. They were guarded by two Arabs with the other terrorists grouped around the building.

The hostages maintained they would be prepared to fly out of Germany with the guerrillas on condition the Israeli government said it would meet the terrorists demand.

Genscher tried negotiating again, and the Arabs said they were considering shooting the Israelis and setting German hostages. The Arabs then demanded cars be prepared for their getaway.

German authorities sketched two plans to free the hostages once they left the building with the guerrillas.

One plan called for the Arabs to be overpowered as they moved through the brightly lit entrance area of the building. The other, which was adopted, called for the hostages to be freed before entering the airliner and after exiting the helicopters. German officials chose the military airport at Furstenfeldbruck.

Georg Wolf, the deputy Munich police chief, gave this account of the airport shootout:

Two helicopters that had carried the guerrillas and their hostages to the airport stopped from each of two helicopters that carried the terrorists and a unit from the lighter airport control tower where police were stationed. The lighter, its lights on, was about 490 feet farther away from the tower.

"The area was well lighted to provide the five police sharpshooters with adequate vision to target the terrorists," Wolf said.

The two Arabs inspected the airliner and two other terrorists left the helicopters and leveled pistols on the two-man crews standing under the rotor blades.

Police opened fire as the two terrorists who inspected the airliner started to return to the helicopters.

"The two terrorists at the helicopters were shot down immediately," Wolf said. "The other two, who were about 1 squidistant from the helicopters and the airliner, unfortunately were not hit immediately."

One guerrilla dashed to the helicopters and hid himself underneath one of them. His companion, who returned the fire, was gunned down before he could reach cover. The Arab hiding under the helicopter leaped from it, and in the exchange a policeman watching from the control tower was shot through the head and killed.

A war of nerves followed with both sides staying under cover and firing on an hour.

"At four minutes past midnight, a terrorist sprang out of the helicopters, tossed a hand grenade into the aircraft and tried to retreat," Wolf said. "At the same time, another terrorist thought to be a leader, jumped himself. Both were immediately gunned down."

As the grenade exploded, flames engulfed that helicopter. Armored cars rushed in, the police overpowered the three surviving terrorists and fireworm put out the blaze.

"We found the nine hostages inside the two helicopters," Wolf said. "They were all dead. It is not known if they were killed by the Arabs or whether they perished in the exchange of shots."

Nominated

TORONTO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp was nominated Thursday to contest Toronto Eglinton for the Liberal party in the Oct. 30 federal general election. He was unopposed.

LIP Programs Extended Until End of November

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will spend an extra $15 million to extend another 730 Local Initiatives Program projects two months into mid-September to expire only then, a manpower department source said Thursday.

He revealed the figure shortly after Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey announced the extension of some projects.

Mr. Mackasey refused to say how much would be put into L.I.P. under one such program, which will begin Dec. 1, this year.

The temporary make-work program was started in October, 1971, with $100 million. Another $50 million was added in January and another $50 million in May when L.I.P. was supposed to end.

About 1,500 L.I.P. projects were extended from May 31 to the end of September with the $30 million and Mr. Mackasey said about half have been further extended.

The announcement of the extension comes one day after more than 1,400 L.I.P. employees in Toronto said they would band together to knock on doors and tell people how to vote Liberal in the Oct. 30 Federal election if the program was not continued past the end of the month.

When they heard the announcement, the L.I.P. employees called off their plans to organize said the group in question will fight to ensure that all who want to continue Toronto projects will be given permission to do so.

About 92,000 jobs have been created through 3,700 projects under L.I.P. Mr. Mackasey said next year's program will emphasize job creation, but did not mean the govern ment is looking toward a winter of high unemployment.

L.I.P. is simply one of the ways of spending money."

He said he could not disclose how much would be spent on L.I.P. or manpower's training the job program next year because "it's not always easy to without more talks with the provinces.

But "it will be equal to the initial amount we started with the two programs last year."

CP News Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's penal reform methods will soon be recognized as the "world's best," Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said in a television interview Thursday.

"This is no exaggeration," he said. "Visits are already planned and this will become apparent."

Mr. Goyer, appearing on a private French-language television, said that some of the

Guild Annoyed

TORONTO (CP) — The executive committee of the Toronto Newspaper Guild Thursday called the structure of the newly-formed Ontario Press Council a "mockery" and stated its objection in a resolution.

The Newspaper Guild has long supported the concept of press councils and has actively campaigned for them. The resolution said. But the guild urged that working journalists other than publishers be allowed to select lay members of the council.

Changes Difficult

FREDERICTON (CP) — Dr. John Desmarais, principal of Queen's University, warned here Thursday night, Canada's universities are having difficulties coping with an accelerating rate of change.

He told delegates attending the annual conference of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada that the qualities of the past—stability in the hierarchy and day-to-day competence are also responsible for "institutional inflexibility".

Most civil servants had specialized skills that made difficult developing the policies required to deal with the new social problems facing the country.

Hellyer Named

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Hellyer, former federal cabinet minister and founder of Action Canada, won the Progressive Conservative nomination Thursday for the Oct. 30 federal general election in the riding of Toronto Trinity.

He was unopposed.

Mr. Hellyer has represented Trinity, but as a Liberal, since the early days of Diefenbaker's about a year between the elections of 1957 and 1958.

Policeman Hurt

TORONTO (CP) — Police Constable William Moncur was stabbed in the abdomen during a riot in hospital Thursday night after a fight between inmates over shoulders tendons, a fractured nose, separated shoulder and a broken finger. Moncur was treated and released from hospital while trying to make an arrest. Another policeman and a Metropolitan Toronto policeman was trying to arrest two men believed involved in the fight when Moncur was attacked.

Two men were arrested by two other policemen who were also attacked. A third man was arrested later.

Dawn Hurricane

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Dawn became a full-fledged hurricane Thursday night as it steamed 80-mile-an-hour winds in the Atlantic Ocean about 250 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

The military weather reported Dawn's transformation into the season's third hurricane. forecasters at the National Hurricane Centre here said. They said it could pose a threat by the mainland late today or Saturday.

Trackers said Dawn was drifting on a north-northwesterly course towards the U.S. mainland at between 10 and 15 miles an hour.

Canada's Prisons Best Says Goyer

access on rehabilitation are already producing results in prisoners through the pre-release programs.

Rehabilitation is the best form of public protection, he said, and prison personnel are being taught how to apply rehabilitation in many ways.

Asked to comment on recent reports from federal penal institutions this year, Mr. Goyer said: "We have a bad record. We have never hidden this."

He said a report on six prisons who escaped July 21 from the special correctional unit at Leaf Rapids, Man., is nearly complete but the contents would not be made public.

He said "practical measures" had been taken at federal prisons to halt the escapes. He did not elaborate.

Admitted Shot

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — A provincial police officer from Tillsonburg told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Thursday that Gerhard Wolfe, 28, of Port Stanley, admitted he shot his brother-in-law, who later died from loss of blood.

Constable Stanley Harley said the admission was made at the Wolfe farm house where he arrived in response to a domestic complaint.

Wolfe is charged with the non-capital murder of George Ernest Lee, 27, whose body was found dead along a country road Jan. 1.

Constable Harley said Wolfe had told him that Peters was married to Wolfe's sister. The house or he would be shot and he refused both times.

Freed by Error

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A clerical error has resulted in the acquittal and release from custody of a Detroit youth, awaiting trial on a theft charge.

Governor J.A. Ruzzin of the Essex County Jail said in an interview Thursday that Ronnie Lee Smith, 18, had been released on payment of another man's fine, although Smith was being held on $2,500 bail.

Gov. Ruzzin said the file of another man with the same name was referred to when friends of Smith came to visit him at the jail.

When they were told in prison that Smith was being held in lieu of payment of a small fine, the visitors paid the fine and left with Smith. Nothing has been seen of Smith since.

Taking Company Car Home Could Make It 'Income'

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — If you drive a company car home at night you may be liable for income taxes on its use.

The same could apply to a company truck, but not to an ambulance or hearse.

The rule was spelled out in a 13-page "interpretation bulletin" issued by the revenue department to clarify sections of the Income Tax Act.

Under the act, an employee who has the use of an automobile provided by his employer should add the value of the car's use to his other income and pay taxes on it.

The employer would tell the employee has strict rules against personal use of company-owned vehicles for private purposes. Breaking a rule would change the application of the act.

But the revenue department says an employee's use of a company vehicle can be added to his income if the vehicle is in his custody and control—even if he doesn't actually use it.

But an employee who pays something to his employer for the use of a company car can deduct that payment from the actual worth of the automobile's use added to his income.

The amount to be added to a person's income for the use of a company vehicle is the capital cost plus all the gas, oil, repair and upkeep of the vehicle, divided between the employer and the employee on the basis of how much the car is used by the two.

"Normally the value of the personal use of the employee's automobile by an employee is that proportion of the total operating cost of the automobile that his personal use bears to its total use for the year," the department says.

If it's a chauffeur-driven car, the salary or wages of the chauffeur are considered part of the car's operating cost. An executive who has a chauffeur drive him and his wife to the ballet or opera is a company car should add the use of limousine and driver to his personal income for tax purposes.

Simply driving to and from work is counted as an employee's private use of a company car. But if an employee, such as a salesman, makes a business call on his way to his office, and either business calls on his way home, that does not count as private use.

A car salesman is permitted to add a lesser amount than others to his income for use of a company car.

The revenue department bulletin also sets out elaborate rules for determining the amount that should be added to a person's income for using autos from a company car pool, or for having a car available on a standby basis.

'Mao's Thought' Is Effective But Stunts Intellectualism

With the means of communication strictly controlled, China's masses under 25 years old are strikingly uninformed, Rhesarian Barbara Tuchman says "they know nothing about anything outside their immediate jobs . . . they ask no questions, have no curiosity and do not speculate." Recently returned from an extended China visit, Mrs. Tuchman, twice a Pulitzer Prize winner, describes this situation in the following fourth of five articles.

Written for The AP
By BARBARA TUCHMAN

To instill self-confidence, triumph is the dominant note in all forms of communication in China, especially in the permanent outdoor posters set up in public squares and in front of public buildings.

The raised proletarian fist, the outthrust chest and the heroic gaze into the far horizon, combine to express in vincible determination by figures resembling overfed Walt Disneyans, usually wearing fur caps with ear flaps left carelessly open to the wicker wind. The same heroic note dominates music broadcast over the loudspeakers.

Generally in the Western mode—Chinese music, despite its decibel count, is too uninflected to express triumph; this form of exhortation reaches a climax every February likes a parade forever passing by but never ending. The same themes and songs are learned from kindergarten up, in song-and-dance programs and excerpts from the famous ballets and self-composed dance-dramas performed by the schoolchildren with poise, gusto, frightening proficiency and fixed smiles of happiness.

Amateur groups and propaganda teams carry these acts to grass-dance programs around the country. China still relies heavily on self-entertainment.

Art, too, serves the class struggle. Following Chairman Mao's teaching, reports the official news agency Hsinhua on a recent exhibition of people's art, "the painters take as their main theme the emancipation of the poor and lower middle-peasants from heavy exploitation by the landlord class. Every stroke bears out ardent love for socialism and implacable hatred for feudalism and capitalism."

On this diet, China's people under 25 are left strikingly uninformed. They know nothing about anything outside their immediate jobs or beyond their own neighborhoods. They ask no questions, have no curiosity and do not speculate.

When I was informed that the city of Hangchow was suddenly closed to foreigners, and my guide could give no reason, my daughter asked: "Well, what do you imagine is the reason?"

"It is not practical to imagine," he replied.

They know nothing whatever about the past prior to "liberation" in 1949. The past is one great big black landlord planted upon a foundation of feudalism which was gradually transformed into foreign, aggressive colonialism upholding the landlords.

The Opium Wars of 1840-60, the Boxer Rebellion of 1900 and the Japanese War of the 1930s and 1940s are barely known as distinct dates. Even the Chinese are virtually unaware of the Japanese war. The Japanese but themselves—are being confined to the Communist Rh.) Route Army.

Chinese communism appears as solely the work of Mao and the 8th Route Army with an assist from Stalin. No Chinese other than Mao is ever pictured in the public propaganda. He shares history only with Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin whose portraits in a row of four huge plaques one sees at every turn.

The relevant people of China today are the masses who, as Mao put it, were "blank." He added: "On blank pages the most beautiful words can be written."

The Chinese have trashed anally lived within a prescribed pale of rules of behavior. Confucianism had its slogans inscribed on public walks.

If content is considered in terms of the needs of the people and the dynamics of the Communist program, it is apparent that many of the prescriptions make a good deal of sense.

The cadre see them in action. At a railway crossing, a soldier on guard stopped into the road to help a peasant get his heavily loaded cart into motion after the train had passed. He was "serving the people," a thing that could never have happened in the old days when the soldier was lord upon earth and the people's bane.

At a staff meeting of a small 24-hour grocery store in Shanghai, the question at issue was whether to put a bicycle pump in service during the night shift when the bicycle repair shop across the street was closed. Since no charge could be made for the service, the pump would represent added cost and time for the store. The night before a worker with a flat tire was sent away unaided. Knowing he would have to walk the rest of the way and be late for his job at the factory, they decided that to maintain "revolutionary position" it was their duty to maintain a bicycle pump.

This is Communist China in practice.

Soviet Spends As Much as U.S. On Defence

LONDON (CP) — Soviet spending on defence now seems to have reached at least the American level, says the independent International Institute for Strategic Studies.

In fact, it says in a report published today, Soviet expenditure for 1972 may be between five and 10 per cent higher than the United States figure if calculated at U.S. price levels.

Estimates from the U.S government suggest that American defence dollars have recently tended to fall in real terms, while Soviet defence outlays have relatively risen.

Guerrilla Gunboat Sunk By Israeli Missile Fire

Aerial Battle Viewed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Israeli missile boat sank an Arab guerrilla boat off the Lebanese coast, the Tel Aviv command announced today, while Israel made deep air strikes into Lebanon and Syria.

The Israeli boat was on routine patrol early Friday when the Arab vessel opened fire with bazookas and light arms.

"In the exchange the terrorist boat was sunk," said a brief communique.

Location of the battle and the type of boats were not pinpointed.

The Israel state radio said the clash took place outside Lebanese territorial waters.

The Israelis opened with cannon fire at "close range" as the Arabs were on deck, the broadcast added.

Israeli aircraft shot down three Syrian fighter-bombers over the occupied Golan Height today, the Tel Aviv command said.

An Israeli spokesman said the Soviet-built planes attempted to attack the Golan Heights and were intercepted by Israeli aircraft.

In the ensuing skirmish, three Sukhoi-7 planes were downed and another damaged, he said.

All the Israeli planes returned safely, he added.

Syria said that six air force shot down two Israeli Mirage fighters but lost three of its own planes.

The aerial battle was seen by hundreds of Israeli motorists enjoying a morning outing on the first day of the Jewish new year.

It was not immediately clear if the Syrian planes fell inside Israeli-held territory or in Syria.

Earlier the Israeli command said Syrian anti-aircraft gunners opened fire today on Israeli reconnaissance planes scouting the occupied Golan Heights, and that Israeli ground troops retur ned the fire. No casualties were reported.

The action came after Israeli planes ranged far up the Mediterranean coast Friday to round targets in Lebanon and Syria. The Israelis described the targets as bases of the Palestinian guerrillas blamed for the massacre of 11 Israeli sportsmen at the Munich Olympics Tuesday.

Palestinian commandos dug trenches around refugee camps in Lebanon today and mounted anti-aircraft guns in expectation of new Israeli air raids.

Moonlighting A 5-Day Job

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Officials of the Windsor Association of Firefighters agreed Friday to take complaints about moonlighting by city firemen to a Sept. 11 membership meeting for discussion after charges were made that moonlighting firemen are hurting regular businessmen and employees in the area's construction industry.

A collective agreement now in effect between the firefighters and the city calls for them to work two 24-hour days in each seven-day period, leaving them free for the other five days.

Dressed Up

Earlier this summer Windsor's Women's Lib protested the 18-foot bikini clad statue which appeared on a local service station lot promoting Uniroyal tires. When news of the protest arrived at the company's head office in Toronto, company officials decided she needed a change of image. Thursday she was dressed.

Students at Loyalist College went through freshman orientation Friday in downpour and drizzle. A scavenger hunt followed under clearing skies in the afternoon.

Ulster Warns Army

BELFAST (CP) —Northern Ireland's militant Protestant Ulster Defence Association warned the British Army today it can curb "brutality" by paratroops or face a full-scale confrontation.

Senior officers of the paramilitary UDA met army and police spokesmen in Belfast to protest the killing of two Protestants by paratroops in rioting in Belfast's Protestant heartland Thursday night.

Later, the UDA, which claims it can muster 43,000 Protestant volunteers, said the security forces were told:

"If the paratroops are allowed to run amok again, the UDA will mass and defend the people."

The army said both dead men had been shooting at troops trying to quell Protestant street fighting.

The UDA said the paratroops had "alienated themselves from the community" by their tough treatment of Protestant demonstrators.

The Protestants are demanding that the paratroops, who are responsible for security in the area be replaced. One said: "I am beginning to sympathize with the Catholics if they have to live with these animals in their midst."

So far British troops have had to face only angry Catholics and the bombing and shooting tactics of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

But since th eBritish government assumed full control of Northern Ireland, suspending the Protestant-dominated Northern Irish parliament, Protestant resentment has been steadily growing.

Brandt Asked For Crackdown

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's government is facing a growing clamor for a crackdown on West Germany's 60,000 resident Arabs because of threats of more guerrilla violence in the wake of the Munich massacre.

Brandt said he might empower a special commission to investigate the entire episode. He told a West German newspaper: "The impression must not be allowed to surface that we have not laid everything on the table."

The government, for security reasons, has ordered a secret burial for the slain Arabs, who remained unidentified.

Asians Line Up For Visa

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuter) — Long queues formed for the third consecutive day outside Canada's temporary immigration office here Friday, bringing to more than 15,000 the number of Asians and their dependents to whom application forms to settle in Canada have been distributed.

Thursday, 85 heads of family were called for interviews and officials said Friday that 72 of them were accepted as immigrants. They and their dependents now have to undergo medical examination before they receive visas.

No breakdown is yet available here on the destinations, intended employment or present citizenship status of the Asians interviewed.

Home For Aged May Get Bars

TORONTO (CP) — Cocktail bars may be established in Metropolitan Toronto's civic homes for the aged provided approval is obtained from the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario.

There are more than 2,900 residents in Metro's eight homes.

John Anderson, metro social services commissioner, told a resident on a recent tour that he saw no reason why a section of the cafeteriain the homes, or a sitting or television room, could not be established as a cocktail bar for the resident who enjoys a drink before dinner or before retiring.

He said the bars could be operated by staff or volunteers.

Two Incentive Grant Officials Suspended By Department

OTTAWA (CP) — Suspensions have occurred in the department of regional economic expansion over alleged conflict of interest but a department official refuses to name the two men concerned.

The suspensions were "a matter of internal administration and the disciplinary system within public service," said J. D. Love, DREE's deputy minister, Friday. He is the senior civil servant in charge of the department.

Those suspended allegedly authorise an incentive grant to a company in which they had a direct financial interest by holding shares in it. The suspensions occurred "some time ago."

The incentive program, which has doled out millions of dollars to corporations since its creation in 1968, has been under persistent fire from opposition critics, notably New Democrat Leader David Lewis.

Mr. Lewis says many of the grants and tax concessions are "corporate welfare bums."

Earlier this year, John Burton (NDP—Regina-East) charged that there were "potential conflicts of interest" involved in the awarding of $7.1 million in free grants to McCain Foods Ltd., of New Brunswick.

The former Atlantic-region director of the department was involved in the approval of the grants and then, after they were awarded, he accepted a senior executive position with McCain's.

Mr. Burton also criticized the apparent conflict-of-interest situation created when members of the department's incentive advisory board are also executives of companies receiving grants.

He named J. B. Exley, vice-president of National Sea Products Ltd., and E. Kendall Cork, vice-president, of Cork Gully Mines Ltd., as examples.

National Sea Products has received $2.2 million in grants while Noranda has been given $3.1 million.

Mr. Burton and other opposition MPs have charged that Mr. Marchand himself is in a conflict position as "chief bagman" for the Liberal party as well as being the minister in charge of handing out incentive grants.

The "bagman" description refers to Mr. Marchand's role as party organizer and campaign fund director in Quebec.

Mr. Burton suggested that Mr. Marchand's position was questionable because firms receiving government grants could be prime targets for Liberal campaign contributions.

In the Commons last December, Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) demanded, unsuccessfully, that Mr. Marchand resign as a national campaign director.

The rumor that came to use in that people who are receiving grants are immediately hogged by bagmen of the Liberal party and the Liberal coffers are now filled with about $2 million from collections from people who have received grants from DREE," said Mr. Horner.

Kenyan Here for Winter

Most Ontario school teachers get their training at schools or colleges within their own province, but there is one teacher in training at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville who has come half-way around the world to attend classes.

He is 26-year-old Jacob Ikungwa from Kenya, northeast Africa, who is in Belleville at the school for the deaf teachers' training course in Belleville for the next term.

Mr. Ikungwa is head of the United Church's sponsored Kaaga School for the Deaf, a small 36-pupil institution at Meru on the Kenya equator. His training course at the OSD is sponsored by the Ontario Teachers Federation and the Ontario Ministry of Education.

This is the first time a Kenya teacher has come to Belleville he has been around to was a teacher in training here in Belleville.

Mr. Ikungwa is much interested in the school in Belleville and looks forward to spending the next 10 months in Canada.

"It's so different here," he told The Intelligencer.

This is Mr. Ikungwa's first visit to Canada, but already during his two weeks in Belleville he has gotten around to see much of Ontario.

He has had a visit to Niagara Falls and also to Sudbury.

Living as he has, directly on the equator, Mr. Ikungwa doesn't know quite what to expect from the coming Canadian winter.

But he is not altogether a stranger to snow. He had been up past the snow line on Mt. Kenya in his home land — the only spot in Kenya where there is snow.

Sugar Bush Too Popular?

There's an old saying that nothing succeeds like success.

And as I see it, the annual spring sugar bush demonstration program operated by the Moira River Conservation Authority and the Hastings County Board of Education is concerned, there can be too much success.

Wayne Bro, , outdoor education co-ordinator for the Hastings county school board told an advisor meeting of the authority Tuesday night that attendances by school children at the spring sugar bush demonstration was getting just too much to handle.

He said, in fact, that the spring visit to the sugar bush was so popular that some consideration might have to be given to restricting attendance.

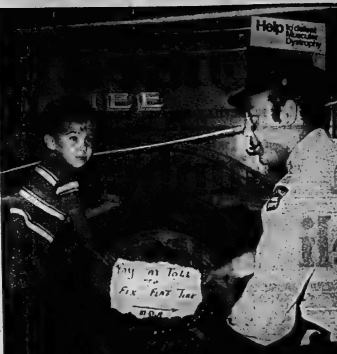
Last spring's attendance at the sugar bush lasted program officials almost to the limit, he said.

The practice has been to allow school pupils from throughout the Quinte area, including separate school students, to attend at the maple syrup demonstrations.

In the case of the Otonabee Authority at Peterborough, however, the authority has its own sugar bush and attendance each spring is by invitations that at the Moira bush.

OSD Bus Service A Popular Move

The modern day policy of busing children to central schools has proved a bonus for students at the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville.



Formerly most of the students at the west end residential school started classes in September and got home only at the Christmas and Easter breaks.

But with busing that has all been changed for many of the students. Now approximately 200 of the 440 students are bussed to and with their families every week or at least every other week. Some of the students make weekend bus trips of up to 250 miles.

The school superintendent Dr. J. G. Demeza said the weekend busing policy was adopted last year and is working out very well.

Registration at the OSD this year is 440 students — up five from last year's 435.

Of this number 62 are termed day students, meaning that they are transported daily by small buses or private cars from such areas as Centreville, Madoc, Picton and Deseronto.

Offers Helping Hand

Donald Larson, 4, of RR4, Trenton, saw a problem and decided to help firefighter Wallace Istead rectify the situation. A flat tire slowed the old engine down, bringing numerous comical comments to firemen's ears who were supervising the muscular dystrophy roll gate at the Quinte Mall. Mr. Istead and friend tracked down the wheel and placed a sign reading, "pay toll to fix flat". Proceeds from last night's toll, it totaled $400, and total proceeds are expected to top the $1,000 mark by mail closing time this evening.

MD Toll Delights Firemen

To the delight of Belleville firemen, the voluntary toll gate in the west end of the Quinte Mall has raised more than $400 in support of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada.

The toll gate is a new concept for the Professional Firefighters Association, whose members have become enchanted with the returns from their annual motorcycle races.

"We would work for a solid week lining up riders and the assorted publicity that goes with a race only to have a return of about $200," said a spokesman. "This way we can put on a show for the people with our displays and solicit voluntary donations from more people."

Already the toll gate, located in the central concourse of the mall, has reaped twice last year's proceeds and funds fighters expect another $500 by this evening.

Antique fire equipment lines the mall and personnel invite shoppers to look around, ask questions and perhaps a bit of change into a fish tank.

perched on the front seat of a miniature scale fire truck. Fire departments from Belleville to Pickering (just east of Toronto) donated equipment and engines for the Quinte display.

The trucks, dating back into the 20s, came from Pickering, Oshawa, Whitby, Stirling and Shannonville.

A truck was donated by Wilson Concrete to transport each of the vehicles to the mall.

Because of the apparent success of the voluntary toll, Jack Matthews, firefighter and chairman of the local Muscular Dystrophy Association, said he expected that the concept would be continued in next year's campaign.

Target for the toll was set at an optimistic $2,500.

"We will be happy if we come close to $1,000 which will be far better than our other recent efforts," said Mr. Matthews.

The breakdown of each dollar shows 72 cents for research, 12 cents for services to patients, 11 cents for clinical supplies and the final four cents for administration.

There are only 11 salaried people in the entire organization.

Supplementing these 11 are 25,000 volunteers taking care of the 29,000 patients across the country.

The toll continues until mail closing time this evening.

Food Chain Staff To Vote on Strike

A strike vote will be held Sunday evening by 2,000 full and 550 warehouse employees who work at the 151 Dominion stores in southern Ontario and four company warehouses in Belleville.

They are members of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees Union.

Donald Collins, chairman of the union negotiating committee, said the union is prepared to continue bargaining if there appears to be any prospect of a settlement, but no meetings have been scheduled. Thursday's meeting was intended to the union membership that settlement proposals by Dominion Stores Ltd. be rejected.

Dominion Vice - President E. C. West said Friday the company has made a firm offer for a new contract, but neither side would disclose the details until union members have seen them.

Present wage - levels were not available.

A spokesman at the Dominion Store in the east end shopping plaza today made no comment on the strike vote question other than to agree that the Belleville store is in Southern Ontario.

"I am not at liberty to say anything to the press," he said.

Former Alderman Will Run Again

Former alderman Joseph Raycraft, who served on city council for four years from 1963 to 1965 is contemplating a comeback.

Mr. Raycroft, the city's current representative to the Belleville and Suburban Roads Commission, said today that he was seriously thinking of running.

"I think I will . . ." he said.

Mr. Raycroft is the first non-member of council to indicate that he will seek election in the December poll.

During the summer, Alderman Enos David said he was undecided whether to offer himself for re-election.

Recently, Alderman Robin Jeffrey announced her intention of contesting the mayoralty. It is generally assumed that Mayor J. R. Scott will seek re-election but so far he has made no definite announcement.

The Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra is looking for musicians.

It urgently needs string players — bass, cello, viola and violins, and experienced clarinet and trumpet players.

The orchestra, made up of volunteers who play for the love of it, has lost members from several sections this summer.

"One can say that each September a new orchestra starts for rehearsals and a new season begins," says conductor Stephen Chow as. "Each section must have a musician with some experience and knowledge of music."

Lebanese President Suleiman Frangieh met with the army commander-in-chief, Gen. Iskander Ghanem and Premier Saeb Salam to decide what steps to take.

An announcement said an emergency cabinet meeting would be held later today.

Official government figures said at least 18 persons were killed and 31 wounded in air raids against three villages in Lebanon Friday.

The Damascus government has issued no figures on simultaneous attacks in Syria.

However, Palestinian guerrillas say 41 persons were killed and scores wounded in the Israeli attacks on bases and camps. Guerrilla carrying figures for Lebanon are higher than the official ones.

Lebanese newspapers reported that Syria must retaliate as it had in March when Israeli jets attacked Israeli settlements in the occupied Golan Heights after the Israelis strafed a commando base in Syria.

Lebanon has protested against the Israeli raids to the United Nations Security Council but did not request a meeting. Earlier the last such raids in June, the council passed a resolution condemning Israel.

Sewage To Oysters Studied

WOODS HOLE, Mass (AP) — Researchers at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution are studying ways to turn sewage into oyster meat.

The idea is to feed the sewage to algae and the algae to oysters and other shellfish such as scallops, clams and quahogs.

Nothing is proven yet, said the researchers, a conceit many problems remain unsolved, including cost.

Dr. John Ryther of the oceanographic institution, head of the project, said if the study works out the aquaculture-sewage treatment system he is developing could take sewage from a town with a population of 50,000 persons and produce more than 500 tons of oyster meat a year, worth about $5 million.

The study, which has been going on for two years in open fish tanks at the institution, soon will move to a $375,000 laboratory about two miles away.

This plant, large enough to handle sewage from 75 persons, will test Ryther's theories

USE PUMPS, FILTER

The plant will have six algae pools with a surface area of 2,000 square feet, a thousand-gallon-a-minute pumping rig and places for animal cultures.

The system takes algae grown in sewage diluted to about 10 per cent concentration in sea water, pumps it into a food reservoir, then, with filtered sea water, into the animal tanks.

In a recent issue of BioScience, Ryther and others are "many hurdles to cross before this utopian solution can be realized."

One, he said, is the "unfortunate fact" that oysters and similar shellfish concentrate in their meat bacteria, viruses, metal and a host of potentially dangerous or unpalatable organic compounds."

He said cost was a problem, too, but he gave no figures. He said he believed the advantage of "producing a byproduct that is potentially valuable, both economically and nutritionally," could help offset the cost problem.

Vertical Flight

Belleville residents looked in wonderment this morning at the strange angle in which the flag at city hall was flying, but it was apparently all due to the weather. City Hall maintenance head Art Trites said that in the absence of overnight wind the wet flag must have adhered to the pole. At 9 a.m. the wind had dried the flag and it was flying normally again.

Continuing Revolution Mao's Original Concept

Written for The Associated Press

By BARBARA TUCHMAN

Mao Tse-tung's truly original contribution to China's revolution has been his concept of on-going revolution—that achievement of power is not the end but the peril because success addicts.

Thus every revolution ends in a new ruling class. Every ruling class, by tapping the status quo, ends in revisionism, the final sin, for it is the state that withers but revolution, and with it the goal of socialism.

Mao is probably the first chief of state to accuse and dismember his own power structure in order to re-start the revolution and keep it moving toward its goals.

This was the purpose and meaning of that mysterious frenzy—as it came through to the West in fragmentary flashes—which swept China in 1966-68 and now is sanctified as the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. Deliberately set in motion by Mao and some like-thinking colleagues, it was an act of extraordinary daring that would have wrecked the system.

It satisfied the fanaticism of youth and set it rampaging through society—beating, persecuting, shaming, and creating a wake of violence, ruin and suicides. In the course of purging Liu Shao-chi, then president of China, and breaking up the settled bureaucracy which he supposedly headed, the movement also ignited a dangerous opposition of the "ultra left" whose object was to shatter the establishment and achieve socialism through anarchy.

Only because the army remained loyal as the arm of the party, was Mao able to apply the brakes to the control and begin to reconstruct his government.

At any time the domestic surface is calm. The vicious turmoil of the first years of ago seems to have left the public curiously unaffected.

Although the aim of the purged bureaucracy below the top are said to have returned to their jobs after "re-education," the government has undoubtedly been weakened, both within the central politburo and in its authority over the provinces. The ultra left, angered by the return of the bureaucrats, is far from dead, and power struggles within the party and politburo apparently continue.

At the same time, it is plain that the ideas of the Cultural Revolution have officially prevailed, at least in general in service. "Reliance on the masses" is the password. The painful process of "struggle, criticism and transformation," refits a revolution or other erroneous thinker for service to the people.

When I asked to meet members of a writers' union, I was told there were "no writers in Peking," and the same was said of Shanghai, because they were all away in May 7th camps undergoing struggle, criticism and transformation. The same explanation was offered for not taking me to visit the great Peking Public Library. Municipal libraries elsewhere remained off limits.

The campaign against revisionism remains fierce. While Stalin's papers killed men, in China it is the ideas which must be destroyed. This requires unrelenting denunciation which the people repeat as dutifully as a congregation chanting responses to the minister.

Every negative result of the past is explained as caused by the influence of Liu Shao-chi, and equally any current negative development—a poor harvest, an outbreak of disease, a foreign threat—is the persistence of dissenters escaping to Hong Kong—is the undercover work of "Liu Shao-chi-ist swindlers and criminals," who is somehow able to sway the true-thinking masses toward wrong-doing.

Even the excesses of the Red Guards during the Cultural Revolution are laid to revisionist infiltrators who instigated them to violence. The people are being educated in a conspiracy theory of evil. It leaves party and leaders irresponsible for error or failure.

The effect of the Cultural Revolution is crystallized in the universities. Because the sons and daughters of the ruling group were filling the classes, it was here that elitism was believed most dangerously developing, and as everyone knows the universities were actually shutdown for two years or more.

Since 1970, the re-opened universities have been enrolling only students from the ranks of workers, peasants and soldiers.

The new policy presumes that working class experience of actual jobs in various fields fits these young men to make better use of an education for purposes of serving the revolution. If they have graduated from junior middle school, which finishes at about age 16, and have held a job for a few years, they are admitted on the recommendation of their work unit, without any qualifying examination.

I questioned five boys in a dormitory room at the Sian college of engineering. They were eager, bright-eyed, appealing youngsters, but hardly equipped for higher education in the academic sense.

Nor did they need to be. Courses are now virtually vocational.

In the humanities, the vocation is revolution: a student of history can look forward to a career as a propagandist in which he can serve the people of China and the world." In science, judged by the curriculum, the training is purely technical and mechanical.

Throughout the country, the total number of university students now enrolled is estimated by government officials as a bourgeois device to exclude the masses.

The government of China has apparently made up its mind that it would nevertheless any impetus more than it wants advanced education. China does not need to advance, it needs to catch up. And it may have decided that properly motivated technicians serve this purpose best.

Meanwhile at the top, successive purges have left a vacuum below the aged veterans of the formative years: Mao, Chou En-lai and Marshal Yeh Chien-ying, age 75, who now is filling the place of Lin Piao. Succession is undecided, the factions are still at odds and the threat of Soviet attacks hangs over the border. Fear of invasion or nuclear attack preoccupies Peking and explains the obsessive emphasis on arms in the domestic propaganda.

Under such pressures from inside and out, can the revolution be kept green, especially after the old guard goes? Under new men will the insistent nature of a ruling class assert itself in China as anywhere else? Will Liu Shao-chi-ism revive without Liu Shao-chi?

These questions hardly seem to concern the public: they do not ask: "they seem to have faith. It has been said by a shrewd observer that they take their revolution more seriously than the Russians.

Dam Study Gets Grant

The Honorable Leo Bernier, Minister of Transport, Canada and Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings, announce the approval of a development grant in the amount of $10,500 to the Moira Conservation engineering study for ice-control dams in the city of Belleville.

An ice and flood control study carried out recently created the construction of a dam on the Lott site for flood control and ice-storage to eliminate the flooding caused by ice-jamming.

As a result of model testing, it was concluded that one dam at this site was not sufficient and that it would be necessary to construct a dam at the Lott site for frazil ice control and a dam at College Street for ice-storage.

The city of Belleville, as the main benefitting municipality, will bear the major portion of the authority's share of the cost.

It's Hard to Find Genial Rock Fish

VICTORIA (CP) — Don't expect a friendly reception from a strange rock fish. If one speaks to you at all, it will probably tell you to scram.

Dr. James McInerney, a biologist at the University of Victoria, is used to being told off by the captive rock fish he uses in experiments to identify the sounds made by the 70 to 80 species which inhabit Vancouver Island's coastal waters.

He has made the study his life and his assistant, John Yeardley, hope to have recorded and analysed enough piscine prattle to be able to identify species by sound alone.

Dr. McInerney said his fish calls most in terse situations.

"They don't make much noise when they are friendly," he said. "When fish talk they are usually telling another fish to clear out."

The researchers need to change fish every three or four weeks to keep the one sided conversation going. Tame fish, it appears, have little to say.

After newly captured fish have identified their new aquarium home as their territory, a stranger fish or a mirror is placed in the tank.

The normal response, say the researchers, is a blustery combination of raising fins, puffing out gill covers and noisy rage.

The sounds rock fish make range from a slow, steady beat to a series of fast popping sounds. The copper rock fish, for example, sounds like someone opening a bottle of champagne, while the black rockfish produces a tattoo any drummer would envy.

Mr. Yeardley, working as an undergraduate, learned that the black rock fish make use produced by a set of muscles expanding from the back of the vault, along the swim bladder, and up to the vertebrae.

Fish can't differentiate between low and high sounds. Dr. McInerney says. The meaning of the sounds depends on whether they are fast or slow, "like morse code."

The researchers said that once fish talk is understood, it may no longer be possible for submarines to engage Cetecean in travelling under a school of grouchy, noisy fish.

And it might settle fisheries disputes between West Coast fishermen and their visiting Russian counterparts.

Sounds made by fish caught in Russian nets might indicate just what species of fish are being taken from coastal waters.

Education Today

School, as we are so often reminded these days, is not what it used to be. No longer the little red schoolhouse (although a few one-room buildings — as on the Tyendinaga Reserve — remain) and instead million-dollar plus creations of which the $4½ million Bayside secondary school is the latest and most opulent.

Tyendinaga, incidentally, is talking about a new central school to replace its three one-room schools and presumably the Quinte Mohawk school as well. But whether it comes next year, as forecast, or not will depend on funds.

The new Bayside complex meanwhile is very much in line with our expansive — and expensive times. The student who has his mind on work and appreciates quality when he sees it will respect both the building and its contents, the library-resource centre as the techno-jargon of the day dubs it, the half million dollars worth of equipment and all the rest of it.

It is idle of course, not to say anachronistic, to compare the education palaces of our day with the one-room structures of the past. However, it does evoke nostalgia as well as arousing the lingering suspicion that what was learned in those times and in those schoolhouses was valuable and effective beyond anything being garnered today. But then the times were indeed different so any such comparison may lose some of its validity. We do hear so often though that many of today's breed of students cannot even spell properly, let alone express themselves grammatically and this, against a background of so much expense and so much devotion to outward trappings, not to mention interior furnishings, cannot be ignored.

There are also those intangibles to which we alluded like other day, such as the overall quality of life and its impact on the younger generation. In many ways the world today's a more shocking and degraded place than it has ever been, with atrocity succeeding atrocity — fanned by the immediacy of instant communications — and the youngsters of this generation can scarcely be blamed for sentiments of horror and disillusionment.

Moreover, when they hear their county director of education, Eric Runacres, say, as he did at Bayside, that "it is in your hands," they might well wonder what he means in precise terms. Strictly speaking such an establishment is only partially in the students' hands and we have not yet reached the stage where the student is teacher and administrator as well. In other words the students — and this is very important — need a firm hand at the helm. They need discipline and they need direction and they need the personal touch from administrators and staff. It is a sad fact that often this is lacking at home and it is to be hoped that extra effort is necessary to be aware of the inner traumas of the young at such a vital stage of their lives.

We wish the Bayside school and its principal Linton Read well. The former Moira secondary school principal is an excellent choice as head of the new school, for he is a man with this essential human touch, a man of academic achievement also and the ability to help students realize their own maximum potential as well as that of the new school.

Peter Jennings, who moved from a job as disc jockey with Radio Station CFJR in Brockville a decade or so ago to Ottawa and thence to an anchor-man post with AB⁷ in New York, has been a key figure in the television reporting of the Games from Munich and in recent days of the tragedy involving the Israeli team.

Jennings, who recently left the anchor-man job to pursue a preference for global reporting — he has been covering the Middle East — spoke of the "pendulum of history" swinging back and forth, pf recent evidence of a narrowing of the differences between Arab and Jew but who now are, as he said, "jolted apart" again.

U. S. Dependency Resists Marxism

Cuban and Friends Put Pressure on Puerto Rico

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

In the Caribbean, a region containing a growing number of independent island nations, as well as Cuba and her Marxist revolution, Puerto Rico stands out as a region politically reactionary as far as independence movements are concerned.

Though rich and highly industrialized, the so-called "multi-colonialists" in the world and especially in the United Nations Committee on Colonialism, see the island as a place to be "freed" from "American servitude."

Constitutionally Puerto Rico, conquered from Spain in 1898 by the United States, is a "Free Associate State" with island citizens having most, but not all the rights of mainland Americans. Puerto Ricans are of course, American citizens and have nearly all the privileges of American citizens except the vote.

"In exchange, however, they do have an elected island administration of their own, living Puerto Rican secretariats of state, industry and public health.

Last month, the UN Committee on Colonialism, which both Britain and the United States withdrew in 1971, proposed that the committee classify Puerto Rico a colony of the United States.

Behind the motion were Cuba, Premier Fidel Marxist and anti-capitalistic neighbor, the USSR and the People's Republic of China.

Supporting them were representatives of militant African and Asian states like Algeria, Tanzania and Ceylon—all countries which are in general, sometimes boastful of their struggles for freedom from colonial rule.

The Committee, voted instead on a softer proposal, that it recognizes the "inalienable right of the people of Puerto Rico to self-determination and independence."

Fortunately for the United States, this committee has little if any real power, only the ideological thrusts which come from such resolutions.

In Puerto Rico, where a growing independentista movement rejects the record of economic development and the multi-party system in favor of a Cuban-style fra, such resolutions have greater weight.

Puerto Rico's elected governor is Luis A. Ferre, an enlightened multi-millionaire who is sharply aware of the disparities which economic progress has brought to his island, and opposed to the independence movement.

Since Puerto Ricans are American citizens, they are free to move to the mainland and have done so in the hundreds of thousands to find the jobs which the island's almost steady boom since 1950 could not provide.

Part of the reason for high unemployment in a boom over this 22-year period, is the high birth rate in Puerto Rico, one of the highest in the world.

Former governor Luis Munoz Marin, the father of modern Puerto Rico, and originator of "Operation Bootstrap," which generated economic growth in the 1940s, once challenged the powerful Roman Catholic Church on birth control and other issues and was usually successful in his attacks.

Compared to Cuba with its chronic food, clothing, housing and medical shortages, Puerto Rico, even for the poor and unemployed has to be a kind of paradise. Puerto Ricans have social security and all the benefits for unemployed and unemployables which were expanded by the Lyndon Johnson administration.

But in the Cubans and their allies in the United Nations, Puerto Rico remains "unliberated territory," even though successive island referendums indicate less than five per cent at any one time want to break away from the United States and form a new Latin Republic in the Caribbean.

Farming Progress in Northern Ireland

Ulster Commentary

During the past 42 years the number of workers (including owners) employed on farms in Northern Ireland has fallen from 180,000 to 77,000. Yet, the total production (measured at constant prices) has increased two - and - a - half times.

Output per man is now six - and - a half times what it was in 1930.

Since 1930 the average acreage of crops and grass per farmer has increased from about 24 to 51 acres. In the same period the number of tractors on Northern Ireland farms has gone up from almost 200 to 36,000 while the number of farms connected to mains electricity has increased from 28,000 to 37,000. The number of horses on farms has fallen from 87,000 to 9,000.

Between 1930 and 1971 the number of cattle on Northern Ireland farms has increased from 673,000 to 1,334,000, sheep 704,000 to 975,000, pigs from 216,000 to 1,157,000 and poultry from 8,80,000 to 14,661,00.

The average yield of barley has gone up from about 19 to 23 cwt per acre while that of potatoes has increased from 6.3 to 8.8 tons per acre. Milk yield per cow has almost doubled by increasing from 41 gallons to 810 gallons. Yield of eggs per hen has gone up from about 128 to 218.

The health record of Northern Ireland farm animals is among the highest in the world. For example, Northern Ireland is free of diseases such as Foot and Mouth, Swine Fever and Fowl Pest. Tuberculosis has been eradicated from cattle and Northern Ireland was declared a Brucellosis-free area in December 1971.

Nearly two-thirds of Northern Ireland agricultural produce is sold outside Northern Ireland—mostly in Great Britain.

Progress in farming in Northern Ireland has been greater than in the Irish Republic because of this greater export, backed by U.K. price support and production grants, the Northern Ireland agricultural industry achieved a net family income of £2,200 per 100 acres of crops and grass in 1969-70. This was nearly 30 per cent higher than the £1,500 obtained per 100 acres of crops and grass in the Republic.

Although the area of agricultural land (excluding mountain grazings) in the Republic is about six times as great as that in Northern Ireland, there are about 25 per cent more poultry and almost as many cattle in Northern Ireland farms as on farms in the Republic.

Since 1938 production in Northern Ireland has increased much more rapidly than in the Republic. For example, the total number of cattle in Northern Ireland has gone up by 100 per cent compared with a 52 per cent rise in the Republic. Corresponding figures for sheep are 38 per cent in Northern Ireland and 19 per cent in the Republic; for pigs the increase has been more than five-fold in Northern Ireland compared with a rise of about one quarter in the Republic. Poultry have increased by 66 per cent in Northern Ireland whereas they have fallen by 51 per cent in the Republic.

Captain Alfred Dreyfus of the French artillery corps was convicted by a "court-martial for the second time 13 years ago today — in 1907 — and condemned to 10 years on Devil's Island, where he had been imprisoned since 1895. Finding of "guilty with extenuating circumstances" of treason caused public uproar and led to the resignation of the French government responsible for the first conviction had already been declared null and had committed suicide. The French government pardoned Dreyfus at once but not until 1906 did an appeals court quash the first conviction. Dreyfus served in the First World War and was made an officer of the Legion of Honor.

Revenue-Sharing Formula Sought

Off-Shore Rights Remains A Contentious Issue

By FARMER TESSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau may have boosted the recent meeting between himself, four Atlantic premiers and a representative from Quebec would solve the contentious issue of off-shore oil and mineral rights. Such an agreement would have been a feather in the PM's cap and provided the government with a badly needed pre-election boost in the Maritime region.

Despite a meeting lasting three and a half hours, a firm agreement was not achieved, although a foundation does appear to have been laid for an eventual end to the long-standing dispute. What was agreed was that the question of who owns the off-shore rights would be set aside for the time being, and perhaps for all time.

The governments are instead concerned about who owns the title to the resources and they are about what happens to the revenue from their exploitation.

To work out a common formula on revenue-sharing, Irish Affairs have agreed to set their officials negotiate on such matters as costs of administering the resources, arriving at an estimate of the resources available and deciding whether a sharing formula should be based on gross or net income.

Prime Edward Island Premier Alex Campbell points out that the issue is tied very firmly into the question of equalization payments by the federal government to the less fortunate provinces. He notes that it would do the province no good at all to be given 100 per cent of the revenue from oil and mineral resources off the coast if, at the same time, the federal government reduced the amount of fiscal transfer payments by an equal amount.

The meeting did agree that the 50-50 revenue-sharing formula advanced by the federal government in 1968 now has gone down the drain by mutual consent. The provincial premiers make little secret of their hope that when a formula is reached it will be of greater benefit to the provinces than that.

If the prime minister was not able to come up with an agreement on the eve of an election campaign, at least he has put pressure by thrusting the argument into the background while officials embark on another lengthy study of the problem.

Justice Minister Otto Lang has been making quite a few waves in his comparatively new portfolio and gives the impression he is much happier now than when he was the minister of manpower and immigration. After all, a former Dean of a law school is a natural choice to be in charge of justice affairs in Canada.

His latest move involves the federal government in legal aid and compensation for victims of crimes. At a cost of between $11 million and $12 million annually, he is going to make a maximum of 25 cents per capita of population available to the provinces to help pay for lawyers to defend accused persons who do not have the money to hire counsel, and to provide compensation for damages, or their relatives, who are injured or killed as the result of criminal actions.

Most provinces have legal aid systems but in some cases these are not particularly effective and are administered by private and semi-administered provincial law societies without government support. Mr. Lang is hoping the federal financial assistance will make legal aid and compensation more effective and uniform throughout the country. It seems like a modest amount to spend if these words while result can be achieved.

Now, if the Liberals elect

Quebec View of Election Issues

Montreal La Presse: What will be the main issues of the election campaign? . . .

It would be surprising if unemployment and all that goes with it is not a hotly-discussed topic. The work of the department of economic expansion and regional development as well as the grip of American capital on our economy will doubtless supply other controversial subjects. Furthermore, in Quebec, federalism will again be a question with the entry of the Parti Quebecois in the election campaign.

It will not be surprising, at this time economic problems are in the forefront. The opposition parties' greatest reproach against the Trudeau government is for not having known how to throttle inflation and at the same time, to reduce unemployment to a reasonable limits. The six-per-cent unemployment rate that has persisted in this country for several years can be considered as moral as a cancer in the heart of our economy.

In the Toronto press, much has been made in the last few days of the $700-million deficit in the unemployment insurance fund at the end of 1972.

In January, 1.3-million more Canadians (technically, taxpayers

Einstein's Once Sacrosanct Theory on Light Questioned

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — For most of the 20th century nothing in science has been as inviolate as the speed of light. Albert Einstein's provocative theory that nothing, anywhere, can travel faster than 186,300 miles a second has become a cornerstone of modern physical science.

But astronomers have also discovered puzzles for mid-air in the universe that seems to be blowing apart at several times the speed of light—in direct violation with the idea first announced in 1905.

The latest finding is by a team of astronomers from the California Institute of Technology here, Cornell University and the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Greenbank, W. Va. It brings to three the number of the objects detected since the first discovery 18 months ago.

Radio astronomers say this new finding is further evidence that the original observations weren't just quirks of nature.

But experts still are no closer to understanding what strange processes might be at work in the distant heavens. And the discoveries have become one of the most intriguing puzzles that face the scientists who daily scan the skies with their giant dish-shaped antennas-listening to the crackling radio signals of the cosmos.

For the moment, few astronomers are ready to concede that Einstein's fundamental ideas about light, matter and energy might have a flaw.

But the possibility remains, the scientists agree, that they could be observing fundamental astronomical events that might have a profound effect on man's concept of the universe and matter.

The astronomers found a galaxy 3.5 billion trillion miles away, in which two objects were expanding at two or three times the speed of light.

Prior to that discovery, two quasars had been detected in space. Quasars are radio-like objects were expanding rapidly—in one case at 19 times the speed of light. Quasars are strange sources of light and radio noise far out in the universe whose nature also isn't understood.

All the mysterious objects were found after radio telescopes thousands of miles apart were hooked together to provide observations in much greater detail. In each case, radio signals from the objects were detected initially and then received again several hours later.

When the objects' positions were calculated the second time, the startling conclusion emerged that they had to be moving apart faster than light.

Scientists can't resist trying to explain the unknown. So they've come up with three "models" of what might be happening. . . In one model, they envision pairs of objects embedded in a quasar or galaxy that blink their radio signals on and off in a random fashion like lights on a Christmas tree. The observations from earth just happened to catch different objects, giving the illusion of speeds faster than light.

In another model, the astronomers speculate the radio signals they're receiving first were reflected off something that itself was moving almost as fast as light. The net result is an illusion of very rapid movement.

In the cannonball model, astronomers envisage two distant objects buried at the observer on earth and moving apart slightly as they approach. Radio waves from these distant objects would interfere with one another and give the illusion of velocities faster than light.

There is a fourth, controversial possibility. It enjoys little support because it speculates a decades-old basic yardstick may not be valid for astronomical distances.

If this yardstick—based on the shift of light toward the red color of a distant object—is off, the astronomers suggest, then the mysterious expanding objects aren't as far from earth as everyone thinks.

If that's the case, they argue, a fundamental distance used in the startling calculation is wrong and the objects aren't expanding faster than light at all.

Religion Linked to Poetry, Art

By Rev. Gordon C. Smyth

The story is told of Ralph Waldo Emerson, American poet and essayist, watching the performance of a famous dancer. He and his companion sat entranced. At last they arose and exclaimed, "Ralph, this is poetry". He replied, "Margaret, this is religion."

How many would agree? To some religion is a person's creed, philosophy of life, opinion about ultimates. To others religion is a moral code. They are suspicious of fun and laughter. They equate seriousness as synonymous with devoutness. They consider that the religious individual is reserved and solemn, indeed one does not postulate this with a dancer.

Nevertheless, when Emerson reacted as he did, he was emphasizing the fact that there is a close relationship between religion and poetry, religion and art, religion and literature, religion and beauty. Nowhere is the truth of the Gospel more vividly revealed than in the parable of the prodigal son which begins in a miser key and gradually rises to a major until it culminates in a song-reading, to the surprise of the elder son who has no heart-throbbed that joyous sounds are keynotes of redemption.

Christianity, and the Protestant brand in particular, must do something about its faded radiance. What we need is the inspiration of religious symbols and pictures, dramatic stories which stir young people, and liturgies which provide a dramatic interpretation of the spiritual. The eye is as important as the ear in getting the message across.

Not only business commercialism alone appreciate the value of the aesthetic impulse, which is not necessarily associated with lavish expenditures and ornate furnishings. Worship has been the finest of all fine arts and its temples deserve every wise assistance, to this end, still.

"For to worship," as the late Dr. William Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury, defined it, "is to quicken the conscience by the holiness of God, to purge the imagination by the beauty of God, to feed the mind with the truth of God, to open the heart to the love of God, to vote the will to the service of God."

Of course, there is always the danger that, in seeking the beautiful in religion, it will elude us, and that we may become the slaves of forms which no longer develop us. An attractive edifice of ritual is like unto a lovely necklace of faith, but we must be careful not to draw the chain too tight lest it strangle one's faith. For instance, shortly before the Crucifixion, Christ entered the temple in Jerusalem, and, having looked around "at everything as it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the twelve."

What were the objects which met the penetrating glance of his eye? He was seeking not the transient but the eternal, not the external which passes but the internal which endures. I suppose his attention rested on the golden candlesticks and high altars, the embroidered curtains and all the paraphernalia of worship.

I have an idea that he turned sadly away from the sight of these things and worshipped beautiful things instead of the God of beauty. "Do you see these great buildings?" Christ said. "There will not be left here one stone upon another, that will not be thrown down." Subsequent events were to prove Him right.

It is easy for many of us to seek refuge from society's ills and troubles, not only in attractive churches, but also in posh recreation rooms at home, not on perfectly landscaped golf links, or by some lake shore where we have erected a lovely home. It is easy for many, and needful too. But it may be too easy. If so, it is a temptation. We must differentiate between means and ends. Do the means become ends in themselves?

Dr. Leslie D. Weatherhead has a word for us. He writes, "Rest your mind, but not only in any form of beauty which appeals to you. But in the truth which that beauty reveals, in the abiding reality behind everything. Then you will find rest of beauty for a time, you will go back with deeper and greater strength to combat evil. You will work the harder to make the world a place where all men can be happy and all things come into harmony with the eternal mind."

Thus, we require a closer alliance between religion and beauty. Forms and outward appearances are helpful, but only to the degree that these inspire us to weep in the beauty of holiness. For God, as Christ taught, is a lovely Spirit. In truth, he is the Spirit of loveliness, and those who worship Him aright will fill their souls and hearts which are themselves lovely, in spirit and in truth.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL GOODFELLOW

Goodfellow – Kellar

Female Cadets Take Combat

CFB BORDEN, Oct. (CP) — Weighted down by a 16-pound rifle and heavy gear, Ruth Johnston mowed swiftly, cautiously through the bushes watching for signs of enemy troops.

No, she was not in Israel.

The female private was one of five girls making Canada's military history by being among the first female army cadets to take combat training.

They were the first female trainees from Water-oo County to be accepted into the six-week militia training programs. Capt. Charles Hill of the London militia district said other Canadian Forces Bases have also shaken tradition by allowing girls to take combat training, but the five from Kitchener were the only ones at Borden this year.

They fired sub-machine-guns, dug trenches, smeared their faces with charcoal and green paint, and lived on field rations.

But the girls took part in the training and generally acquitted themselves well enough to get praise from the instructors, from the Highland Fusiliers of Canada.

"You know, their scores are better on the average than the boys," said Sgt. Richard Corbel, reading rifle practice results.

Master Warrant Officer Vern Cain, a combat training specialist, said: "It looks as if females in the army is the up and coming thing."

"These girls seem to be a real asset to the course. They don't ask any favors and are prepared to do everything the boys do."

MWO Cain said there have been problems recruiting boys recently.

"The army may be forced to open up more occupations to women."

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. William Thesenkaul of Belleville, are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Cheryl Joanne to Mr. Paul McDonald son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald R. McDonald, Belleville. The wedding will take place on October 7, 1972, in College Hill United Church, Belleville.

Ma Nan Soe Richest Child In Burma

RANGOON (Reuter) — Because she is the only surviving Siamese twin in Burma, little Ma Nan Soe is probably the richest child in the country.

Ma Nan Soe made medical history and with it accumulated a bank account of more than 250,000 — a fortune in this poor socialist country.

She now is less than two years old and walks and talks like a normal child.

Ma Nan Soe was one of Siamese twin girls born on Feb. 20, 1971, to peasant Saw Mya Hyi and his wife Daw Daw Pon in a village of East Bassein in the Irrawaddy Delta.

The twins were joined at the chest and stomach.

Doctors attempted the first operation ever in Burma on Siamese twins and successfully separated them July 7, 1971.

The public was touched and gifts of money, food and medicine rolled in for the two girls.

But Ma Nan Soe's sister Ma Nan San lived only three weeks after the operation. She died Aug. 14, 1971, from an infection due to the operation.

A three-man board of trustees has been set up to look after Ma Nan Soe's bank account. It will be used to ensure her future health and education. Whatever is left will be given to her when she reaches the age of maturity or marries.

Ma Nan Soe now lives in a children's hospital here under the supervision of a staff nurse and three social workers. She will remain in the hospital until she turns five and starts school.

Leather Still A Favorite

TORONTO (CP) — Leather continues to be a fashion favorite this fall.

It has been around a long time. Early man clothed himself in skins. Leather has been used for shoes and belts for centuries. But leather for travel and ple garments is a modern idea. Through the Middle Ages in Europe it was the servants and soldiers, not the nobles, who wore leather garments. The nobility used leather for elegant boots, saddles and chairs. They preferred to wear silks, satins, velvets and furs.

New tanning processes in the 19th century changed all this.

Albert E. Barrie, Barrie, president of the Tanners' Association of Canada, says: "Leather now is established throughout the world as a versatile fashion material with a prestige image."

At first, leather entered the fashion picture in the casual field, as men's sport jackets, jackets later, as coats. Then women took to leather jackets and skirts and leather slip-butter-soft suede entered the fashion world as both coats and dresses.

With the advent of pantsuits for women, suede added jewelry fashion facet. Now the men like the layered look because a top fashion in women's clothes. A suede vest was a natural addition. This fall men have taken over this layered look too, a combination of sweater, leather or suede vest and jacket is not uncommon.

The new tanning processes permit suede especially to be worked like a fabric. Consequently suede now is used even for evening gowns.

Another of fall's new looks is a bloused version of the belted jacket or overcoat as it's now being called, worn with pants or over a dress.

Leather is also popular this fall as a trim. It is used as piping on both women's and men's jackets and coats. It also appears in leather shoulder patches on men's casual jackets. Sometimes it is also a pocket accent. And it has been used for years as practical leather elbow patches. Now these are fashionable.

Leather trousers continue to be popular and this season many are trimmed with fur, a fall coast fashion.

All the World Needs Tolerance

By DORIS CLARE

I stead of competition, the world needs tolerance.

"If, very early, a youngster is brought into contact with families of different backgrounds, or with handicapped children, a real d'sire to share will be born in him. One of the tragedies in our schools is that for too long the whole system has been based on the competitive spirit, and with this, a contempt for the weak.

"Competition is a healthy thing, but if it is not coupled with a desire for fraternity and a tolerance for the less capable, competition quickly becomes contempt, then division, then war." — from Eruption to Hope, by Jean Vanier.

What hits me between the eyes is this "contempt for the weak". Jean Vanier calls, instead, for a universal sympathy which makes every single person reach out with a generous helping hand to every other human being, regardless of any difference of race, color or creed — or the number of cars in the family.

Referring to the young, Jean Vanier says: "They must have the 'courage to leave every thing for the sake of winning the precious pearl of universal brotherhood. He suggests: "Some of th e ir riders will simply have to be the guides and models they can follow."

Doesn't this speak all of us!

Dear Doris: How would I go about locating my youngest daughter? When last heard of (a year ago) she was working at a mental home in this province.

My son told me that she is very anxious to come and visit her old dad but no one in the family will give her my address. You see, her mother left me some 17 years ago and the family took sides, but now some of them are sorry.

I wrote to the employment office and they said they had strict instructions not to give out addresses of anyone registered there. — Lonely Father.

Dear Lonely:

1. Writing to your daughter at her last known address.

2. Writing to her in care of the mental home where she last worked, asking that the letter be forwarded to her.

3. Put an advertisement in the newspaper in the town where she worked asking her to get in touch with you.

4. Go to see the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in your area and ask them to help you locate her.

It has just been a year since you have been in touch with her so I'd say one of these efforts has a good chance of producing results.

* * *

Confidential to Please Explain: I agree with your letter but some people in your town are "pretty dumb"! It is hard manners to ask personal questions. Although brown eyes are caused by a dominant gene, everyone has a blue-eyed ancestor somewhere in the background once in a while that recessive blue-eyed gene will win out.

Gossip - mongers can make anything seem as suspicious!

Ask Doris about your difficulty. She will discuss it or send you to a source of help.)

The Experts Say

The Compost Pile Is Staging Comeback

EDMONTON (CP) — Your backyard can help you dispose of as much as 75 per cent of your weekly garbage, says Lilian Alexander, an Edmonton nutrition expert.

Long a tradition among farmers and home gardeners, the compost pile is staging a comeback with many urban dwellers concerned about pollution and overcrowding in the bags disposal systems, she says.

Miss Alexander says she has reduced the garbage created by two persons to two paper shopping bags full a week for collection by the city by using a compost pile in the backyard.

She said the sight of three or four cans of garbage plus two more full of grass cuttings awaiting collection by g a r b a g e m e n every week made her consider the implications and took a method of reducing the volume.

The organic waste—such as food—can be used for land fill and organic fertilizers, and much of the inorganic waste can be recycled.

She returns paper bags to stores and wire coat hangers to dry cleaners.

"There is no reason for these items to be thrown out to become pollutants when they can be reused."

"A properly made compost does not have an unpleasant odor," she said.

Miss Alexander said climate determines the method of making a compost pile. The method she recommends for a climate similar to Edmonton's is:

Dig a hole about six inches deep and four feet square. Save the sod removed.

Put in a layer of garbage about four inches deep.

Cover with a four-inch layer of green material such as grass clippings, weeds, and soft leaves. This layer can be composed of animal manure if available.

Sprinkle the top of this layer with a small quantity of lime or ashes. Rock phosphate, granite powder, bone meal, blood meal and any other nitrogen, potassium and phosphorus powdered material can also be added.

Cover the pile with a thin layer of soil about one-eighth inch deep. Use the soil removed when digging the hole.

Moisten the pile until

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Can men 'take or leave' clothes?

NO. Men can be as emotionally involved with their clothes as women are with theirs. Men will make sure there are pads in coats to give the broad-shouldered look associated with strength and masculinity. Yet, as proud as they can be about their clothes —just as the peacock is about his fine feathers—men are somewhat chary. They wear clothes to be noticed, but they want to be sure they are noticed for what they are, not for what they are wearing.

Do adverse statistics hurt marriage?

NO, although in constantly hammering at marriage, critics do interpret statistics in ways that support their point of view. It is surprising that more married people don't lay to themselves after reading the adverse statistics that cast gloom on the future of marriage: "What am I doing being so happily married?" Yet most people are successful in marriage because they feel lucky to be married; not lucky to escape marital disaster.

Is inferiority complex hereditary?

NO, that is definitely a state of mind that a child develops from those around him. Parents, since they influence their children at the most impressionable period in the youngsters' lives, are, willingly and unwittingly, largely responsible for a child having an inferiority complex. A father, for instance, who says "Here, Son, let me do that for you," can do just as much harm as a parent who belittles his son.

SCHOOL BOOKS OF YESTERDAY

"There is nothing permanent except change." — Heraclitus (515 B.C.).

* * *

Just a few years ago, one of the signs of schoolopening were school-books on display in book-stores.

"But no longer," Miss Dorothy Matthews of James Text, 185 Front Street, says.

"In fact, it looks now that book stores will no longer carry or supply them. We are one of the few book stores left in the province that still does so. And those we do carry are for Grade 13 only."

"But — why is this?"

"The schools now supply the students books, without cost. Under this, the turn over is precarious, the discount small, the transportation costly."

"I, personally, hate to see the school book display disappear, but it is a sign of the times, changing of the educational system."

And so it is ever thus. Note the "cost book" of our pioneer days. No books to speak of; Mavor's Spelling Book; The New Testament for the reader. There were no authorized text-books, and such as were in use were far from perfect. Here is a sample of what an old Geography book was like:

The Continent of America

Q: What is America?

A. The fourth part of the world, called also the New World.

Q: How is North America divided?

A: Into Old Mexico, New France, New England and Florida.

Q: What is New France?

A: A large tract of ground about the River St. Lawrence divided into East and West, called also Missisipi or Louisiana.

Q: What does the East contain?

A: Besides Canada, properly so-called, it contains divers nations, the chief of which are Christinals, Algonquins, Etchemins and Iroquois. The c o n siderable towns are: Quebec, Tadoussac and Montreal.

Q: What is New Britain?

A: It lies north of New France and is not cultivated, but the English who possess it derive a great trade in beaver and organic skins. (moose)

And that, boys and girls was all, absolutely all, that you had to know about North America. Even the book hadn't any more to say on the subject and of course, you wouldn't own a copy. Just the teacher had one.

Ann Landers

No Need to Ridicule After Winning Battle

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl, 21 years old, 5-foot-4, and I weigh 130 pounds. Two years ago I weighed 167. I made up my mind I was going to get rid of the excess baggage. After many months of careful dieting and exercise I accomplished my goal.

You wouldn't believe how many well-meaning but thoughtless people have said: "You are beautiful! It's like a miracle. You were such a fat, ugly kid. . . ." etc., etc., etc.

Just yesterday my cousin described how ridiculous I looked at my sister's wedding—how my dress was popping at the seams, and how out-of-place I was, alongside the slim and graceful bridesmaids. She roared with laughter. I felt like crawling into a hole.

People who have lost weight should be more considerate and not phrase. Ann, tell them I don't necessary to make cruel comparisons between the way they look now and the way they looked before. Most of us are — Trying To Forget

Dear Trying: You told them—and I thank you on behalf of all fat daughters. A sorry-sight people who have won the battle.

Dear Ann Landers: My father is married to my mother-in-law. To make it simpler—my 60 year-old mother married my dad. I don't know why she rec ents me. There seems to be nothing I can do about it. My father is not much of a letter writer and he hates to talk on the phone, so I rarely hear from him. This hurts me terribly.

My husband says people over 60 shouldn't be able to do as they please. I believe children have the right to expect parental attention all their lives—and that as parents have the right to expect their children to love them forever. Am I expecting too much — Left Out

Dear Out: The quality of attention a person receives by mail does not always rest, by insisting it is his due—is less than satisfactory.

Your father has a wife and you have a husband. Concentrate on your marriage and leave your father alone.

MORE

x NG581418 422 qitvrqaaq UNDATED—1st add Landers and . . . blank:

Dear Ann Landers: I am 23, have been married less than two years and am ready to call it quits. My husband drinks too much and I disapprove. He says: "I'm the boss around here and if I want to drink no damn woman is going to tell me not to."

I have to worry about getting bills paid and it's not easy when a man blows $35 on a weekend for beer and whisky. Now he is nagging me to have a baby. He thinks a son will settle his nerves and make him feel more like a man. He claims it's a wife's duty to have a family. I am afraid to bring up children in a home where there is drinking and fighting.

Please excuse the mistakes in this letter. I want to get it in the mail before "Stalin" comes home.—Undecided

Dear Un: I'm printing your answer in the paper because I don't want to risk sending it to the Kremlin.

The present situation sounds rocky, to say the least. Talk to a counsellor and decide if your marriage is worth saving. Don't have a family unless you're sure it is.

Trudeau Asks Parties Not to Run Against House Speaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau suggested Friday that other political parties also follow Liberals' decision to be re-elected without a contest so he can once again be Speaker of the Commons.

The call was promptly rejected by Conservative leader Robert Stanfield.

"The prime minister's ideas about the Speaker were outlined in a letter to the Stormont-Dundas Liberal Association congratulating it on its decision not to run a candidate against the Speaker, who announced Wednesday he is running in the Oct. 30 election as an independent.

"I hope ... that your decision will encourage the other opposition parties not to oppose the candidature of Mr. Lamoureux," Mr. Trudeau said in the letter that was released to the press.

Mr. Lamoureux has been Speaker since 1968. He had been elected in 1965 and earlier as a Liberal. In the 1968 election, he sought and won election as an Independent. He was opposed only by an NDP candidate who was not supported by the national party.

Both the NDP and the Conservatives plan to run candidates this year.

Mr. Lamoureux has received wide praise for the way he conducted the arduous job of keeping order in the Commons without appearing to favor any single party.

Mr. Trudeau said in his letter Mr. Lamoureux filled his office with "grace and distinction" and added: "There is little doubt he would receive the widest support if he sought re-election as Speaker."

Mr. Stanfield told a reporter he has the greatest respect for the Speaker but it would be unfair and unreasonable to expect that the Conservatives in the constituency should not have the opportunity to elect their own candidate.

He said the Conservatives did not oppose Mr. Lamoureux in 1958 because they expected Mr. Trudeau to the Speaker's chair as a permanent Speaker. But nothing had been done.

"We can't expect the candidate nominated to withdraw," Mr. Stanfield said.

Mr. Lamoureux announced Wednesday he has reversed a previous decision not to seek re-election. He mentioned there had been cabinet pressure on him to run again.

Mr. Trudeau said in his letter he was informed only Wednesday of Mr. Lamoureux's decision to run again. But informed sources said he personally urged the Speaker to seek re-election.

However, they said it was made clear to Mr. Lamoureux that, if he decided to seek his earlier decision, a senior position in the government bureaucracy would be available to him.

Other reports said Mr. Lamoureux was told that nothing was available but the Speaker's chair.

Mr. Trudeau said a decision by all parties not to contest the constituency might mean that Canada is on its way to establishing a system of re-electing Speakers of the Commons.

He said other alternatives have been suggested, including that the Speaker remain and should choose the Speaker.

"I do not believe that this solution would be at all satisfactory, for much of the authority of the Speaker must come from the fact that he is an MP, elected by and responsible to the people of Canada, rather than being a mere official of Parliament.

"As the First Commoner, he must also desire and have the right to seek a renewal of his personal mandate from those electors."

The members of the various political parties can show their approval for the quality of his work by not opposing him and he seek re-election; but always the ultimate decision must be made by the people of Canada."

PM Hopes Bilingualism Won't Be Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday he doesn't want to make bilingualism a central issue in the Oct. 30 federal election campaign.

policy."

But he told a cheering crowd of about 100 party workers in the Ottawa West federal riding that he wouldn't withdraw from discussing the subject and that "if anybody tries to knock it down they'll find me fighting back."

"I think its at the core of our policy."

Mr. Trudeau, wearing a green tam, plaid suit tie offset by a yellow rose, made a 20-minute stop at the campaign headquarters of incumbent MP Lloyd Francis.

Mr. Francis, 52, who took the seat by more than 7,000 votes in 1968, will be battling former Liberal MP Pauline Jewett, now a New Democrat, and television journalist Bill Neville, former host of a local news program.

Mr. Trudeau said the contest would be closely watched for two reasons: for the "combat between personalities" and as a "testing ground for our ideas," a reference to the government's effort to make bilingualism in the civil service.

The mixed crowd roared hastily as the prime minister entered the street-level headquarters, cheered a number of times and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow when he left.

"I'm glad to be here at these times, once by 15-year-old Joan Mentor, who promptly broke into tears.

The visit was Mr. Trudeau's first campaign stop. He said in a short speech that the Liberals "are ready not fight any other party."

"The other parties can fight us if they want to.

"We'll be discussing with Canada as a country."

He said the decision by Claude Wagner, former Liberal cabinet minister in Quebec, and Allan Lawrence, a former Ontario cabinet minister, to quit politics "is a personal one and has not really for the conservatives was "fine."

Stanfield Welcomes Lawrence to Fold

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield welcomed Allan Lawrence, Ontario provincial secretary for justice, into the federal election campaign Friday, describing him as "a very able and dynamic man, deeply concerned with people."

Mr. Lawrence, announced in

$27 Million Deal

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Cablesystems Ltd., of Toronto said Friday it has entered an agreement to buy 48.8-per-cent interest in Fanous Playtex Ltd. of Toronto to an unidentified buyer for a sum in excess of $27 million.

But Gulf and Western (Canada) Ltd., a subsidiary of Gulf and Western Industries Inc. of New York, has a first right of refusal to purchase within 60 days the same interest on the same terms as the unidentified party.

Toronto he is leaving provincial politics to run for the Conservatives in the Oct. 30 election.

Mr. Stanfield would not say whether Mr. Lawrence would be appointed to a Conservative cabinet if he wins the election. Rather, he would wait for the formation of a government the make-up of a government.

Mr. Lawrence flew to Ottawa immediately after his decision announcement to meet with Mr. Stanfield.

Mr. Lawrence said following the meeting that he views the Conservatives "as the only alternative to an "insular, arrogant" federal government. The Trudeau government does not consult the provinces the way it should and has no idea of the impact of decisions it makes, he said.

He added that he met with Mr. Stanfield to find out where the right campaign in the next month-and-a-half. But he would not neglect his riding, he said.

David Lewis Starts Three Phase Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — First-sted David Lewis will be in Toronto today to launch his first election campaign as national NDP leader.

Plans call for him to meet the party campaign committee in his own riding of York South, which he has represented in Parliament since 1962 except for one year break, and do some canvassing among constituents.

Sunday, the diminutive 63-year-old leader will address a meeting of the Ontario NDP provincial council, election candidates and key party workers then attend closed-door campaign strategy sessions.

The weekend activities will mark the start of a 12-day, nationwide tour by Mr. Lewis, representing the first stage of a three-stage electioneering program that will keep him busy until voting day Monday, Oct. 30.

NDP organizers say the campaign will be almost entirely issue-oriented with the emphasis on Mr. Lewis—who was elected in April, 1971, to succeed T. C. Douglas as party leader—hitting the government on economic matters and following up his pre-campaign attack on "corporate welfare bums."

Especially in its initial phase, the NDP leader's effort will be heavily pitched toward the media, with the emphasis on news conferences, TV appearances and open-line radio shows.

The second phase of the leader's campaign, embracing the last week or so of September an the first few days of October, will concentrate on Ontario.

The final phase of the campaign, lasting 25 to 28 days, will witness a gruelling tour by the NDP leader from East Coast to West Coast and back again as far as Toronto.

Party officials said Mr. Lewis intends to refuel the issue of corporate "ripoffs" under the present taxation system, believing he struck a sensitive public chord in his mini-campaign of recent weeks.

Weekend Farmers Criticized

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — City residents buying farms for weekend recreational use have been criticized by a director of the Georgian Bay region warns a report Friday from the Ontario government.

The report on the growth and development of the 11,500-square-mile region said over-all development prospects are excellent, but criticized what it called "weekend farmers."

The report, covering an area extending from Lake Simcoe on the west and north to the French River and Lake Nipissing, was released at a public meeting by Eric Winder, provincial treasurer and commercial relations.

The meeting was the first of a series at which area residents will be asked for their views on how the region can best be developed within the frame work of the government's plan for the entire province.

The area's 170,000 residents were told that despite the expected development pressures, immediate action is needed to solve some problems and conflicts in the area.

One of the "disturbing" trends the report suggested, was the appearance in recent years of the "weekend farmers"—city dwellers or non-farmers who buy farm land in some areas just for weekend recreational use.

"People who are not farmers have been buying farms for weekend recreational use and for long-term investment. Some of these new owners are not bothering to farm the land, even to rent it to neighboring farmers.

"Instead, they have allowed it to revert to weeds. This practice not only detracts from the appearance of the countryside but also presents problems to working farmers, as the weeds spread to their lands.

"Some non-farmers are happy, given the chance, to sell at a handsome profit to subdivisions. And so potentially productive farmland disappears. Non-farmers, meanwhile, tend to bid up the price of land, making it hard for full-time farmers to expand their operations at reasonable cost."

The report, issued in lavishly colored folders with maps, photographs and maps, lists four key questions to which it says the government seeks answers:

—Where should future urban growth take place not how it should it be accommodated?

—What should be the future of the resort and recreational areas?

—What should be the future of the region's rural areas?

—What form of local government is needed?

Sale Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada announced Friday it intends to acquire one-third interest in Wardair Canada Ltd., Canada's largest charter airline.

The airline said it has signed with the Canadian Transport commission of the proposed acquisition.

Its fleet includes two Boeing 707s and a Boeing 727 as well as a number of smaller aircraft.

No sale price was announced.

Investigate Asia

SARNIA (CP) — Officials of the provincial department of the environment's air management branch will visit the nearby Sombra area sometime next week to investigate ash that fell here earlier this week. The black, oily ash covered an area between Port Lambton and Sombra, about 200 feet by 2½ miles. Residents complained it ruined vegetable gardens, sailed clothes and blackened homes and livestock.

Chemical Banned

BELFAST (Reuter) — Nitrobenzene, a deadly explosive increasingly being used by Irish Republican Army guerrillas was virtually banned Friday in Northern Ireland. A government announcement said the manufacture, sale and acquisition of the chemical would be authorized only under licence, and there would be issued only in exceptional circumstances.

Courts Tough

TAIPEI (AP) — Nationalist Chinese courts Thursday sentenced five men to death and eight others to prison for conspiring to overthrow the government of South Vietnam and adopted the necessary measures to establish respective embassies" at a time to be determined later.

Judges Busy

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Judge C. E. Bennett of Toronto, chief judge for the county and district courts of Ontario, said Friday the work load for county court judges in the province has become heavier due to increase in population, rising crime rates, law reform and the increase of legal aid.

He said the increased jurisdiction of county court judges in the areas of civil suits and divorce actions and a "tremendous increase" in jury trials and summary conviction appeals has added to the workload. But he said there are no serious backlogs of cases except in such large centres as London, Hamilton and Toronto.

Marks Studied

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Officials at Trent University have announced a three-year study to evaluate use of Grade 13 marks in predicting university performance. The study, financed by the Ontario ministry of education and universities, is the first of its kind since the mid-1950s.

Russians Remain

LONDON (AP) — Soviet military forces in the Middle East remains strong despite the withdrawal of most of the 20,000 man Soviet contingent from Egypt, an authoritative research centre reported Friday. The International Institute for Strategic Studies estimated there are still about 1,000 Soviet military instructors and advisers in Algeria, at least 1,200 in Iraq, up to 2,000 in Syria and up to 1,000 in the Yemens. This does not include the pool of instructors, technicians and specialists attached by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's expulsion order.

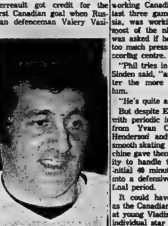
Russia Takes Lead Home

VANCOUVER (CP) — A near-perfect playing Soviet skater probably rammed up Russia's 5-3 victory over Team Canada here Friday night even before the result was in.



The unidentified Russian player, interviewed through an interpreter after the second period, said: "We are hungrier."

The visitors outskated, outhustled and outcrunched the home side before 15,570 disgruntled fans who turned their disgust with the Canadians to more than slight roars of pleasure at the manner in which the Soviets sometimes toyed with the national hockey league stars.

As one fan said, passing through the exit gate before the game had finished: "We expect to see that type of hockey from the (Vancouver) Canucks, but how can you justify that exhibition?"

Two power-play goals by Boris Mikhailov, both times with Canada's Bill Goldsworthy off, sent the Soviets into a 2-0 first-period lead and they were never seriously threatened in the next 40 minutes of play.

Yuri Blinov, Vladimir Vikulov and Vladimir Shadrin completed the Russian rout. Gil Perreault got credit for the first Canadian goal when Russian defenceman Valery Vasiliev carried it into the net. Bill Goldsworthy and Dennis Hull scored third-period goals for Team Canada on the strength of Phil Esposito's superb play.

PHIL ESPOSITO

Esposito, easily the hardest-working Canadian forward the last three games against Russia, was working double shift boost of the night and Sinden was asked if he wasn't putting too much pressure on the high-scoring centre.

"Phil tries in a lot of ways," Sinden said, "and he plays better the more work you give him.

"He's quite a competitor."

But despite Esposito's efforts, with periodic individual efforts from Yvan Cournoyer, Paul Henderson and Perreault, the smooth skating Russian machine gave them little opportunity to handle the puck in the initial 40 minutes, then settled into a defensive pattern in the final period.

It could have proved costly as the Canadians rifled 23 shots at young Vladislav Tretiak, the individual star of the series to date.

But the 20-year-old army lieutenant stood tall in the Soviet nets, allowing only two goals while turning back potential scoring shots, two each by Phil Esposito and Hull and by Ren Ellis who had been sent in alone by Bobby Clarke.

Cournoyer got behind the Russian defences twice in the second period, with the score 2-1, but was pulled up short by the Russian goaltender.

"That guy was just exceptional . . . again," Sinden added, by way of reference to the earlier three games in which Russian won 7-3 at Montreal, lost 4-1 in Toronto and tied 4-4 at Winnipeg.

Keon Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — Contract talks between the Ottawa National of the World Hockey Association and hockey star Dave Keon are stalled because of demands from Keon's lawyers for ironclad guarantees of his salary, a Nationals spokesman said Friday.

In Keon's case, his lawyers were asking that he be declared a free agent and paid his $1 million five-year salary if Nationals did not play a game by Dec. 12. The first scheduled Nationals game is Oct. 11.

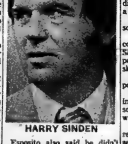
Jeers Infuriate Esposito

VANCOUVER (CP) — The game of the game is skating, and the visiting Russians gave Team Canada a lesson in the facet of the game Friday night in the eyes of Canadian coach Harry Sinden.

"The answer to their game is they skate as well . . . they never stop," Sinden observed. "If you're not skating, you're not going to get into the open and you don't take your man out."

"If you don't skate too, then you're going to make mistakes," Sinden told a post-game gathering of sports writers after Russia posted a 5-3 win to lead the eight-game series 2-1 with one game tied.

The series now reverts to Moscow for the next four games on Sept. 22, 24, 26 and 28.



The fans, who began booing the Canadians in the second period when they were hopelessly outskated and outhustled for 20 minutes, began to take up the chant again midway through the third period.

"It's typical," Sinden replied when asked how he reacted to the jeers. "What else do you expect?

"Who knows, maybe I'd be doing the same thing if I were in their position."

Canadian centre Phil Esposito didn't take the crowd's reaction as casually as did coach Sinden.

Speaking at centre ice after being named Team Canada's outstanding player in the game, Esposito said a number of the Canadians were upset by the booing. He said any fans who thought Team Canada wasn't giving it 150 per cent, were totally mistaken.

HARRY SINDEN

Esposito also said he didn't think Soviet fans would boo their own players in the Moscow games and promised to apologize to Canadian fans if that occurred.

Asked if he was surprised how the Canadians supported his team, Boris Kulyagin, Russia's assistant coach, commented: "We did like the fans. They were very objective to our players."

The turning point, to most, seemed to be two crucial penalties to winger Bill Goldsworthy early in the first period. The Soviets converted both into goals, by Boris Mikhailov, and the Canadians had to play catch-up hockey from there.

Sinden didn't see it that way. He said a goal by Rod Gilbert in the second period, disallowed by referee Gordon Lee who ruled the puck had been directed into the net by the Canadian's stick, should have been a legal score.

That would have made the score 3-2 in Russia's favor.

"That goal should have counted, it was legal," claimed Sinden. "The rules say the puck can go in off a player's skate, and that's what it did.

"If there had to be a turning point, that was it."

Kulagin, his usual dour face intact, nevertheless showed some emotional delight at the win.

"We never expected such a result, then the Canada series," he said through an interpreter.

Asked if he thought the Russians would show even better at home, Kulagin, who has shown a keen interest in sidestepping direct answers, replied: "Tonight, we again had a good goalie. We think the physical fitness helped us a lot."

Collides in Heat

Ryun's Comeback Over

MUNICH (CP) — No athlete had a steeper Path to the 30th Olympic Games than Jim Ryun.

His comeback ended prematurely Friday in a heat of the 1,500 metres, as he collided with another runner with 500 metres to go and both sprawled on the track, hopelessly out of contention.

It was yet another setback on a bad day for the United States as the Americans fell farther behind in their hunt for medals and lost two decisions in the countries room.

In medals, Russia led with 34 gold, 22 second-place silver and 18 third-place bronze. The U.S. total was 27-27-24.

In the unofficial point standings, based on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six placings in final events, the U.S. still led with 620 to Russia's 598 and 453½ for East Germany.

Canada picked up a third bronze to go with two silvers with a third-place finish in the Soling class of yachting and sixed 10th in the points table with 37.

The International Olympic Committee added to the Americans' problems by disqualifying Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett, two members of the U.S. 1,500-metre relay team, for failing to stand at attention when they received their medals after finishing first and third in the 400 metres.

The IOC also cleaned up the case of Rick DeMont, the asthmatic American swimmer whose medication contained a forbidden drug, by voting to withdraw his gold medal for the 400-metre freestyle and award it to Brad Cooper, the second-place Australian.

Russia was the big winner Friday, taking three gold in the decathlon, Tempest yachting and women's team foily in fencing.

Australia had two yachting golds in the Star and Dragon classes while Britain won the Dragon Class and East Germany's Annelie Ehrhardt took the women's 100-metre hurdles.

Ryun, a victim of the flu when he lost to Kip Keino of Kenya at Mexico City four years ago, was running in the heat which Keio won.

JIM RYUN

The world record-holder lost a last-ditch effort to get back into the 1,500-metre run today when an Olympic jury of appeals turned down his plea.

"We had no other choice," said Dan Ferris, a member of the International Amateur Athletic Federation jury.

"If he had been fouled we might have reinstated him. But he wasn't fouled. We even took into consideration the fact that so many people wanted to see him run against Kip Keino."

But, Ferris said, it would have been unfair to others to permit Ryun back in.

When he fell, his head appeared to hit the wooden curbin of the track and he appeared to be unconscious briefly before he got up and finished the race second to last.

To get to these games, Ryun had to overcome many of his athletic defeats but a serious blood disease, a kidney infection, hay fever and a psychological let-down that led to temporary retirement.

Keino won the heat in three minutes, 40 seconds. Despite the fall, Ryun was only 11 seconds off the winner's time in 3:51.5.

After the race, Ryun, with tears in his eyes, said:

"I remember being in a collision. Someone's knee hit my jaw and I went down."

Canada got its first medal in 42 years yachting when David Miller's Vancouver crew took the bronze in the Soling class.

Canada's two 1,500-metre men-Bill Smart of Vancouver and Ken Elmer of Burnaby, B.C., faded in their respective heats and were eliminated.

But there was Canadian hope in men's archery as Don Jackson of Lindsay, Ont., clung to a third-place position after two days of the four-day competition event, new to the Olympics.

Canada's men's epee team was unable to make it past the preliminary rounds and all crews in canoeing lost out in the semi-finals.

Miss Ehrhardt gave her country its fifth gold medal in women's track and field, leaving the U.S. clear out of sight in that division.

Several On Scholarship

Bobcats Hitting Books

By ERIC EMERSON
Sport Staff

While most university-bound students are packing items like text books, clean socks and directions to the campus pub, three members of last year's Belleville Bobcats have included items like a bowling pin, skate laces and maybe their favorite "Louisville Slugger 15".

Joining Peter Ackerman, who received news of a full scholarship to Colgate last spring in the collegiate ranks will be defenceman John Mohrhirt and right winger Terry Meagher.

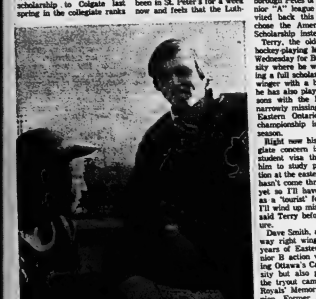
Gustavus Adolphus University, located in St. Peter's Minnesota and said to feature "the prettiest campus in America, along with some of the prettiest girls," will also feature last year's Bobcat captain John Mulvihill.

A three-year veteran of Junior B hockey with Belleville, the rushing rearguard has been in St. Peter's for a week now and feels that the Lutheran University (named after an early Swedish monarch) will live up to its advance billing.

The varsity team there play their home games in Bloomington, Minn., and are planning to enter a Christmas tournament in Winnipeg and possibly a visit to Sweden next year. John will be majoring in mathematics with a physics-ed minor. He was drafted last season by the Peterborough Petes of the OHA Junior "A" league and was invited back this season, but chose the American College Scholarship instead.

Terry, the oldest of five hockey-playing Meaghers, left Wednesday for Boston University where he will be receiving a full scholarship. A right winger with a booming shot, he has also played three seasons with the Belleville 'B's narrowly missing out on the Eastern Ontario scoring championship in the 1969-70 season.

Right now his major collegiate concern is obtaining a student visa that will allow him to study physical education at the eastern college. "It hasn't come through the mail yet so I'll have to go down as a 'tourist' for a while, or I'll wind up missing classes," said Terry before his departure.



Dave Smith, a hustling two-way right winger in his two years of Eastern Ontario Junior B action will be attending Ottawa's Carleton University but also plan to attend the tryout camp of Toronto Royals' Memorial Cup champion. Former Junior B and minor hockey teammate Barry Lupenette was a member of the Royals last season when they captured the Canadian junior championship.

Not all university-bound players will be definitely lost to the Bobcats, however. Last year's "rookie of the year" Brian Cousins will be studying arts-ed at Queens University in Kingston, but has indicated that he may be in a Bellville uniform when they begin Toronto Metro Junior B play this season.

"I won't be going out for the university hockey team," said the high scoring centre. "I might even play for Belleville this season. Most of their games are supposed to be on Fridays and Sundays."

Meanwhile, five members of last year's Blake Kerr Imperial midget all - stars will be attempting to crack the Junior A ranks.

Right winger Andy Ricketts is currently attending tryout camp of Welland in the Tier 2 Southern Ontario Junior A league while forwards John Masterson and David Flesch will be attempting to win spots with Oshawa and Chatham respectively. Defenceman Wally Dainard will be trying for a position with the team that drafted him last season.

Fame for Hall

Peter Hall of Belleville's Conductor and Engineers Powwow was selected all-star pitcher in the recent CNE preview baseball tournament held at Toronto. Here he receives his all-star plaque from Reggie Cleveland, left-hander with Cornwall, Saskatchewan native who is a pitcher with St. Louis Cardinals of National baseball League. (Intelligencer Toronto Bureau)

Trainmen Take Lead

The Industrial Softball League's tenacious trainmen were back on top Friday, riding pitcher Mark Sheridan's three-hitter to a 5-0 win over Mead Johnson and a 2-1 lead championship series.

The hero here, Mead Johnson, who finished ahead of the CN entry in their regular-season season standings, had tied the series with an 8-5 win.

But Friday, it was a different story. With only Cliff Bineman, Maine Voyer and Wayne Storms connecting off Sheridan, who gave up four walks while striking out eight, Sheridan also "Belted an RBI triple to aid his own cause, and got other support in the form of two hits each by Horner Thomas and Rob Schlueter and a big triple from Bob Lloyd.

All the trainmen's nine hits came off Mead starter Sonny Holoway, who was relieved by Ken Osborne in the last inning. Holoway fanned three and issued the same number of walks.

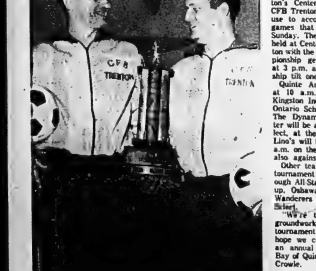
Soccer Players on Spot

Sunday's Molson Invitational Soccer Tournament will be one instance where individual effort will mean as much as team success.

Not only will members of the 16 senior teams entered in the event be vying for the championship cup, but they will also have the opportunity to catch a spot on the Ontario team. Selectors for the provincial squad will be on hand to scout participants in the one-day event.

Sunday's tourney will mark the first time since 1966 that a senior soccer competition will be held in this area. The local district will be well represented with three teams vying for championship honors.

Top players from the B a y of Quinte Soccer Association have been picked to form the Quinte Ambers and Quinte Dynamos, while the third local entry will be Lino's Pizza who have competed every season in the Kingston and District League.



The Quinte Association players were chosen during a series of practice sessions involving the top 36 players from the league. Members of Wellevile Parsons, Stanley Travellers, Belleville United, CFB Trenton, Quinte Sport and the Bata Braves will comprise the Ambers, coached by Angus Cameron and the Dynamos under the direction of Dudley Hillier.

Local soccer fanciers at Zwick's Island, QSD. Trenton's Centennial Park and CFB Trenton will be put into use to accommodate the 22 games that will be played Sunday. The finals will be held at Centennial Park Trenton with the consolation championship getting under way at 3 p.m. and the championship till one hour later.

Quinte Ambers open play at 10 a.m. Sunday against Kingston International at the Ontario School for the Deaf. The Dynamos' first game of ter will be against Ottawa Select, at the same time but Lino's will be in action at 11 a.m. on the same CFB field, also against Ottawa Selects.

Other teams entered in the tournament include Peterborough All Stars, Oshawa Tuscan, Oshawa Azura, Oshawa Wanderers and Newmarket Select.

We're trying to lay the groundwork for a successful tournament this year and hope we can expand it into an annual event," informed Bay of Quinte president Peter Crowle.

Finders, Keepers ?

Unfortunately for CFB Trenton soccer teammates Garry Pirk and Ken Collard, the old adage about finders being keepers doesn't necessarily apply to the Molson's Trophy. The Bay of Quinte Soccer League senior will not have to work their way past nine other entries in a day-long tournament Sunday to earn the trophy,

Gabler Goes Against Cats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chuck Ealey and Wally Gabler, two quarterbacks battling for the starting job in Hamilton Tiger-Cats next Monday when Hamilton Tiger-Cats meet the Argonauts in an Eastern Football Conference contest in Toronto.

When Ealey beat out Gabler for the starting job in Hamilton, Gabler was traded to Edmonton Eskimos. He refused to report and wound up back in Toronto.

The Argonauts, winless in their first four starts, could move into a tie for the final playoff berth with a win coupled with a Montreal loss when the Als visit first-place Ottawa Rough Riders tonight.

Both games will be televised. Tonight's contest will be on the CBC national network starting at 8 EDT. Sunday's game will be on the CTV eastern network at 1 p.m. EDT.

Argo coach Leo Cahill and Gabler both agree the strong part of the Tiger-Cats is their defensive secondary.

Cahill has received some good news this week after getting through the Montreal victory without an injury.

Safetyback Steve Skinner has been activated after making a surprising recovery from an April operation in which 38 inches of small intestine was removed. He had dropped to 182 pounds but now is back to 205.

Jenkins Wins 20 Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Move over Lefty Grove, Robin Roberts and Warren Spahn. Make room for Fergie Jenkins, the Chicago Cubs' big Canadian right-hander.

Jenkins became only the fourth pitcher since 1920, or the so-called modern baseball era, to win 20 games for six consecutive seasons Friday night, hurling the Cubs to a 4-3 decision over Philadelphia Phillies and his fourth win away from Wrigley Field.

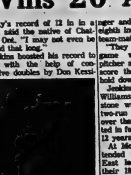
"It's something no pitcher could ever dream of doing," Jenkins said. "Just being in the same class with guys like Spahn and Roberts is a thrill. That's a great class to be in."

Roberts and then Spahn put together six 20-victory seasons in a row in the National League, and Grove did it in the American League while on route to the Hall of Fame.

Only two other pitchers in major league baseball have fashioned longer streaks, both in the deadball era. Christy Mathewson won 28 or more for 12 consecutive years and Walter Johnson for 18.

Jenkins, a workhorse who annually pitches more than 300 innings from April through September, admitted he will start thinking about 20 in 1973 for the "modern" record. However, he has no thoughts of catching Mathewson.

"Don't expect me to break Christy's record of 12 in a row," said the native of Chatham, Ont. "I may not even be around that long."



Jenkins boosted his record to 20-10 with the help of consecutive doubles by Don Kessinger and Jose Cardenal in the eighth inning. Then he credited team-mates for his success.

"They have made me 20-game winner," the 5-foot-9 pitcher said. "They go out and score the runs. I just try to score the runs. I just try to throw strikes."

Jenkins' team-mate, Billy Williams, also reached a milestone with his 29th homer, a two-run shot. It was Williams' two-run shot that mark in runs batted in for only the third time in 13 years.

At Montreal, the Pirates extended their lead of Eastern League East into double-digits by sweeping all the season. They have split five twin bills for an over-all 25-15 record on double-duty days.

Houston's Larry Dierker picked up his 13th victory with relief help from Dave Roberts.

FERGUSON JENKINS

Red Sox Retain Top Spot

It was the best of times when Luis Tiant served a beer mug at the wedding of his pal Celerino Sanchez in Mexico last year.

It was the worst of times when Tiant suffered a groin injury scoring hit up the middle in the fifth inning Friday night, and had a string of 40 consecutive scoreless innings.

"He like a fighting slider," Tiant said. "You make a mistake and that's what you get. I'm lucky he didn't hit a home run."

It was the best of times again when Tiant retired Sanchez on a fly ball with two runners aboard for the final out in Boston Red Sox-New York Yankees 4-0 victory over New York Yankees.

It was the Red Sox' fourth win in a row and kept them in first place in baseball's American League East, second-half game ahead of Detroit Tigers, who edged Baltimore Orioles 2-1 on Mickey Fryman's two hitter.

The big hitting in Boston was done by the Red Sox' Carl Yastrzemski, who clipped Fritz Peterson for a run scoring single in the first inning and a two run homer in the third. Yastrzemski now has 97 runs batted in and is two runs longer in the third. Boston's Luis Aparicio has 47th homer.

Yankee manager Ralph Houk complained of losing all three games in Boston "didn't hurt anything. We've only three games out and we've still got 27 to play. We've got to just have to win a few in a row and we'll be right back in it. Tiant could be impervious to pain, but Baltimore's Earl Weaver was sung by the Orioles' second loss to Detroit in three nights after dropping two of three to Yankees.

"It didn't finish us by a long shot," he warned, "but it's bad."

Fisher Wants Wind

TORONTO (CP) — Don't be surprised if Gordon Fisher grins a little if he wins in whipping up Lake Ontario prior to Sunday's first race in the Canada's Cup sailing series.

"He'd prefer a good blow to help Mirage explode away from the American challenger Dynamite skippered by Lloyd Ecclestone of Detroit.

"Her best point of sailing is off the wind and in a good blow," Fisher, managing director of Southam Press, said in a pre-race interview.

"The designers of Mirage wanted to sacrifice sail area to keep displacement down. We thought that would pay off best."

Mirage, a 46-foot sloop whose lines are pencilled by Cuthbertson and Cassian of Port Credit, Ont., has a tall cross-section configuration resembling a brandy snifter rather than the traditional wine-glass shape.

This means a greater wetted surface for planing on a reach or a run.

"With a wind of about 10 miles an hour, we should be just as fast as Dynamite," Fisher said. "In lighter winds, Dynamite has the bigger wetted area but that's at the expense of sailing length, the length of the boat in the water."

The Canada's Cup challenge series dates back to 1896 when the cutter Canada out of Toronto's Royal Canadian Yacht Club defeated Vencedor of Chicago in a series off Toledo, Ohio.

In the 10 series since then, American boats have won seven to capture the cup regarded as the America's Cup of the Great Lakes.

But the Canadians have won the only two series since the Second World War.

David Howard, who will be navigator and tactician aboard Mirage, brought the silverware back to RCYC with Venture II, an eight-metre, in 1954.

The next challenge was in 1960 when Harold Wilson Connolly at the helm most of the time, beat the Cleveland sloop Niagara in three straight races.

Fisher handled Manitou's helm during the starts and nailed some of the legs off the wind.

Sunday's first race will be over a 21-mile triangular course about seven miles southeast of here. A second short course race is scheduled Monday with a long-distance race of between 9 130-250 miles on Tuesday.

The short-course races are worth one point and the distance race two. If the series is tied after three races, a deciding race will be sailed next Saturday over the triangular course.

Fisher isn't making any predictions but said "we have no reason to think their boat or crew is any better than ours."

Soviets Enjoy Strippers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Officials of the Soviet Union's national hockey team saw their first North American-style burlesque show Thursday night and enjoyed it.

After conducting a bed-check to make sure their hockey players were getting rested up for Friday night's fourth game of the Canada-Russia exhibition hockey series, the Soviet officials joined officials of the Canadian team for a visit to a nightclub.

The club's floor show featured strip-tease artists and a team of four female impersonators known as the Fabulous Fakes.

The party of about two dozen, shepherded by a man who said he was from the external affairs department, moved into the club at about 8.30 p.m. After RCMP and city police had checked out the premises.

When they left about 12:30 a.m., they had consumed more than $200 worth of champagne and given an $11 tip to the waitress who served them.

Club owner Tony Lenner said he felt the party enjoyed the show.

"Any time you get about 20 guys standing up and applauding continental style means somebody's having a good time," he said.

Lenner said he asked the Russian interpreter if his countrymen had ever seen a strip or burlesque show before and was told:

"No, we have nothing like this in Russia."

The club owner said the Fabulous Fakes caused the Russians to ask through their interpreter what was going on and who those women were.

"I told them they were four Russian draft-dodgers and that broke them up," Lenner said.

Kingston Card Corker

KINGSTON — They are calling it the best Frontenac Downs' race card of the season.

Three excellent races are set to go in Sunday's 10-race card with more than $5,500 in purse money up for grabs. The first post is at 1:34 p.m.

It is difficult to pick one of the three races and rate it the best since all feature stirring pacing fields for big purses.

The race which features the largest purse is the first division of the Glen Lawrence Invitational Pace. (The second division goes next Sunday afternoon.)

Leading the six-horse field are Norm Jones' Bret Flicka and Albert Bourassa's Tarrone. Paul Barkley will drive Ambro Huck, Guy LaRush will make his first appearance of the year to pilot Goldeck, Earl Lake will drive Canadian Killean and Orley Coville will race Happy Hal N.

The complete field has raced this year in 2:04 or less, with the exception of Happy Hal N, who stepped off a fast feature win Wednesday night at the Downs in 2:05 2-5.

The track record should be assaulted in this one.

Next on the list of top-flight harness racing action is the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association late-closing event which has a seven-race field going for $1,375. Phillaurie, Canal View Paisley Gaiety's Jule, Zorro Gratian and John's Prince are the leading contenders.

The $500 preferred race has Lee Bud, Two Mountains Dear Victoria C and Cadillac Hanover.

So that's the final division of the Glen Lawrence Invitational, the late-closing OHHA Stake and the fine preferred field all on the same card.

SHANTYBOO NUGGETS

TRICKED BY TWO CITY FELLERS

by SOURDOUGH SAM

Get a lot while you're still young, as my old grandpappy used to say.

They was pokin around the place last week. Kinda proud like. So I told em just because they bought the place didn't mean they owned it. That took the starch out of em.

That's the same idea as them fellers that bought Shaw ano last.

They said for me to tell you about the facilieries such as the handy Trading Post for grub and supplies and the Marina for gas. OK then, I've said it.

Then they started needling me about the good roads into every cottage &c. So you can play billiards on em now, but what about the ditchs, I says. Why the trails were so narrow you had to starve a pack mule to get through em.

Tell em about the hydro installed in every dale, Sam, the feller with the curly hair said. What the Sam Hell do I care about hydro. A kerosene lamp's all I need to read the good book.

Then they kept harpin about the lots. So I said I wasn't makin a pool of myself spoutin about something I knew nothin about. Plain stubborn they were. They wrote the staff out for me.

Here it is: Lot prices are $4,500, $5,000, $5,900, $6,000, $7,500, $7,600 and two at $13,000 each — them's big ones on the point.

Read the example, Sam, one of em kept sayin, so I from him in his noodle bowls with one stare.

For example, the paper read, Lot 75 has a western exposure on a point on Lost Lake. There's a nice mix of hardwood and evergreens and the lot has 300 ft. of water footage by 300 ft. deep. All for $4,250. As low as 10% down on all lots.

Now that I've done that for you, I see, let me do some talkin about the old days like what happened to Zeb Kagard when he was ringing his bull, and about that crazy coon hound that bit Cousin Elmer in the ...

Too late, we've run out of room, they laughed. And I'm could see how they'd put one over on me. You think you're so goldurned smart, I sez, but you don't have to be a vet to detect a lover — and stamped off to my cabin.

What the Stars Say

By JEANNE DIXON

Sunday, Sept. 10

Aries (March 21-April 19): The quiet of Sunday provides a vacuum in which your bright ideas bounce like a potential rainbow—perhaps it really is.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Share what you have with those you love; make it a social Sunday free from efforts at business or concern over theories.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Make the rounds of your community, catch up on all the latest developments. Then gather all for a social gathering.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Small changes turn out to be significant. You should be in your element if promoting good home life, domestic tranquility.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Experiments bring interesting results, particularly where children are involved. Outdoor doings have a special appeal to all.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): There's excitement, news of a personal nature, something to celebrate. Gather friends and share the joy of being alive.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): In the midst of the holiday feeling of this Sunday there's a chance to hope to attend a long-neglected practical need.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's time you took a good look at what you think your problems are. Realize some are created or made worse by your attitudes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Propose simple quiet sharing of favorite pastimes and pleasures once you've done your share of unpleasant but necessary formalities.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Listening well now can bring you insight that awakes strong motivation to do better, live a simpler, more effective life.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Think about your public image, make changes where indicated. Fresh contacts include unfamiliar but intriguing challenges.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Social adventure of this pleasant enough Sunday. No plan is going to be complete, add as you go.

Monday, Sept. 11

Aries (March 21-April 19): Where the going becomes important you may find yourself carrying most of the burden. Focus your energy on the immediate problem.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Direct yourself from lonesome to deliberate concentration on improving some skill. Try and skip work for a while.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You go it alone, like it or not. Suffer from those around you enjoying things up. Some people fail to remember their promises.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Most of the criticism offered is the projection of the critic's own shortcomings. Please yourself first, then others where it's possible.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Returns favors, but lend nothing today. Select some serious routine that is behind schedule, bring it up to date.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tact decisions ride for a while—you are impatient, failing to see the importance of factors but by ignoring to work.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Coping with the unplanned is today's main challenge. Institutions, customs and tradition limit the range of what you can do.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Bring a routine, matter-of-fact approach to a business-as-usual program. It won't work out, but it's better than no plans.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): No conniving on private deals; if you want something strongly, make an open and honest bid for it. Allow for sensitivity.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stick to tried-and-true methods. Don't let despite comments from competitors and rivals, but have something to defend.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): See the backlog of work and diverse complications that must be resolved before the changes you plan can be put into effect.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The more they care, the more difficult the relation at the moment. Your gentle tact eventually turns the situation around.

To Your Good Health

Family Demands On Sick Heavy

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Help! Help! I have a problem that I find the common among people disabled by disease such as mine.

Diagnosis: Chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema, and arteriosclerotic heart disease.

Although the above diagnosis was arrived at by two doctors, both recommended by my employer, I have had no complaint from competitors and rivals. Your gentle tact eventually turns the situation around.

I do manage to work at these tasks about three to four hours a day, but it's rough because the very act of breathing can be taxing, and then I am nagged because I can't get up in the morning.

I am 63, have provided a better than average home for my wife and three children. My wife never had to work, and the children are grown, are established in excellent careers.

I feel that a statement from your physician is necessary.

Okay, I'll use your pen name and not your real name or initials.

I don't know why, and I don't know how often, but I do know that at times there are people who have a distorted idea of what disabled means. If a person isn't on crutches, or bedridden, or in a wheelchair, they have a blind spot and can't understand disabilities that aren't visible.

In your case, your breathing is impaired and you have heart disease, and there are many people who have lost a leg or a hand and are less disabled than you are. I don't see why your family can't recognize that. Their insistence that you do the work you are unable to do clearly is unreasonable on their part.

You probably can tolerate a bit of work, taken at intervals with rest between, but when you run short of breath it is a signal that you are doing too much. You must conserve strength when, for the sake of your frail health, you should be resting.

If your family can't understand that, I see no alternative but to seek your legal dues. Do what you can comfortably and then rest until your breath comes easily again and you feel up to doing some more.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When I was a child, I had a rash that looks like crazy for about 20 or 25 minutes. I have tried all the soaps on the market and it is the same thing. Could you help?—Mrs. K.

Well, then it isn't a matter of which soap to use. But have you tried robbing on one of the available bath oils afterward? Or, it may be due to the heat of the shower spray. Try a cool or cold rinse.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband, 36, cannot have butter on anything, even at the top of bread, or he gets stomach cramps and "the runs" every 10 or 15 minutes for the next two or three hours.

This sometimes develops with ice cream or related dairy products. In the three years we have been married, I have tried to get him to see a doctor, as I know this is not normal. What do you think?—Mrs. A.D.

Well it might be an intolerance to dairy products, which certain people have to struggle along with. I would think some medical checkup would be wise, though. Maybe in another three years of trying you can get him to see his doctor.

UN Stymied on Terrorism

U.S. Vetoes Motion Denouncing Israel

China, Russia Also Use Veto

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States cast its second veto in the history of the United Nations Security Council Sunday night. It killed a resolution demanding a halt to Israeli reprisal raids but making no mention of the Arab terrorism that provoked the raids.

The veto came after an all-day debate of the Palestinian guerrilla massacre of Israeli Olympic athletes in Munich Tuesday and Israeli air strikes Friday at reputed guerrilla positions in Syria and Lebanon.

China and the Soviet Union earlier had voiced amendments that would have applied the resolution to terrorist activities as well as military operations.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush said their vetoes killed "a very important passage that could have made the resolution more acceptable."

Explaining his own veto, he said the resolution ignores realities and "looked to effect but not to cause." Its "silence on the distaster in Munich" invited more terrorism, he said.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah, absent because of the Jewish New Year, told reporters by telephone that the U.S. vote would be "misunderstood by the people of Israel."

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik spoke of "the deep-rooting events which occurred in Munich" but said to put them on the same footing as the new Israeli raids would be "condoning the aggressive policy of the Israeli maniacs."

Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua, presiding over the council for the first time since Peking entered the world organization late last year, also referred to "the unfortunate incident" in Munich but then said that the Palestinians and other Arabs had been "compelled to take up arms and ... to recover their homelands" from Israel.

Ambassadors Hamsun Kelani of Syria and Edouard Ghorra of Lebanon, who had asked for the meeting, registered dissatisfaction. Ghorra said he was "deeply disappointed" by the U.S. veto and would not let the matter rest. But both he and Kelani called the resolution that failed too weak.

The resolution, sponsored by Somalia, Guinea and Yugoslavia, noted "the deteriorating situation in the Middle East" and called on "the parties concerned to cease immediately all military operations and exercise the greatest restraint."

The amendments, which Britain, France, Belgium and Italy sponsored, called instead on "all parties concerned to take all measures for the immediate cessation and prevention of military operations and terrorist activities." It also "deeply deplored all acts of terrorism" and ceasefire violations.

The "all parties" phrase, understood to embrace the Palestinians as well as the Israelis, was killed by the Chinese and Soviet vetoes on a 5-to-6 vote.

Nine votes in a passing majority unless any one of the five permanent members of the council uses the veto. On separate votes, neither of two other amendments got that necessary majority. The one against military and terrorist actions died on a vote of 4 to 7 and the "deploring" clause on a vote of 4 to 4.

Viet Cong Has New Peace Plan

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong struck a new peace statement today, saying it is "prepared to accept a provisional government of national concord that shall be dominated by neither side."

United States sources in Saigon interpreted this as a concession that neither side can win the war militarily. But Viet Cong and North Vietnamese spokesman have said repeatedly in the past—for political consumption, at least—that the coalition government they proposed would be a coalition of equals, with none of the factions dominating.

The Viet Cong termed the three-point declaration today "an important statement on ending the war in Vietnam and restoring peace." But it also reaffirmed it appeared to be no more than a reiteration of previous Communist peace demands.

Peace again is called on the United States to withdraw all its troops from Vietnam "in action supporting the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu, and to halt the bombing and mining of North Vietnam.

"Should the U.S. government really respect the South Vietnamese people's right of self-determination and seriously negotiate to peacefully settle the South Vietnam problem," the statement said, "the Provisional Revolutionary Government of the Republic of South Vietnam is prepared to reach agreements to the effect that neither a Communist regime nor a U.S. stooge regime shall be imposed on South Vietnam."

"It is prepared to accept a provisional government of national concord that shall be dominated by neither side."

Olympic Village Shots Turn Out False Alarm

MUNICH (AP) — Police indicated today that they thought a report of shots at the Olympic Village on the eve of the ending of the 20th games was a false alarm.

The police called off their search for a gunman after even ing the athlete's resident al area all night with dogs. Detectives said they found no spent bullets, no empty cartridge and no other evidence that any shots had been fired.

Police reinforcements were rushed into the Village Sunday night mid fears of another terrorist attack like the one Tuesday in which 11 Israelis, five Arabs and one Munich policeman were killed.

As during Tuesday's tragedy, conflicting reports and rumors flooded into the Olympic press centre across the campus from the Olympic Village.

Munich police gave this upon of Sunday night's activity:

Five shots were fired. A gunman was seen firing from a spiral staircase outside the quarters of the Moroccan team. The gunman got away. No casualties were found.

A police official suggested that it "could have been an evil practical joke."

About the time the shots were heard, a 17-year-old Austrian fell to his death from a flagpole near the village while apparently trying to steal an Olympic flag, Hans Klein, the head of the Olympics' press section, said the death absolutely was not connected with the shooting.

Willie Daume, chairman of the organizing committee for the Games, told a reporter he thought the reports of shots were nonsense.

"They could just as well have been from a child's cap gun," he said.

Another Olympic official said shots were heard in the area of the French quarters— where, about that time, the French were toasting their 1-600 metre relay team's bronze medal with champagne.

"Champagne bottles go pop, as everyone knows," one of the Frenchmen commented.

The shots also were supposed to have been heard near the Soviet quarters, but "the Russians heard nothing," an Olympic spokesman said.

Some reporters, however, saw police swarm into the Russian area. Several photographers were even roughed up by security guards, and their press credentials were taken away as they attempted to take pictures in that area.

A police spokesman insisted that all quarters in the village were searched for clues or casualties, not just those of the Russians.

Asked how a gunman could succeed in penetrating the tight security ring around the Olympic Village, a police spokesman said: "We are not ruling out the possibility that whoever fired the shots had a right to be there."

Three Arabs Arrested Trying to Quit Munich

MUNICH (AP) — Three Arabs, one a woman, were taken into custody in the last two days while trying to leave Munich by plane, West German police announced today as they continued to investigate the Arab terrorist raid on the Olympic Village.

Police said the names of the three were found in the pockets of the five Arab guerrillas killed Tuesday night in the gun battle in which the Israeli hostages died.

Police emphasized that they had no other evidence linking the three to the Arab raid.

The names of the three were not disclosed.

German border police were making a tight security check of all passengers going through Munich Airport on this final day of the Olympics. All were searched, those travelling on domestic as well as international flights.

The German government announced that autopsies of the nine slain Israeli hostages showed the Arab terrorists shot all of them as they sat tied and blindfolded in the two helicopters at an air base near Munich.

There had been speculation that the German shareholders might have hit some of the hostages when they fired at the Arabs. But the spokesman said the autopsy showed the Arabs apparently killed the hostages moments after the shargun.

But the air force's report of heavy damage in North Vietnam was offset by a revised field report that explosives Sunday at a bomb storage dump at Bien Hoa Air Base, 16 miles northeast of Saigon, destroyed or damaged 70 South Vietnamese helicopters.

Report for Trudeau Declares Separate Quebec Is Feasible

HULL, Que. (CP) — A report said to have been commissioned by Prime Minister Trudeau says the separation of Quebec is feasible and recommends Canada reject a monetary union with an independent Quebec.

Jacques Parizeau, Parti Quebecois economist, said Sunday.

He told a party symposium that the report, which he said he obtained from a member of Mr. Trudeau's staff, was the result of a study of the PQ manifesto published in April.

The report proposes Canada reject any monetary union and suggests an independent Quebec be urged to devalue its currency by 15 per-cent in relation to the Canadian dollar, Mr. Parizeau said.

Mr. Trudeau believes in independence for Quebec less than any one else, Mr. Parizeau said, "but now he is beginning to doubt."

"The general conclusion of the document is that political independence for Quebec is workable."

Later Sunday night, PQ leader Rene Levesque mentioned the report in an address to the symposium.

"The prime minister of Canada gives the impression of a guy who is opening up."

Mr. Parizeau told reporters a 15 per cent devaluation of any Quebec currency would have considerable economic benefits for an independent Quebec but added he would prefer to let the currency float to stabilize itself.

About 600 people attended the closing session of the symposium, called to discuss the fate of federal civil servants in an independent Quebec.

Mr. Parizeau told the Saturday session that an independent Quebec could offer 350,000 jobs in the public service, almost double the present figure.

In Valleyfield, Premier Robert Bourassa told a Liberal party rally the PQ economist is propos g "a republic of public servants" and said the province could not afford the cost.

Claude morin, Parti Quebecois constitutional adviser, also questioned Mr. Parizeau's figure of 350,000 jobs as too high, adding that jobs must not be created just "to accommodate the brilliant minds coming out of our universities."

Soldiers Are Killed By Mine

BELFAST (AP) — A powerful land mine exploded under a British Saracen armored car Sunday, killing two soldiers and injuring four others.

The blast hurled their 10-ton armored car 20 feet into the air and gouged a crater 20 feet wide and 20 feet deep in a quiet country road near Dungannon in County Tyrone late Sunday. Two of the soldiers were killed instantly and a third died later.

The army said the explosion was caused by between 400 and 500 pounds of gelignite and home-made explosives.

"It was one of the biggest bombs experienced in Northern Ireland," an army spokesman said. "It had been planted in a culvert beneath the road and was detonated with a wire by guerrillas waiting 70 yards away."

At least three of the injured soldiers were said to be in serious condition.

Candidates Identified By End of September

Federal Progressive Conservatives and Liberals today announced intentions to hold nominating conventions for Hastings riding in the week of September 24.

Exact dates and times will be made known in the next few days, say spokesmen for both parties.

Conservatives have selected Madoc's Centre Hastings Secondary School as site for their nominating convention and, according to the riding association secretary Raymond Gunsolus, "the date hinges on the availability of a speaker."

For the Liberals, Centennial Secondary School, Belleville has been picked as a convention location and the date is set tentatively for September 27. Announcement of final arrangements is expected in the next few days.

Gunsolus said the Conservatives have not yet decided on a candidate, adding this will depend on the position of Hastings MP Lee Grills.
